New Fair Dates Announced

The 1950 edition of the DeKalb County Free Fall Fair in Auburn will be held Sept. 12 to 16, inclusive, officials of the fair association announced Saturday.

The date for next year's event was decided Friday night at the final 1949 meeting of the association. The meeting was held in the assembly room of the court house in Auburn. Lewis E. Freeman of near Auburn, newly elected president of the association, presided.

The 1950 fair will be held the week corresponding to the fair held last September. The official opening of the fair will again be on Tuesday night and the close Saturday night.

Only about 25 members of the association were present for the meeting. The date for the 1950 fair was recommended by a committee of 5 members who were appointed at the Dec. 8 election meeting. The committee contacted various residents of the county to determine the popular date for staging the annual five-day event.

Members of the committee included LaVern Stuckey of Grant township, chairman; Harry Kreamelmeyer of south of Auburn, Clair Tuttle of Richland township, Fred Stemen of near Spencerville and Virgil Smith of Jackson township.

A recommendation for the establishment of a 4-H club livestock show ring was placed before the association's directors. The recommendation was taken under advisement. Ernest J. Lesiuk, county agent, asked the fair board to either provide a show ring for 4-H livestock or to arrange a program whereby the horse show ring could be utilized.

Ralph W. Wible of Auburn, past president of the association, recommended that the association purchase its own broadcasting system for the fair to avoid high rental payments. The recommendation was referred to the fair board's executive committee.

Ford Walter of Auburn, secretary of the association, announced that the next meeting will be held Jan. 27 in the assembly room in the court house in Auburn.

To Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. David O. Arnett of St. Joe, formerly of Ft. Wayne, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Sunday, Jan. 8, at their home, one and a half miles north of St. Joe. There will be a family dinner served at noon followed by a reception for friends and relatives from 2 until 5 p.m. The Arnetts have one daughter, Mrs. John C. Lee, 2416 S. Calhoun, St., Ft. Wayne, and two sons, Russell Arnett of St. Joe and Leonard Arnett, 2821 Bowser Ave., Ft. Wayne. They also have 12 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

ST. JOE CAN BRAG! !

We are a little reluctant to brag, but feel old lady luck has been with the residents of the town of St. Joe.

Did you know we have not had a fire loss within the incorporated limits of St. Joe in the year 1949?

We of the St. Joe Volunteer Fire Department want to extend our thanks to the people of our little town for being fire conscious and helping to make this record possible.

Keep up the good work!

Distant Cousins Meet Again Through Local Item

Ralph Lochner of St. Joe has received a letter from John C. Lochner. a distant cousin, whom he had not been in contact with for thirty years, through a news item which appeared in the St. Joe News.

The text of the letter is as follows:

Dear Sir:

I have just seen your name in the St. Joe News and am wondering what branch of the Lochner family you folks come from - maybe not yet born when we left DeKalb county for Florida in 1921. My father Jacob Lochner resided on a farm 7 miles south of Auburn, and that's where the writer was born on Aug. 1st, 1871.

See at the masthead that the St. Joe News is now in its 64th year and well do I remember when the paper was first started by Mort Olds, first as a hand bill to advertise his store. And little did I think then - a boy on a farm - that I would spend 60 years of my business life in the newspaper and job printing business, but that's the record having retired (quit) on Sept. 9 last.

Therefore I feel that I am somewhat qualified to compliment Mr. Haberkorn, the editor and publisher, on the appearance and news coverage of the paper today, and if St. Joe has not grown and prospered through all these years. certainly its lethergy cannot be the fault of its newspaper.

So, at this yuletime may I extend Seasons Greetings and well wishes.

John C. Lochner
Clermont, Florida

John C. Lochner was editor of an Auburn paper before going to Florida. Ralph Lochner's father's name also was Jacob Lochner, and Ralph was born a mile south of where John was born; the farms were adjacent.

Change In County Highway Dept.

Commissioner Ira Grogg of Rt.1, LaOtto, was elected president of the DeKalb county board of commissioners at the opening 1950 session held Tuesday in commissioner's court in the court house in Auburn.

Lloyd Yeiser of Rt.1, Butler, 1949 president of the board, was elected vice-president, and Frank Schuster of Rt 2, Waterloo, who began his three-year term Tuesday, was named secretary. Mr. Schuster replaced Oscar Fulk of north of Waterloo on the board.

The commissioners, after organization of the board, confined their activities Tuesday to appointing county employees for 1950.

Several major shake-ups took place. The major change was the appointment of Roy Zimmerman of near Spencerville as county highway supervisor.

Mr. Zimmerman, county highway patrolman for the Spencerville district, replaces County Surveyor Wayne T. Van Auken of near Auburn, who has served for 11 years as supervisor.

The commissioners reported that headquarters for the county highway department will be moved from the surveyor's office in the court house to the highway garage at Auburn Junction.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

YOUR CHILD'S HEARING

MORE than three million school children in the United States have defective hearing. The most important and common cause for hearing losses is an obstruction of the tube that leads from the throat to the middle ear. Called the Eustachian tube, its purpose is to equalize the air pressure on the inside of the middle ear cavity with the outer air. If this tube is not open, the unequal air pressure on the drum membranes of the ear causes a full feeling, with a noticeable impairment in hearing. If the tube remains blocked for a long time, permanent damage to the ear can result. For example, enlarged adenoids can cover the opening of the Eustachian tube into the throat and prevent air from entering the middle ear cavity. If detected in time, removal of the adenoids will restore normal hearing. If neglected for a long period, permanent hearing damage can result.

Any obstruction such as wax or a foreign object that fills the ears canals will impair the normal hearing process and hearing loss occurs. When the hearing nerve, however, is involved, the hearing loss is permanent, since once destroyed the nerve never grows back. Some children are born with a defective hearing nerve, while others can attribute their deafness to diphtheria and other infectious childhood diseases.

Since the majority of hearing losses in children is the type that can be helped or prevented by medical attention, provided they are discovered early, it is important that all children be given hearing tests.

The Church Dynamic

Lesson for January 8, 1950

THE CHURCH is not meant to be a club, a lectire-hall, a debating society, a rest home, a music hall, an entertainment bureau or a burial association. It has something to do along all these lines, of course. But the Church is meant to be a place and channel of power. One of the last things Jesus, the Founder of the Church, said to his friends was: "Ye shall receive power when the Holy Spirit is come upon you." Not—you shall receive comfort, or wealth, or insight, or any other good thing, though all of them have their place. What Jesus highlights is power.

Dr. Foreman

Dr. W. M. Horton, in his little book on the Christian faith, asks: When is a church not a church? His answer is: When it has lost the Holy Spirit. That is a good New Testament answer.

The early Christmas could not have imagined a church without the Holy Spirit, because in fact there had never been one without him. It was the coming of the Spirit on that summer day in Jerusalem that actually made the church, in the first place. True, it was not made out of nothing.

But suppose the Spirit had never come? What would have happened? Sooner or later the little band would have grown tired of waiting, would have given up faith in Jesus' promise, would have drifted off one by one, and the Christian church would have died before it was born.

Tongues of Fire

THERE SEEMS to be something mystic, mysterious and unreal about the Holy Spirit, to most people's minds. We read in Acts about the flaming tongues of fire, about the rushing mighty wind, about Christians talking in strange languages; and then we go to our own church and find there no fire, no wind; only ordinary English is spoken by everyday people, the same people we have been seeing all week.

We get to thinking the Holy Spirit is just something in the Bible, some experience they could have away back yonder, but not here and now. After all, looking over the church from that day to this, and around the world at the present day, how many cases, authentic genuine cases of fire-on-the-head or storm-in-the-church-house, do you find? Not many! Does that show the Holy Spirit is not here any more?

We must remember that St. Paul met with much the same questions. Did a man have to speak in strange tongues to be sure he had the Holy Spirit? Fortunately, Paul stated in so many words what the fruits of the Spirit are: Love, joy, peace . . . Look up the rest of it in Gal. 3:22-23.

You may take St. Paul's inspired word for it: If you over see a church, a Christian group, that is notable for love, joy, peace . . . gentleness, goodness, faith . . . you may be sure the Holy Spirit is there. Wo do not gather grapes from tharns nor figs from thistles; Jesus says.

You don't have the fruits of the Spirit without having the Spirit. And that is Power. Said a great Australian preacher: Show me a church where the members treat one another with more real love than the people outside the church treat one another, and you will find men crowding the doors of that church to get in.

How Can We Get the Holy Spirit?

WE CANNOT GET the Spirit by wishing ourselves back in the first century. We can have the Holy Spirit now, on the same terms as always. There are no new conditions, no complicated rules, no application blanks to fill out. Jesus said: God will give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him; Paul said: Covet earnestly the best gifts.

In any church, if there is even a small group who want the power of God in their lives, who want his power for the church, that little group can change that church and change the community. Power passes through a wire when one end of it is attached to a dynamo and the other end to a machine that is doing some work.

Prayer—that is the touch with God. Service—that is the link with man. So power will flow through the Church when at one end it is in touch with God, and at the other end it is doing something real for human needs.

Indiana Town Leads Nation

A progressive Indiana town, Jasper, in Dubois county, recently became the nation's first municipality to order a garbage disposal to be installed in the kitchen sink of every home. As have many communities, Jasper recognized the need for modern disposal of kitchen waste and acted to eliminate garbage wagons and cans once and for all. The town called in Ralph C. Cameron of Chicago, foremost municipal consultant and pioneer authority on sanitation, who came to Jasper to initiate steps that resulted in the unique project. Cameron is staff assistant to the vice president of Hotpoint, Inc., and the man who first installed a disposal on municipal sewage lines in 1927.

"As a result of the forward action of this Indiana town there are dozens of communities studying similar action throughout the nation," he said. "The testing and home demonstration techniques developed here will be valuable to authorities everywhere as the 'Jasper' brand of thinking spreads." During the period of deliberations, Cameron invented a portable home demonstration cart (above) with which he personally aided in instructing housewives in the advantages of the device.

NUISANCE CLUB

The Nuisance Club held its regular meeting at the Legion Home. Those present were presented with a New Year's party sponsored by Harriet Baker, April Davis and Louise Church. Earl Kinsey, the club's sponsor, was also present.

The party was started with playing of games after which refreshments were served. Officers were elected as follows: President, Malvin Hershberger; Vice-Pres., Paula Harts; Sec., Virginia Hershberger; Treas., Leatrice Coburn; Reporters, Jerry Baker and Joan Shuff.

After the meeting was closed, the club thanked the ladies for an enjoyable evening.

Tigers Beat Scott Center

The St. Joe Tigers won their first game of the season Tuesday night at the local gym when they defeated the Scott Center five by a 47-25 score.

The first half was fairly even as neither team was able to open up a sustained scoring drive. The quarter score was 7-4 in favor of St. Joe and the half ended 15-13, still in their favor.

In the third period "Bub" Richmond dropped in 6 points as the Tigers opened up a little. The high scoring continued into the fourth quarter when St. Joe dropped in 19 points, 8 by Fetters on 4 buckets.

St. Joe made 11 of their 16 free throw attempts while Scott Center made a poor 1 out of 10. Eight personal fouls were called on the locals and twelve on the visitors.

Fetters wound up high man for the evening with 17 points followed by "Consistent Bob" Richmond with 12 and "Bub" Richmond with 8.

The seconds won their third straight game as they walked off the floor with a low-scoring 19-14 victory. The game was a rather ragged affair which threatened to get out of hand a few times as only one referee officiated. Vic Kelley had to be summoned to help out in the second game whistle tooting.

IS RABBIT HUNTING DOOMED?

It may be unless every hunter takes a little time to help this popular game animal. In the December OUTDOORSMAN, now on sale, an authority gives his know-how on inexpensive methods of making rabbit hunting better.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

Outdoor columnists who insist on forecasting the future are asking for trouble; but despite past experiences - and headaches - in this guessing game, I can't pass the opportunity of opening the new year without some observatons. And the dope is straight from the little crystal ball, too!

First, hunting and fishing in 1950 will be improved over last year. Please don't ask for definite proof of this, but, certainly, most of the signs are pointing in a favorable direction.

Populations of game birds and animals showed marked improvement in 1949 over the previous year, indicating that the populations probably are approaching the top of the cycle in numbers which should result in better hunting. Big game animals also are on the upswing, with the whitetail deer far out in front in the parade.

The picture is equally bright on waterfowl. Ducks and geese were more plentiful last year than at any time in the past decade. This means an increased carryover of birds for nesting in the spring which should result in better gunning next winter.

The little crystal ball is not quite so positive in forecasting the fishing outlook, so I'll toss in a couple of my ideas.

Most states have taken long strides in recent years in improving fish management practices. Many of the basic evils in fish production have been eliminated, and it is about time this new knowledge shows up on our lakes and streams. Maybe 1950 will be the year!

And in the face of new records in sales of hunting and fishing licenses, I'd like to climb way out on a limb and predict a decline in the sale of hunting licenses in 1950. There'll be fewer duck stamps sold, too, for gunning for waterfowl. Fishing license sales, however, probably will set a new all-time high this year.

And with these predictions I have one little request. Please don't clip out the column and file it away for reference next December 31. The little crystal ball may be way off key - but I don't think so.

Anyway, here's my hopes for good fishing - and good hunting throughout the year.

CULTURE CLUB

The regular meeting of the Culture Club was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Culbertson.

The meeting was opened by the reading of the club collect. The lesson leader for the evening was Mrs. Wayne Wagner, who chose two articles from the Reader's Digest titled "He Lighted the Dark Continent" and "I Am a Selfish Mother". The critic's report was given by the assistant critic, Mrs. Virgil Laux.

Mrs. Joseph Baidinger read the devotions prepared by Mrs. Lynn Fisher. She read two poems concerning the new year. They were entitled "1950" and "The Coming Year".

Roll call was given with nineteen regular members and one guest present. The response was "An Unusual Musical Instrument". The secretary and treasurer's reports were given followed by regular business. A letter from Mrs. Lynn Fisher thanking the Club for the sunshine box was read. It was reported that Mrs. Fisher was much improved.

The special work for the evening, which was the annual Musical Night, was in charge of Mrs. Clyde Duker and Mrs. Arthur Culbertson. Mrs. Duker read the origin of several Christmas carols and then led in group singing. The committee then led several games in keeping with musical night, after which the hostess served refreshments.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Roy Reidenbach with Mrs. Wayne Wagner as co-hostess.

Electric service is the sort of thing you take pretty much for granted—and that's the way you and we both like it. But to keep things running that smoothly is a very sizable job.

As one of our 214,000 customers, you'll be interested in knowing just how big a job your electric company did in 1949. Here are a few figures:

2,100,000,000 KILOWATTHOURS were delivered to our customers during the year—about 2% less than they used in 1948.

8,244 NEW CUSTOMERS were added, about 58% of them in rural areas.

200 MILES of transmission and distribution line were built. Our lines now extend 10,285 miles, reach about 151 communities.

$5,250,000 was spent for the coal we used last year and thousands more was spent for other equipment and supplies. The spending of this money made work for many people, both in our company and out. Some of it may well have found its way into your own pay envelope.

$6,400,000 IN TAXES—Federal, State and Local—was accrued by this company in 1949. It helped to give you better schools and roads, to pay for police and fire protection.

GOING INTO 1950, this company and the six others associated with it in the American Gas and Electric System have 550,000 kilowatts of new plants under construction. The last unit being built is scheduled for completion early in 1952.

The greater availability of electric power has enabled you to take more and more advantage of electric conveniences in your daily living. And because you are using more electricity, because of the efficient new plants we've built, we have been able to keep our charges for electric service low—even though the cost of materials and supplies we buy to provide it has doubled in the past ten years.

We shall continue, in 1950 and beyond, to bring you the best possible electric service at the lowest possible rates.

County March Of Dimes Organized

Announcement was made Tuesday by Miss Gloria VanDerbosch of 400 South Britton Street, Garrett, that she has completed the organization for the annual March of Dimes campaign in DeKalb County.

The drive will be started Monday, Jan. 16, and ends Tuesday, Jan. 31. In charge in the county for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is the Garrett chapter of Tri Kappa sorority and Miss VanDerbosch is president of the chapter. Miss Jane Trainer heads the chapter's committee for the campaign.

The Auburn chairman is Donald C. Schaab. The other chairmen in the various communities follow: Butler, Cletus Jenkins; Waterloo, Charles Overmeyer; Ashley, Harold Swank; and St. Joe-Spencerville, Everett Paschen.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

The Home Economics Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Alice Yarian, sang three numbers - "Coming Through the Rye," "Now Thank We All Our God" and "Sweet and Low"- at the Home Economics Officer Training School held in the courthouse assembly room in Auburn on Tuesday afternoon, January 3. Mrs. Yarian is the director of the Junior Lutheran Choir in Auburn and assisted in the absence of Mrs. Louise Weiler.

The following home economics county officers and special leaders gave reports: Mrs. Mildred Grogg of Grant township, county home economics president; Mrs. Lucille Nelson of Newville township, county home economics literary leader; Mrs. Velma Husselman of Grant township, county home economics garden leader and Mrs. Eugenia Habig of Jackson township, home economics chorus president.

The meeting was in charge of Mary Lenore Moore, home demonstration agent. Mrs. Grogg emphasized six points in giving her goals to local presidents. "A good president," she said, "must have faith, hope and charity. She must have faith in herself and her club, hope for a better future for her club and members and charity for all. Charity is the greatest of all. If she has faith, hope and charity, she will love, cherish and encourage her club members to keep a kindly atmosphere in her club and will stimulate and inspire a successful club."

C. B. Hamilton of the Garrett "Clipper" was in charge of the home economics reporters and gave training on writing interesting news stories of their club meetings during the year. The local choristers of each club met with the Home Economics Chorus.

After the training school, the group met for a tea that was carried out in county home economics colors, blue and gold. The table was decorated with a centerpiece of yellow chrysanthemums and snapdragons with blue and gold tapers. Approximately 150 officers attended the tea. Past county home economics presidents were guests. Committees in charge of the tea were Mrs. Ardice Austraw of Union township, Mrs. Ethel Miller of Union township, Mrs. Mildred Bard of Fairfield township, Mrs. Ruth Teutsch of Stafford township, Mrs. Velma Husselman of Grant township, Mrs. Vera Rosenbury of Wilmington township and Mrs. Ruth Little of Troy township.

Grabill Firm Gutted By Fire Last Week

Several area fire departments, including firemen from New Haven, Huntertown, Spencerville, Washington township, Auburn and the Grabill unit, fought flames which gutted the H. A. Woods Lumber Co. last Thursday night causing damage estimated at between $12,000 and $14,000.

The operator of the lumber company said the mill will be out of operation for two or three months. Firemen confined the flames to the boiler room and a part of the mill room. They were aided in the boiler room by the steel sheathed walls.

Henry Schwartz, a member of the Grabill fire department, suffered rib fractures when he fell 12 feet from a brick wall into a pit while fighting the fire.

Tax Distribution Made

The December settlement of funds totaling $544,384.71, derived from tax revenue in Dekalb County for distribution to the various taxing units, has been completed.

The amount distributed was the biggest December settlement in history although it was over $100,000 less than the June settlement. The June settlement of $654,145.08 was also a record mid-year distribution.

The auditor distributed $27,820.11 to the state for state tax, state tuition fund and for teachers' retirement.

Other amounts distributed included $116,820 to township trustes, $132,487 for special school tax to the various local units, $19,029 for township poor relief, $68,954 for general corporation tax and $19,638 for retirement of bonds and sinking funds.

The distribution in the December settlement pushed the total distributed in 1949 from taxes collected in DeKalb county to nearly $1,200,000, an increase of 20 per cent over the previous record settlement of $986,-

Spencerville Wins County Crown

Defeat Ashley In Final, 57-53

Spencerville's Red Raiders came through in the final of the DeKalb County basketball tournament after defeating St. Joe in a semi-final,50-36, to beat Ashley, 57-53.

The game was a thriller as Ashley jumped to a 14-6 lead which was quickly cut to 14-12 at the quarter.

The Raiders went ahead 16-14, but the lead margin varied during the remainder of the first half and the teams wound up tied at 24-all at the half.

The equal scoring continued in the 3rd quarter as both teams scored 12 points, making it 36-36.

In the last stanza the Raiders scored 10 straight points with Hoover and Hook leading the way. Ashley rallied and threw a scare into the Spencerville fans, but couldn't quite make it as the game ended, 57-53.

Paschen had a great night, pouring in 9 fielders and 4 charity tosses for 22 points. Hoover and Hook followed with 16 and 11 points, respectively.

The second team tourney was won by Butler who defeated Ashley, 27-21, in the final.

SHRINE CIRCUS AT FORT WAYNE JANUARY 12 TO 18

Quimby Auditorium at Fort Wayne becomes the Mecca for children of all ages this week-end. The attraction is the third annual Mizpah Shrine-Polack Brothers Circus, opening Thursday night, January 12 and continuing afternoon and night through Wednesday, January 18.

A brilliant new array of circus talent is promised by Kenneth Matchette, potentate of Mizpah Temple, and Robert L. Day, circus chairman. Top features include Melitta and Wicons, Swedish perch equilibrists; the Shyrettos, cycling aristocrats; Hubert Castle, somersaulting wizard of the tight wire, plus such aerial thrillers as Lalage, the Sikorska Duo, Rose Gould Trio and Seven Ward-Bell Flyers.

Among the trained animal acts are Pallenberg's wonder bears, Woolford's performing dachshunds, Docky's basketball playing Boxer dogs and Sally, Happy and Queenie, the M-G-M movie trained elephants.

Comedy highlights are furnished by Linon, celebrated Danish pantomimist, Alfredo Landon's midgets and an assorted complement of clowns headed by the droll Otto Griebling.

After opening night, performances are scheduled twice daily at 3:45 and 8:15 on school days and at 2:15 and 8:15 Saturday and Sunday.

IS RABBIT HUNTING DOOMED?

It may be unless every hunter takes a little time to help this popular game animal. In the December OUTDOORSMAN, now on sale, an authority gives his know-how on inexpensive methods of making rabbit hunting better.

SPORTSCOPE By JOE MAHONEY

3—Devote as much effort to improving habitat as you do to harvesting the fish and game.

4—Actively work to improve farmer-sportsman cooperation.

5—Become an active and constructive member of a sportsman's club.

6—Demand sound conservation legislation.

7—Let maximum sport, rather than kill, be your guide.

That's a pretty good creed, don't you think? I do. I think it is one of the best ever suggested for outdoorsmen to follow. Certainly if we all made the creed a part of us, we'd be assuring the sport of hunting and fishing for the generations ahead to enjoy as we have enjoyed it.

We have passed the stage in conservation when we can "let the other fellow" do all the work. We must all do our share; we must share the labor and expense to get the job done right.

So think over your part in the outdoors, then guide yourself accordingly. As a team we can't be licked.

By JIM MITCHELL

As I close the books for another great season afield after ducks, geese, rabbits, quail and other upland game, I can't help but look back with the idea that on some occasions I missed the boat in protecting wildlife for the years ahead. I do pride myself in being a true sportsman-but we all make a slip here and there, and probably some of you are in the same position.

It was with this in mind that I recently read a creed advanced by Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, president and general manager of Eastern Airlines, for sportsmen. He calls it a "Challenge to Sportsmen," and here it is:

1—Game law violators are thieves - treat them accordingly.

2—Teach beginners their obligations as well as pleasures afield.

HERE IS Your Chance For A
HOME IN ST. JOE
At Reasonable Prices and Terms

4 rooms with 2 bedrooms, full basement, attached garage, toilet stool and shower, fully insulated including sidewalls. Water heater, good plumbing and septic tank. This home is almost new — vacant so you can move right in.

6 rooms with 3 bedrooms, could have a fourth. Partial basement, new automatic oil hot water heater, city water, shower, nicely decorated. Good roof and new light green asbestos siding. Garage, Vacant, move right in.

The first home is the Calloway home and the second is the Walter property. A third home intended for this advertisement was the Perry property, but it was sold before the ad could appear as all three of these properties are on the market for extremely small down payments - small enough that you cannot afford to NOT buy. The price of each of these homes is lower than you will expect.

NOTE TO INVESTORS: Since CASH is always attractive, these properties can be bought for less for cash. Rather than take a chance on inflation or deflation, why not invest in a product that changes with other commodities and therefore guarantees you against loss, and in the meantime collect rentals.
Regardless of whether you want the home for yourself or as an investment, call and let me give you details. If I cannot show you how YOU will GAIN, you needn't buy or even feel obligated.

ELECTRIC BROODING keeps PROFITS UP when PRICES drop

Consider these FACTS:

Long-term studies show that average mortality of electrically brooded chicks is less than 5%.

Three-year experiments at a state university demonstrate that electric brooders reduce mortality among young pigs by 50%.

Electric heat has proved ideal for drying new-born lambs.

No fooling worries with electric heat . . . cuts fire hazards.

Brooding costs are low!

When prices level off, you need electric brooding more than ever. A few pennies spent now for electricity mean extra dollars later for the extra fowls, pigs, and lambs that grow to market size.

Many efficient types of brooders can be cheaply built at home—and electric rates are low.

Our rural engineers will be glad to help you plan a brooding program that will pay its way. Call us up.

INTERNATIONAL FERTILIZERS

gives you extra value

Generous fertilization of pastures with International Crop-Producing Plant Foods of high phosphate and potash content is doubly profitable.

It is an effective means of producing thick, high-quality stands of legumes and grasses to provide your livestock with abundant, money-saving, nutritious forage. And it helps build up the fertility of the soil for healthy growth of the cultivated crops in your rotation.

When you order fertilizers for your pastures—or for any other crops—it will pay you to ask for International Fertilizers. You'll be sure of fine quality and excellent mechanical condition, together with the tonnage you need of the grades recommended for your individual crops by your local extension service and experiment station.

Your International Fertilizer Agent is ready now to help you select your plant foods. See him soon, won't you, so you can be sure to have ample supplies of high quality International Fertilizer for satisfaction at harvest time.

Winter Days Winter Evenings

"As the days begin to lengthen, the cold begins to strengthen."

Winter days on the farm are the most peaceful of the year. As the days lengthen, and the cold strengthens, it is then the farmer strengthens himself and his farm for the hard and long working days of the spring and summer to come, and rebuilds the wears and tears of the preceding season. His winter chores of milking and bedding down the livestock — keeping the woodbox filled and the animals warm and comfortable — are just enough to keep him fit. Now there is plenty of time to enjoy some of the pleasures of his farm work. He can leisurely look over his lands and pastures, fences and buildings, making mental notes of how he will plant in the spring, and improvements and repairs to be made. He has time to do some bookwork and figuring — finding out exactly what his profits and expenses have been and what they will probably be the coming year. He can catch up on some of his hobbies or do the little things around the house his wife has been hoping for. Best of all, he finds time to do a little rabbit hunting and enjoy the quiet beauty of his snow-covered hills and woods.

As the days lengthen and the cold strengthens, the winter evenings become the coziest of the year. A cheery fire blazes on the hearth, and families gather to pop corn, make taffy, sing around the old piano, or crack the stubborn hickorynuts, butternuts and brown-staining walnuts they gathered in the fall. Now is the time the men and boys like to make things out of wood — carve new axe handles, little what-nots, make furniture, or clean and polish their guns and rifles. The seed catalogue is the feature attraction while everyone names his choice of the bright colored flowers he wants to grow, and the planting is planned from A to Z. Mothers quilt or knit, crochet or cross-stitch until the older boys and girls come in from square dancing or sleigh-ride parties, from 4-H meetings or church clubs, to tell of the evening's fun and bring in friends for cider and doughnuts. The fire crackles merrily, and on these winter evenings when the cold strengthens, the family bond seems to strengthen, too!

GET EARLY GAINS FOR BIGGER PROFITS ...THE WAYNE WAY

Experienced farmers know the earlier the gain, the bigger the profit from chicks, pigs, calves and poults. That's why it pays to speed-up the gains and growth of your young stock with the "Ingredient Quality" nutrition of Wayne Starting Feeds. Here's how the Wayne Way can help you, as it helps thousands of farmers, cash in with early gains for bigger profits.

CHICKS Start 'em fast with the new, improved Wayne Chick Starter that gave 15% faster gains over last year's formula in Allied Mills Research Farm tests! Low in fiber, high in efficiency, the 1950 formula includes Nicotinic Acid, Choline Chloride, D-Activated Animal Sterol, Homogenized Condensed Fish and APF Supplement (source of Vitamin B12) for faster gains! Also available in popular crumbloid form—Wayne Krumbs!

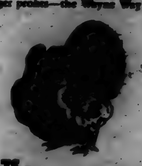
PIGS Feed for early-gaining 40 pounders at 8 weeks with new, improved Wayne Pig Starter. "Spiked" with APF Supplement for that extra nutritional "kick" . . . more rolled oats for extra palatability . . . Irradiated Yeast for extra Vitamin D2 . . . B-Complex vitamins . . . dried whey for growth-promoting . . . riboflavin . . . Nicotinic Acid! . . . adds up to early gains for bigger profits—the Wayne Way!

CALVES For fast, low-cost calf growth, thousands of farmers depend on Wayne Calf Starter . . . fortified with Irradiated Yeast, and made to "meet milk on its own terms" in results . . . beat it a long way on cost. The Wayne dry-feeding method helps you produce early-gaining, vigorous calves, yet save and sell up to 1,000 lbs. milk per calf raised over old methods!



POULTS Early, extra gains on 8-week poults may save up to 2 weeks feeding before market! Feed for early gains right from the start—with the rich nourishment of Wayne Turkey Starter, which provides a variety of "Ingredient Quality" proteins, essential vitamins and minerals. Also enriched with Homogenized Condensed Fish and APF Supplement (source of Vitamin B12). A truly high-efficiency feed!

Blatchford's ESTABLISHED IN 1900 WAUKEGAN ILLINOIS

Many implements that look ready for the scrap pile, can often be salvaged with a few inexpensive repair parts, a little "de-rusting", and a general over-all clean-up. Here, L. D. Bartlett of Knox County, Ohio replaces worn parts on a corn planter he had thought ready for the junk heap.

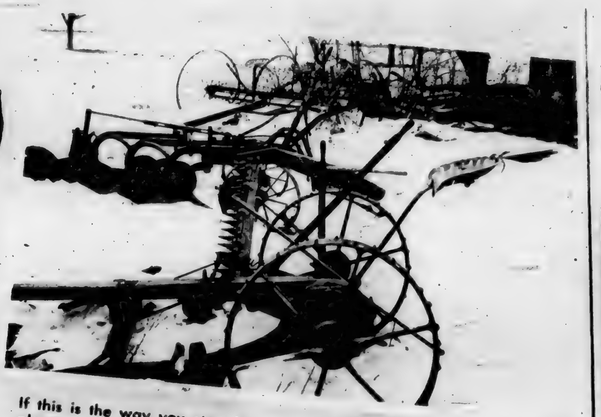
"FOR want of a gear, a planter was lost . . . for want of a planter, a crop was lost . . . for want of a crop, a farm was lost." Here's a new twist on an old proverb that may be well worth thinking about as the curtain rises on the 1950 crop year.

Of course, the proverb is a bit on the extreme side. The world won't come crashing down around you, and the man with the mortgage probably won't be running you off the farm . . . just for lack of a gear. But the proverb does serve to point up the importance of getting machinery in shape now to avoid costly, time-consuming breakdowns in the field during planting, cultivating and harvesting operations.

A day spent now checking over the tractor and implements may save many days in the middle of the crop season, when even half a day's delay can reduce yields and profits.

Your local implement dealer is the man to look to for major tractor and implement repairs. If you're handy, you can do many of the less important repair jobs yourself. In any case, be sure to go over each implement thoroughly, make a list of repair parts you'll need, and get the order to your dealer at once.

The pictures below may suggest some things you can do right now to make sure your equipment will be in shape to carry you through another year of crop production.



If this is the way you stored your farm implements last fall, it'll take plenty of work to get them back in shape now for another season's use. Leaving machinery out in the field like this all winter allows rust and the weather to cut years from its service life.

For major tractor and implement repairs, you will generally save time, money and grief by turning the job over to your local implement dealer. Most dealers have the tools, correct repair parts and "know how" that comes from experience and training to do an expert job of putting your machinery in first class condition.

Check your spark plugs or have your implement dealer do it for you. Make sure the spark gap is correct to the manufacturers' recommendations. When setting the spark gap use a gap setter, but never touch the center electrode. Too wide a gap causes misses on heavy loads, while too narrow a gap causes engine to die at low speeds.

Farm welding units are growing in popularity. With a little instruction and practice, most farmers can use their welders to great advantage in repairing broken parts, which otherwise would have to be replaced or taken off the machine and into town for welding. Home welding units are especially important when parts break in the field and there's no time for a trip to town for replacements or repairs.

Instruction manuals provided with your tractor and various implements can be of real value to you in servicing your equipment. Too many farmers are prone to throw away the instruction book when the implement is new, and later when service and repairs are necessary, they have to depend on guess-work.

TO completely POWER THE FAMILY FARM

It is just as wasteful to over-power a job as to under-power it. Here's a low-cost way to have the right size tractor for the work to be done.

Every farm has jobs the Allis-Chalmers Model G Tractor will do better or at lower cost than any other kind of power. On many farms, the Model G solves every power need. With it you can have a line of quick-hitch, front-mounted implements that enable you to grow a wider choice of crops than with any other tractor.

If you now own a larger tractor, why tie it up with light jobs the Model G can do on quarts of fuel instead of gallons? During busy seasons, this extra power plant can prove "worth its weight in gold."

For Any Size or Type Farm

Actually, the rear-engine Model G is now used for all kinds of farm work — on all kinds of crops — on all sizes of farms.

In one general farming community, for example, more than 150 owners now use Model G Tractors. They mow with a field-weight, 5-foot mower . . . plant up to the capacity of any 2-row planter. On many farms, these two jobs alone — mowing and planting — more than justify investment in the tractor.

For all jobs on some farms . . . for some jobs on all farms . . . to completely power your farm, own the . . .

DO-SI-DO WITH YOUR PARTNERS ALL . . .
DO-SI-DO WITH YOUR CORNERS ALL . . .

The SQUARE DANCE has come into its own! In Hollywood and in Manhattan, in New Orleans and on Puget Sound, the rollicking music and merry laughter, the colorful garb of western cowboy and the rainbow-like pageantry of swirling skirts, the stomping of feet and the rhythmic calls of American folk songs and dances are sweeping the country by storm . . . it's the music and dances of the plains and the prairies . . . the songs from the wide-open spaces . . . but it's invaded every corner of the land . . . and come Saturday night and the halls in the city and hamlet alike are filled with the music and madness of the SQUARE DANCE!

ALLEMANDE RIGHT WITH YOUR PARTNERS ALL . . .
THEN PROMENADE AROUND THE HALL . . .

But the music and the dancing and a grand-right-and-left are but a part of the story, for food and fun stand hand-in-hand at the Saturday night Square Dance . . . As the hour approaches midnight, long white-covered tables spring up out of no-where. First come the sandwiches . . . huge platters of them . . . platters piled high with man-sized wedges. There are double-deckers and savory hamburgers . . . there are nippy cheese sandwiches and nut bread . . . and there are plenty of weiners and buns. There may be large flat pans of hot spicy baked beans. Or sometimes there are casseroles of scalloped potatoes and ham. Often too, there are bowls of tangy potato salad. There are pickles for sure and gelatin too, and sometimes there's pie . . . And there are heaps of sugared doughnuts vying, as it were, with cakes of every description, for each cook brings her favorite dish — that at which she excels . . . The men bring their appetites — and here everyone excels. And coffee for all in great big cups. Yes . . .

COFFEE'S READY, THE CAKE IS TOO . . .
SO PROMENADE OUT TWO BY TWO.

GIRLS TO THE CENTER BACK TO BACK . . .
BOYS RUN WILD ON THE RAILROAD TRACK . . .

GIRLS MADE THIS CAKE BUT THE BOYS WILL EAT IT — Tempting, feather-like, made with butter, this SUNFLOWER CAKE is something special. Layers are put together with an orange custard filling made from the yolks of the eggs. Spread the top and sides with fluffy whipped cream frosting. Orange sections make the daisy petals on top — with chocolate shot for the center.

FIRST COUPLE RIGHT AND CIRCLE HALF . . .
Chances are they'll circle straight towards the Nut-Bread Sandwiches. This nut bread is made with yeast.

EASY NUT BREAD

1 tsp. sugar	2 tblsp. shortening, melted and cooled
¼ cup lukewarm water	1 egg white, stiffly beaten
1 pkg. yeast	1 cup coarsely chopped nuts
1 cup milk
½ tsp. salt
¼ cup sugar
3½ cups sifted flour

Dissolve 1 tsp. sugar in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Add yeast. Let stand 10 minutes. Scald milk. Add ¼ cup sugar, and salt. Stir well and cool to lukewarm. Stir yeast solution thoroughly and add to lukewarm milk mixture. Add half the flour and beat thoroughly. Stir in shortening. Fold in egg white and nut meats. Add remaining flour and mix well. Knead quickly and lightly for 3 minutes. Place in greased bowl and let rise in warm place (85° to 90° F.) until doubled in bulk. (about 1½ hours.) Divide dough into two equal portions. Round up lightly; cover and let rest 10 minutes. Shape into loaves. Place in greased bread pans. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in bulk (about 1 hour). Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 45 minutes. Makes 2 loaves.

ON TO THE NEXT AND CIRCLE FOUR . . .

CIRCLES AND SQUARES AND CUBES OF GELATIN as colorful as the gowns of the dancers — lime green — cherry red — lemon yellow. Cut gelatin into cubes, combine with whipped cream, sprinkle with coconut and surround with Lady Fingers.

SWING HER LOW . . . SWING HER HIGH . . . KISS HER ONCE
AND AWAY YOU FLY . . .

RAISED SUGARED DOUGHNUTS mark the top of the evening. And they're tops to make, too, with Hot Roll Mix.

Place	all of yeast from pkg. hot roll mix in mixing bowl; add 1 cup warm water and stir until completely dissolved.
Add	contents of Hot Roll Mix package; mix thoroughly to a stiff dough.
Let rise	in warm place (about 85° F.) until double in bulk, about 1 hour.
Turn out	on well-floured board and knead lightly.
Roll out	dough to ¼ inch thickness.
Cut	with 2½ inch doughnut cutter and place on floured baking sheet.
Let rise	in warm place until double in bulk.
Fry	in hot fat (375° F.) about 3 minutes on each side.
Drain	on absorbent paper; sprinkle with sugar while warm. (makes 2 dozen doughnuts.)

Lions Club To Present Talent Show

Saturday, February 18, 1950, is the date for the Talent Show to be given at the local gym at 8 p. m.

The St. Joe Lions Club is sponsoring the program in an effort to raise funds for its activities in sight conservation. The club recently corrected a serious eye condition for a youngster in this locality by sending him to an institute, in Pontiac, Michigan, which specializes in eye defect correction.

At the same time the club is offering cash prizes amounting to $35 with a prize going to every contestant for their efforts in participating in the program. First prize is $20, second prize $10 and third prize $5.

A deadline has been set for turning in applications for the show in order that enough time will be allowed for printing programs. The deadline is Wednesday, Feb. 8.

Anyone can enter - from Grandpa and Grandma to Grandson and Granddaughter. So, get out that guitar, mouthharp, or whatever you play - or practice on that song you sing so well - or brush up on those imitations. Whatever it is, here's your chance to win a prize while helping a local organization raise funds for its activities which benefit this community.

Applications are being accepted at the News Office in St. Joe.

Bill Weninger, Derwood Ridgway and Ted Haberkorn compose the committee for the program; Mr. Haberkorn is chairman.

County Elections Coming Soon

The "political pot" will be boiling soon. DeKalb Co. voters will go to the polls this year to select all county officers except clerk, judge recorder and joint senator.

The voters of DeKalb county also will elect in 1950 township trustees and members of the township advisory boards.

With the May primaries less than four months away, politics is already attracting the interest of many persons. Offices for which DeKalb county voters will cast ballots in 1950 are those of sheriff, auditor, treasurer, surveyor, coroner, assessor, prosecuting attorney, two county commissioners, all seven members of the county council and the office of state representative.

A large number of candidates are expected to file seeking nominations at the May primary. Filing may start 60 days before the May 2 primary. The general election will be held the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

All 15 DeKalb townships will hold elections this year. The office of sheriff, which has been a two-year term, will be a four-year term after December 31 this year when Sheriff Frank Carpenter completes his second term. Other two-year offices include surveyor, treasurer and prosecuting attorney. A movement is under way to have these changed to four-year terms.

SPENCER TWP. HOME EC

The Spencer Township Home Economics Club met Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 11, at the home of Mrs. Hazel Washler. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Lola Moore, who also had charge of the devotions. Roll call, "A New Year Resolution," was answered by 24 members. Two new members, Mrs. Earl Lohse and Mrs. Wallace Graham, were added to the membership. Three guests and seven children were present.

The secretary's report was read by Mrs. Nellie Allen. "Sweet And Low," the song of the month, was led by Mrs. Lois Fisher. Business was taken care of and reports from the special leaders were given. A very nice lunch was served and the meeting adjourned. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Jennie Walter with a Valentine exchange.

Maurice Kline escaped serious injury last Thursday morning when he was burned about the face and on the hands while attempting to fire up the boiler of his dairy. He had run short of coal and was using hard coal which didn't start quick enough. The milkman can't wait for anything — the cows don't — so Maurie poured some oil over the coal. 'Nuff sed?

The St. Joe Filling Station has changed its trade name to "Yeiser's Standard Service." Moss explains, "I'm tired of getting other stations' bills!" It seems there are a few other stations in this territory with the same name and confusion has resulted.

The Nuisance Club is sponsoring a box social after the Woodburn-St. Joe game on Friday, Feb. 3, at the local gym. The club promises plenty of entertainment and will have hot dogs, coffee and pie on hand.

SERIES ON SOCIALISM BEGINS THIS WEEK ON PAGE 3

The first of a series of weekly articles by Stephen C. Noland, veteran Hoosier journalist and historian, on the life of average, everyday people under British Socialism appears in this issue of the St. Joe News. Mr. Noland, who gathered material for the series on a recent extensive tour of England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, will tell how the miners, weavers, housewives, steelworkers, farmers, doctors, barbers and others are getting along under Socialism, how they like it, how and why they think they let their government go Socialist in the first place and how their lot compares with that of average Midwestern residents.

LIONS CLUB ERECTS SAFETY SIGNS

The St. Joe Lions Club has erected signs at the outskirts of St. Joe and Spencerville as a warning to motorists entering the two localities to drive carefully. They read, "Protect our children - St. Joe Lions Club." Bill Weninger and Ralph Keeler served as the committee in charge of obtaining the signs.

POLIO AID RUMORS UNTRUE

The DeKalb County Polio Association has been hearing rumors to the effect that polio sufferers haven't received aid from the association. Contrary to any rumors which may have been heard or any statements which may have been made, the association states that all families who have asked for aid from the association have received it.

The group would like to explain, also, that there has been a misunderstanding concerning the appropriation of funds collected. Tri Kappa sorority, acting as county chairman, has neither received nor will receive any portion of that money which has been or will be collected. On the contrary, the sorority has used its funds for this cause, acting in a purely charitable capacity.

As for the money which is collected, 50 percent goes to national headquarters and the remainder stays in DeKalb county. However, if the county funds become depleted, help will be received from national headquarters.

JANE WESTON FEATURE SPEAKER AT FARM BUREAU LUNCHEON

The second Farm Bureau District of Indiana will meet in Fort Wayne at the Chatterbox of the Hotel Van Orman Saturday, January 21, at 12 noon. Jane Weston, Home Forum Director of WOWO, will be the speaker. Subject of the talk will be "Stepping Out of the Kitchen." Miss Weston is well known in the home economics field and for her daily broadcasts of the WOWO Modern Home Forum. In addition to her duties at the studios, Jane Weston is also an instructor m dietetics at the Methodist Hospital and dietician for the Irene Byron Sanatorium in Fort Wayne.

Over 150 farm women from La-Grange Elkhart, Steuben, Kosciusko, Noble, DeKalb, Whitley and Allen counties are expected to attend the luncheon.

WOMEN'S DEMOCRATIC CLUB TO MEET

The Women's Democratic DeKalb Club will meet promptly at 7:30 Thursday evening, January 26, at the Waterloo Conservation Hall. All members are requested to attend this meeting.

NEWVILLE HOME EC

The Newville Home Economics Club met for an all day meeting Jan. 11 at the Newville Center club house which has been newly decorated by the club, with Mrs. Leta Schaefer as hostess.

A delicious dinner was served at noon by the losing team with Mrs. Mary Platter as captain.

The meeting was called to order at 1:30 by the retiring president, Mrs. Leah Thomas. For the opening the song "America" was sung.

Mrs. Sadie Krise, the state home economics president, installed the new officers for 1950. They are: Mrs. Cynthia Sipe, Pres.; Mrs. Josephine Beree, Vice Pres.; Mrs. Dorothy Meeks, Sec'y; Mrs. Gladys Murphy, Treas.; Mrs. Gladys Miller, Pianist; and Mrs. Edna Michelson, Chorister. After the new president took charge, devotions, Scripture reading and prayer were given by Mrs. Blen Moore followed by the song "Blest Be The Tie."

Roll call was answered by 36 members with "A New Radio Program I Like." 3 guests were present.

The different committees as follows gave 3 minute reports: Garden, Mrs. Grace Robertson; Health, Mrs. Elsie Meek; Freezing foods, Mrs. Elva Hook; Poultry, Mrs. Bernice Miller; and County Literary Leader, Mrs. Lucille Nelson.

The club voted to give $5.00 to the March of Dimes. Mrs. Gladys Hart was reported on the sick list. The welfare and birthday offerings were taken up, and cheer sister gifts were given out. The president asked the members to save all waste paper for the county chorus. Mrs. Josephine Beree offered her time and truck to gather the paper at a later date. The meeting was then turned over to the captain, Mrs. Mary Platter, and her team, which royally entertained the winning side having the best attendance and responses in 1949. The meeting was then adjourned. The next meeting is on Feb. 3 with Mrs. Gladys Murphy as hostess at her home.

JOIN THE MARCH OF DIMES

CULTURE CLUB

The regular meeting of the Culture Club was held Wednesday evening, January 11, at the home of Mrs. Roy Reidenbach with Mrs. Wayne Wagner as co-hostess.

The meeting opened with the reading of the club collect. Mrs. Reidenbach read the Twenty-Third Psalm and led the group in repeating the Lord's Prayer as the devotions for the evening.

Mrs. Fred Ulm was lesson leader for the evening. She chose two articles entitled "I'm A Cave Woman" and "Adventure At Dawn" taken from the Reader's Digest. She also read another short item titled "What Is A Boy?"

The critic's report was given by the assistant critic, Mrs. Virgil Laux.

Special work for the evening was "Bible Night" given by Mrs. Robert Musser. She revealed many facts about the Bible that are unknown to many people.

Roll call was taken with sixteen regular members answering with a Bible verse, followed by the regular business meeting.

The co-hostesses, Mrs. Reidenbach and Mrs. Wagner, served a delicious lunch.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Olen Waltz with Mrs. Dewey White as co-hostess. Special work will be "drama."

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Some time ago I read in a Dutch Newspaper your name, and they told me after information that you are working on a newspaper. Now I will ask you to do me a pleasure. Perhaps you know a young, nice looking girl about my age, 21. Please, will you ask her if she will write to me. I am interested in American girls and if you can do this I will thank you a lot. If you want or wish anything of Holland write to me and I'll do my best to get it for you.

So long,

P.S. A very happy Newyear to you and your family.

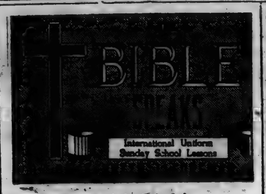
WAYNE BENNINGHOFF
Trustee of Newville Township



SCRIPTURE: Acts 5:1—8:4. DEVOTIONAL READING: I Peter 1: 3-9.

First to Fall

Lesson for January 22, 1950

TROUBLE IN THE CHURCH can start anywhere. Sometimes it starts with the women. That was the way the early church found it. The experiment in fellowship which they tried ran into snags, for not even the first Christians were perfect. The church in Jerusalem was in a sense inter-racial. Some were born and bred in Palestine, and there were others from the outside, with Greek names, speaking Greek as their native tongue —Hellenists they were called. There was argument: Were the Hellenist widows getting their share of the church's help?

Committee Chairman

THE APOSTLES, being called on, refused to straighten the tangle themselves. Let the church elect a committee, they said. First on the list was a man named Stephen. He turned out to be most famous for being the first Christian martyr, but when he fell unconscious beneath that shower of stones, there died no ordinary man.

To begin with, he filled the bill as chairman of that Committee on Grievances. Not many men, then or now, could fill all three qualifications the Apostles required: reputation, spirituality, and wisdom.

It takes a very tactful man to settle a difficulty in which women are concerned; it takes tact to handle any committee; it takes tact to manage an inter-racial situation; it calls for wisdom to handle funds.

Debater

SOME MEN THINK themselves bigger than their jobs. Some men really are bigger, and Stephen was one of these. He spilled over, so to speak; he had even more energy and ability than the job called for. We hear of him debating around the synagogue circuit particularly in the synagogues which were used by Jews from other parts of the world.

We have no details of those debates, but we know how they always came out; Stephen got the decision. We can guess, from his great speech in the hour of his death, what his general line must have been.

Many Christians in Jerusalem at that time had little or no idea that Christianity was actually a new religion; even the name "Christian" had not been thought of. They considered it a form of the Jewish religion.

Scholar

STEPHEN'S SPEECH at his trial (Acts 7) may sound dull to some now, but it was not dull to the audience. No man makes a dull speech on the brink of death. Further, it was that speech that got him killed. His listeners may not have liked it, but they certainly did not think it dull! The beauty of the speech is that it reveals Stephen's keen insight into the religious history of his people.

Speaking without notes, he reviews the history of close to 2,000 years in a 10-minute talk, and yet brings out the main points. Only a real scholar can do that, a man who is both historian and prophet. The most important peaks in Israel's history were God's revelations to them; and Stephen shows that these revelations had never been tied to a house or a book.

No institutions and no place is indispensable to God. The same God who had wrought new things in the past had now wrought a new thing in Christ.

Martyr

STEPHEN'S AUDIENCE was not convinced. Seeing murder in their eyes, Stephen knew his time was short. In a few stinging last words he reminded them that murder was an old story in that Temple. They had killed prophets, they had killed Jesus the "Just One." And now—. Now they dragged Stephen out and stoned him till he died.

Well, you can stop a voice but you cannot stop an idea. Stephen was first to fall, but not the last. To this very year Christ has his martyrs, men and women who will die rather than deny him.

You can silence a man but you cannot silence truth. When the world goes against her, the Church should remember that now as then, "the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the Church."

CONCORD LODGE INSTALLS OFFICERS FOR 1950

Concord Masonic Lodge held its installation of officers for 1950 last Tuesday, Jan. 10. Officers installed were: W. E. Weninger, Worshipful Master; James R. Jordan, Senior Warden; Ray Means, Junior Warden; Harvey Hull, Secretary; Glenn Brendel, Treasurer; Kenneth Mettert, Senior Deacon; Clifford Billow, Junior Deacon; and Fred High, Tyler.

The installations were made by Elmer Forks of Ft. Wayne, Grand Junior Deacon of Grand Lodge F and AM of Indiana, assisted by M. H. Hollabaugh, Marshall.

CROW CONTROL CONTEST OPENS IN HOOSIERLAND

The annual crow contest is on!

Supervised by the Department of Conservation, the contest has in the past proved quite popular, with thousands of persons participating.

To qualify as an entrant, it is necessary for each gun club or individual to submit to the Division of Fish and Game, Indiana Department of Conservation, 311 West Washington Street, fifty crow's feet. The parcel must be plainly marked with the name of the club or individual.

The ranking of participating clubs and counties will be determined by officials of the Indiana Department of Conservation on the basis of the number of crow feet received at the West Washington Street headquarters.

The contest is being staged during the midwinter and summer season because this is recognized as being the best time of year to kill crows. In order to comply with the rules, all contestants enter by submitting fifty crows' feet and then continue to collect feet by whatever means they choose. Night raids on crow roosts, use of decoys and similar methods are recommended as harmless to other birds.

Prizes will be awarded by the sponsors to the club killing the greatest number of crows and to the county reporting the greatest number of kills, but all kill trophies must be submitted by the June 30th closing date.

Tigers And Red Raiders Lose

The St. Joe Tigers lost to Harlan last Wednesday evening by a score of 59-39, after putting up a good first half bit of playing to trail by only 4 points. But in the third quarter Harlan's Hawks led by Harris and Kellams bombarded the nets and continued for the remainder of the game to end up with an easy win.

The St. Joe seconds won the prelim by the narrow margin of 2 points, 22-20.

Spencerville's Red Raiders, playing an entirely different brand of ball in comparison with their county tourney efforts, lost to Salem Center's Cardinals last week by a 60-43 score at the Alumni gym in Auburn.

The Cardinals displayed a driving game and had the situation under control most of the way. They were rebounding well and stopped Al Paschen, Spencerville's high scoring center, with only six points for the evening.

The first quarter score was 13-6 as Spencerville went scoreless except for big John Leonard's 3 buckets. The second quarter was fairly even in scoring, the teams trading baskets to finish the half at 25-19, Salem Center.

The Raiders cut the lead to 4 points in the third stanza, but the Cardinals caught fire and gradually pulled away and maintained a commanding lead the remainder of the game except for a seven point rally by Spencerville in the final quarter which didn't effect the outcome.

Hook was high scorer for the Raiders with 16 points and Leonard, who played one of his best games this season, was close behind with 12.

Spencerville's seconds won the preliminary, 27-25.

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

Probably an outdoor column should be designed solely for entertainment; but with so much work needing to be done to protect our wildlife, I can't keep from climbing aboard the old soap box occasionally.

And now it is support of the new Fish Restoration Bill, a measure to be considered by the new Congress, that I am requesting all of you to give. The bill actually is a must in the wildlife picture.

This new measure is a follow up to last year's Dingell Bill which was passed by Congress, then vetoed by President Truman. Just why the veto was invoked never has been fully explained, for certainly the Dingell Bill had the support of all conservation groups as well as the endorsement of the nation's 14,000,000 buyers of fishing licenses.

Terms of the new Fish Restoration bill follow the same general ideas as advanced in the Dingell Bill. In part, this means that funds from the old excise tax on the sale of fishing tackle, now going into the general fund of the government, would be given the various states in ratio to the number of license buyers. The money then could be used for fish management.

There was little opposition to the passage of the Dingell Bill in Congress last year, and the President's veto came as a sudden surprise to all who had been following the bill through Congress.

And, with this in mind, immediate action on the part of all sportsmen will probably be needed to assure more favorable consideration by the President when the bill reaches his desk.

First and most important in the campaign to assure enactment of the Fish Restoration Bill is for every sportsman to write his or her local Congressmen and Senators.

So, how about writing now, telling your Congressman that you'd like to see the Fish Restoration Bill passed by Congress and signed by the President. If we all do this, there is little doubt but what the bill will go through in 1950.

Socialism in Britain Hits Church and Home

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

LONDON, England—You may have heard the rumor that a British farmer now can be permanently "kicked off" his land for not farming it to suit a government committee.

Is that really true under today's British Socialist government under the Labor Party, which is now in power? As a Midwestern American newspaperman, farm-born and farm-minded, I looked for the answer not in a book or magazine article, or merely in a printed British government regulation, but rather on an actual visit to a farmer in Durham County, England.

NOLAND

And the answer is yes—British farmers now can be "kicked off" their land!

That's the way the information for this series of articles was dug out. All of it came from the everyday lives and experiences of common people in England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland who are really living under Socialism!

Wisdom Tooth Permit

Can a dentist in Britain pull a wisdom tooth without a government permit? No, he can't! And you'll get the details straight from a British dentist in one of these articles.

What about socialized medicine? These stories won't stem from books or propaganda broadcasts, but from doctors' own waiting rooms and inner offices. One will be about my own attempt to get free medical service, to which foreigners are entitled. Another will be an interview with a doctor driven to the verge of a breakdown by people demanding his signature on "sick cards" so they could stay home on sick pay for 13 weeks.

Labor Steps on Labor

How are the steel workers doing—and why?

How are the coal miners getting along—and why? You'll read their own answers, given to me at the pitheads and down in a mine two and a half miles under the North Sea, and in their own cottages in talks with their wives and children.

What has happened in Britain to the right to strike—the right for which labor has struggled more than a century? To get right down to the point, what happened to that right when workers in an electric power plant near London walked out in protest against a phoney wage "boost" which netted them no more take-home money? Their own leaders, now running the government, denounced them as unpatriotic and sent armed soldiers into the struck plant to run it. The way that was done (leaving labor union members helpless to use their hard-won right to strike, and their leaders gagged and out on their feet) will be told in one of these stories direct from the strike scene.

Church Members Only 20%

How much headway is British Socialism making in its admitted effort to break up the church and the home as the "two greatest obstacles" to its complete control of the people through government? How is the church being beaten down until, today, only 20 per cent of the British people claim church membership, as compared with 50 per cent in the United States? Are mothers permitted to feed their children the milk, orange juice and cod liver oil prescribed by the government?

What is the Socialist diet—nine years of it now—doing to the physical strength of the British people? How do men hold up on one meat meal a week, a dab of butter now and then, only one egg a week? Can they keep going on potatoes, bread and fish?

What happens to the normal ambition of men in a country which takes $4 out of every $10 they earn for taxes—and holds out no hope for better days? Have these conditions in Socialist Britain been caused by some of the same policies which the United States is pursuing today?

You'll read answers to these and many of your other questions—straight from British common people themselves—in the articles in this series.

HAND INJURIES

THE most common type of injury in the home is a cut or laceration, usually on the hand. With the bleeding controlled by local pressure, we must determine the extent of the damage. Cuts on some parts of the hand and wrist may sever a tendon. By opening and closing the fist we get a fairly good knowledge of the working of the tendons. This is important in deep wounds, no matter how small the superficial cut may be. If any doubt exists as to whether a cut should be sutured or whether a tendon has been severed, the person should be seen by his family doctor.

The next step is to prevent infection. This is accomplished by eliminating sources of contamination. Here the first reliance is soap and water. Plain cleanliness is the basis of asepsis. When the wound is extensive or soreness exists, warm water may be applied with pads of cotton or gauze. Ordinary alcohol is a simple and practical home antiseptic.

In lacerations produced by dog bite, the most important thing, besides using soap and water to cleanse the wound, is to notify the police so that the animal can be corralled and kept under observation for rabies. If the animal has rabies, it will be diagnosed in time to start preventive treatment. If the animal cannot be found, treatments should be started for safety's sake.

1st ANNIVERSARY

Last Saturday, January 15, ended our first year in the grocery business in St. Joe. True, we didn't make a lot of money. We didn't expect to. We feel that we did, however, bring to this community the lowest comparative prices which have prevailed here for some years. While doing this we have made enough money to enable us to maintain about as good a home, dress about as good, eat about as good and in short live about as good as our average customers. What more could we ask? Now due to our increased volume and knowledge gained by our recent inventory, we have reduced the prices still further on more than forty items.

In closing we wish to thank the entire community for their patronage and encouragement during our first and what should usually be the roughest year.

Local Elevator Robbed

Sherriff Frank Carpenter reported Monday that thieves broke into the local elevator sometime during the week-end and stole clover seed valued at $400.

The robbery was not discovered until late Monday afternoon. The sheriff and State Police Det. Russell Huffman are investigating the break-in. They reported that it occured sometime after the mill closed Saturday afternoon and before it was opened for business Monday.

Newville Resident Passes Away

Mrs. Jenitte (Jennie) Harter, 80, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mearl Patee, Lake Shore Drive, Auburn, Tuesday, Jan. 17, at 4:30 a.m. The attending physician attributed her death to senility and arterio-sclerosis. She had been in failing health for over a year and had moved from her home in Newville to the home of her daughter in Auburn. She had been bed-fast for a week before her death.

Funeral services were held in Christian Church in Newville at 2 p.m. Thursday. The Rev. Joseph Shenault officiated at the services and burial in the Newville Cemetery.

Mrs. Harter was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Harvey of near Van Wert, Ohio. She was united in marriage to Harvey L. Harter of Van Wert Co., Ohio, and started housekeeping at Scott, Ohio. Later they moved to Newville where Mr. Harter, who died in 1924, was a carpenter. Mrs. Harter had been a resident of Newville for 47 years and a member of the Christian Church.

Survivors besides her daughter in Auburn include six other children: Lewis of South Bend; Mrs. Cora Worthington of Albion, Mich.; Charles of Newville; William of Newville; Ray of South Bend; Mrs. Ernest Nelson of Garrett; two brothers, Joe Harvey of Van Wert and Clyde Harvey of Waltz, Mich.; two sisters, Mrs. Will Boyer of Adrian, Mich., and Mrs. Ida Robey of Britton, Mich.; 31 grandchildren and 31 great-grandchilden.

MR. AND MRS. CLYDE HART MARRIED FOR HALF CENTURY

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hart of Coburn's Corners will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Friday, January 27, at their winter home in Port Richey, Florida. Mr. Hart is a former teacher in the schools of DeKalb County.

The couple are the parents of 3 children, Mrs. Berniece Wilder of St. Joe, Karl Hart of Spencerville and Mrs. Alice Kagey of St. Joe, all teachers in DeKalb County.

They have five grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Hart live on the same farm that his grandfather obtained from the government in 1837.

Piston Coach To Speak At Banquet

Coach Murray Mendenhall of the Fort Wayne Zollner Pistons Professional Basketball Team will be the principal speaker at a banquet honoring the Spencerville basketball team for winning the DeKalb County Basketball Tournament. During the program moving pictures will be shown of a recent Zollner Piston basketball game. It is possible that Coach Mendenhall will have two or three of the Piston players with him.

The banquet will take place on Wednesday, February 1, at the Spencerville Hall at 6:30 p.m CST. The price of the tickets is $1.00 and they may be purchased at Hoover's Store, Reed's Service Station, Fisher's Corner Market and Baidinger's Shell Service.

$300 Damage By Hit-Run Driver

Mrs. Robert Davis And Children Hit While Driving in St. Joe

The car in which Mrs. Robert Davis and her two children were driving was struck by a hit-and-run motorist at about 9 a.m. Sunday morning at the intersection just north of the Davis residence. The Davis' daughter was thrown into the back seat by the force of the impact but was not hurt. Mrs. Davis didn't see who the driver of the other car was, but said that she is certain he was driving a Ford. By the time she had made sure that her children weren't hurt, the other driver had left.

The Davis car, a 1938 Buick sedan, was hit broadsides, damaging the 2 doors and springing the frame to the extent of approximately $300, according to Mr. Davis.

Concert Group Plans Spring Drive

Plans for a spring membership campaign for the DeKalb County Community Concert Association were made Thursday night at a meeting of association officers held in the home of Mrs. Marion Peckhart of 1009 South VanBuren street, Auburn.

For the past two years the membership drive has been held in the fall, but the officers felt that a spring campaign would permit greater flexibility in selecting artists and more time to complete final arrangements.

With Mrs. Marion Ross of the Chicago office of Community Concert Service, the group set the week of April 17-22 for the membership drive. The current series is proving extremely popular with an almost sold-out membership and the officers will face a real challenge in exceeding the standards set by this year's series of artists.

There are two remaining concerts on the 1949-50 series. These will include the Cosmopolitan String Trio, who will appear at the Court Theaer in Auburn March 9, and Miss Mona Paulee, who will give the concluding recital on April 13.

JOIN THE MARCH OF DIMES

March Of Dimes In Progress

The "March of Dimes" drive is on in DeKalb County and containers, small replicas of iron lungs, have been placed in most business houses in Auburn and surrounding communities seeking public contributions.

Proceeds from the drive will be used by both the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and the DeKalb County chapter.

Last year, according to officials of the local chapter, $4,265 was spent by the county chapter in aiding 13 cases of poliomyelitis.

A deficit of nearly $2,000 was incurred during 1949 by the county chapter despite the low number of polio cases in comparison with neighboring counties. If the epidemic in DeKalb County had reached the proportion experienced in some surrounding counties, the deficit would have reached $10,000, chapter officials said.

At the present time aid is being provided for one active polio case and 10 cases of post treament. Assistance for post treatment cases includes braces, wheel chairs and appliances.

Chapter officials said the campaign in DeKalb County closes on January 31.

Dig Down Deep

The people of DeKalb county will pay out approximately $6,268,452 as their share of Federal spending in the next fiscal year if Congress adopts the 42.2 billion dollar budget proposed by the President, the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce estimated this week.

Average cost of this spending program per capita in the county would be $226.19, or $904.76 for a family of four, the chamber figures showed. At this rate of expediture, the chamber computed, federal spending over a period of only 5.69 years would cost the county's residents an amount equal to the entire assessed value of all real estate, homes, buildings, farms and personal property in the county.

Cost to the entire state of Indiana of the proposed budget was estimated at $971,853,000, or more than 5 times the total of state taxes now being collected annually. Indiana's share of the budget would about equal the total annual value of all farm production in the state, the chamber said.

Clarence A. Jackson, executive vice president of the State Chamber, pointed out that the proposed spending for the year beginning July 1, 1950, is over $8 billion more than the expenditures for a year as recent as 1948. Most of this increase, he said, has been in the cost of domestic programs not related to national defense or foreign aid.

Roscoe Walter qualified last week in the DeKalb circuit court as administrator of the estate of the late Mrs. Bertha Furnish by filing bond of $200. Sureties for the bond were Harry F. Laux and Delbert Furnish. The court approved the bond and ordered letters of administration for issue to Mr. Walter. Mrs. Furnish, who died Dec. 20, left an estate estimated at $100 in personal property and $1,800 in real estate.

Paul Furnish Buried Tuesday

Final rites were conducted Tuesday at 2 p.m. at the Walter Funeral Home for Paul E. Furnish, 55, Spencerville factory worker.

Mr. Furnish, a native of Jackson township, died at 6 a.m. Sunday in the Methodist Hospital in Fort Wayne. His death resulted from a blood clot. About a month ago he became seriously ill and was admitted to the hospital 17 days before his death.

Rev. L. E. Clayton, a Methodist minister from Hagerstown, Ind., officiated at Tuesday's services. Burial was in Leo Cemetery.

Mr. Furnish was an employee of the Universal Tool Copmany at Spencerville and a member of the Methodist church.

He was born April 2, 1894, in Jackson township, the son of Abraham and Sylvia Shutt Furnish. His wife is the former Olive Jackson.

The wife survives with five daughters, Mrs. Rosemond Northrup of northwest of Spencerville, Mrs. Doris Yoder of Leo, and Mrs. Lavern Rafine, Mrs. Marcella Brown and Mrs. Jean Brown, all residents of Jackson township near Auburn; one son, Lavon, a student at Indiana University; nine grandchildren; one half-brother, Arthur Furnish of southwest of Spencerville; and two half-sisters, Mrs. Bertha Klopfenstein, Ft. Wayne, and Mrs. Jennie Klopfenstein of Leo.

FORMER ST. JOE MAN PLEADS NOT GUILTY IN SUPPORT CASE

Cecil Likes, formerly of St. Joe, arrested Saturday at Osseo, Michigan, on a warrant issued by the DeKalb circuit court charging him with failure to support his four children and wife, entered a plea of not guilty at his arraignment in the local court late Monday.

Likes was returned to DeKalb county Monday morning by Sheriff Frank Carpenter. After his arraignment he was returned to the DeKalb county jail. His bond is set at $1,00-

Casey And Pearl Give Up

Mrs. Pearl Williams has filed suit in the DeKalb circuit court seeking a divorce from Frank L. (Casey) Williams.

Mrs. Williams accuses Casey of being a habitual drunkard. She alleges in her complaint that he has served three terms at the Indiana state penal farm and "several jail sentences" on convictions for public intoxication.

In addition, she charges that Casey has threatened her, cursed and abused her and stolen her money.

H. S. Grimm of Auburn is counsel for Mrs. Williams. The couple was married April 2, 1933, and separated last Wednesday.

Prosecuting attorney James A. Angelone said Likes is charged by his wife, Ethel Likes, of St. Joe, with failure to provide for their three daughters, ages 16, 14 and 8 and a son, age 12. She is separated from her husband.

Likes was arrested Saturday by Hillsdale County Sheriff Herman Kochendorfer. He waived extradition in court at Hillsdale Monday morning and told the court he would return willingly to the county.

For Men, the Same Old Look

Voluntary Health Betterment

In the past we have been somewhat critical of the various campaigns for funds which occur especially at this time of year because they seem to fill the air with a continuous "Give - Give-Give!" However, upon close investigation of the services the public receives from the fruits of the campaigns, it becomes evident that the goals set and the contributions made are quite small in comparison with other expenses burdening the American public; we are somewhat ashamed of ourselves for feeling hostile.

This feeling came over us in the past week when we received a letter from the American Heart Association asking cooperation in the 1950 Heart Campaign. Enclosed were six advertisements which are available for sponsorship by local business firms to aid in the drive for funds. Our first thought was something like, "Another 'give' campaign! And we're not even through with the "March of Dimes!"

But then a line caught our eye — "the 1950 Heart Campaign which is seeking a total of $6,000,000—." Stop and think a moment. What is six million dollars in relation to the number of wage earners? Or better still, what is six million dollars in relation to what we pay in taxes — or in relation to the national debt? There is hardly a comparison. Yet we were ready to throw the letter in the wastebasket and say "phooey!"

This is not an appeal for funds for the Heart Campaign, the March of Dimes or any other drive. It is a suggestion that if you should react as we did at first, remember the small bit the various campaigns ask of you while they are in progress. Each individual's share won't break you or us. You'll be bettering your and your neighbors' health; and best of all, it's voluntary.

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome-poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

Dear Mr. Editor:

Just a few lines to compliment you on the fine job you are doing in publishing the paper by your lone efforts, mechanically speaking, of course. You are getting some fine assistance from your reporters and all the folks in the St. Joe community who bring in their news items.

Keep up the excellent work.

Sincerely yours,
The Editor

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

If you found your favorite fishing water a bit crowded last year, there was a good reason. In fact, there were over 15,000,000 reasons.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced last week that fishing license sales last year totalled 15,478,570 to set a new all-time high. Gross revenue hit $32,657,940, an increase of $5,333,296 over the previous year and also a new record.

Michigan again was the top state in sales with 1,110,109, followed by California with 1,030,109, and Wisconsin with 1,022,004. This was the first time three states passed the million mark. In 1948 only Michigan was above that top figure.

Other states in the top ten were Ohio (918,042), Minnesota (862,822), Illinois (783,073), New York (690,462), Pennsylvania (611,677), Missouri (599,109), and Tennessee (426,437). Indiana dropped out of the top ten and Tennessee moved up for the first time.

California set the pace in gross revenue with $3,138,501, followed by Michigan ($2,102,347), New York ($1,884,403), Washington ($1,749,451) Wisconsin (($1,732,159) and Minnesota ($1,578,006).

A third record also was established last year with a total sale of 1,191,346 non-resident fishing licenses. This topped the previous high by a big 292,508.

States attracting the largest number of out-of-state anglers were Wisconsin (285,277), Michigan (283,879) and Minnesota (214,895).

Since the end of the war a new record for license sales has been set almost annually. Chances are, too, that sales for the current year will zoom ahead of 1949. However, there are some who are forecasting that the sales have about hit a peak and now will level off. We'll have to wait another year, however, to find who wins the argument.

U. S. Taxpayer Blamed for "Fool Socialism"

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

HAWICK, Scotland—"You Americans are to blame for this fool Socialism here in Britain!"

That's what Bill Andrews told me. And he's a pretty typical employee of a woolen cloth mill at Hawick, Scotland, on the River Tweed.

NOLAND

"All right, let's have it," I urged with a smile, knowing that whatever he said by way of explanation would be worth listening to—because the average British factory worker is amazingly well informed about international conditions and discusses them with keen intelligence and a flow of meaningful words.

"It's your Marshall aid," Bill Andrews began. "Get me right, my friend. You Americans are the greatest people God ever made. No country in the whole history of the world ever gave money to another country the way you gave money to us. And we know where it's coming from. It's coming right out of the wages of people just like me. Every man in the United States that's got a job is putting up from his pay to help a guy like me get on his feet. I know that. So does every working man in the United Kingdom know it. I've seen many a man right here in this pub say 'God bless America' with tears in his eyes.

"Gave Money to Dreamers"

"But you gave the money to that gang of dreamers in Westminster," Bill Andrews went on. "And they're using your money to force this Socialism on us. You Americans make your money by being free men, still free to work and prosper according to your ability and ambition, although your own taxes are getting dangerously high, just like ours did in Britain. And that's a threat to your own freedom! Yet you're giving your money to Attlee and his dreamers to fool us into thinking Socialism will work.

"You know, don't you," this Scotch weaver continued, "that 2,000,000 of the 23,000,000 persons employed in the United Kingdom have jobs only because of your Marshall aid money?"

And I admitted that I had found no one who would deny that statement.

"Well," said Bill, "it's that 2,000,000 that gives truth to the Socialist boast that there's 'a job for everyone' under Socialism, and which makes it almost certain that the Socialists will win the 1950 elections on that issue alone."

"Can Fool Americans Again"

It made little impression on Bill Andrews when I noted that it just wasn't in a lot of Americans to horn in on the home politics of the British people as a condition of shelling out a dollar for a good man in temporary need—and that many Americans were trusting to British common sense to see that Socialism could lead only to collapse, and hence to stop it at the next elections.

As we left the pub, after discussing other topics, Bill and his fellow-weavers, all Scots (with all the industry, character, frugality and craft-pride of Scots), still maintained that the Socialists would win again. As he wrung my hand, Bill Andrews' parting comment was:

"Don't think we're not grateful. God bless you Americans, all of you. We don't like the Attlee crowd, but we may vote for 'em again—because, if they were smart enough to fool the smart Americans for all that easy money once, they might be smart enough to do it again."

Following our first anniversary we wish to state our aims and obligations which we think should and do govern the conduct of our store. We aim to please by courteous service and a good stock at prices as low as any. We open at 7:30 a.m. and close when out of customers. Since losing our bank we try at all times to be in position to cash our customers' pay checks. The profits from our sales (your purchases) are being used to improve our store, or shouldn't we say YOUR store, for all OUR fixtures are worthless without YOUR patronage. In short you can at any time by withholding your patronage FIRE us and force us to sell out, but the same fixtures would still be here to serve YOU. So who really owns the fixtures? We aim to support all worthy local organizations - in fact, in the last few years we have enabled one such local organization to earn approximately $2500. However, we never have nor never will solicit patronage in return for merely fulfilling an obligation which every business owes to its community. Now don't misjudge us. We're not claiming to be philanthropists; we're in business to make a profit. We only think that the above is essential to a long term profit.

Unto All Men

Lesson for January 29, 1950

"MARK TIME, Christian Soldiers," is not a Christian hymn. The word is "Onward, Christian Soldiers!" The command was given by no less a person than Jesus himself: "Go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them . . . teaching them . . ." (Matt. 28:19, 20) Do you know some one in the church who says he doesn't believe in missions? Such a man does not take Christ seriously. If you do believe in Christ then his commands are for you to obey, not to ignore.

Dr. Foreman

UP TO NOW, the church has been playing around with Jesus' command. Very few denominations are actually putting any large amount of money or manpower into obeying Christ's command to go into all the world.

One fairly typical American denomination contributed last year to all benevolences, that is to all causes not in their own local congregations, the sum of $9,137,065. That sounds like a lot; but divided by the total number of members it boils down to $14.03 per member for the year, or less than five cents a day.

And of course not all that big sum of five cents went to missions of any sort. Yet that denomination gives more per capita to missions than most others do. When a man who gives less than five cents a day to carry the good news of Christ into the wide world sings "Onward, Christian Soldiers!" or prays "Thy Kingdom come!" how much does he mean it? Not a nickel's worth!

Or take the question of manpower. The same denomination sends out as missionaries, every year, as many men and women as are sent by some denominations three times its size. And yet, even so, the total number of ordained ministers in that denomination who are foreign missionaries is only 4 per cent of their total number of ministers.

"Go into all the world," said the Master. "Four per cent of us will," we reply, "the rest of us will stay at home."

When Men Obey

AS A MATTER OF FACT, even the earliest church was slow to pay real attention to Christ's command, Forward! Men are strange creatures. And one of the strange things about us is that we often have to be scared into doing our duty.

It took the persecution set off by the death of Stephen to move the Christians in Jerusalem out along the roads south, north, east, anywhere to get away from the city of death. Everywhere they went, they told the story of Jesus.

But at first it was all rather breathless and informal. "Why are you here?" one of these DP's would be asked, as he was passing through Samaria or Antioch or Alexandria, perhaps in the bread-line, perhaps looking for a place to work and settle down. "I'm a refugee from Jerusalem," he would say. "But why?" "Well, I'm a Christian." "What's that?"

So the story would be told all over again, the good news about God's grace in Christ. So the church spread. Today, though an enormous part of the world's population is still unwon, there are Christians in so many lands that the Bible—all or parts of it—has had to be translated into more than one thousand different languages and dialects.

Unto All Men

ONE OF THE MOST interesting and surpassing little books of recent years is called "They Found the Church There," by H. P. Van Dusen. It is the dramatic story of how the American GI, to his great astonishment, found Christians in the most unexpected places.

It is a tremendous mistake to think that the Christian religion is only for English-speaking peoples, or for Europeans, or for white people. It began among people whom most readers of this column would set down as "foreigners."

Christ can be as much at home in an igloo or a wigwam as he is in an American farmhouse or in an efficiency apartment on the city boulevard. He comes to all men, and as Peter found out, the Lord is no respecter of persons.

CONCORD TWP HOME EC.

The Concord Twp. Home Economics Club met Friday afternoon, Jan. 20, at the home of Mrs. Kathryn Haller. The meeting was called to order by the retiring president. Mrs. Mary Krise led the singing. The opening song was "Sweet and Low." Several pep songs were sung after which the Devotions were given by Mrs. Violet Kline.

Mrs. Laura Washler then installed the new officers for 1950. They are Mrs. Doris Yeiser, Pres.; Mrs. Cora Curie, Vice Pres.; Mrs. Violet Kline, Sec.; Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick, Ass't Sec.; Mrs. Ethel Wineland, Treas.; Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick, Pianist; Mrs. Cora Curie, Ass't Pianist; Mrs. Mary Krise, Chorister; Mrs. Harriet Johnson, Ass't Chorister; and Mrs. Myrtle Pugsley, Publicity.

The new president then took charge. The secretary's report was read and 23 members responded to roll with "A New Year's Resolution." There was one child present. Reports from special leaders were given as follows: Garden, Mrs. Inez Hadsell; Food Preservation, Mrs. Mary Washler; Health, Mrs. Clara Foltz; Outlook, Mrs. Ella Meyers; and Literary, Mrs. Kathryn Haller.

The club voted to give $5 to the March of Dimes. It was also decided for members to save waste paper, which will be gathered up later for the County Chorus. The treasurer's report was given.

Mrs. Ethel Wineland was reported on the sick list.

Each member was given a dime by the president. In turn they are to make as much as possible from the dime by the end of the year and turn results back to the club.

The entertainment committee, Mrs. Ella Meyers and Mrs. Inez Hadsell, gave several contests. The door prize was won by Mrs. Iva Yeiser.

The hostess and her committee, Mrs. Cra Curie, Mrs. Millie Shull and Mrs. Iva Yeiser, served lunch consisting of nut bread, vegetable salad and coffee.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Laura Washler.

JOIN THE MARCH OF DIMES

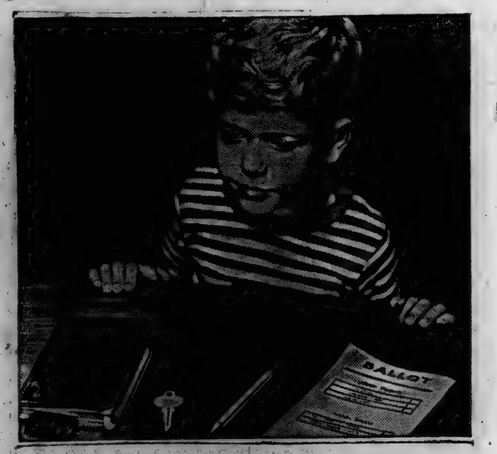
ARE your milk profits sagging due to low production during these winter months? Well, there's no reason for you to sit by and let those dollars slip through your fingers, because you can take steps to bolster production.

Remember that milk prices are at their peak in the winter, and that you have more time to devote to the dairy herd in the off season. The number one problem during the winter is to keep the cows supplied with plenty of fresh water. A dairy cow needs from three to five pounds of water for each pound of milk she produces.

The water tank should be located in a sheltered spot, under a lean-to shed perhaps. If it is located out in the open a tank heater is almost a necessity, although any method of keeping the water from freezing will be satisfactory.

A little extra care in dairy cattle feeding is another step you can take to keep up production during cold weather. Often, when a mature, weathered grade of hay is fed (as is the practice in the winter) cattle refuse to eat enough to maintain a profitable level of production. For every ton of low grade hay a cow is fed, she must consume an extra 500 pounds of concentrates to provide a good, healthy diet.

Regularity helps a lot in taking the dip out of the milk production curve. And there's no excuse for irregular feeding and milking during the winter, when there aren't too many other farm chores to interfere. Finally, try and get the cows outside for at least a little while each day, no matter what the weather is.



Will you leave these to your children?

Men have died to leave you these 4 symbols of freedom:

A door key—your right to lock your door against illegal government force and prying.
(Fourth Amendment, U. S. Constitution)

A Holy Bible—symbol of your right to worship as you wish.
(First Amendment, U. S. Constitution)

A pencil—freedom to speak or write what you think, whether you agree with the government or not.
(First Amendment, U. S. Constitution)

And a free ballot—your right to choose the kind of government you want—your protection against government tyranny.
(Articles I, U. S. Constitution)

THESE SYMBOLS have no meaning in countries where government controls everything—for there the individual man or woman has no freedoms.

But there are people who are trying to give the U. S. government more and more control over American life. "Let the government start," they say, "by taking over certain industries and services—the doctors, the railroads, the electric light and power companies."

Most of these people—like most Americans—don't want a socialistic U. S. A. They have other reasons for government control. But when government, moving step by step, controls enough things, you have a socialist government, whether you want it or not. You'll be controlled, too. Then what freedoms will you be able to pass on to your children?

Barn Damaged By Fire

The St. Joe and Spencerville fire departments were called to the Richard Crowe farm northwest of St. Joe Tuesday afternoon to extinguish a barn fire.

Cause of the fire was not exactly determined; however, it is possible that an accumulation of dust and hay on a light bulb in the barn ignited and started a smoldering fire which crept up the west wall on to the roof where most of the damage occurred.

Prompt arrival of the Spencerville fire department aided the St. Joe department which ran into a little difficulty when a valve didn't function and they were unable to pump water temporarily.

The firemen were helped by the fact that the chopped hay in the west end of the barn was matted down heavily. This prevented the fire from breaking out into a going blaze. Had it done so, the main barn and all the attached buildings probably today would be — just a memory.

Principals and coaches of schools participating in the Garrett-Auburn split sectional basketball tournament next month were guests of the Garrett Lions Club Mon., Jan. 23. Short talks were given by C. H. Elliott of Angola, who told of the organization of the Indiana High School Athletic association, and Lloyd K. Miller, principal of Auburn high school, who gave an interesting discussion of the rules and regulations governing a sectional tourney and the many problems faced by the host schools. Immediately following the Lions club meeting, the principals and coaches held a business session to discuss details of the coming tourney.

Arthur H. Lautzenhiser, chairman of the DeKalb County P.M.A., announced Friday that corn allotments will be established in DeKalb county for the year 1950 on each farm that has raised corn during the years 1947, 1948 and 1949. He also stated that any farmer who wishes an allotment for a farm that has not raised corn during one of those three years should request a corn allotment by writing or contacting in person the DeKalb county P.M.A. office in Auburn before Feb. 6.

Ralph Sechler suffered an attack of thrombosis a week ago Monday and will be confined to his home for some time. The attack occurred the same evening on which he addressed the local Lions Club.

Interested citizens of four northeastern DeKalb townships are discussing the possibility of a consolidated school at Butler. Parents of children attending the grade and high school at Butler and the township schools in Wilmington, Franklin, Stafford and Troy townships are sponsoring the survey. Many of the students of the area are tuition students at Butler where the schools are operated by the town school board. Consolidation of the schools would place a representative of each township on the board of edlcation. Under provisions of an act by the 1949 Indiana General Assembly, it is possible for a trustee of any township and the school board of any town to adopt a resolution providing for the merging of the school corporations into one metropolitan school district.

Funeral services were conducted for Earl L. Hassinger, 59, deputy sheriff of DeKalb county, at 2 p.m. Friday in the Zimmerman funeral home at Garrett, Mr. Hassinger, deputy sheriff of the county since 1944, died at 4:20 a.m. Wednesday in his home at 108 South Britton street, Garrett. He died of cancer of the lungs. Rev. R.J. Yunker of the Garrett Methodist Church officiated at the services with burial in Woodruff Cemetery near Wolcottville. The offices in the DeKalb county courthouse were closed Friday afternoon for the funeral rites.

William Staman of Concord Twp. was re-elected a director of the DeKalb County Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company last Saturday afternoon.

Richard Crowe of near St. Joe was elected secretary of the DeKalb county extension advisory committee at the annual organizational meeting last Thursday in the assembly room of the court house in Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. William Staman left Tuesday morning on a trip to Phoenix, Arizona, for a month's vacation. They may continue on west to California to visit a nephew of Mr. Staman.

The Florence Walter property in St. Joe was sold this past week through John L. Haverstock, St. Joe realtor, to Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Rinard who will move in next Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Easterday of Butler are the parents of a 9 lb. baby boy born at 4 a.m. on January 21 at the Dr. Bonnell M. Sauder Hospital at Auburn. The baby has been named Michael. Mr. and Mrs. Easterday are staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Collins in St. Joe until Mrs. Easterday is able to return to their home. Mrs. Easterday is the former Ruby Collins.

Those who helped her celebrate her birthday were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bishop and children of Angola, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Henderson and daughters, Mrs. Nettie Baker of Ft. Wayne, Miss Fairie Cole of Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Hendricks and daughters, Suzanne and Carole, of Auburn and Mrs. Effie Wineland of St. Joe. "Grandma" said she had a wonderful time.

Talent Show Entry Deadline Near

Only 6 days remain before the deadline of Wednesday, Feb. 8, to enter the Talent Show to be presented by the St. Joe Lions Club at the local gym on Feb. 18. The program committee has announced that the list of performers is growing and that anyone desiring to appear on the program should enter his or her or their names at the St. Joe News office as soon as possible.

The Lions Club is offering three cash prizes of $20, $10 and $5 for the first three winners plus a gift for each contestant who appears.

The proceeds from the event will be used in the club's local sight conservation activities, and this program offers a wonderful opportunity to the people of this community to help out by appearing in competition for worthwhile prizes.

The program is scheduled to begin at 8:00 p.m. and the admission prices are: 60¢ for adults; 30¢ for children and students.

American Legion Auxiliary

The American Legion Auxiliary of Walter Whitehurst Post 283 met at the legion home on Tuesday, Jan. 24 at 8 o'clock. Seven members were present with the president, Mrs. Clayton A. Baker, presiding.

After roll call, the secretary's and treasurer's reports were read. The members voted to send $5 to Clermont Girls' School to be spent on new equipment. A little more business was discussed and the meeting was adjourned.

St. Joe Man Injured At Fort Wayne

Walter Coburn, a 37-year-old worker from St. Joe, was one of the three employees injured when the Wabash coal dock in Fort Wayne collapsed Tuesday, January 24. The St. Joe man received deep lacerations on the back of the head and possible skull injury. The three workers were given first aid at the scene of the accident by Fort Wayne police and firemen and then were taken to the St. Joseph's hospital in Fort Wayne in ambulances.

Mr. Coburn, a bridge and building carpenter, was working at the top of the dock when the collapse came and rode the toppling structure part way down to the tracks, thereby escaping more serious injuries. The workers said they were bracing the supporting steel of the hopper with their torches when it fell. The hopper was filled with 250 tons of coal at the time of the accident and tons of this spewed from the mouth of the funnel-shaped hopper when it crashed down upon the tracks.

WOMEN'S DEMOCRATIC CLUB

The Women's Democratic DeKalb Club met last Thursday evening at Waterloo.

The business meeting was called to order by the new president, Mrs. Betty Riddle. Mrs. Ethel Calvin, the retiring president, gave the monthly club report. Mrs. Mildred Wise was elected to the office of secretary.

The ladies of the club made plans for several political social events and Mrs. Betty Riddle gave a very inspiring talk on various ways to improve the club. The social hour was spent playing "fifty". Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Lillian Grim, Mrs. Cleo O'Neill and Mrs. Mildred Wise. The door prize was won by Mrs. Betty Riddle.

Refreshments were served of salad, wafers and coffee.

Club members will receive cards announcing the guest night party to be held in February.

Tavern Fight Moves To Indianapolis

The scene of the St. Joe tavern "fight" shifted from DeKalb county to Indianapolis last Thursday when a delegation representing the opposition element formally presented their objection before the State Alcoholic Beverage commission.

The hearing was held in the commission's office in the Illinois building at Indianapolis.

The delegation filed their formal protest in opposition to the recommendation for granting a beer and wine dealer's permit to Charles G. (Chuck) McIntosh, which was handed down Dec. 21 by the DeKalb liquor licensing board.

McIntosh was not present at the hearing held Thursday afternoon at Indianapolis. The commission acknowledged that, through an oversight, he was not notified of the date of the hearing.

The delegation which appeared before the board was led by Winslow Van Horne of Auburn, attorney for the group. He was accompanied by Rev. W. H. Baker of Spencerville, Pastor of the St. Mark's Lutheran Church at St. Joe; Rev. Joseph Shenault of St. Joe, pastor of the Newville Church of Christ; L. A. Schendel, depot agent on the B & O railroad at St. Joe; Ray Rossmeyer, a St. Joe farmer and George Myers,

No Relief in Sight

Pulling A Fast One?

The prolonged dispute over the issuance of a beer and wine carry-out license in St. Joe is becoming somewhat tiresome.

The principle arguement of the protestors has been the measurement of distance between the carry-out store and the St. Mark's Lutheran Church. They contend that the law should be interpreted as meaning that the measurement is from any part of the church, not from the main wall as the local county board accepted in its recommendation last December.

It's puzzling why this dispute must be prolonged through hearings by the State Alcoholic Beverage Commission when the whole matter could be cleared up at once, or so it seems, by a legal interpretation of the commission's requirements in measuring the distance. This would govern all applications explicitly and end this particular controversy which has caused unrest and antagonism.

—Or is the law left as it is so that its inexactness can be used as the situation warrants?

a retired St. Joe resident.

The oppositiion group based its protest on the distance from the St. Mark's Lutheran Church in St. Joe from the proposed tavern site. The local liquor board based its recommendation on a measurement of 20-1.2 feet from the main wall of the church to the tavern. The opposition has presented the measurement of 196 feet from an enclosed church doorway and another of 199.2 feet from the overhanging roof of the church.

THREE ENTER PRIMARY RACE

Two democrats and one republican have announced their candidacies for nominations for county offices in the coming May primary.

The two democrats are Otto R. Shuman of Waterloo, Grant Twp. trustee, who will seek the nomination for county auditor, and Ray Miller of Stafford Twp., who will seek the nomination for commissioner from the northeast district.

Guy Myers, DeKalb county auditor, announced that he will seek re-election to the office of county auditor on the republican ticket.

County democrats held an organizational meeting last Monday at the city hall in Auburn. Fred Stemen of Spencerville and Ralph Sechler of St. Joe were appointed to the finance committee.

WILDLIFE ARE GOOD PAYING TENANTS

Attractive homes can entice and hold more than one type of good tenants on the farm. The farmer's small neighbors-his wildlife friends-will move in and go to work without labor charges, once they find conditions are ideal and that natural food is provided in abundance.

Put out the welcome mat in the form of good farming practices and a protected woods, J. L. VanCamp, extension forester urges. A tract of timber which is fenced has a thick growth of shrubs or trees growing down to the ground level providing ideal protection for the soil and for wildlife which uses farm woods cover.

About this time of year a walk along sheltered borders of farm woods will probably show that not only are there rabbits, grey squirrels, coon and possum in the woods, but also coveys of quail are possibly nesting there. Quail are quite likely to move in if corn fields or other grain fields are close by.

Birds such as hawks and owls can be expected to inhabit woods and are particularly partial to pine plantations. The Purdue forester said that he recently observed that long-eared owls were increasing in a local Christmas tree plantation. He said that the explanation was that the mice were on the increase in a nearby orchard and that the owls increased in the nearby plantation. These owls will help to take care of this injurious rodent which does considerable damage to the tree roots in apple orchards.

The right kind of protection will attract beneficial birds such as hawks and owls which keep down mouse and rat population. In addition to the larger birds, many song birds do an important job of keeping down the insect population.

MUCH tender, loving care is expended on those eggs which are destined for market, but how about those that are on their way to the hatchery? The proper handling, sorting and cleaning of these eggs is fully as important to poultry profits.

Successful hatching of healthy chicks depends a lot on just how carefully the eggs are handled between the nest and the incubator. Poultry specialists say eggs for hatching should be gathered as often as possible whenever the weather is at an extreme—very hot or very cold. Overheating or chilling can quickly ruin the chances of good hatching.

The eggs should be taken to a cool, moist, but well-ventilated egg room, where they can be held for shipping. The best egg storage rooms are underground, where the temperature remains relatively constant at all times. A temperature of from 50 to 60 degrees, with humidity of 75 per cent or more, is most satisfactory. This standard applies to both market and hatchery eggs.

You can expect better hatching performance from clean eggs. This doesn't mean that they should be washed, but eggs that are so badly soiled that they can't be cleaned with emery cloth, or scraped with a knife, should not be placed in an incubator. Of course, the clean egg problem can be solved in the nest. You'll get consistently clean eggs if the nesting material is replenished often, especially during periods of heavy production. A deep, soft bed of dry litter on the floor is another aid to cleanliness in the hen house.

'Til next time, lots of good luck, everybody!

Calling all outdoorsmen

By JIM MITCHELL

Strange happenings in the outdoors! And, certainly, the truth often is stranger than fiction.

A fish-planting crew found a brown trout wearing spectacles .... a lake trout was caught with 13 finishing nails in its stomach .... a 75-pound sturgeon, known as Stanley, was stolen from a fish display pond, and the culprits escaped without leaving a single clue.

Then there was the hunter who walked into a warden's office and confessed to game code violations. He said, "The good Lord came to me and talked to me about the 14 deer I have killed illegally the past two years."

And there was a black bear that apparently wanted to take tickets at a movie. He guarded the door until a game investigator arrived and shot the bear. A red fox made off with a trappet's billfold and the billfold was found a mile away near a trap where the fox was caught.

Two anglers, not content to fish the normal way, were arrested for using an improvised diving suit.

And a 28-year-old woman was fined for scampering across a state park beach in the nude (it was outdoors, wasn't it) and the park manager quoted her as saying that the scanty swimming suit had proved too hot.

Of course, similar happenings are recorded annually in almost every state where outdoorsmen enjoy hunting, fishing, camping and the allied sports. The above incidents, however, all were reported in Michigan.

Frankly, I get a bang out of reading such things, for a little humor certainly brightens up a rather drab outlook what with the Army Engineers daming more of our rivers, the game hogs thriving and many wild life administrators thinking more of votes than the game or fish.

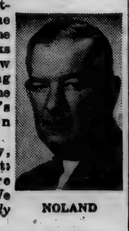
British Mother Losing Child's Care to State

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

LONDON, England—The meekness of the British woman under Socialism's constant pounding to break up the unity of the home is hard, at first, for the visiting American to understand.

He never would understand it at all if he were satisfied with the first answers he gets when he asks housewives how they're getting along under the Labor Party's Socialism in Britain.



NOLAND

Invariably, they say at first: "Oh, we're making out. We are never really hungry."

But, sitting before the combination cooking-and-heating stove in a weaver's cottage, and having the traditional cup of tea which a British woman makes for her guest, one needn't wait long to hear her confess that she's about worn out from trying to feed a family on bread, potatoes and fish—with only one meat meal a week and such a low ration of eggs, butter and sugar that she is denied any chance to make her family happy by her skill and variety in cooking.

Schooled to Hardship

Five years after the war, France is completely off rationing—and the ration in Western Germany is better than the British ration. Many British housewives still can't understand that. Some still are not equipped to see that, under the Socialist scheme, the people must be schooled to put up with severe hardships—and that prolonging the rationing (after the British already had put up with six years of it as a war necessity) is one way of training them to submit to the extreme demands of the Socialist state.

(Other British women have an embarrassing way of asking the visiting American if it isn't true that "some spokesmen of your own government are anxious to go back to rationing, too.")

Meat Once—Nylons Never

To get meat, a British housewife must sign up with a butcher of her choice who has meat on certain days and who lets her know when he'll open his shop. She tries to get there early, for a front place in the long line. If she pools the meat ration points for a family of five or six, she may get a two-to-three-pound roast of beef, mutton, lamb or veal—to last for a week. Usually she plans one good meat meal on Sunday—and a hash of the leftover, if any, about Tuesday.

She must join another line for her four ounces of butter, one egg a week for each member of the family, two ounces of sugar and other scarce items. The amounts may be more or less, depending upon the supply which the government releases.

Under British law, her husband is complete master of the household. What he gives her for household expenses is final.

She can't get a good suit because the "purchase tax" on a suit costing more than $20 is too high for any but the rich. She wears cotton hose and underthings because nylon can't be had at any price, and other fabrics are too scarce and too dear.

Told How To Feed Baby

Her children must get their pint of milk a day at school, not at home—even, in many instances, during vacation; and she is supervised even in feeding her babies.

Every week, she goes to the post office to collect 70 cents in government subsidy for each of her children after the first; and she knows that the government can cut that little help off if it wants to.

Little by little, the Socialists have taken away her pride in good cooking, her joy in the feeding element of motherhood, and her facilities to make herself attractive as a woman.

Why Should a Dollar's Worth of Travel Continue to Cost You $1.15?

"IS THIS TRIP NECESSARY?" you were asked in 1941, when every inch of space was needed for troops and war supplies.

To discourage travel then, a tax was added on your travel dollar, a tax that grew to 15% during the war. The Federal Government collected it through the railroads. The Government still collects it, though your travel need not be rationed now.

Today, the original purpose of this tax is as obsolete as an Air Warden's helmet. But, four years after the war's end, YOU are still paying the Government at the rate of $250,000,000 a year in travel tax.

And, of the billion and three quarters collected since 1941, over half came out of your pocket after the green light on travel went on again. You don't have food rationing today . . . you don't have gasoline rationing today.

Yet, a very real brake is still being put on travel. On a coach trip from New York to Chicago, for example, YOU are still paying $4.61 in Federal tax.

And the same with the goods that are shipped to your home community. On every dollar you pay for freight, you pay the Government an extra 3 cents (4¢ a ton on coal). That means YOU are still paying over $300,000,000 a year —freight tax alone.

This tax should be repealed NOW. There is no longer any reason you should pay $1.15 for every dollar's worth of travel . . . $1.03 for every dollar of railroad freight.

WINNERS 4-H CLUB

The first meeting of the Winners 4-H Club of Spencerville, new members and their parents was held in the Spencerville school basement on January 25.

Singing was led by Onan Laughman. Last year's president, Bill Wilder, called the meeting to order. Secretary Mary Wilder read the minutes of the last meeting and the financial report given and accepted.

The leader, Robert Witt, thanked the Parent Advisory Board for their help last year. He also thanked the parents and members for their gift.

New officers for the club year were elected and appointed. They are as follows: Junior Leaders - Bill Wilder, John Witt and Bonnie Witt; Ass't Junior Leaders - Franklin Dwyer, Mary Wilder and Betty Witt; Pres. - John Witt; Vice Pres. - Franklin Dwyer; Sec'y - Bonnie Witt; Ass't Sec'y - Mary Lou Jones; Treas. - Bill Wilder; Ass't Treas. - William Goldsmith; Song Leaders - Mary Wilder and Kathleen Anthony; News Reporter - William Johnson; Safety Leader - Jerry Leonard; Health Leader - Frank Johnson; Recreation Leaders (Senior Group) - Jim Knop and Alvin Jones, (Junior Group) Jack Hart and Donna Johnson; Librarian - John Shull; Program Director - Betty Witt; Scrap Book - Dale Jones.

A five member parent advisory board was also elected as follows: Mrs. Onan Laughman, Mrs. Elwood Hart, Mr. Lehr Wilder, Mrs. John Leonard and Mrs. Harold Goldsmith.

Plans for 1950 were discussed and voted upon. County Agent Ernest Lesiuk showed a 4-H movie in technicolor which was enjoyed by all. He also explained changes in projects and new farm projects for this year. Mr. Wilder read duties of a good 4-H leader, 4-H parents and 4-H members. Mrs. Johnson explained how junior and assistant junior leaders were selected for the new year.

Refreshments were served by Bonnie, John, Betty and Junior Witt.

Where We Came In

Lesson for February 5, 1950

A CIRCULAR LETTER came in the other day from a stranger who is hot and bothered because he has discovered that Jews and Negroes can belong to Christian churches along with white Americans. The astonishing thing is not that that should be true, but that any man should get excited over it. What astonished the Apostle Paul was not that Jews were in the Christian church but that anybody else could be! We must recall that Jesus was a Jew; that all the apostles were Jews; that the first Christian church at Jerusalem was composed exclusively of Jews.

Dr. Foreman

THE CHURCH AT ANTIOCH, one of the great commercial cities of the Roman world, was where we Gentiles came in. The writer is indebted to his former teacher, Dr. Charles Erdman, for noting four ways in which that church in Antioch was something new.

They had no Old Testament, they knew nothing of the Old Testament sacrifices, they had no interest in the Temple or in the history of Israel. Like most Gentiles, they had usually thought of the Jew as a quaint but unimportant minority group. Now that these Gentiles were in the same church with Jews, there would be plenty of room for trouble.

Could a church made up of such different races become a true Brotherhood? So the old mother-church at Jerusalem sent up Brother Barnabas to look around. Barnabas was not the church's most brilliant mind, but he had a heart full of faith.

New Leaders

GOD DOES NOT ALWAYS give the greatest successes to the "big names." Nowadays every one who knows his Bible knows Paul and Barnabas; but in Antioch both men were unknown at first, and untried.

When God wants a Reformation he calls forth a Luther, an obscure man who never fitted any of the existing priestly molds. When God wanted to open up Africa he called David Livingstone; when he wanted men for the far interior of Asia he called Hudson Taylor. When he wanted light to shine down into the slums he called William Booth.

These were all peculiar men by the standards of their times, but it takes peculiar men to break away from tradition's hearth-fire and break out new roads for the Gospel.

New Center

FOR SOME TIME Jerusalem was the capital of the Christian world. All roads led out from there, so to speak. With the rise of the Antioch church, however, a new center took the place of the old. Jerusalem withered away. In later times Alexandria led, and then other cities.

For a thousand years Rome and Constantinople were the acknowledged centers of the Christian world. Now we have also London—New York—Geneva . . . Many such centers have small beginnings. In America's early days the churches of Scotland sent over missionary offerings for the help of the struggling little church of New York.

In future years, who knows? Some church in Yunnan may be sending missionaries to the feeble folk left in the war-devastated ex-white world.

New Name

ANTIOCH is no longer a city of any importance. Missionaries go to it, not from it. But old Antioch left us something still cherished, a new name for believers: Christian. That name itself proves something.

It proves that the church in Antioch was something more than an aggregation of "churchmen." It was a family of Christ-men and Christ-women. These believers must have talked and lived something better than mere vague "religion." They talked of Christ, they loved Christ and they lived Christ, till even their busy neighbors took notice.

If your church had no name, and if your neighbors were to name it, and all the neighbors knew about it were you, by what name would they call it?

CULTURE CLUB

The regular meeting of the Culture Club was held Wednesday evening, January 25, at the home of Mrs. Olen Waltz with Mrs. Dewey White as co-hostess.

The group read the words of the club song in unison as the opening of the meeting. Mrs. Arthur Culbertson read an article entitled "The Greatest Man That Ever Lived" as the devotions for the evening.

Mrs. Albert Wade who was lesson leader for the evening selected two articles from the Reader's Digest entitled "Dangerous Myths About China" and "Parson of Laurel Fork Mountains." Critic's report was given by the regular critic, Mrs. Lynn Fisher. Mrs. Virgil Laux, assistant critic, reported the definitions of several words that appeared in last meeting's lesson. Roll call was held with 18 members, one associate member and one guest responding with "A New Year's Reolution."

After the regular business meeting was held, the play cast retired to other rooms to get into their costumes. They then presented two plays, "Meeting of the Better City Campaign Committee" and "The Persecuted Maiden -or- Curses, Foiled Again!" Those in the cast were Mrs. Lester Anthony, Mrs. Virgil Laux Mrs. Albert Wade, Mrs. Dewey White, Mrs. Herschel Shockley and Mrs. Arthur Culbertson.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Herman Zuber with Mrs. W. H. Baker as lesson leader. The special work will be "New Gadgets" led by Mrs. Dewey White.

SHOCK

SHOCK accompanies all severe accidents and is usually due to the initial injury. Shock may also develop later because of loss of blood, exposure, or emotional impact. The person with shock is cold and clammy, pale and pulseless. Here common sense is needed. If the patient is cold, we must apply warmth. If he is uncomfortable, we must put him in a position of comfort. If he has seemingly stopped breathing, we must apply artificial respiration. If he has a broken limb and the skin is not punctured, we should support it.

Too much stress has been placed on the dictum that an injured person should be left lying in the street until the ambulance arrives. Nothing is more distressing than an injured person lying on a cold, wet pavement with a group of helpless people standing around—people suddenly bereft of common sense because of the propaganda that any injured person might be made worse by their administrations. A question or two and a quick examination often will determine the extent and nature of the injuries. It is important not to overlook a second, perhaps more serious injury.

Common sense in avoiding any unnecessary disturbance of the patient, and especially anything that may aggravate a spinal injury or compound fracture for example, is vital. With those precautions in mind, the practical application of first aid may save a life.

Special Attraction Slated For Talent Show

Colonial Four of Ft. Wayne To Appear As Guests

As a special attraction for the talent show to be presented by the St. Joe Lions Club, the program committee has announced that the Colonial Four, Ft. Wayne's best exponents of real barbershop harmony, will appear on the evening's program. They sang last summer at St. Joe on one of the free movie nights and enjoyed themselves so much at that time that they expressed a desire to return. They will not, however, appear in competition for the prizes offered at the coming show.

Tickets for the show went on sale this week at several business establishments in St. Joe and Spencerville and are also available from several Lions Club members.

The entry deadline, Wednesday, Feb. 8, found an impressive array of talent preparing for competition. Three cash prizes totaling $35 will be given to the first three winners, and to keep anyone from being disappointed, a gift will be given to each contestant in appreciation of his or her efforts in making the program a success.

The program will start at 8:00 p.m. on Saturday, February 18, 1950, at the local gym.

Judges for the show will be announced next week.

Tickets are available at Myers Elevator, Dunten's Market, Jiggs' Motor Service, the News Office, Kinsey Hardware, Fisher's Corner Market and Spencerville Elevator. The prices for the tickets are sixty cents for adults and thirty cents for students and children.

HOME EC PROJECT LESSON GIVEN IN AUBURN

The home economics project lesson was held Feb. 2 in the basement of the St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Auburn, according to an announcement made by the home demostration agent, Mary Lenore Moore. Opal Stech, nutrition specialist of Purdue U. extension service, gave the lesson.

The forenoon was devoted to "Time and Labor Savers in Meal Planning." Various points discussed by Miss Stech included advantages of plannig one or more days meals in advance, kitchen equipment that makes the job easier, tips in the organization of the food preparation unit of the kitchen, helpful hints in the preparation and storage of food and efficient serving and clearing up of meals.

The afternoon was devoted to a demonstration on "Quick and Easy Meals with Master Mix." Miss Stech in her demonstration made chocolate cookies, apple crisp and muffins.

Project leaders from all clubs were represented at this meeting as well as county officers and home demonstration agent. Those in attendance were: Mrs. Mary Ankney and Mrs. Iris Thomas of Smithfield twp; Mrs. Grace Keller and Mrs. Alma Lung of Wilmington twp.; Mrs. Bivere Brush and Mrs. Mary Platter of Newville twp.; Mrs. Sylvia Bonecutter and Mrs. Cleo Pease of Corunna; Mrs. Mildred Stephenson of Jackson twp.; Mrs. Gail Knox and Mrs. Majel Moughler of Stafford twp.; Mrs. Betty Kubik and Mrs. Ives Mills of Troy twp.; Mrs. Wilma Colbert and Mrs. Dorothy Till of Grant twp.; Mrs. Nina Davis and Mrs. Alma Sinders of Butler twp.; Mrs. Madona Alexander and Mrs. Avona McConnell of Franklin twp.; Mrs. Bertha Brown and Mrs. Bessie Barley of Union twp.; Mrs. Marcia Sible of Concord twp. Lincoln Dinner Speaker Named Hoosier Congressman Ralph Harvey of New Castle and the Tenth District has been selected as the Lincoln Day speaker for a dinner meeting of DeKalb County Republicans at Auburn, Wednesday night, Feb. 15.

Representative Harvey is a farmer-businessman who took his seat in Congress Nov. 4, 1947. As a special election successor to the late Raymond S. Springer, he was re-elected in 1948.

Mr. Harvey began his political career as a member of the Henry County Council and later served three terms as State Representative in the General Assembly. He climaxed this service as chairman of the Indiana Budget Committee.

Congressman Harvey, as a member of the House Committee on Executive Expenditures, has played an important part in drafting legislation proposed by the Hoover Commission. Last year, in conection with official duties, he devoted seven weeks to a study of U.S. administrative facilities in 15 countries of Europe and the Near East.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank the St. Joe and Spencerville fire departments for their assistance in fighting the fire on my property last week and the telephone operator for her prompt service.

MAKING PREPARATIONS FOR CENSUS IN DEKALB COUNTY

Preparations are now being made for the 17th decennial census to be taken in DeKalb county in April. The announcement was made by District Supervisor Louis B. Bashelier of the United States Bureau of the Census, who has offices in Fort Wayne.

The territory included in the census district which Mr. Bashelier supervises includes DeKalb, Allen, Adams, LaGrange, Noble, Steuben, Wells and Whitley counties. Enumeration districts are being established for each of these larger communities in each county. Approximately 350 enumerators will be employed to take the 1950 census in this district.

The district supervisor states that anyone desirous of participating as an enumerator in the census should immediately direct their request for application forms to his attention at the headquarters located at 220 East Jefferson street in Ft. Wayne. If convenient, these applications may be made by calling in person at the office between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Mr. Bashelier has just returned after attending an administrative training school at Chicago, area census headquarters, in preparation for the coming United States census.

The preliminary work, leading to the April nation-wide census, will begin immediately in this district according to Mr. Bashelier. This includes organization of this district office, conducting publicity, interviewing applicants for jobs and later training of office clerks, field crew leaders and enumerators.

AWARDED $1,200 JUDGMENT AGAINST CLYDE RECTENWALL

M. E. Rhodes of near Spencerville was awarded a judgment of $1,200 in the DeKalb circuit court Monday on his complaint on a note filed against Clyde G. Rectenwall, the former cashier of the Farmers and Merchants State Bank at Spencerville.

The plaintiff charged in his complaint that Rectenwall borrowed $1,000 Jan. 24, 1949, and has failed to repay the sum or interest. He had asked $1,250 in his action.

The Ladies Aid of the Salem Lutheran Church will hold a bazaar and cafeteria supper at the Harlan cafeteria, February 10th. They will start serving at 5 p.m. and will serve all evening.

A large crowd from Spencerville attended the basketball game at Salem Center Friday evening. It was one of the best games of the season. The score was very close until the last few minutes when Spenverville forged ahead to win, 62-49.

Pat Angel, daughter of Mrs. Laverne Koch, was taken to the Methodist Hospital in Ft. Wayne Tuesday night, Jan. 31, for an appendectomy. She was dismissed from the hospital and returned to her home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Krebs and children of Warsaw, Mrs. Hazel Slagle and daughter of Ft. Wayne were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Kimes and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Moore of Lafayette spent the week-end with relatives in Spencerville and Grabill.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Moore entertained the following guests at the birthday party of their son, Donald Lee, on his fifth birthday: Mrs. Mary Timmerlin and son, Michael, and daughter, Charlotte; Mrs. Margaret Weidner and daughter, Susan, of Auburn; Mrs. Mary Ellen Beatty and daughter, Sharon, and son, Larry; Mrs. Dorothy Kimes and son, Virgil, Jr.; Mrs. Lois Fisher and daughter, Lynda, and son, Lewis; Mrs. Susie Stemen and sons, Tommy and Jackie; Monty and Lynn Kay Salisbury; John and Billy Weinger; Marjorie and Cheri Longbrake; Mrs. Maxine Kelley and daughter, Janet Kay; Mrs. Daisy Markle; Marge Hoffman; Mrs. Vernice Moore and daughter, Carolyn, and sons, Ronald and Max; and Donald, Robert and Delores Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hollopeter were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Baker.

CROP INSURANCE MEETING HELD IN AUBURN

Lenard Pound, Indiana State Crop Insurance Supervisor, held a meeting in the City Hall in Auburn which was attended by the P.M.A. Township Committeemen.

At this meeting corn insurance was fully explained. Corn insurance is offered to the farmer of eight counties in Indiana. The farmer who signs an insurance policy may cancel at any time after the first of the year. This insurance protects the farmer against any unavoidable loss.

The cost of the policy is either 67 cents or $1.11 per acre depending upon the type of policy desired. Additional deductions from the cost are offered to those who plant large acreages. An additional deduction of 25 percent is made to any farmer who carries corn insurance seven consecutive years without a loss.

About one farmer out of every twenty-five that carried corn insurance during 1949 reported a loss to the insurance company, and last season was exceptionally favorable for the production of corn.

The Crop Insurance Corp., unlike any other insurance company, charges no overhead, or handling administrative costs to the cost of their policies. All costs, except indemnities, are borne by the U.S. Government. An adjuster is hired in every county having crop insurance and this adjuster works independently of the county P.M.A.

DeKalb county plants from forty-five to fifty thousand acres of corn annually. Any farmer expecting to plant corn in DeKalb county desiring further information of this government service should contact the county P.M.A. office or any of the following corn insurance salesmen: (listed by townships)

CONCORD JR. HOME EC.

Concord Jr. Home Ec. Circle held its Feb. 6 meeting at the home of Katy Crow. The president opened the meeting. Marcelle Storer read the words to the song of the month. and Katy had devotions. Dorothy Simanton gave her report on the "Outlook" meeting held in Auburn, Jan. 12. The club is saving its scrap paper and magazines for the benefit of the county chorus.

March 10 will be "Garden and Poultry Day." The club voted the month of June to entertain the Smithfield club.

At the end of the business meeting, the program was turned over to Marcia Sible who, with the help of Katy Crow, gave the lesson on "Master Mix." This proved interesting and helpful; the members then sampled the tasty food served along with hot cocoa by the hostess.

The March 7 meeting will be held at the home of Ellen Fetters.

Can Long Endure?

Abraham Lincoln Said -

You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift.

You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong.

You cannot help strong men by tearing down big men.

You cannot help the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer.

You cannot further the brotherhood of man by encouraging class hatred.

You cannot help the poor by destroying the rich.

You cannot establish sound security on borrowed money.

You cannot keep out of trouble by spending more than you earn.

You cannot build character and courage by taking away man's initiative and independence.

You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves.

Gospel Goes West

Lesson for February 12, 1950

SO YOU DON'T BELIEVE in foreign missions? Then you can't read the New Testament with any comfort. Every book in it was written either by a missionary, or about missionaries, or to missionaries, or to be used in mission work.

Dr. Foreman

Chapters 13 and 14 of Acts tell us about the first organized foreign mission project in the history of the Christian church. It is the story of how the Gospel was taken out of the narrow strip of coastland along the eastern shore of the Mediterranean, where it was born, out into the western world.

The Best They Had

THE FIRST missionary party were not raw untried men. They were Barnabas and Saul, the top leaders of Antioch. These men had done a great work in Antioch; their usefulness there was not at an end by any means. But the church sent them away to win souls elsewhere. It is a mistake to suppose that just anybody will do as a missionary.

Ignorant people who suppose that missionaries are only the "culls" of the church don't know the facts. A few years ago a scientist, Ellsworth Huntington, made a study of the graduates of Yale and Harvard who were successful enough to be written up in "Who's Who in America." He found that missionaries' sons furnished the largest proportion of these successful men.

The reason for this, he believed, is that only in missionary families do you find that both parents, and not just one, have to go through a rigid sifting process. Only the best—mentally, morally, physically—are accepted by the church today as missionaries.

Strategic Centers

SAUL, or Paul, who came rapidly to the front in the missionary team, was all for efficiency. He never did a thing the hard way if an easier way would save his energy. So we find him heading for the great centers of population.

In the synagogues he would find the most religious people in the city, people who already believed in the One God and who took seriously the Law and the Prophets.

Barnabas and Saul stuck to cities for another reason also. Not that they despised small-town folk, but they knew that cities are where the crowds are. For every dozen people they could reach in a village, there were hundreds to be reached in the cities. So today, mission work has generally concentrated first in the most heavily settled regions.

The Follow-Up

SAUL AND BARNABAS also set the example for later generations in their use of the "follow-up." They did not suppose that simply converting people was enough. There had to be second visits. Some churches Paul visited as many as five times. They would appoint officers in every church. They knew that organized religion is more likely to last than disorganized religion.

They were not fly-by-night evangelists, leaving behind them only an ebbing wave of emotional excitement. Every rose grower knows that it is better to put a 10-cent rose in a 50-cent hole than to put a 50-cent rose into a 10-cent hole.

So Paul did not stick little seedlings of new Christians into barren ground at random; he took pains to see that they were solidly planted in good rose-beds.

The Holy Spirit

THERE IS ANOTHER, and most important, way in which this first missionary effort has set the pace for all since: From beginning to end, they depended on the Holy Spirit. It was the Spirit who first suggested the idea; it was the Spirit who gave the power, and furnished the guidance. Not that the Spirit was or is a substitute for human effort.

But to this very day, if you want to find persons who know about the Holy Spirit at first hand, who know what it means to depend on the Spirit and to be used by Him, then get acquainted with your church's missionaries.

What do so many of us church goers in only a name, to them is the deepest reality by which they live.

VFW ANNOUNCES SUBJECT, RULES OF ESSAY CONTEST

"Peace, With Honor, For America" is the subject of an essay contest sponsored by the Garrett Post 1892 for all high school students in DeKalb County.

Prizes for the contest, which closes April 1, will be given in County congressional district, state and national competition. Top prizes in DeKalb County will be $25 cash. The fourth district winner will receive a $50 savings bond and the state first place winner will be awarded a $500 bond. The national essay champion will win a $1,000 bond and a gold medal.

All students who are regularly enrolled in any private, parochial or public high school and who are maintaining their class work at the time of writing are eligible to compete. No age limit is prescribed.

The essay, which must be limited to 1,000 words, must be submitted to Essay Committee, VFW Garrett, by April 1.

Factors in judging the essays will be literary construction, 50 percent; interpretive views, 25 percent; patriotic inspiration, 25 percent; judges for the DeKalb county contest will be announced in a few days.

The Americanism Committee of Garrett Post, VFW, composed of George L. Staley, chairman, and George E. Mountz of Garrett and Carl Walter of Auburn, are handling details of the contest, along with Mrs. Clara Garst of Garrett, representing the Ladies Auxiliary.

"Low" Rents Fooling High-Taxed Britons

One in a series of eye-witness reports
BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

LONDON, England—Government housing is the deadly enemy of home ownership under the Socialism of the British Labor Party.

The argument of the Socialists is that the man who owns his own home, or even part of it, is a capitalist—and can't be trusted to be loyal to a Socialist government.

NOLAND

Throughout Britain, as in all countries which had to stop house building during the war, there is a critical shortage of housing units. The situation in Britain is worse than in the United States because of the British housing destroyed by German bombs.

The Socialists are not too eager to supply housing because they thrive on the discontent created by families doubling up and living with in-laws. When they do get around to providing housing, the projects are financed by the county councils—and all housing is built at government expense. (It is to their credit that most new housing units are built of brick and well equipped; the Socialists are building them to last.)

To get a new house, the houseless family must apply to the government. It is put on a list. In due time, maybe a year or two, it is notified that a house is available. The rent averages about $13 a month, about one-third of a fair rental when the cost of the house is figured. The obvious purpose of the "low" rent is to keep the family dependent upon government for its home, and to make it think it is getting a housing bargain. Few families take the trouble to figure out that they are paying more in taxes for their government home than if they bought private housing and were freed of the tax.

No attention is paid to the income of the renter. The Socialist government believes that all people should have about the same income, and thus that there should be no discrimination while the downward leveling of incomes is under way.

The tenant may find that his next-door neighbor is a fairly rich man who has found a buyer for his nice home, and has sold out so that he can live in a government house for less than the tax he paid on his former house. That is going on all the time—buyers taking a chance on the Socialist government's being kicked out before all housing is nationalized.

Admits "Crash Is Coming"

When it is pointed out to a tenant of government housing that he is really paying a high rental in taxes, and that his actual rental outlay is made "low" to fool him into thinking that the Socialist government has found a way to give him something for nothing, he is not interested. If pinned down, he will admit that "the crash is coming." But, as for today, he thinks he is getting his house for a mere token rent—and letting well enough alone.

As for the builders, they work on a gamble with the government. The cost of a housing project is estimated, and builders are invited to take the job on a cost-plus basis—the builder usually getting about 3 percent of the cost for his profit, but with an agreement that he gets more and more as the actual cost runs below the estimate, or less as the cost runs more than the estimate.

Thus, the building industry, once a great friend of private enterprise and home ownership, is being bribed to take the government money while the taking is good.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met Wednesday Feb. 1, with Mrs. Allen Haller. One emeritus and 14 active members were present.

The vice-pres., Mrs. Maurice Kline, presided. She also gave the lesson on "Indiana Folklore" telling of the early superstitions of those of the state, also giving something of the history and personality of Johnny Appleseed.

Mrs. C. C. Woodcox furnished entertainment, including several readings.

The club's new vocabulary word is "countermand."

The next meeting willl be at the home of Mrs. Carl Carpenter. Mr. L. Tombow of Butler will give a talk on Indiana Institutions.

Ford's won it again!

The New York Fashion Academy Gold Medal Award for the Fashion Car of the Year

WHAT sterling is to silver, the Fashion Academy of New York is to the world of fashion—the last word! And again for 1950, as for 1949, it has selected the Ford Car to receive its distinguished gold medal award as "Fashion Car of the Year." There is, we believe, no greater proof of the beauty of the '50 Ford. And there's no greater proof of its fine performance than a 10-minute "test drive." Your Ford Dealer will be glad to arrange it.

By JIM MITCHELL

I happened to read a statement the other day which passed off the glass fishing rod as "something similar to a kid's toy that soon would be forgotten." Nothing could be farther from the truth, for the glass bait casting rod is here to stay.

I have fished with glass bait casting rods for the past two years. Some of the first models I used proved inadequate in certain respects and, possibly, they were not as efficient as the better tubular steel and split bamboo rods. That, however, was to be expectd, for the companies were trying to work out the right formula for the rods.

Certainly these companies have made great strides in the field since then. Now you can buy glass casting rods in most any length, action and finish.

In recent weeks I have been practice casting with a 6-foot glass rod made by Orchard Industries with a especially light action. This rod tosses a 1-4 ounce lure as effectively as the average rod handles a 1-2 ounce bait. Throwing this light lure never was possible with the steel rods I formerly employed and the light-action glass rod has opened up a new field for those who enjoy fishing with small and lightweight lures.

There are many other advantages to glass casting rods. Probably the greatest of these is the lack of care essential in keeping the glass in good order. Heat or cold does not affect them and they will take any amount of fishing punishment a caster can dish out.

Add to this that the companies now are making the glass rods in price ranges for everybody and you have a sweet deal in fishing rods.

Some writers may pass off the rod as a "toy" but I'll predict that within a decade, maybe even less time, glass fishing rods will be the leader in the bait casting field.

MARY LENORE MOORE TO SPEAK ON WOWO

DeKalb County home demonstration agent Miss Mary Lenore Moore will be heard on "The Home Demonstration Agent Program" on WOWO and WOWO-FM, Ft. Wayne, on Monday, February 13, at 3:45 CST. Appearing on the program with Miss Moore will be Mrs. Gertrude Glasgow, home demonstration agent of Jay County, Indiana.

The subject for the broadcast will be "The Combination Living Room."

"The Home Demonstration Agent Program" is heard each Monday afternoon at 3:45 p.m., and is presented as a public service for the homemakers in the Indiana-Ohio-Michigan area. The program is under the direction of Jane Weston, WOWO Director of Women's Programs, and each week features a home demonstration agent from one of the area counties.

SPECIAL DELIVERY!

That's the way Valentines—and all other special things—should arrive. By Special Delivery!

Pardon us for pointing, but that's how electricity reaches you, too. By very special delivery—at finger-tip notice—1/10,000,000th of a second from the time you flip a switch.

That's not only super-speedy service, it's dependable service. So dependable, you've come to take it for granted around the clock and around the calendar.

Again pardon us for pointing, but keeping the price of electricity low in spite of steeply rising production costs takes plenty of practical planning—plenty of skilled and experienced people.

And never has electricity done so much to make life easier, healthier, more comfortable for you!

Large Crowd Attends Talent Show

Despite bad weather over 300 persons attended the Lions Club Talent Show which was presented last Saturday evening at the local gym.

Herman Zuber, president of the St. Joe Lions Club, introduced Derwood Ridgway as master of ceremonies who in turn introduced the 24 acts for the audience' entertainment

First prize of $20 went to Jimmy and Sammy Snyder of near Cedarville who played an accordion duet. The $10 second prize went to Derrill Murphy of Hicksville who gave several imitations. Beverly Jean Leas of Auburn won $5 for her baton twirling exhibition.

The Colonial Four of Ft. Wayne made a late appearance because of another engagement in Ft. Wayne and bad driving conditions. The crowd indicated by its reception that the several numbers sung by the quartet were worth waiting for.

CONCORD TWP. HOME EC

The Concord twp. Home Ec. Club met at the home of Laura Washler Feb. 17. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Doris Yeiser. The opening song, "America, the Beautiful," was led by Mrs. Katherine Haller.

Devotions were given by Mrs. Cora Curie. The Poultry leader, Mrs. Edna Jennings, gave a short talk and the Literary leader, Mrs. Katherine Haller, recited one of Riley's poems which was much enjoyed by all.

The project lesson, "Master- Mix," was given by Mrs. Laura Washler and Mrs. Myrtle Pugsley. The finished products, muffins and cookies, were served later with the lunch.

Mary Lenore Moore gave an interesting project lesson on "Health Agencies In The County."

Nineteen members responded to roll call with a Valentine exchange. It was decided to send the Valentines to the sick members. Two children were present.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Doris Yeiser in the absence of Mrs. Inez Hadsell, who is in Florida.

The hostess with her committee, Mrs. Nevada Wyatt and Mrs. Lula Armstrong, served a lunch consisting of muffins, cookies, ice cream and coffee. Mrs. Pearl Arnett received the door prize.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met Wednesday evening, Feb. 15, at the home of Mrs. Carl Carpenter. Twelve members were present.

After Mrs. Allen Haller read the collect, Mr. L.F. Tombow of Butler addressed the club on "State Institutions." Mr. Tombow is one of the trustees of the State Village near Newcastle. He told the club of the needs of the state for mental patients, telling very specifically of the work of the village.

Mrs. Haller gave a short lesson from the Federation President on program building. Mrs. Katie Storer provided entertainment in the form of several contests which were presented by Mrs. Yeiser.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. McElroy with Mrs. Wayne Storer as leader on Indiana Government.

THERE WASN'T ANY

The St Joe News didn't go to press last week because of interrupted electrical service due to the ice storm.

And it's late this week because.

That's all — just because.

Menu: chili soup, "sloppy joe" and chicken sandwiches, potato salad, baked beans, fruit salad, cake, pie, home made ice cream and coffee.

Culture Club will meet Friday, Feb. 24, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Fred Ulm with Mrs. John Mason as assistant hostess. Club ladies please note the change of date.

Mr. Willis Beeber of the Williams convalescent home at Butler wishes to thank his many friends for the greetings he received on his birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Jennings spent Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gaff and family at Fort Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Olen Waltz spent Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Gore and family at Ft. Wayne.

Miss Helen Cook of near Auburn spent the week-end the guest of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gee.

Mrs. Lillian Buckingham received a letter and piece of poetry from Mr. and Mrs. Meade Baker of the Church of Christ Home at St. Louis, Mo., recently. Since these folks are well known from residence in this community. Mrs. Buckingham wishes to share this poem written by Mr. Baker:

Sez I to wife, think we had better
Sit down and write our friend a letter.
So, taking pen in hand I dip
It in the ink and "let'er rip."
Hain't much to say so twont take long
To sing my simple little song.
We're not too well, we might be weller,
Of course, that comes to every feller.
Some time in life you may be sure
No matter if we're rich or poor.
At any rate it could be worser-
We might be riding in a hearse-er-
Be so tarnilation lame,
We'd have to walk with crutch or cane,
Or may-hap in a wheel chair go
When we would travel to and fro.
We get outside three squares a day
And in the evening "hit the hay."
And so it goes from day to day
Til 4 long years have passed away
Plus six monts to make good measure.
Course we've had both grief and pleasure
We're both contented here to stay
Until our Saviour leads the way
To that better home where all is well,
And we in peace and joy may dwell.

The Bakers would be glad to hear from their St. Joe friends. Their address is Mr. and Mrs. Meade Baker, 6600 Washington Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Mrs. Howard Borthwick who has been ill the past week is somewhat improved.

Mr Earl Kinsey had as his guest over the week-end Bob Brown of Fairmount, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Pugsley spent Sunday at Ft.Wayne the guests of their two sons and families, Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Pugsley and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Pugsley and children.

Red Raiders Win, Tigers Lose In Tourney

Spencerville's Red Raiders fought an uphill battle Wednesday night, coming from behind a 15-3 Churubusco lead to win an overtime contest, 52-50. Spencerville had won its morning game from Hamilton to qualify for the evening tilt.

During the first period Spencerville looked lacking in spirit and drive. But Bob Hoover suddenly came to life and sparked a methodical drive, which lasted to the final gun, with two dribble-in shots. The whole team caught fire and drew up within four points at the half.

Churubusco was without the services of their star center, Fredericks, for part of the second quarter and all of the third period, riding with four fouls. During this time the Red Raiders rebounded well helping to close the gap in the score. He returned in the fourth quarter but was closely guarded the remainder of the game.

In the fourth quarter Spencerville employed stalling tactics during which Hook gave an exhibition of some fancy dribbling. The Churubusco team was all over the floor trying to keep up with the ball.

The teams traded baskets in the overtime before Al Paschen dropped one in just before the gun.

St. Joe dropped out of competition in the state basketball tournament in their first effort, losing to Pleasant Lake by the score of 37 to 28.

The Tigers, who have been doing a rather poor job of living up to their name, played a listless, uninspired game and showed little to make the home-town rooters give them encouragement. Playing as if their shoes were coated with glue, they seldom got the tip on jump balls and rebounded in the same manner. This, with the "chip-on-my-shoulder" attitude a few of the boys have, combined to make up one of the dullest games played this season.

Although St. Joe led at the half, it was not their fault. Pleasant Lake failed to take advantage of fourteen foul shots, making but one in the first half. They improved somewhat in the second half, connecting on six of eleven opportunities.

High point man for Pleasant Lake was L. Meek with twelve points on six buckets. B. Richmond with 8, Fetters with 7 and D. Richmond with 6 were St. Joe's "high" scorers.

More Seek Nomination In Primary

WINNERS 4 H CLUB

The regular meeting of the Winners 4-H Club of Spencer Twp. was held at the home of Billy, Mary and Bobby Wilder at 7:30, Feb. 1, 1950. The meeting was called to order by the president, John Witt, followed by group singing, led by Mary Wilder, and pledges, led by Bobby Wilder. The secretary's report was read by Bonnie Witt, corrected and accepted.

Mr. Robert Witt divided the club into juntor and senior groups for recreation.

The duties of all officers were passed out to all officers present. Last year's president passed out Valentines to the club members. The meeting was then adjourned and followed by, recreation by Billy Wilder on hobby craft.

There were 9 members present and the leader. The meeting was enjoyed by all, who were sorry the other members could not be present because of bad weather.

Refreshments of ice cream, cake and hot cocoa were enjoyed by all.

NATIONAL BETA CLUB ORGANIZED AT SPENCERVILLE

A local chapter of the National Beta Club, a service-leadership organization for high school students of America, was established on Jan. 24, at Spencerville High School, according to Mr. E. H. Paschen.

The National Beta Club, with approximately 1750 local chapters and over 40,000 members in high schools of 16 states, is now in its sixteenth year, and has been in contiuous operation since 1933.

Objectives of this non-secret, leadership-service organization are: to encourage effort, to promote character, to stimulate achievement among its members and to encourage and assist students to continue their education after high school graduation.

Mrs. Robert Jaffre, teacher of commerce and Spanish, was appointed as faculty sponsor for the local chapter.

Permanent officers for this year are: president - Margery Hollabaugh; vice president - Pat Akey; secretary - Ruth Brace; treasurer - Ruth Easley.

The local organization is composed of the following students who have fulfilled the requirements necessary for membership in the National Beta Club: Pat Akey, Ruth Brace, Ruth Easley, Margery Hollabaugh, Carolyn Kimes, Alfred Paschen, Mable Schaffner and Lucy Wurstler.

CULTURE CLUB

The Culture Club met with Mrs. Herman Zuber Wednesday evening, February 3, 1950.

The meeting was opened by reading the club collect. Mrs. Edna Jenkins read an inspiring article entitled "We Never Know How Far Reaching A Kind Act Can Be" for the devotions for the evening.

Mrs. W. H. Baker, lesson leader for the evening, chose two articles from the Reader's Digest. They were "Student Stranger Within Our Gates" and "I Spent A Day With Abe Lincoln." Critic's report was given by the assistant critic, Mrs. Virgil Laux. Special work for the evening was given by Mrs. Dewey White, and was called "New Gadgets." She told of several new articles that save us time and money and they are now on sale.

Roll call was taken with fifteen members, one associate member and one honorary member answering

Action Needed

The coal situation, which our President lightly dismissed as "not in a state of emergency" just a few short weeks ago, now has become so acute that power companies are forced to reduce their power output - so serious that the governor of New York has asked for power to seize private stocks of coal. If the strike continues for another few weeks, the coal users of St. Joe and surrounding commmunity will really appreciate what is happening. Some families have had a good supply on hand, but it can't last all winter. And the others who buy coal as they are able are finding themselves able - but no coal to buy.

Our President campaigned for election advocating repeal of the Taft-Hartley law. Itwas too strong, too unfair to labor. He has been forced to use this law because the health and welfare of this country was placed in jeopardy. But even the Taft-Hartley law isn't enough - the miners are still not working. It will be interesting to see what happens when over 300,000 people defy the law.

It is also interesting to note that our President is putting no pressure on John L. Lewis or the miners themselves, even though the American public is literally and figuratively being "left in the cold."

Something Is Wrong

The gasoline price war is spreading over the country. The explanation offered in Ft. Weyne last week for the war was that independent dealers were being supplied by the major oil companies at a wholesale price 22 percent below that paid by the chain station operators.

Such an arrangement seems unfair not only to the public but also to the retailer who operates as part of a large system of retailers. He is operating his business under a handicap forced upon him by his supplier. He must maintain a certain mark-up in order to stay in business and still compete with independents. But as far as the consumer is concerned, the consumer whose pocketbook is becoming less and less bulky, the man with the most reasonable, or lowest, price is the one who will be patronized.

There has been an advertising campaign conducted by large companies, under the direction of the Advertising Council, to acquaint the American public with the workings of our economic system. Several of these messages have appeared in this paper. They have been offered by this paper as a public service with the hope that our readers will become more informed concerning the system of free enterprise.

But, as far as we are concerned, our efforts are wasted when the public is faced with the knowledge that oil companies, in particular, are able to sell their product to certain dealers for four cents less per gallon than they sell to other dealers and still stay in business. The general public, including us, may well wonder how many other industries are apparently "taking" the consumer.

Free enterprise is and always will be the best foundation for our country's economy. But, boys, let's keep it clean and fair.

In a small community such as ours the school house is the only place where large gatherings can be accomodated for programs and meetings of organizations. It would be a convenience for motorists parking their cars and persons walking to the school if a street lamp were installed in front of the school.

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome- poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

To the Editor of the St. Joe News (and others):

MY SAY

I search the Scriptures at my leisure,
It is a comfort and a pleasure,
And there I found, and chanced to state,
"Add four and four," and you'd get eight.

And then a brother whom I knew,
Said HE had searched the Scriptures too
And found me wrong, for sure as fate,
He found that five and three made eight!

But, "No," a sister did declare,
She'd searched the Scriptures everywhere,
And anyone she'd calculate,
Should find that seven and one made eight!

And still another almost swore,
He beat the air and stomped the floor
And said the Scripture he'd thanslate
To prove that six and two made eight!

So on and on as battles rage,
They searched the Scripture page by page.
They argued loud and gendered hate
'Bout what the Bible said made eight!

While all around them souls were dying,
Men for the "Bread of Life" were crying
And still they argued long and late,
On what the Bible said made eight.

"A man convinced against his will,
Is of the same opinion still."
For all their arguing, I relate,
I still thought four and four made eight!

MORAL (if any)

If we'd forget the incidentals
And search the Book for fundamentals,
Look for a pattern there, Divine,
On which to shape your life and mine,
Put first things first, get values straight -
We'd never care just what makes eight!

Dear Sir:

Please find check for $1.50 enclosed to pay for my 1950 subscription to St. Joe News.

We have followed your letter column with interest and are all out for the "Town Nuisances."

According to Billy Rose a book called "Kentucky on the March" by Harry W. Schacter might be just the impetus some of us in "small towns" around here need to get going."

We liked Carol Pugsley a lot when she taught here and think with her direction your Town's Youth Club will accomplish its purposes.

All the items about the little "Stinkers" are in my scrapbook. Times have changed, thank goodness. I'd have never dared to call our children such a name, but, since I'm a grandmother, now courageously call a spade a spade.

A father that has the forethought to take the measures necessary to protect his children's diet will develop into a perfect grandfather, I betcha.

Good luck.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Harold Kryder

Mr. T. E. Haberkorn,
Editor, St. Joe News
St. Joe, Indiana

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Many people from the United States are traveling in Mexico now finding the conditions entirely different from impressions they have had. Mexico will build more roads and gradually try to meet the demands for accomodations. They extend a hand of welcome to the tourists from the North.

There are three excellent all paved highways from the Rio Grande to Mexico City. One from McAllen, Texas, another from Eagle Pass, Texas, via Saltillo and the Pan-American Highway from Laredo, Texas, all meeting at Monterrey and on to Mexico City.

The first seventy-five or one hundred miles of the trip is through a country in which you have very little interest. You will no doubt want to stop for a day or two in Monterrey, population 225,000, altitude 1758 feet, located at the Eastern division of the Sierra Madres. Here you will want to see the famous Obispado or Bishops Palace, built over two hundred years ago on the top of "Chepe Vera" hill overlooking the city. The State Capitol is very old but beautiful and is noted for its draperies, unusual paintings, furniture and carving. The Cathedral was built in 1790. Almost all tourists take a trip through Cuauhtemoc Brewery, the largest brewery in Mexico and home of the famous "Carta Blanca" beer. It is a very interesting trip as well as refreshing. Side trips may be made to Huasteca Canyon and Horse-Tail Falls. Monterrey combines the old with the new. It is a real treat to see the new Spanish homes and then in another section buildings that were built over two hundred years ago. Some of the newer streets are wide but many are so narrow that it is difficult to pass. The food in the good places is excellent and prices are reasonable. The exchange today gives you 1290 Mexican dollars or Pesos for 150 dollars in American money. You may pay 12 Mexican dollars for two dinners but actually you are only paynig $1.40 in American money for the two dinners that would cost you from three to four dollars in the States. The prevailing language is Spanish but you can always find someone in time that understands English. They try to be helpful but think you are just as funny as you think they are. Next week I'll try to have another short letter on a trip through Mexico.

Sincerely yours,
O. D. Wearley

Still too Early to Get Up

Bayreuth, 20.1.1950.

"Dear little Stinkers,"

many thanks for your wunderful candy-parcel. I know, my "thanksgiving" sounds very simple. You schould have seen the eyes of the children when the surprise-parcel got opened. The rumour about that gift-parcel run around our block, faster than the news in your Daddy's paper. The kids are terribly proud about their american friends. Sorrily a letter from you couldn't be found. I told them, that you are too young zu write, and your father is too busy. My children can't see, why such smart children as you are called: "little Stinkers". It was a hard work, to explain 'em that it only can be your nickname.

I wrote you, because all my friends said, that either the adress didn't exist, or I never will have answer if the adress and the story is right. I had my own opinion and it was right. A lot of German big shots are visiting USA since the end of the war. Coming back home, they write beautiful stories about their adventures in America.

I was a guest of the American Government (Army) from 1943 till 1946. As fast as my poor brain could stand it I tryd to learn your mother-tongue. I guess I had some success. I furtheron tryd to come behind the american way of thinking - and to through a luck into the american soul. I never knew if I had success in this way, but since I saw the articles of these US visitors, I feel that I had success.

We ex-Pow's never had lunch with Mr. Ford or Kaiser, Bing Crosby or Bob Hope never-send us an invitation for a party, and never we were questioed by news-Paper reporters- but we had contact with the man who watsched us, with the poeple where we had to work with. We have seen a lot of your fine country. We came around picking cutton and corn, washing dishes and motor-cars a.s.o. You see, my wisdom is foundet on my experience of live. It seldom is wrong. This experience gave me the train of thought which was the birth-hour of the letter which I wrote to you.

Dear children, I know you'll come around with my writing, but your daddy will be so kind, to explain you what I wanted to write you.

And no I beg you a favour. To day I got an otherone letter from St. Joe. Therefore I know, that my name was printet, concerning my first letter, in St. Joe News. Wouldn't it be possible, to send me such a paper with my name? I'm quite shure, that it was the only time in my life that my name appeared in a News-paper - with I hope in 100 years the exception of my obituary- notice.

Thanking you again for your wunderful parcel I hope, "dear little Stinkers," that this letter will find you in the best of health, be good boys or girls my compliments to your parents sincerely yours grateful

Satan's Throne

Lesson for February 26, 1950

"I HOLD NO BRIEF for him" is a lawyer's expression often borrowed by other people. A lawyer who holds a brief for a man has been employed to represent him. It is his duty to present the man in the best light possible.

Now we know about the early church at Corinth from two sources: Luke and Paul. The book of Acts was written, among other reasons, to show that the Christian church, far from being a subversive movement as its enemies claimed was a benefit to the world. Of course this was true; but since this was Luke's purpose, he naturally omitted as much of the church's shortcomings as he could, and played up the good features.

Church with the Lid Off

Paul, on the other hand, writing to the church at Corinth (and to others as well), held no brief for them. He was not trying to praise them or to tell anybody how good they were.

He knew them intimately; he had indeed converted most of the members.

His letters to Corinth, from which our lesson gives a small sample, shows us a church "with the lid off."

Where Satan's Throne Is

YEARS AFTERWARD, another Christian writer said of another church that they lived "where Satan's throne is." You might almost have said the same thing of Corinth. It was a large commercial city; people from everywhere funneled into it. Like any city of this sort it had earned a reputation for wickedness of every kind—drink, liquor, gambling, women, cutthroat business, rotten politics—it was all there. Even in the easy-going Roman world, Corinth was notorious.

Corinth was a sort of man-made jungle, like our own great cities today. It made a sort of test case: If the church could succeed in Corinth it could succeed anywhere.

If the power of Christ could make new men and women out of the denizens of that great city, there was no jungle, man-made or nature-made, where Christ could not go. Can men and women be Christian in the midst of a non-Christian, even anti-Christian world?

Our Pagan World

PAUL'S ANSWER, of course, is Yes: on one condition. You must take your pattern for living from Jesus, not from the world around you. The big problem at Corinth, which included all other problems, was the fact that the Christians there were acting too much like the people outside the church. Christians must be different! insisted Paul. This is not an echo of a bygone time.

Our own world is a new Corinth. Even into the remotest village, the most isolated farm, the world of our time pushes in, by radio, movies, magazines and papers and advertising, even by schools and clubs. And it is a pagan world.

Take the movies alone, that fertile source of most young people's ideas. Hollywood's idea of marriage—a temporary affair till boredom do us part; Hollywood's idea of a good time—liquor flowing free; Hollywood's idea of success—an immense house with an even bigger swimming pool.

Not that there are no good moving pictures; but in general what is made glamorous on a thousand screens is anything but a Christian world.

And Be Ye Separate

PAUL KNEW it is not practical to have no contact with evil. He would not approve of Christians going into monasteries where they would henceforth see none but top-grade saints. Christians have to live in the world, even if they live where Satan's throne is. But Christians ought to be different.

The world says: Drink makes no difference; men of distinction all do it. The Christian knows better; Christ's man of distinction will keep himself clean. The world says: Let yourself go, follow your impulses, look out for yourself. The Christian knows better: he is one bought with a price. We that are strong ought to help the weak and not to please ourselves. The world says: Do as other people do!

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

YELLOW JAUNDICE

THE LIVER, the largest organ in the body, is located in the abdomen, along with the stomach, intestines, gallbladder, pancreas, spleen and kidneys. Important functions are performed by the liver, useful in aiding the digestion of food.

One of the diseases of the liver is infectious hepatitis, or yellow jaundice, an acute inflammation. It was not until a few years ago that hepatitis was acknowledged as an infectious disease. Epidemics frequently occurred in armies, boarding schools, college dormitories and other places where groups of people lived in close contact. It is caused by a virus, although scientists are still uncertain as to how it is transmitted.

At first, symptoms like those of a cold or flu are noticed and then a gradual distaste for food develops. Finally the eyeballs and skin show a yellowish color, due to bile pigment in the skin and mucous membranes. Turning yellow is not the most serious part of the disease, for there is weakness and lassitude, nausea and almost complete loss of appetite.

Infectious hepatitis is rarely fatal and usually continues for two or three weeks before beginning to recede. There is no quick cure, and convalescence gradually requires a minimum of four to six weeks.

NEWVILLE TWP. CLUB

The Newville Home Economics Club met Feb. 8 for an all-day meeting with a carry-in dinner with Mrs. Gladys Murphy as hostess at her home. She was assisted by Verna Tustison, Mildred Welch and Irene Emenhiser.

The meeting was called to order at 1:30 by the president, Mrs. Cynthia Sipe. For the opening song "Sweet and Low" was sung followed by the club creed read in unison.

Devotions were scripture reading from the book of Revelations and religious poems given by Maude Cleland. All sang "Brighten the Corner Where You Are" and repeated the Lord's Prayer together.

The secretary's report was read and approved. The roll call was answered by giving a cookie recipe by 37 members, 3 children and five guests, county president, Mrs. Mildred Grogg, county vice-president, Mrs. Ruth Teutsch, county garden leader, Mrs. Velma Husselman, Mrs. Harold Murphy and Mrs. Betty Mettert.

The project lesson on "Master-Mix" was given by Mrs. Mary Platter and Mrs. Bivere Brusch who prepared and baked different variations of the mix, serving samples of the finished product to each one present.

The county president gave a talk on "Goals for 1950" which the club is to strive to attain. Mrs. Ruth Teutsch stressed attendance in her talk. Mrs. Velma Husselman announced the garden school to be given in Auburn in the court house assembly room on March 10.

The meeting was then turned over to the entertainment committee, Alice Dillander and Leitha Hart, who presented an enjoyable program.

Kathryn Kreig will be hostess for the March meeting.

Hunger Tool Used on British Steelworkers

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, England—A good example of the strategy of the British Labor party leaders in promoting their Socialist program is the use of the food rationing system to win support for the steel nationalisation project.

This is referred to time and again by steelworkers as a warning to American labor.

NOLAND

Nationalising an industry means government ownership and operation of the industry. The government buys the industry by fixing its value and paying the owners with interest-bearing notes.

The coal industry is vital to Britain's business. In fact, Britain's whole industrial plant is dependent on the production of its coal mines.

The Labor party's socialization plan calls for government control of the industries which can make or break the whole people. So the government bought and now operates the coal mines.

Miner Gets More Meat

Coal mining is hard work. The miner justly rates a better meat ration than a man doing lighter work. And he gets it. His wife also finds the food stores in the mining towns well stocked with scarce foods—foods which are on the ration list but are available only where the Socialists choose to make them available. The miner and his family thus are favored in their eating.

The steelworker also has a hard job. He rightly feels that he is entitled to better food, especially more meat, than a man doing lighter work. But he does not get it. He does not get food at the steel works as the miner can get food at the pit head.

His wife does not find the food stores in the neighborhood well stocked. Since mines and steel works in some areas are not far apart, it does not take the steelworker and his wife long to find out that they are getting a poor food break compared with the miner and his wife. They hear the Labor party leaders talking about "fair shares," but they do not get what they believe to be their fair share.

Labor Party Planned It

This is the grievance that the Labor party politicians wanted. It is in line with their policy of consistently creating small grievances and then offering Socialism as the way to correct the evil which angers the people.

Through union channels and the day-by-day work of their political agents, they remind the steel workers and their wives that coal is a nationalized industry while steel is not.

They leave the impression, if they don't come right out and say it, that a vote for the Labor candidate will be a vote to nationalize the steel industry. The hungry steelworker and his family can understand that argument. Hunger is a powerful persuader.

Tricky Idealists

The intellectuals, who concocted the Socialist scheme, pose as idealists, even to themselves. But when it comes to practical politics they resort to any trick. They justify the creation of misery, as in this case, as being necessary to achieve their ideal of complete control of the citizen—making him their responsibility from cradle to grave.

Conversations with union steel workers, including officers of locals in the Newcastle area, revealed that they bitterly resent this pressure. But they dare not oppose it openly, and they can not dodge the temptation to vote more food on the table for themselves and their families.

Mr. T. E. Haberkorn
St. Joe, Indiana

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Now that we have traveled extensively throughout the territory north of Mexico City it seems that it would be interesting to describe the people we have met and those that we have observed in their daily work, and in their homes.

A very large portion of the population is Indian. The regions we have covered are occupied by the Aztecs and Toltecs which tribes may have been warlike in earlier centuries but today present a very inactive and docile appearance. A few Spaniards apparently located in sections of this territory building cities on the most fertile spots which in the earlier days were Indian villages so that in these cities today it is nothing unusual to find an impressive modern building of Spanish Architecture while right side of it will be found adobe huts covered with straw roofs built many years ago. As usual in the back will be a burro or two, a few chickens running in and out of the hut and if they are really prosperous a hog or two may be around.

Our room in the "Casa Grande" hotel is a lovely room immaculate and clean but not more than one hundred feet from our window are a lot of chickens, several burros, and although we haven't seen many dogs and cats in Mexico, the few they do have must have all congregated below our window for a convention, besides those roosters worked all night. They are still crowing at ten o'clock in the morning so we are wondering when they sleep.

The Indians migrated here many centuries ago, I am told, from Asia and built a great civilization. We shall never know who or what they were but their remains can be seen on all sides in the pyramids, tombs and temples. There are textiles and pottery to prove their artistic ability. The Spanish have built over their civilization but could not destroy it. From Indian pyramids to Spanish Cathedrals and streamlined hotels you have in one country the very primitive of many centuries ago, the influx of the sixteenth century Spanish with its Cathedrals decorated in ornate carvings and the very modern hotels, clubs and restaurants. All of these civilizations live together in Mexico.

Sincerely yours,

Rubber In Your Roads May Stretch the Highway Dollar

Laying a rubber road in Virginia. Particles of natural rubber are mixed with the asphalt surfacing to increase wear and reduce skidding.

It costs nearly a billion dollars a year to keep America's 3,300,000 miles of present highways and streets in repair, to say nothing of building new ones. So it is no wonder that highway engineers and tax-payers are watching with keen interest a new idea in road surfacing that may cut millions of dollars off the annual road repair bill.

The idea is to mix particles of natural rubber with the asphalt surface coating on a road. The Dutch tried it 12 years ago, and found that it made the road stand up better under winter cold and summer heat.

A test rubber road in Holland, after 12 years' use under heavy traffic, is still in good shape, while adjacent strips without rubber have had to be repaired twice.

In 1949 four states—Ohio, Virginia, Minnesota and Texas—laid test strips of natural rubber-asphalt paving. If these prove as successful as highway engineers hope, a new era in road construction will be here. And in addition to extra wear, these rubber-surfaced roads have proved that they reduce skidding.

A free booklet describing these rubber roads and the tests which are being made can be obtained from the Natural Rubber Bureau, Dept. N100, 1631 K St., N.W., Washington 6. D. C. It is called "Stretching Highway Dollars—with Rubber Roads."

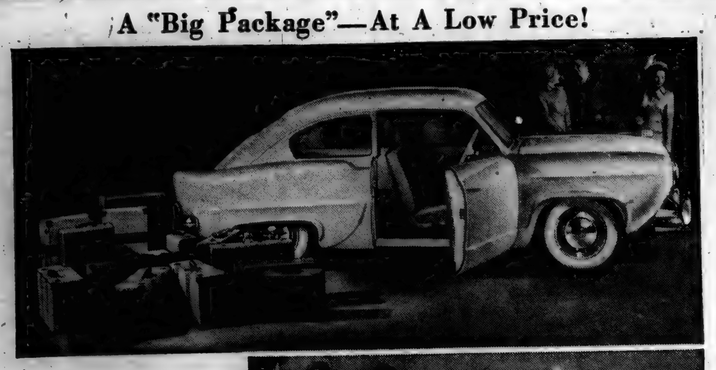
A "Big Package"—At A Low Price!



Kaiser-Frazer's new low-priced automobile is a "big package," as is demonstrated in the luggage display above. The 17 bags, including a steamer trunk and a foot locker, fit neatly into the sedan's new-type giant luggage compartment, which is formed by folding down the rear seat. And there's room left over for three front seat passengers. With the rear seat upright, the car is a roomy five-passenger sedan. The low, sleek styling of the new model is emphasized in the lower picture.

KAISER-FRAZER REVEALS FIRST DETAILS OF NEW LOW-PRICED AUTOMOBILE

Kaiser-Frazer Corp. is announcing its low-pricer car - a standard 2-door sedan designed to introduce a new "low, low-priced" market in the automobile industry.

First details of the new automobile, which will go into production at the K-F Willow Run plant on June 30, included the announcement that the new car will deliver gasoline mileage upward from 30-35 miles per gallon.

Streamlined and attractively styled, the automobile is being shown publicly at the Chicago Auto Show, Feb. 18 to 26. With a low, sleek silhoutte, the new car has a big interior with full five-passenger seating room and a new-type luggage carrying arrangement which provides a cargo capacity more than double that of the largest conventional sedan trunks.

The two-door sedan will be offered in Deluxe and Standard models with a customer's choice of two new Kaiser "Supersonic" engines, a four and a six, both engineered for high performance efficiency with economical operation and maintenance.

The new standard-tread car features outstanding maneuverability in traffic and exceptional roadability on high-speed highways. Imparting a genuinely fresh beauty and sparkle to the exterior styling are such features as upswept rear fenders and low front fender lines which fade away beneath the body. The roof ascends in a graceful arc to an overall height of less than 60 inches, curving down to a "swish-back" rear treatment. Functionalism and safety styling dominate design throughout, as in the case of the low hood, which gives the driver a commanding view of the road, and a low "waist-line" which enables him to rest an arm comfortably on the window sill.

Costly ornamental frills have been eliminated and there is no excessive ornamentation inside or out.

With the rear seat upright for passenger use, there is well over 20 cubic feet of space for luggage. With the seat folded down, the cargo space increases to 55 cubic feet - double that of the largest sedan trunks.

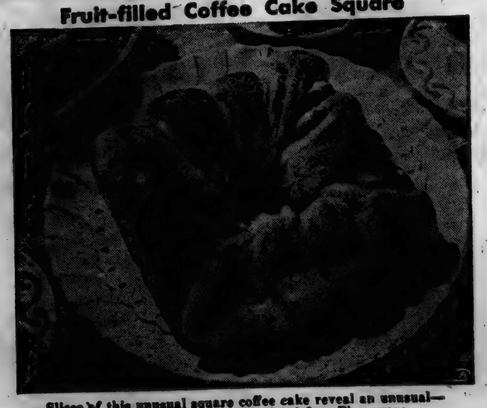
Fruit-filled Coffee Cake Square



Slices of this unusual square coffee cake reveal an unusual—and rich—filling made with dried figs. Fig square makes a novel bread for afternoon parties.

Every home baker delights in surprising friends and guests now and then with a different cake, cookie, or yeast bread. Fig square is "hot off the press" and a coffee cake that will be wanted on the family table often.

As highlight on breakfast or luncheon menu, this coffee cake made with enriched flour includes a generous amount of the B-vitamins and iron the family needs. The fig filling is mineral-rich.

Be sure to scald fresh liquid milk used in making fig square and other yeast breads. Scalding stops enzyme action which might otherwise cause some softening of the dough. It also makes a dough that is easy to handle.

You'll be delighted with the easy shaping of fig coffee cake square. Spread fig filling over rolled-out dough and roll up like a jelly roll. Place filled roll along sides of a square pan, and the square is made.

FIG SQUARE

1 package yeast, compressed or dry
½ cup lukewarm water
½ cup milk
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons melted shortening
1 egg, beaten
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind (if desired)
2½ cups sifted enriched flour
Melted butter or margarine

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Add flour to make a thick batter. Mix well. Add softened yeast and egg. Beat well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until smooth and satiny. Place in greased bowl. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled (about 1½ hours). When light, punch down. Let rest 10 minutes. Pat or roll into a rectangular sheet about one-half inch thick and eight inches wide. Brush with butter or margarine. Spread with fig filling. Roll up like jelly-roll sealing edge. Shape around edges of an 8-inch square pan. At each corner, with scissors, cut through the roll almost to the bottom. Then cut slantwise through the roll in three places on each side of the square. Let rise until doubled (about 1 hour). Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 20 to 25 minutes.

FIG FILLING

¾ cup dried figs
2 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon enriched flour
Dash salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Cover figs with boiling water and let stand about 10 minutes. Drain, clip off stems, and snip figs into small pieces with scissors. Add water, sugar mixed with flour, and salt. Cook slowly about 10 minutes or until thickened. Add lemon juice and cool. Makes one fig square.

British Farmers Can Be "Kicked Off" Land

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

SHINCLIFF, Durham County, England—One question pops up in nearly every discussion in which an American returning from a visit to Britain finds himself engaged.

"Under British Socialism, can a farmer be ousted from his own land?"

NOLAND

American farmers want to know whether a British farm owner or tenant can stay on his land only at the pleasure of the government.

Crop restrictions in the United States, five years after the end of the war food shortage, have apparently made the American farmer uneasy. His questions indicate that he is beginning to wonder whether, going back before the war to AAA days, he has already given up more control of his business than he can hope to gain back as long as Congress pays more attention to the planners than to the producers.

Talked with Owner

Seeking first-hand information about how a farmer can be kicked off his land in Britain, I found a member of a county committee which had thrown farmers off their land. He directed me to a farm which had changed ownership under this authority. I could not find the ousted former owner, but I had a long talk with the present owner.

His name is James Laing, and he owns and operates a farm of 160 acres near Shincliff in Durham County, in the northeastern part of England.

Early in the war, the farm was bought by a businessman in the town who gave it to his son. The son thus was exempted, as a farmer, from service in the armed forces.

Under the Socialist plan, all farms are graded by a county committee. They are graded A, B or C, according to their producing capacity under good operation. Farmers also are graded A, B or C, according to their ability.

In this case, the young man, who was not a farmer, was graded C. The farm was graded A.

"Didn't Follow Advice"

The young man did not make much effort to get a good return from the farm. He did not employ and direct skilled farm labor. And he did not follow the advice of the committee, composed of his county neighbors, as to how he could improve the yield of the farm.

After giving him a fair chance to learn and work, the committee condemned the farm as not being operated to produce food which the people desperately needed.

The value of the farm was fixed by a committee of appraisers. Then the government bought it at the fixed price. At that point the government could lease the farm or sell it. Laing, an experienced farmer working with his father on a nearby farm, and a substantial man with a wife and two sons of grade school age, offered to buy the farm and his offer was accepted. He got a good deed from the government.

"Trapped in Socialism"

This procedure has been tested through the highest courts in what is called the Sussex case, and the government has been upheld.

Today Laing is an A farmer on an A farm. He is, of course, subject to close government regulation. He has only one customer—the government. But that is true of all other British farmers.

Laing is told what to raise, but he is also told what price he will get for what he raises. That is the Socialist system. The farmer may still own his land, but he has very little control of its use. Like good farm men in all freedom-loving countries, he resents this government bossing. But he is trapped in Socialism.

with a "home-made invention."

Several club members were reported as being ill. After the regular business meeting was held, the meeting was adjourned.

The hostess served a delicious lunch.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. John Mason unless otherwise notified. Lesson leader for the evening will be Mrs. Roy Reidenbach.

Spencerville Drops Close Game

Spencerville's Red Raiders were eliminated from the Indiana State High School Basketball Tournament last Saturday afternoon at Garrett when they lost to Ashley's Aces by the score of 36 to 33.

It appeared that Spencerville had the game in the victory column when Al Paschen dumped one in with just seconds to go. But the officials ruled that he committed a charging foul as he drove in for the basket. Ashley capitalized on the call, making the free throw and one more as Spencerville pressed for possession and fouled again.

The game was marked with technical fouls as tempers flared occassionally, mostly on the part of Spencerville as the officiating seemed to be consistently against them.

CULTURE CLUB

The regular meeting of the Culture Club was held Friday evening, Feb. 24, at the home of Mrs. Fred Ulm with Mrs. John Mason as co-hostess.

The meeting was opened by the reading of the club collect. Mrs. Robert Musser read an article entitled "Three-cent Giving" and made some comment on the article for the devotions of the evening. Mrs. Roy Reidenbach, lesson leader for the evening, chose the article "My Most Unforgettable Character" from the Reader's Digest. The special work for the evening was a book review given by Mrs. Lynn Fisher. The book, entitled "Smile Please," written by Mildred Spuurier Topp, is a true story concerning a family whose mother was a photographer in the nineteenth century. The review was very interesting.

The regular business meeting was held with the committees reporting on the next meeting.

Roll call was held with fifteen regular members answering with "A Book I like."

The meeting was then adjourned afterwhich the co-hostess served a delicious lunch.

The next meeting, which will be the annual guest night, will be held March 8, 1950, at 6:30 p.m. at the American Legion Home in St. Joe. Members planning to attend are requested to advise Mrs. Robert Musser or Mrs. Dewey White as soon as possible.

WEED CONTROL WEAPONS NOW NUMBER THREE

Help has come at last for those who have been plagued with Bermuda grass, quack grass or Johnson grass. The most recent of the organic chemical weed killers, TCA, has hope for these weary individuals.

Prof. Oliver C. Lee, weed control specialist at Purdue University, points out that it is not a selective, which kills only one type of plants, so cannot be used to kill weeds growing in crops. The rate necessary to destroy these persistent grasses will kill all vegetation for a period of several weeks. When used for field operations the recommended amount is 80 to 120 pounds per acre.

The new material TCA will be one of the three weed killers available to farmers, home owners and those charged with maintenance of roadsides, railroad and utility line right-of-ways. The other two chemicals are 2,4-D and the newer weed killer 2,4,5-T.

Many of the woody plants that are not killed with 2,4-D will be eliminated with the new chemicel. It will kill osage orange, blackberry and raspberry briars and several of the hardwood species. When spraying areas infested with mixed species, preparations containing both 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T are recommended by the Purdue man.

The well-known 2,4-D is still recommended for the eradication of broad leaf weeds. It is a selective herbicide and can be used to destroy weeds in growing crops, particularly corn, small grains and grass areas. It is the answer to cleaning fields of bindweed, morning glory and Canada thistle. Woody plants which are partially killed with 2,4-D are poison ivy and willows.

Women And Unions Slowed Socialism In Britain

by Stephen C. Noland

No amount of alibiing by the Labor Socialists in Britain will offset the shining fact that they failed to win a vote of confidence for their welfare state.

It was generally agreed by fair observers that the huge Labor majority in the House of Commons would be cut down to no more than a comfortable working majority - - about 60.

But it was also agreed, as this writer frequently stated, that this prediction would not stand if British women, who have suffered uncalled-for offenses to their womanhood and their motherhood under five years of war sacrifice and an added five years of Socialist kicking around, voted their resentment.

Apparently the tide was turned by labor union members who saw through the welfare state plot to use and then destroy their unions, the quality of British manhood which refuses to be coddled in the arms of government from cradle to grave, and the thoroughly justified rebellion of fine women who already had seen many of their number reduced to household drudges in shawls and wooden clogs.

With an unsafe majority, the intellectual welfare staters, under the leadership of Prime Minister Clement Atlee, will naturally make a last desperate effort to hold on by speeding up their political confidence game. Under the British system, they are heading for a failure to hold their control of Commons. If and when that happens, another election must be held. They will try to swing the growing volume of Communists in from the Left and make a deal with Conservative and Liberal traders.

Such is the nature of an intellectual tampering with ordered process of government by the people that, when he finds that horn-squawking won't start his stalled car, he will resort to any proved trick of deception and corruption to save his name from the historical scorn of failure.

Britain has shown that it can stand up against a powerful plot to enslave its people in a welfare state. But the British people are far from safe. They have risen out of oppression only as far as a plateau of confusion and uncertainty.

They need help - the freedom-loving, brave and self-reliant majority which voted against British Socialism need the help that the United States can give. This does not mean more Marshall Plan money. Enough of that has been pledged until 1952 to give them a big boost toward putting their workshop on a good production basis.

The help that they need is the encouragement that the United States can give by heeding the British voting mandate to quit playing welfare state with the British Socialist leaders.

With their empire fallen apart, and Communism spreading over the world, these Conservative Britons, who rolled up an impressive popular majority last week, will survive if our Washington welfare staters will wake up to the fact that our own still-free country is now the only major nation in the world where the government's trend is toward the welfare state, rather than away from it.

CORN BORER POPULATION ALARMS CORN GROWERS

The increased population of the European corn borer which was built up during the last year is serious enough to justify the alarm that is now spreading among corn growers in Indiana, Prof. J.J. Davis, head of the department of entomology, declares.

Reports are being received at Purdue that many corn growers are undecided whether or not they should sign up for dust and spray service as supplied by airplane operators. The Purdue entomologist pointed out that the decision will depend upon the value of the crop, the spring weather conditions and the time the crop will be needed to be planted so that the crop can be marketed at a favorable price.

If the corn crop is sweet corn, or

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome-poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

An Open Letter to Harry S. Truman
President of the United States
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

I am asking that this letter be published in a News Paper in the hope that it will be more apt to receive your attention than a letter addressed to you direct to the white house. I am a retail coal dealer in a rural community and as such I am in a position to know heating problems of my customers as I am in close contact with them and believe me the situation is critical here. I have not had a pound of coal to sell to my customers for two weeks past and not a pound in sight for the future. I hasten to say that I do not make this statement because I am worried about the loss of potential profit I might derive from coal sales because it is a well known fact that our business has been hurt so badly over the past four or five years by constant periodical strikes and work stoppages in the industry and consequently this item has become a minor part of our operation. However, being a coal merchant, I feel that it is my duty to speak up in behalf of my customers. Were it not for the fact that we are in a rural community where there is wood available to cut (many taking time off from their work to do so) I don't know what we would do.

I have always felt that in our American way of life things could get pretty bad and we can tolerate a lot but if they came to the point where a condition is practically unbearable something would be done about it but not so this time apparently. You, Mr. President, are at the head of this great nation and it is in your power and yours alone to relieve this situation and as our President you owe it to the vast majority of the people who must feel as we do to take some action and immediately.

Mr. President, are votes so dear and power so important that you would see your people suffer rather than prove to one Mr. John L. Lewis that he is not yet running the entire country?

May I remind you, Mr. President, that "When that one great Scorer comes to write behind your name, He will write not that you won or lost but how you played the game." This might be a fitting epitaph for your tombstone someday - "HERE LIES THE BODY OF A PRESIDENT WHO WAS NOT AFRAID OF JOHN L. LEWIS."

Yours for as long as the constitution gives me the right to speak my mind,

W. E. Weninger

St. Joe, Indiana

Dear Friend:

Am enclosing the money for my subscription to the St. Joe News for another year. Just found it is past due. We look forward to the mail especially the day that he brings the home paper. It is like a letter from everyone. So far this week it hasn't come and we miss it.

We are enjoying wonderful sun shiny days. To us it has been fine all winter as the lowest it dropped was around 20 degrees one morning after Christmas. That was the night that it ruined the citrus crop. It was certainly a shame as the trees were just loaded.

But then during the day it warmed up so all we needed was a thin sweater. We have had the front door to the grocery open nearly every day.

Now the weather is like late spring back there, only not the rain included. The trees are all leafing out and the grass is green. Narcissus are past blooming and last Sunday some one had a big bowl of jonquils at church. They tell us that the tulips and iris will be next, in a week or so.

They are getting ready to harvest another crop of head lettuce and have potatoes and cantalopes planted. The barley fields are very green. One neighbor here has 1000 acres of barley. When it first comes up to pasture height they turn either cattle or sheep in and pasture it pretty well down. Then take them out, irrigate and in a few days it is a beautiful sight. There were 400 sheep in the field by our house. The lambs arrived about 3 weeks ago. The sheep herders live in tents in the fields with their sheep. When it gets warmer in the northern part of the state, they will take them back up into the mountains.

We have had a few visitors from St. Joe and Spencerville communities. Stanley Baker and wife live about six miles east of us. Bill Boger and wife and son came to see us. They live in Avondale. Then who should drive in one day but George Beams, his wife and Lela Northrup. But everyone has had a little trouble finding us as our telephone is listed under the name "Camino Market." The number is 9-55-71. Anyone coming call that number and you'll find us. It is easy to find us. We are five miles west of the city limits on West Van Buren, at Lateral 20.

As I sit here writing the sunlight has been flooding my kitchen, where the doors and windows are all open. Now the sun has dropped behind the distant purple mountains in a very gorgeous sunset. The colors are almost impossible to describe as they change so many times from one shade to another.

We wish to thank our many friends for remembering us with so many letters at Christmas time. We all enjoyed every one of them.

We hope many of you folks can visit this beautiful state some time in the future. Drop in and visit us when you do.

We are all feeling fine and Ira's health has improved greatly.

Your friends,
Ira, Agnes and Richard Moore

Feb. 13, 1950

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

This morning we drove to Taninul, an interesting and elaborate hotel ten miles east of Ciudad Valles on the Tampico road. Yesterday being Sunday all the natives collected in crowds in town, on the streets, or along the country roads. It was not unusual to see them sitting on the edge of the road, under trees, or around their small huts. But today was Monday and time to work. We passed many with their little burros, some walking, some making the little burros carry them, going into the hills for packs of wood sticks or fodder and hay. We took many pictures of Indian huts in the hills and visited an Indian Escuela. The children were pleased to have their pictures taken and seemed to beam with delight. The exterior and interior of the building gave you the impression that it might be a school but the facilities were of such a nature that you know they could not get the kind of instructions to which they are entitled.

The lunch at Taninul was exceptionally good in surroundings ultra modern. The swimming pool of sulphur water was large and nicely designed in the well kept lawn at the foot of a cavern going back into the side of the mountain. The cavern was equipped with a bar, tables and chairs on a very nice floor. One intriguing sign in Spanish translated into English read as follows: "There are sufficient beverages in this cavern to intoxicate a giant. If you leave us without being completely drunk please do not hold us responsible."

We met Senor and Senorita Gonzalo N. Santos, ex-governor of San Luis Potosi, who own the Taninul. Senor speaks very poor English but Senorita was a Texas girl and speaks both Spanish and English fluently. We complimented them on their magnificent hotel and after some conversation during which they extended us a very gracious invitation to return, we drove into Valles passing many burros, loaded and on their way back.

At dinner in the "Casa Grande" we met Senor Tomas Osana, graduate of the University of Albuquerque and now manager of the Casa Grande whose father was Merican Consul to United States before the Mexican Revolution 1914-1916. All of the Osanas were exiled because they were on the losing side. Senor Osana's father died suddenly in 1916 but his uncles took him with them to Albuquerque in 1916 returning to Mexico in 1932.

It is also reported that Senor Santos is not a very popular man in San Luis Potosi although he made himself governor and since they cannot succeed themselves in office he had his own favored man elected to succeed him. Apparently Senor Santos is still the power behind the scene. While he was governor and immediately thereafter he built Taninul where he also planted very extensive orange groves, created a large tract of grazing land, accumulated herds of cattle, a dairy, creamery and truck farms. His theory is that a politician in office should become wealthy by taking his share of the states income. He says that "a politician that doesn't take his share is a fool and a politician that takes all of the states income is also a fool."

He really has eliminated thievery. During his first year in office if anyone was caught with a cow in his possession that didn't belong to him, Santos had him hung. Twenty-two in all were hung without a trial. Only one question was asked "did he have a cow that didn't belong to him." If so hang him and find out later to whom the cow belongs. They say that eliminated all petty thievery. Now you can leave a car on the street and it will not be ransacked.

Sincerely,
O. D. Wearley

Dear Editor:

Sorry you did not see fit to publish my letters as I thought your readers might be interested in our trip. See you found room to publish two separate letters from each of two different writers in this week's issue.

Maybe it isn't too late as many persons have asked me about them. They should have reached you for separate issues. You might divide them if too long and continue the next week. Would like to send you the rest of the return trip.

P.S. Think that after some 30 years as a subscriber to the News I might rate a little space in your paper.

Lesson for March 5, 1950

THERE IS NO RULE in the Bible forbidding Christians to have common sense. You are not supposed to lay aside your mind when you become a Christian.

This has had many illustrations: let us take Ephesus for one. Put yourself, in imagination, back to the first Christian century. Ask yourself: Where can we start a church where it will do the most good? Where can we put a church that will spread out, one that is sure to have daughter-churches? Where can we reach people of influence? Where can we locate a church where it is certain to be heard of?

As your eye ranged over a map of the Empire, you would have lighted on Ephesus as the very place. It was a true capital, not a merely political one.

Strategy

IT was a master-stroke, selecting Ephesus as a base of operations. It made possible the rapid spread of the Christian faith into the province of Asia. The decision to plant a church there had been matched by other strategic decisions in Christian history since then. One of these was founding the church in Rome. That was an even greater city and capital than Ephesus, and it has lasted much longer.

If the Christian church had been content to be provincial, all right for the smaller towns but afraid to tackle the big ones, if the early church had feared to seat itself in Rome, the whole history of Europe would have been different.

When the Roman Empire crumbled, as in time it did, the church rose on its ruins and took its place as the great civilizer of Europe, the strong force that kept a continent from decay for nearly a thousand years.

Our Ancestors

FROM THE DAYS of the early Roman church there comes a well-known story which may be true. In the slave market at Rome the Pope saw some handsome small boys, whiter than the average Roman, for sale. Who are you? he asked. "Angli," they said—Angles, from far-off marshes along the North Sea. No, smiled the Pope, who was a bit of a punster, you are too good looking for that; "Non Angli sed Angeli," not Angles but Angels.

Anyway, the church did send some missionaries to far-away Anglia and elsewhere in Northern Europe. It turned out to be another strategic base of operations. Eventually France and Germany and England and the other countries in that part of the world were converted to Christianity. The time came when those very nations took the lead in moving into the rest of the world, into the western hemisphere, "down under" to Australia, even into Africa. Where they went, they carried their religion with them.

Suppose the church had not thought our ancestors worth converting? Suppose all the colonizing movements of the 16th and following centuries had been waves of sheer pagans?

It is not mere racial pride to say that the sending of missionaries to those savage peoples of northern Europe was one of the most strategic moves ever made by the Christian church.

And Today?

THE CHURCH has not always been smart. Sometimes we have missed the boat. There have been strategic centers we might have occupied—and did not.

There was a time, for instance, when Russia, that mighty nation, was open to Christian teaching. Many who knew that country were saying about 1918 that it was possible to capture that land for Christ. But the Christian church was little interested . . . and now whatever Christianity is there has to stay underground.

Farther east, our own General MacArthur has been calling for missionaries to Japan, thousands of them. Japan is wide open to Gospel today as never before. But where are the missionaries? Going over in driblets.

Whenever Christianity has seen a strategic point and taken it, future generations have been blessed; whenever we miss our chance, future generations will wonder how we could have been so blind.

LOCALS

Fred Stemen visited with Ralph Sechler and family after Lions Club meeting Monday night.

The Erwin Rinard 80 acre farm 1 mile west of Concord was sold recently to Mr. and Mrs. R. Fred Kaufmann of southwest of Ft. Wayne. The Kaufmanns will move soon to the property, which was formerly the Krise farm. The sale was conducted by John L. Haverstock, St. Joe realtor.

Mrs. Lydia Kees, a former resident of St. Joe, now living with her son, George, south of Garrett, celebrated her 91st birthday Saturday, Feb. 25. Having been in fairly good health this winter, she spends her time crocheting and has made many beautiful cushions and doilies. Mrs. George Kees' mother also stays at the same home. She celebrated her 84th birthday on Feb. 11. Both ladies received many cards for their birthdays for which they are grateful.

Edgar Lysher and aunt, Mrs. Anna Koch, spent Sunday in the George Kees home visiting Edgar's mother. They have visited her every Sunday since she has been in the Kees home.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

MEASLES

WHILE measles is prevalent every month, March, April and May are regarded as the "measles months." The disease reaches its peak during this period, with April the month having the highest incidence in Indiana.

Measles remains an important disease, mainly because it is communicable for several days before the rash appears. It starts with symptoms similar to an ordinary cold. Red and watery eyes and a cough appear eight or ten days after exposure to measles. The rash appears in about 12 or 14 days after exposure, first on the forehead and neck, and later over the entire body. The rash lasts three or four days, gradually fading. The disease is communicable for about five days after the rash disappears.

Pneumonia is the complication most feared during an attack of measles. There are other complications, chiefly infection of the middle ear. Several cases of infection of the brain occur during a large epidemic of measles.

Most of the deaths due to to measles and its complications could be prevented by prompt use of new serums. The serum is administered to those exposed, or at first symptoms of the disease.

Measles is primarily a disease of pre-school children, although all those who never have had the disease should guard against it.

Spicy Hot Cross Gems

These quickly made spicy cakes with cross of white icing offer an easy way to put the popular hot cross bun on the Lenten menu.

For centuries hot cross buns have been served on the Lenten table, but never have there been so many interesting and easy ways to make them. Hot cross buns may be created from a kneaded yeast dough, a beaten batter, or muffin-type batter. The delicious and spicy cake-like buns pictured here are the latter kind. They will be your choice to make when time is short, or when you plan to serve them for tea or dessert.

Spicy gems are made from quick coffee cake batter, with just the right seasoning of spice and sprinkling of currants to resemble hot cross buns. They are excellent hot from the oven, but they are almost as good the day after. These gems are budget-wise too, for they need no spread to make them taste extra good.

Because spicy hot cross gems are made with enriched flour, they provide the same B-vitamins and iron which make all enriched breads such economical "health" foods. Serve these gems as luncheon bread, or for dessert with apple sauce, baked pears, or stewed dried fruit.

SPICY HOT CROSS GEMS

Topping

2 tablespoons fine bread crumbs
2 tablespoons enriched flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Mix all together until crumbly.

Batter

1¼ cups sifted enriched flour
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
1 egg
⅓ to ½ cup milk
3 tablespoons melted shortening

Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, cinnamon and allspice. Beat egg, add milk and melted shortening. Add to flour mixture and beat smooth. Fill greased muffin pans one-half full. Sprinkle with topping. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Makes one dozen two-inch muffins.

1951 KAISER MAKES BOW

First of three all-new lines to be marketed this year by Kaiser-Frazer to compete in every major price range in 21 body styles, the 1951 Kaiser models are distinctively styled in custom-built Continental fashion.

The 1951 Kaisers are offered in 12 body types - Special and Deluxe 4-door sedans, 2-door sedans, club coupes, business coupes and two and four door Traveler utility sedans - each with a customer's choice of conventional drive, overdrive or Hydra-Matic.

Unmistakable Continental styling touches are apparent in the new automobile. They are evident in the "sweetheart curves" in the roof at the top centers of the windshield and rear window, and in the "gull-wing" dips which simulate rear fender lines.

Likewise of Continental flavor is the "single-roll" design of the body, which curves in an unbroken line from base to window level.

There is a slight down-sweep to both front and rear fenders, with the overall flowing design theme carried out in the lines of the "cascade" back.

The 3,541-square-inch safety glass area, in addition to providing unmatched vision, also offers the advantages off aerodynamic design. The windshield, which sweeps back at a 51.5 degree angle, presents a total area of 1,096 square inches - by far the largest of any sedan.

The windshield posts, which are rigid structural members of the all-steel body, are set well back from the driver's lateral range of vision. Slimmest in the industry, the slender posts virtually eliminate a "blind spot" particularly hazardous in city driving.

The broad 1,000-square-inch rear window curves in harmony with the lines of the cascade back, thus contributing to greater all-around vision and reduced wind "drag." New type mounting of the side glass, nearly flush with the exterior body panels, effectively curbs wind noise.

Other advances include oversize "jumbo" brakes nearly double the efficiency and life of that of the average of the industry; new "Tru-Line" center-point steering with "lock-socket" linkage; new springing which curbs side sway and "squat" and "dip" in starts and stops; new pistol-grip hand brake conveniently located next to the ignition switch; high capacity fresh air-conditioning with defrosting across the entire windshield; single-key ignition and lock system; customer-tailored front seat location with an adjustable range of seven inches, as compared to the industry's average of four; freeze-proof door locks and door latches effective against accidental opening, and "tumble-home" doors.

New is the 115 h.p. Kaiser "Supersonic" engine offered for the first time in K-F's 1951 models. The Supersonic is smoother, quieter and more powerful than any previous K-F engine, with substantially better acceleration and fuel economy.

hybrid seed corn, both of which must be planted early, the entomologist said that these high value crops will warrant the use of insecticide.

The corn borer is passing the winter in very large numbers, but the spring weather will be the deciding factor on the number of borers in the fields next summer. A late spring will necessitate delayed corn planting and result in fewer borers. At present the heavy overwintering population seems likely to provide the heaviest infestation to early planted corn that has ever been experienced in the state.

As a consequence, the department of entomology has given careful consideration to the recommendations for control in 1950. These recommendations are based on experiences in Indiana as well as experiences in other north central states as reported in a recent meeting of entomologists from these states. The Purdue recommendations are given in the circular E-17 and stress the use of adapted hybrids and date of planting. Copies of the circular are available from the University free, and from the county agents' offices.

Auburn Red-Devils Advance In Tourney

The Red-Devils of Auburn advanced to the semi-finals of the Indiana State Basketball Tournament last Saturday when they defeated the Kendallville Comets and the Ft. Wayne North Side Redskins at the North Side gym in afternoon and evening contests.

However, the real "thriller" of the day was the game between Decatur and North Side. The Ft. Wayne team needed an overtime before they were able to down a fighting Decatur five by a score of 62 to 61.

The second game was somewhat of a let-down as Auburn, playing a mediocre game in comparison with their previous efforts, defeated a game but outclassed Kendallville team, 46-39.

The final of the evening between Auburn and North Side was an even battle through the first half. The score at the 1st quarter was 15-all; at half-time it was 28-26, Auburn.

During the 3rd quarter the effects of the hard battle with Decatur began to tell on the North Side boys as they visibly lost their spirit and drive. The 3rd quarter ended at 39-33 in favor of Auburn.

Ft. Wayne's defense fell apart in the final period and Auburn scored 13 points after North Side made their final basket.

Auburn displayed a fine bit of team-work with the result that there were no individual "stars" in the game. Scoring was fairly even with Wertenberger getting 8 points, Grosscup 13, Myers 9, Kelly 12 and Beers 15.

Auburn will meet Marion this coming Saturday at Muncie in the semi-finals.

Celebrates 79th Birthday

Mrs. Eva Shull of near St. Joe celebrated her 79th birthday Wednesday, Feb. 28. She was born at Oceanna county, Mich., in 1871 and came to DeKalb county in 1892 when she and Thurman Shull were married. The 80-acre farm near St. Joe where Mrs. Shull now resides was purchased by Thurman Shull's grandfather, Hadsell, from the government 120 years ago. Thurman Shull died in June, 1923.

Mrs. Shull is in excellent health. She manages the farm, does all of her own housework, has a garden and milks five cows. Mr. and Mrs. Shull had five children, two of whom are deceased. Mark Shull died on his mother's birthday, Feb. 28, 1934, and two years later to the day, a daughter, Mrs. Agnes Mercer, died. The children surviving are Mrs. Mark Stuck of Garrett, Mrs. George Hart of Hillsdale, Mich., and Garth D. Shull of St. Joe. There are 17 grandchildren and 20 great-grand children.

PRISCILLA PRIM 4-H CLUB

The Priscilla Prim 4-H Club of Spencer Township had a good record in 1949, but the club hopes to do even better this year. Fifteen members were enrolled last year and fourteen of them prepared 190 dishes, prepared and served 25 meals, baked 120 products, canned 340 quarts of food and made 25 garments. Each member served on one or more committees and gave a demonstration. Margery Hollabaugh's wool dress was selected to be sent to the state fair where it received third placing. Bonnie Witt had some canned food entered at the fair and it placed third also. Bonnie received a trip award to the state fair school and Betty Witt went to the state dairy exposition at Indianapolis as a reward for her achievement.

Pat Akey, Margery Hollabaugh, Carolyn Kimes, Shirley Ritenour, Lois Kimes and Bette Baker had a part in the charm school program at Auburn. They gave an original skit on posture entitled "Watch Your Lines and Angles."

Another highlight of the year was a picnic at Franke Park which was enjoyed very much.

CONCORD JR. HOME EC

Concord Jr. Home Ec Circle held its March meeting at Ellen Fetters' home. The president opened the meeting after which the song "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds" was sung by 12 members and 3 guests, Miss Moore, Mrs. Mildred Grogg and Mrs. Bessie Current. Devotions were given by Florence Miller.

Miss Moore gave the lesson on "Health Agencies," a very interesting topic from which those present received some benefit. A brief report was given by each of the special leaders. Mrs. Grogg said a few words concerning the aim toward "Hospitality" in our country. The secretary's report was then read and approved and all bills allowed. Rose Means and Dorothy Simanton passed the new club books which were very pretty. At the close of the business session, Rose conducted a clever contest. Delicious refreshments were then served.

The next meting will be held on the first Monday evening in April with Dorothy Simanton. The club is still open to new members.

Wanted: Another Miracle

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome-poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

Zimapan, Hidalgo, Mexico.
Feb. 14, 1950

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Left Valles, San Luis Potosi, about ten and soon entered the more tropical country of the Huastecan Indians. We have heard that they are a proud and once were a mighty Indian race. This region was practically inaccessible until the Pan-American Highway was built. The natives speak only their native tongue. They live as they have lived for centuries. In general their huts are clean and one is much impressed with the seemingly intelligent and happy appearance. We could not help feeling that something should be done to encourage these people to live a more useful life and contribute their part toward placing the entire country on a higher standard of living. However, it is the thought of the leaders in the larger cities that these people do not want civilization and prefer to carry on in their primitive way.

From Valles to Tamazunchale we found some of the most beautiful scenery on the North American continent. The road winds around the hills and from many points excellent views of the valley below may be had. Palms and bamboo as well as other tropical plants grow abundantly. Many tropical flowers are seen along the winding road.

About forty-five miles south of Valles is an Indian village, Toncanhuitz, which can be reached by following a winding dirt road about two miles up the hill side. It is a typical Indian village which shows no effects of modern civilization. The huts were almost entirely built of bamboo and palm roofs. The village is also called "Cuidad Santos" (Holy City), a name applied to it in recent years because of the religious aspect of its natives. They originally believed in human sacrifices which were made on a huge pyramid built of stone on the highest hill in the village. With the coming of the Spaniards and a new form of worship they gave up their idea of human sacrifices and built a colonial church on the pyramid in 1621. The major portion of the church is still being used as it was originally built. In most of the primitive villages the church will be found on the highest hill. One naturally marvels at the tremendous sacrifices in labor made to transport all the stone and material to these high points by the crude methods available to them. When we entered the church I did not remove my hat in the vestibule but I was soon told to do so by a small boy and Mrs. Wearley was criticized because she did not have a veil on her head which is supposed to be worn by all women entering the church.

The road from here leads through a wild and beautiful mountain range and then for some distance along the Monterzuma River and finally starts up and in the next sixty miles rises about five thousand feet to the top of the Sierra Madre. All through this section there are many small villages and hundreds of Indian huts. We found that most of this territory should be traveled between ten and two in the afternoon for about that time fog forms to obscure the scenery. In our case it almost made the road impassible. For about twenty miles we could not see well enongh to drive more than fifteen miles per hour.

Out of the fog when we reached a point lower down the mountain an attractive village, Jacala, could be seen in the broad deep valley. From this point we climbed the mountain to a height of 7500 feet dropping down to 6410 feet at Zimapan, stopping here for the night expecting to see the Duke and Duchess of Windsor who are also guests at the popular Hotel Fundicion.

Sincerely,
O. D. Wearley

(The following poem was written in honor of Mrs. Eva Shull of St. Joe on the occasion of her seventy-ninth birthday at the request of her children.)

I like to spend the evening in the twilight all alone,
And muse upon the many happy days that I have known,
And I count the row of milestones which I've passed along the road,
Which brings back loving memories of a Mother's daily load.
There's something seems to beckon me, from out the days of yore,
As if they want me to come back and walk the paths once more
Where I spent my happy golden days, and watched my children grow,
And return the love I gave them in those days of long ago.

The milestones have been many, tho they strangely seem so few,
And they seem to nod a greeting, as to some dear one they knew
And I see familiar places, where I spent those happy hours,
Which can never be taken from me by any earthly power!
I sometimes sense a presence in the region of my chair,
And glancing in the shadows, see my children standing there.
Their peals of childish laughter burst out plainly on my ears,
And then, alas! the picture fades and quickly disappears!

My years have all been happy ones; the paths that I have trod
Have all been clear of obstacles; for I have kept my faith in God.
I've always raised my children in the ways a mother should,
To live a Christian life, and to do naught but what is good.
The days are growing shorter, as the sun sinks in the west,
And I am drawing nearer to the Haven of the Blest;
And, when I'm called, I feel that contented I shall be;
For I'll have my children with me, for all Eternity.

Church Leadership

Lesson for March 12, 1950.

"WHAT'S in a name?" Different churches have many different names for the persons who hold office in them. But whatever quarrels the churches have had, few of them are about these names. The thing is more important than the name. All of us agree that churches do need organization

Dr. Foreman

Some people would have us go back to the New Testament for our pattern of organization. We cannot quite do this, for one important reason. Where in the New Testament would you dig in? Would you take the letters to Timothy and Titus as your guide? There you find bishops (overseers, superintendents) mentioned, also elders and deacons, but you do not find their duties laid down.

Go back into the story of Acts and you will find a place where elders are first mentioned in the Christian church (11:30); go still farther back and you come to the first election of deacons (Acts 6).

In your first Utopian Church, will you model it after the three-officer plan, or two, or one, or (going back before Acts 6) none at all? (Apostles, of course, are not now available.

Scholars in most churches today are pretty well agreed that what we have in the New Testament is not a rigid pattern of organization, but rather certain principles on which any successful church must be built. Let us see what some of these are.

The Job and the Man

ALL CHURCHES are agreed on one point: A church must have leadership. What is everybody's business is nobody's business. Some one must draw up plans, think ahead. No organization in the world is self-starting and self-operating, not even the church of Christ. The early church knew this. But they elected officers only as the need for them arose. In Jerusalem there was not a deacon in the place until that emergency came up in the matter of relief.

In St. Paul's first missionary church (Acts 13, 14) he did not get the elders first, and then find churches for them. On the contrary, he founded the churches first and then appointed elders for them.

It would be a good idea for a church today to take stock of its officers once in a while. Are they necessary? For example, do you elect a deacon to "take the place" of one who has moved away, or do you elect a deacon to do a job that can't otherwise be done?

Sweetness No Substitute For Skill

NOT ALL CHRISTIANS are qualified to hold office in the church, and very few, if any, would be equally good in any office. A Sunday school superintendent, for example, might make a poor showing at a prayer-meeting talk. A man who can conduct a successful financial campaign and keep the church up to a high level of generosity the year round, may not be just the man to plan the educational program. A lovely sweet lady might turn out to be a stupid Madam Chairman.

Paul knew all this and in fact insisted on it. Each separate kind of job in the church calls for distinct qualifications.

Just being a good Christian was never enough to insure a man's (or a woman's) being a good officer.

Personality

AFTER ALL, however, personal character means more than technical skill. A man may have such flaws in his character that his influence does more harm than good, so that even if he is an accomplished musician you still would not want him as "Minister of Music," or even as choir-leader.

A man whose own home is always at sixes and sevens (as Paul pointed out) is a poor candidate for any executive post in the church. A man who can't keep from quarreling in everyday life is no man to entrust with responsibility in the church.

A man of good character can, and will want to, learn the skills his job calls for; but a man of sleazy character just does not care. Be careful of the sort of man you elect to office, in church or out; for the rank and file are not going to rise above their leaders.

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WIBA(), Chicago, 670 on your dial.

BUGS—80,000 of them—make life interesting (and a little hectic) for a small but important group of men in the U. S. Department of Agriculture. These scientists—taxonomists—are the men called upon to answer 50,000 variations of the question, "What kind of an insect is this?" every year.

These experts in the scientific classification of insect life perform an invaluable service to farmers, food and grain dealers, health services and many others who need their information to fight insect pests.

Most of the queries—and the 25,000 specimens that accompany them each year—reach the taxonomists through field workers of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine of the USDA. The field workers are trained entomologists themselves, and are usually able to recognize and identify common varieties of insects. But the really tough ones they turn over to the specialists in Washington.

Taxonomy is one of the most difficult of the sciences. To the layman, many insects appear generally similar, but to the expert a slight difference in the feeding parts or in the arrangement of spots on the wing may distinguish a beneficial insect from a harmful one. It's almost always necessary to know with what kind of an insect pest you are dealing before adequate control measures can be devised.

But despite the collection and classification of thousands of insects, the taxonomists know better than anyone else that they don't have all the answers. It is estimated that science has not yet reached the halfway mark in identifying the hordes of insects that crawl and fly over the face of the earth.

If you find something that looks like a cross between a mosquito and a cockroach, mark it off as another insect mystery—or better still, give it to your local field entomologist.

The Garbage Man Goeth!

Thelma Vonderschmidt, basketball queen of the Jasper (Ind.) state champions, demonstrates to Carl Vogel, town garbage collector, how the garbage disposer will work when it takes his place next August 1. Town council voted to eliminate food wastes electrically by installing G-E disposers in householders' sinks when garbage collectors indicated they would not renew contract. General Electric officials said Jasper is the first town in the world to adopt this method of dealing with the garbage problem.

JASPER, IND. — The garbage man got his walking papers in Jasper today. Henceforth, the garbage will be disposed of electrically.

The city council of this southern Indiana town of 6800 persons voted last week to suspend all municipal garbage collections after August 1 and accepted a bid to install General Electric garbage disposers in the sinks of Jasper householders. The disposers shred food wastes into small particles which are flushed down the drain and carried away through the regular sewage lines.

At the same time the council passed an ordinance forbidding the storage of garbage outside homes within the city limits.

By this action, General Electric officials said, Jasper becomes the first municipality in the world to adopt the disposer as a substitute for the garbage can and collection truck.

Mayor Herbert Thyen and the city council began to explore the possibilities of the water-borne disposal of food wastes through the sewer system about a year and a half ago when the present private garbage collectors indicated that they did not wish to renew their contract. With the help of a firm of engineering consultants and the aid of data submitted by interested manufacturers they gathered enough definite information to go to the citizenry with an informal poll last summer and 60 per cent registered their approval.

Early in December, interested disposer manufacturers submitted bids and demonstrated their machines before the city council. The G-E disposer offered by the General Electric Supply Corporation of Louisville, Ky. was chosen for installation. Since a majority of the householders have signed up the council passed the necessary legislation for the contract to be signed. Citizens who have not yet filed applications will have until June 1 to get in their orders. Under the Jaspor plan, each individual householder will buy his disposer from the city.

Mayor Thyen estimated that the mass installation of disposers will save Jasper $13,000 annually in wages and equipment charges for garbage collection and "by eliminating the garbage can — a breeding place for flies and rodents and therefore of disease—will make Jasper a healthier place in which to live."

Labor Loses Rights Under its Own Rule

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

LONDON, England—Under the British Socialist plan, now well advanced toward conversion by the Labor party from dream to practice, the citizen is the mere ward of the state. Government promises to look after him from before he is born until the last word is said at his burial service.

So, if a man looks to any institution but government for what he needs, government systematically sets out to lure him away from the institution.

NOLAND

One place to which Britons look for job protection and fair treatment is their labor unions. About 9,000,000 of the 23,000,000 employed persons in Britain belong to a labor union. ny more owe improved working conditions to union aggressiveness in behalf of all labor.

"Easy Tools of Dreamers"

The unions developed the leaders who became the leaders of the Labor Party. They were the easy tools of the intellectuals—the dreamers known as Fabians who for half a century had been backseat-driving the British economy. When the Labor Party emerged in 1945 in complete control of the government with 390 of the 640 members of the House of Commons, the intellectuals took the union members into the cabinet.

Thus, when the Laborites took over such key industries as coal, transport and the electric utilities, the members of unions in these industries found themselves in a new role.

As citizens they were part owners of the industries in which they worked. As union members, they no longer had the stimulant of a continuous battle against ownership for better working conditions. Government—the new owner—promised to take care of them.

Labor Became Management

At the same time, their union leaders became part of government. As such, they became the responsible owners. They also became management. But their first concern was to make a success of government—to make good their promises to the people who voted for them.

They immediately found that they were in serious trouble due to war poverty. They saw, when they had to take the wheel, that the road ahead was littered with war wreckage and pocked with economic bomb craters.

Much of the British Empire broke away, forcing them to seek markets abroad in which they lacked the resources to trade.

In this crisis they cut the value of their money— "devaluation of the pound" it is called by the intellectuals. It's another way of saying that their money is worth 30 percent less. It showed up among the union and other wage earners as an increase in the cost of living.

Strike Right "No Good"

The unions appealed to government—their government—for more money. They found that their great weapon in their struggle for better pay—the strike—was no longer any good. It was only a stuffed club.

Their leaders told them to forget their demands until the effect of the money-juggling could be weighed. The Labor Party ordered a wage freeze. The leaders appealed to their unions to co-operate in the name of patriotism. The unions, through their Council, finally voted to go along.

"Sure, we still have the right to strike," said many a minor union official or mere member in confidence, "but it's not worth a farthing."

A farthing is worth less than a cent in American money.

REQUIREMENTS GUIDE CHICK PURCHASES

Selective purchasing of chicks is a direct means to increasing income and efficiency from the poultry flock. Alexander Gordeuk, extension poultryman at Purdue University, advises that chicks be purchased for the exact purpose for which poultry is produced by the flock owner.

The poultry specialist points out that when chicks are purchased with high egg production as the principal objective, the flockowner is actually purchasing such factors as egg color, shape and size of eggs, livability in the hen house, size of the adult hen, early or late maturity, lack or presence of winter molt and the lack or presence of broodiness. All of these have an important bearing on the performance of the birds.

However, the poultryman who is interested in the production of broilers or fryers should locate a source of chicks which will guarantee such factors as rapid growth, low mortality, uniformity, rapid feathering and feather color preferred by the market of the producer.

Too many people continue to buy "just chicks," Gordeuk stressed. Flockowners will be wise to give first consideration in purchasing chicks which will meet their requirements and second consideration to price.

TWO AUTOS DAMAGED IN COLLISION

Two automobiles were damaged Tuesday morning in a collision on State Road 1 at the south edge of St. Joe.

Drivers of the cars were Delbert Furnish and Israel Layman, both of Spencerville.

Mr. Layman, driving a 1926 Chrysler, reported that he was pulling from a service station driveway onto the highway and did not see Mr. Furnish's machine approaching. He said his vision was blocked by a truck parked on the side of the highway.

Furnish, driving a 1938 Chevrolet, skidded his car a distance of 40 feet in a futile effort to avoid crashing into the Chrysler.

Damage to the Chevrolet was estimated at $200. Estimated damage to the Chrysler was $50.

HINTS ON HEALTH

MECHANICAL BACKACHE

FAULTY posture, obesity, relaxed abdominal muscles, weak back muscles, and inequality in the length of the legs are factors causing what is known as mechanical backache.

Good posture is necessary to good body balance. Because the body is so correctly balanced, little muscle energy is required to maintain the erect position. Sagging abdomen, flattened chest, humped shoulders, and a swayed back upset correct normal body balance.

With poor posture, unnatural stresses and strains are thrown on muscles and ligaments which support the spinal column. These stresses and strains become most pronounced at the lumbosacral joint, far down the back.

In mechanical backache, there is no actual disease or permanent structural defect responsible for the backache. The back pain is usually of many years' duration. It is aggravated by fatigue, by long periods of standing or sitting, and by bending, stooping, or lifting.

The condition may be relieved by certain simple measures, such as sleeping on a firm bed, hot baths, massage, gentle exercises, weight reduction in the obese, and rest. Physicians sometimes prescribe supports to help correct sway back conditions.

Down on the Farm

by EVERETT MITCHELL

OF THE more than one hundred and fifty million pigs that will be born in the United States in 1950, about 40 to 50 million of them are going to die before they're two months old. This dismal prediction of a great agricultural waste was drawn for me by swine research experts at Michigan State College.

William Newland, who recently completed a study on the care of pigs at birth at Michigan State, pointed out that his experiments have shown that baby pigs have little ability to maintain body temperature during the first two days of their life. Because of this, from five to ten per cent of baby pig deaths are traceable to chilling.

Pigs are born with a temperature of 103 degrees, but even in a comfortable pen their body heat will drop from three to nine degrees in the first 30 minutes. The little animals get so weak that they are unable to move around to nurse, to get under the brooder, or to get out of the way when the sow lies down.

Newland recommended several methods to keep the small pigs warm the first several days of life. A good, tight farrowing house is important, he stated. Wet and cold concrete floors hamper the sow's milk production and make the baby pigs more susceptible to chilling because they don't get enough to eat. An electric lamp reflector brooder costs little to construct, and Newland maintained it will save on the average of one pig a litter. After the first two days, the baby pigs adjust themselves to their environment, and won't need so much care.

Your contribution to reducing that enormous baby pig loss will put more money in your pocket at market time.

Farm

By EVERETT MITCHELL
Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

IN FEBRUARY we Americans celebrate the anniversary of the birth of George Washington, whom we honor as the "father of his country." Perhaps we overlook, however, the fact that he was first a son of the soil who loved his land, that he preferred farming to the Presidency, and that he was America's first conservationist.

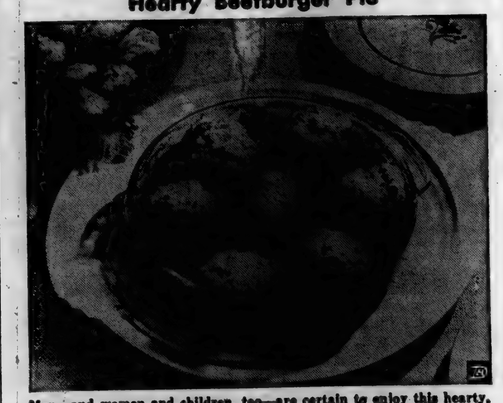
The son of a Virginia plantation owner, Washington left school to take a job as a surveyor. He saved his money, and was able to buy his first piece of farm land before he was 21 years old. After his brilliant military career during the French and Indian War, he married and settled down at Mt. Vernon where he farmed for 15 years prior to the American revolution.

The year before he became President, Washington wrote to a friend in England, "the more I am acquainted with agricultural affairs the better I am pleased with them, insomuch that I can nowhere find so great satisfaction as in those innocent and useful pursuits."

After leaving the Presidency, Washington returned to Mt. Vernon to pioneer a new type of agriculture on the eroded red hillsides of Virginia. He was well aware that a tobacco agriculture was ruining the state's soil. After visiting the country to the north, Washington became convinced that grass and livestock were the best means of conserving the soil. By 1785 he was experimenting with various types of fertilizer to supplement the manure he spread on his fields, and the same year he sowed clover, orchard grass and peas. He worked out his own system of crop rotation which was far in advance of his day.

When he died, farmer Washington left his lands in much better shape than he found them. He left all of us a lesson in good management—as worthwhile today as it was 200 years ago.

Hearty Beefburger Pie



Men—and women and children, too—are certain to enjoy this hearty, nourishing meat and vegetable pie attractively topped with golden cheese puffs. Extra cheese biscuits may be served as bread.

Casserole dishes are standard equipment in today's kitchens, for a hot casserole-meal-in-one is appetizing, yet easy on the cook.

Meat-and-vegetable mixtures can be pretty, too, if you give them a topping of fluffy dumplings or golden cheese puffs. These are quickly made drop biscuits with a bit of cheese added to perk up the flavor.

Pour cheese puff topping over cooked meat mixture in a casserole and bake in a hot oven. Or, if you prefer, cook beefburger pie on top of stove and use the oven to bake a custard or other dessert which requires a moderate cooking temperature.

BEEFBURGER PIE WITH CHEESE PUFF TOPPING

2 tablespoons fat or drippings
2 tablespoons chopped onion
¼ pound ground beef
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon black pepper
2 tablespoons enriched flour
2 cups cooked tomatoes
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 cup cooked diced carrots
1 cup cooked green beans

Cheese Puff Topping

Brown onion in fat or drippings. Add beef, salt and pepper. Cook until meat is done (about 10 minutes). Add flour. Mix well. Add tomatoes and Worcestershire sauce. Cook until slightly thickened, stirring occasionally. Add cooked vegetables. Mix well. Prepare cheese puff topping.

CHEESE PUFF TOPPING

1 cup sifted enriched flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons shortening
½ cup grated cheese
½ cup milk

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and mustard. Cut or rub in shortening. Add cheese. Mix well. Add milk. Mix until flour is moistened. If beef-burger pie is baked in oven, pour meat mixture into two-quart casserole. Spread topping evenly over meat mixture. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) about 20 minutes. If pie is cooked on top of range, drop topping by spoonfuls over meat mixture in skillet or stew-pan. Cover tightly. Steam 12 to 15 minutes.

Makes four servings.

Do You Want To Cut Your Federal Taxes?

Something For Nothing

You know that you can't keep drawing money out of your bank account without ever putting any in. The bank doesn't play that way. This is also true of Federal financing. Every dollar spent must sooner or later be collected in the form of taxes.

Many of these taxes are hidden, such as the $2.44 you pay on a $30 radio, or the 62 cents on the average alarm clock. These are in addition to the direct taxes of which the average citizen is painfully aware.

Tax money is necessary to run our government. But all too much of it is wasted by inefficiency, duplication of effort, overlapping of Federal agencies or appropriations for services to pressure groups.

Heretofore, no one has known how much these government services cost us through waste and inefficiency. But some surprising facts have been revealed by the Commission on the Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government. This twelve-man, bi-partisan Commission was created by Congress with the approval of the President. At the suggestion of Mr. Truman, former President Hoover was made its Chairman.

The Army, Navy, and Air Force asked for $30 billions of appropriations after being told that $15 billions was all the Nation could afford. The Army applied for 829,000 tropical uniforms at $129 a piece and homes for military personnel in Alaska at $58,000 apiece. Yet every dollar spent in such activities comes out of your pocket in the form of taxes.

Fifty Federal agencies jostle each other collecting statistics at an annual cost to you, the taxpayer, of $43,000,000. Many of the statistics are of use only to small groups, or collect dust in government files.

The Corps of Army Engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation are expert at selling the "something for nothing" idea to the American public. Underestimation of costs appears to be their specialty. The original price tag put on the Colorado-Big Thomson project was $44 millions. Its final cost was $131,800,000. Such discrepancies, the Commission wryly notes, "hardly can be explained by increases in labor and material costs."

You may obtain information about how you can fight waste and inefficiency in our government by writing to the Citizens' Committee for Reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government, 1421 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia 2, Penna. Also write your Congressman! Tell him you want laws enacted which will put into effect the suggestions of the Commission!

NITROGEN BOOSTS WHEAT YIELDS

Indiana wheat farmers can profit by adopting the successful practices of approximately 2,000 wheat growers of the pocket area. In 1949 they produced an average of seven bushels more to the acre by the application of nitrogen fertilizer material where sufficient phosphorus and potash had been applied at seeding time.

H. R. Lathrope, extension agronomist at Purdue University, advises that nitrogen should be applied in early spring, shortly after March 1, or before growth starts. This practice will induce tillering or stooling and supply the plant with material for rapid growth.

The application of commercial nitrogen benefits the wheat as most soils are cold in early spring and they release very little nitrogen before wheat harvest. Wheat matures rapidly and the need for an early spring tonic is great, the agronomist explained.

Nitrogen material can be applied with a grain drill, fertilizer distributor, hand grass seeder or by airplane. Lathrope pointed out that legumes also grow well in wheat fields which have been well supplied with limestone, phosphorus and potash and which have good vertical drainage.

The nitrogen material should be applied at the rate of about 20 lbs. to 25 lbs. of nitrogen per acre. The agronomist recommends application of 100 lbs. of 20.5 percent material such as ammonium sulphate or about 75 lbs. of 32 percent material such as ammonium nitrate per acre. The average cost will be from $3.25 to $3.50 per acre.

It seems impossible, even for professional experts, to complete an income tax statement before 4:00 p.m. March 14.

With your own tax bill to think about right now, maybe you're not too much interested in ours. But then again, maybe you should be:

You see, this is a self-supporting, business-managed electric power company. As such, we pay our full share of taxes, just as you do.

For 1949, for instance, we'll pay about $6,400,000 in taxes, federal, state, and local. This money will help build and maintain roads and schools, pay for police and fire protection...

As a matter of fact (and this may surprise you)—we pay more each year for taxes than is available for our stockholders! Or to express the same thing another way: Of the money you pay us for electricity, more is returned to the public in the things tax money buys than is paid to these men and women whose savings make them owners of this company.

S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A To Present Program

On Friday, March 24, 1950, the Ft. Wayne chapter of S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. (Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc.) will present a program at the Quimby Auditorium in Ft. Wayne at 8 p.m. The proceeds from the program will be given to the Ft. Wayne Philharmonic Orchestra, which has found itself in financial distress.

Ted Haberkorn, Sr. has been named chairman of the program and has gathered a fine array of quartets and other entertainment for the evening. The main attraction will be the Mid-States Four of Chicago, International Champions, who have consented to appear, although their schedule of appearances is very full; they must appear the following night in one of the southern states.

The Westinghouse Four of Pittsburgh, International Finalists, the Tune-Vendors of Dowagiac, Michigan, and the Temple-Airs of Muncie will give forth with their individual barbershop stylings. The Ft. Wayne chapter chorus and local Ft. Wayne quartets will also appear, including the Colonial Four, who have appeared in St. Joe on two occasions.

In addition there will be instrumental entertainment by Three Beeps and a Bop, a group of Ft. Wayne musicians who are well-known in this area from their many engagements including a two-year stay at the Skyline Club in Fort Wayne. The group includes "Hoppy" Jennings, guitar; Chuck Holtz, drums; Al Verweire (who is a member of the Philharmonic Orchestra) sax and flute; and Ted Haberkorn, Jr., piano. Master of Ceremonies will be Richard Buck, the popular magician from Logansport who m.c'd the previous program.

Tickets are on sale at Howard's Camera Shop, 112 W. Wayne, Fort Wayne. Or reservations by mail can be made through Earl Siebold, 1010 Maxine Drive, Ft. Wayne 6. Prices are: main floor, $2.40 and $1.80; balcony, $1.80 and $1.20

Child Snatched From Path Of Train

Davie Haberkorn was saved from possible serious injury or death Wednesday morning when Mrs. Mary Ridgway carried him from the B & O railroad tracks as a train approached from the west.

Davie and brother Mike were playing on the tracks. When Dave couldn't climb over the rails as quickly as Mike, he began to cry. Mike began to shout, too, when he saw the train. Their cries attracted the attention of Mrs. Ridgway as she was hanging clothes out to dry. She quickly ran to his aid, carrying him to the north side of the tracks as the train passed. Mrs. Ridgway fell as she ran to Davie's aid, but, fortunately, her injuries were only minor scratches and bruises.

—And wouldn't you know it? The first thing Davie said when he was put in Mommie's arms was—"I want a piece of candy!"

CARD OF THANKS

I wish in this way to thank my many friends and neighbors who remembered me with cards, personal calls and get-well wishes during my short stay in the hospital and since my return home.

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome—poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

1319 West Fourth
Tyler, Texas
March 11, 1950

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

I'm enclosing a little news item concerning my daughter, which I feel may be of interest to her old friends in St. Joe and will enable them to hear her voice.

We are having lovely weather here. Our early spring flowers, daffodils, narcissus, etc., are gone and the iris are almost through blooming. The azaleas are out and there is to be a trail mapped out showing the showy masses of them throughout the city. Redbud and dogwood are at their peak, too, and our trees are leafed out. The temperature is 70 degrees as I'm writing this at 9 a.m. The temperature only got as low as freezing two nights all winter. Folks are already mowing their lawns.

I expect to be back home about the first of May.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Milliman

(Mrs. Marguerite Hercules, former resident of St. Joe and teacher in the local high school, will appear on the "Man On The Farm" show over the Mutual Broadcasting System Saturday, March 18. The program originates in Libertyville, Illinois, from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. It is heard over WGN Chicago at 12 (noon) and re-broadcast at other times in some areas.

Mrs. Hercules is attending the program as the week's winner in a nation-wide letter writing contest. Included in her prize is a week-end at the Hotel Sherman in Chicago, with transportation by plane over TWA.

During her interview Mrs. Hercules will tell of her recent advent into nation-wide publicity in defense of society editors who were rated as having soft jobs by columnist Henry McLemore. She will also tell of her city's position as the "Rose Capitol of the World," her adopted city being Tyler, Texas.

The former Tyler girl is society editor of the Tyler Courier-Times, a vice-president of the Texas Woman's Press Association and convention chairman for the 1950 Texas Woman's Press Association, which will convene in Tyler November 3-5.)

The following letter was given to us by Mrs. Lola Moore.—Ed.

The Living Faith

Lesson for March 19, 1950

MANY a funeral sermon has been preached over the Christian church, but somehow the corpse never stays put. What keeps it going? All sorts of explanations have been given by unsympathetic outsiders. The church (we are told) is an upper-class hobby, or a lower-class opiate; it is a social club, it is a burial society; it panders to pride, or it is a perverse form of self-torture; it is kept alive by a well-run organization. Such explanations do not explain. The truth is at heart quite simple: The Church is kept alive by faith. What is Christian faith, the faith of the church? A study of the Scripture for this week, or a broader search through the New Testament from end to end, will convince any impartial reader of the falsehood of some of the notions about what Christian faith is.

Dr. Foreman

Some have claimed that it is nothing but faith in the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Let the reader try to find this in the New Testament if he can.

If you had said this to an early Christian, he would have replied along this line: That is just the problem—how can we become sons of God? How can men achieve brotherhood? Others tell us that faith is belief in a series of doctrines.

Let the reader search the New Testament and see if he can find there anything about faith in a creed. Sometimes this notion takes another form—that faith originally was a belief that Jesus' beliefs were true; in other words, that faith is accepting the "religion of Jesus."

Now the church from the beginning believed that Jesus' thoughts were true thoughts; but faith was never a simple second-hand acceptance of any one's creed, not even that of Jesus. The faith we find in the New Testament is none of these things. Still less is it faith in the saints, in Mary, or in an "infallible" church.

Faith: Not About, But In . . .

THE FAITH that broke out in glorious light in those early days of the church, and has continued shining down through the centuries, was not belief about anything or anybody, it was belief IN Some One; and that Some One was Jesus Christ.

There is a simply astonishing variety of ways in which he is spoken of in the New Testament. He is Son of Man, he is teacher and healer, he is the first-born of many brothers; he is Priest and Sacrifice, he is the Propitiation, the Reconciler of men to God; he is Master and Lord, he is the Word—that is, what God has to say to us; he is the Son of God, he sits on the throne of the universe, he will judge every man; he is the pattern for every man's character.

To put it quite bluntly, the church believed (and still believes) in a supernatural Christ and not only in a human Jesus. They believed in him as a teacher, as the Teacher indeed; but not merely as one whose teachings had been interrupted by an untimely death. They did not "play down" his death, on the contrary they played it up.

Christ crucified for us is always strongly in their minds. But they were far from leaving him as it were on a crucifix.

Any form of Christianity that thinks of Jesus chiefly as a Christmas baby; or a starry-eyed idealist; or as a pathetic figure hanging on a crucifix is a perversion of New Testament ways of thought. Everywhere in the center is the Christ who "was dead and is alive forevermore."

There Is No Other

A YOUNG MOSLEM who became a Christian and is very happy about it, was asked what it was that changed him, for Moslems are hard to change. It was not an argument, he said, it was the lives of some missionaries in Iran whom he knew.

He wanted what they had—it was as simple as that. And he went on to say this; "Christianity doesn't have much in theology that Mohammedanism doesn't have. There is just one thing Christianity has that we didn't have, nor anything like it; Jesus Christ."

That is what—that is who wins men today, and that was the secret of the early church, and that is the secret today of the living church everywhere: Christ alive by faith in the lives of those who love him.

morning.

Before the ship docked we were standing up on the deck watching all the fellows who were waiting on their families and Ronnie and Tommy both saw Dick before I did. As soon as the ship docked we had to go back to our cabins and wait for the men to come aboard and Tommy really set up a howl. After he saw his daddie he didn't want to let him out of his sight.

We stayed in Yokohama with Sgt. White and his wife until Thursday morning and then came down to Gamgori to the rest hotel where we will have to stay for a couple of weeks until we can get quarters in Osaka. It's a five and a half hour train ride from Osaka, so Dick will just get to be here on week ends but he said we might be able to get quarters as soon as next week. I'm hoping so.

As much as I've seen of Japan I like it. They sure have a lot of mountains over here. We seen Mount Fugi on the way down here Thursday and it was beautiful.

Sgt. White has a car and it seemed so funny to ride on the left hand side of the street. I never seen so many bicycles in my life. Every Japanese and his brother rides a bicycle. And very few of the Japanese stores have fronts on them. They make me think of a carnival back home.

This hotel where we are staying now is really a beautiful place. It's on the top of a big hill and from the front we can look out over the ocean and from the rear view looks out over the valley to the mountains.

The rooms we have are nice too. There's a crib for each of the boys, Ricky and Tommy, and a single bed for Ronnie in one room, and twin beds in the other room for Dick and I, besides the chests of drawers, overstuffed chairs and end tables. All the maids and waitresses are Japanese. They speak English but have such an accent I can't understand them. Dick said they have a school in Osaka where you can learn to speak Japanese so after we get settled that's what I want to do.

Last Wednesday afternoon, Sgt. White and his wife took us to Kamakura to see the Budda idol and it is really something to see. It's a huge thing, all made of bronze and been there since 1200 A.D. I was wishing I had my camera with me but had it packed in the foot locker.

While we were driving in Yokohama Monday we seen several Japanese with masks over their noses and mouths and Ronnie ask Dick if they were Doctors. Dick said whenever one of them got a cold they would wear a mask.

All in all, it's been quite an experience, even though I've only seen a little of it so far. But it seems so wonderful to be together as a family again that I'd think it was wonderful it it were in the wilds of Africa.

I'll say so long for this time and hope to hear from you soon.

Love,
Ruth, Dick and the boys

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

It is Sunday afternoon and everybody is trying to find a ticket for the bull fights. People here are so interested that it is usually a complete sell-out before Sunday. The Plaza Mexico is the largest bull-ring in the world, seating 50,000. It is a huge well-built circular concrete stand with the foot forming a circular ring 170 feet in diameter. The bull ring is ten feet inside this being 150 feet in diameter. The top of the stand extends 210 feet above the bull ring. We have learned that every arena is divided into two sections, the sombra or shady side and the sol or sunny side. The sunny side is favored by the local boys partly because of the lower price and because of freedom of expression with very little restraint. All of the elite and most of the tourists find it more pleasant and safer on the sombra side.

The bulls, whose death is the central feature of the afternoon, are brought in from a ranch which specializes in breeding fighting bulls very often from Spanish stock. They have spent four years under perfect living conditions, always having access to the finest fodd. They are placed in pens next to the Plaza about four days before the fight and fed as usual until noon of the day at which a draw is held to decide which bulls are for each matador. They are now placed in smaller pens to rest until the appointed hour. There are six bulls and three matadores, two bulls for each.

The matadores are dressed in the neat traditional uniforms with a gold or silver embroidered jacket. Each one will receive 50,000 pesos, $5,820 in American money but they must make at least one trip over the horns of the bull to make the kill in the regulation manner.

The judge is seated in a box on the sombra side and is in charge of the fight. On the exact minute advertised a horseman in a black uniform gallops across the ring to a point in front of the judges box, removes his plumed hat with a sweep. After permission is given, he backs his horse across the ring to lead the matadores followed by their peones or assistants across the ring while the band playa the traditional two-step of the Matadores, "La Virgen de la Macarena." Now the Matadores salute and the parade scatters.

Trumpets can be heard above the band which is the signal for the first bull to enter. Just as the bull enters his stable colors are pinned to his back probably not gently which does not improve his disposition. Now two or three peones make passes at the bull with their yellow and crimson capes while the matador stands by watching the bull to learn his peculiarities. When the matador is satisfied he steps out with his cape causing the bull to charge the cape and steps aside just enough to permit the bull to miss him. After he has done this for a while he has the bull puzzled and succeeds in bringing him to a standstill. The closer the matador can be to the bull as he charges by the better the crowd likes it. These features please the crowd and they yell "Ole."

Two picadores now ride into the ring with horses blindfolded and protected with heavy padding over armor on their right sides. The riders also have armor on their right legs. They carry a long hickory wood lance with a spike on the end about two-thirds of an inch long. It is their duty to permit the bull to charge the protected side of the horse and to plant the pic into the muscles on top of the bull's neck pushing him away. This is done three times by the picadores which causes the bull to hesitate to use those injured muscles in his neck and therefore carry his head lower, a great help to the matador in making the kill. The completion of this perfomance is announced by drums and trumpets and the picadores ride out. While the picadores are doing their work all three matadors are in the ring to attract the bull away from the picadores to prevent injury to them or their horses. Often the bull upsets the horse and riders.

The matador or his assistant now has a very dangerous act to perform. Three pairs of gaily colored wooden darts about two feet long have to be placed into the bull's shoulders. This is usually done as the bull is rushing toward the man and must be done by reaching over the horns of the bull while he is charging and still get out of the way. This is painful to the bull and he sometimes chases the man out of the ring and may even jump over the wooden barricade after him. If so he is caught in the ten foot space in front of the stand and is returned to the ring through the nearest of many gates around the ring.

When the third pair of darts have been placed in the bull's shoulders the band plays a solemn melody and the matador with his scarlet cape and razor-sharp sword walks to the judges box to get permission to kill the bull. The peones have kept the bull away and now the matador begins his first struggle with the bull by repeatedly inducing him to charge. It is necessary for him to catch the bull with his head down and front feet together in order to sink the sword for the kill. Here the crowd is very alert especially if the bull steps back, raising his head in deep thought as though to charge the cause of the movement rather than the cloth. The skill of the matador is very evident here for his safety depends upon his ability to keep the bull intent on the scarlet cape and not upon him. When the final thrust is made it is usually made directly over the horns with the bull's head down as he charges in. The matador is now in a very dangerous position for if the bull should raise his head the matador may be headed for the hospital. The matador continues again to work the bull into position until he finally sinks the sword for the kill. The peones rush in to cause the animal to turn in swift circles which causes the animal to bleed quicker and in a few moments the bull sways forward on his knees to be finished with a final stroke. In comes a team of mules and if he was a very brave bull he will be drug around the ring but if not straight to the exit. Now the matador is applauded for his unusual skill. Don't leave yet, there are five more. We are indebted to Senor Armillita, one of the first famous matadores in Mexico and now an instructor, for much of our information.

LOCALS

A complait on replevin, seeking possession of a 1940 Oldcmobile and $100 in damages, has been filed in the DeKalb circuit court against Don Keller of St. Joe. The plaintiff in the action, the Service Finance Company, Inc., of Garrett, charges that the automobile is being illegally held by the St. Joe man at a garage in St. Joe. The car is valued at $400.

Elmer O. Likens of Auburn, DeKalb county assessor, filed in the DeKalb circuit court Thursday a report of inventory and appraisement of the personal property of the estate of the late Nina A. Kees of St. Joe at $474, and real estate at $7,100. Leon H. Kees of St. Joe is administrator of the Kees estate. The report filed by the assessor was approved.

Mrs. Weldon Shafer and son, Sheldon, and Mrs. Howard Hamman of Waterloo attended the memorial service held for Mr. Charles Thayer at Hicksville Thursday. They also called on their aunt, Mrs. Grace Shaffer who is home for an indefinite stay after being a patient at the Walter Roach Hospital in Toledo for some months.

County Auditor Guy Myers reported Saturday that mortgage exemptions and exemptions for soldiers are now being filed in the auditor's office in the Auburn court house. The opening date for filing was March 1 with the closing date Monday, May 1, the last day for payment of the spring installment of taxes. Mortgage exemptions may be filed in the county auditor's office with any notary public. All soldiers' exemptions must be filed with the county auditor. All persons who have mortgages on real estate may file for exemptions on any amount up to $1,000, according to Mr. Myers. Veterans with 10 percent or more disability may file for exemption of $2,000. Servicemen with 100 percent disability are granted an additional $1,000 for a $3,000 exemption.

Mr. and Mrs. Elton Howard attended the funeral of Mrs. Howard's mother, Mrs. Roxie Emeline Hobrock of Ft. Wayne on Wednesday. Mrs. Hobrock died at 2:45 p.m. Sunday at her home of heart complications.

A native of Wabash, she had lived in Ft. Wayne for the last 40 years. She was a member of Hyacinth Lodge No. 38, Ladies Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers and of the Ladies Auxiliary of American Legion Post No. 82.

Survivors include her husband, William, a Pennsylvania Railroad engineer; a daughter, Mrs. Esther Howard, of St. Joe and two grandchildren, Mrs. Betty Smith of St. Joe and Elton Howard, Jr. of Garrett.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

ARTHRITIS

ARTHRITIS is the great crippler of mankind. It has pained and plagued human beings for thousands of years. More people suffer from arthritis and other rheumatic diseases than the total number suffering from tuberculosis, diabetes, cancer, and heart disease combined.

It is estimated there are seven million victims of arthritis and rheumatic diseases, and 97 per cent of all persons who live beyond middle life develop some change in the bones and joints characteristic of rheumatism.

The most crippling sort of chronic arthritis begins before the age of 40. The people thus afflicted are generally young people run down by overwork, poor nutrition or chronic infection.

The Arthriti and Rheumatism Foundation has issued some rules that, if followed, will help reduce rheumatic disease. They are:

Keep body weight normal for height, age, and body build.

Maintain good posture and walking habits.

Get enough rest and sleep, and don't worry.

Get daily exercise, but guard against strain or injury to joints and muscles.

Keep warm and dry during cold, wet weather.

Eat foods rich in vitamins and minerals.

Hunger Puts British Trucker in Taxi Cab

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

LONDON, England—The porter at White's Hotel, Bayswater Road, London, was calling a taxi at 6 a.m.

"It's an American newspaperman on his way to Germany," he said to the phone.

So the American newspaperman was not surprised when the taxi driver turned to face him in the dark as he pulled away from the hotel:

"So you're away to Germany?"

NOLAND

"Right," said the American newspaperman. "Going over to have Thanksgiving with my son in the 18th Infantry."

"Thanksgiving?"

"Yes, that's a holiday we have every fall in America. We give thanks to God for the harvest and for the blessings of the season."

"If you been here long, you sure miss that harvest."

"I make out. How about you?"

"I'm a Big-Truck Man"

The driver whipped an angered glance at the newspaperman, resumed his attention to the deserted streets, and let go:

"Look at me, guv'nor. Look at the wide of me, the high of me, the thick of me. I was proud of my strength in the army. I could drive a big truck with the best of 'em. Then the war was over and I got a job driving a big milk truck. Hauled milk into London for the school kids, I did.

"I liked to swing that big truck. I'm a big-truck man. And I liked to get the milk in to the school children."

"Sounds like a man-size job," said the passenger.

"It was and I was happy. No money left outta my pay packet, but I was happy.

"Then I began to lose interest in my evenings. Just wanted to sit. I saw what it was—this fish and bread and potatoes—hardly any meat or fat. One egg a week. A dab of butter. Not enough tea or sugar.

Afraid He'd Hit a Child

"The truck got heavier. I had to slow down a long way short of the turns. Then I saw I was weak. Do what I could, it was too much truck for me. I was afraid I might not be able to stop for a child dashin' across the road.

"I told my boss I couldn't swing it. He told me I knew what I could do. He meant go to the black market for meat. That costs money. You get the habit. You go into debt and look to the dog tracks and football pools to salvage you.

"I told him that's not for me. And here I am drivin' a taxi, the man that I am. I can swing a taxi, and it's a job. But it's not a happy job for the likes of me."

"The Germans Eat Better"

"Well," said the newspaperman, "that's war—Britain's war poverty."

"Listen, sir," he snapped, tossing another hard look at his passenger. "This is five years gone from the war. The Germans eat better. You'll know that before the day's over. It's the Labor Socialists beating us down. I'm a union man, understand, and I used to be a Socialist. But they took the man out of me I was in the army. They're tryin' to beat me down to where I have to fear them to keep my little family together."

The airline office hove in sight.

"How you going to vote?"

"Guv'nor, I don't dare tell you."

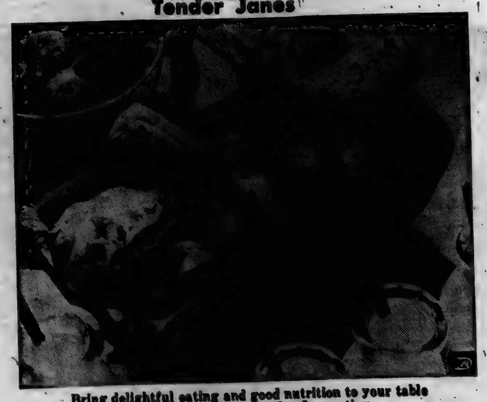
Tender Janes



Bring delightful eating and good nutrition to your table with a basketful of tender Janes, tiny loaf-shaped sweet rolls.

Tender Janes are another of the excellent puffs and sweet rolls you can make from a beaten batter which requires no kneading. The main ingredient in the batter is enriched flour, which makes these rolls a good source of essential B-vitamins and iron.

These rectangular rolls will be as light and tender as their name if batter is beaten thoroughly. Allow time for batter to double, then stir down and drop by spoonfuls into greased pans. Tiny iron molds, two by three inches, were used to make the tender Janes pictured. If you do not have similar molds, bake batter in muffin pans. The rolls will be equally delightful.

The topping for these sweet rolls is as easy as the batter. To make icing, combine two cups sifted confectioners' sugar, two tablespoons hot milk, two teaspoons butter or margarine, and one-fourth teaspoon vanilla extract, and mix until creamy smooth. Spread on warm rolls, then sprinkle with chopped walnuts.

Tender Janes are excellent for breakfast, but try them at luncheon, too, along with an omelet, stewed dried fruit, and milk.

TENDER JANES

1 package yeast, compressed or dry
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
1 egg
3¼ cups sifted enriched flour (about)
½ teaspoon vanilla extract (if desired)
Confectioners' sugar icing
Broken walnut meats

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk and add sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Add one cup flour and beat well. Add softened yeast, eggs and vanilla extract. Beat well. Add remaining flour to make a thick batter. Beat thoroughly until smooth. Cover and let rise until doubled (about one hour). When light, stir down. Spread evenly into greased rectangular iron molds (two by three inches) or muffin pans, preferably rectangular. Let rise until doubled (about 45 minutes). Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 25 minutes. Brush with confectioners' sugar icing and sprinkle with walnuts.

Makes about two dozen three-inch loaves, or three dozen two-inch puffs.

Spring

is a series of bursts . . . miraculous explosions of life into being. The tiny seed buried deep in sod suddenly feels the warming sun, bursts its fetters and pushes up to answer I AM HERE! A few bold knockings — a final insistent push, and the bright eyed chick has cracked his prison walls also to cry I AM HERE! One day without warning the buds burst open to cover the whole world with pure white blossoms here and bewitching colors there. In chorus they shout "WE ARE HERE!" Everywhere Spring is the eternal promise that Life will arise out of nothing, and out of captivity burst bravely into Freedom.

GET EARLY GAINS FOR BIGGER PROFITS ...THE WAYNE WAY

Experienced farmers know the earlier the gain, the bigger the profit from chicks, pigs, calves and poults. That's why it pays to speed-up the gains and growth of your young stock with the "Ingredient Quality" nutrition of Wayne Starting Feeds. Here's how the Wayne Way can help you, as it helps thousands of farmers, cash in with early gains for bigger profits.

CHICKS Start 'em fast with the new, improved Wayne Chick Starter that gave 15% faster gains over last year's formula in Allied Mills Research Farm tests! Low in fiber, high in efficiency, the 1950 formula includes Nicotinic Acid, Choline Chloride, D-Activated Animal Sterol, Homogenized Condensed Fish and APF Supplement (source of Vitamin B12) for faster gains! Also available in popular crumbkized form—Wayne Krumz!

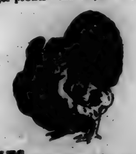
PIGS Feed for early-gaining 40 pound-ers at 8 weeks with new, improved Wayne Pig Starter. "Spiked" with APF Supplement for that extra nutritional "kick" . . . more rolled oats for extra palatability . . . Irradiated Yeast for extra Vitamin D2 . . . B-Complex vitamins . . . dried whey for growth-promoting riboflavin . . . Nicotinic Acid! . . . adds up to early gains for bigger profits—the Wayne Way!

CALVES For fast, low-cost calf growth, thousands of farmers depend on Wayne Calf Starter . . . fortified with Irradiated Yeast, and made to "meet milk on its own terms" in results . . . best it a long way on cost. The Wayne dry-feeding method helps you produce early-gaining, vigorous calves, yet save and sell up to 9,000 lbs. milk per calf raised over old methods!



POULTS Early, extra gains on 8-week poults may save up to 2 weeks feeding before market! Feed for early gains right from the start—with the rich nourishment of Wayne Turkey Starter, which provides a variety of "Ingredient Quality" proteins, essential vitamins and minerals. Also enriched with Homogenized Condensed Fish and APF Supplement (source of Vitamin B12). A truly high-efficiency feed!

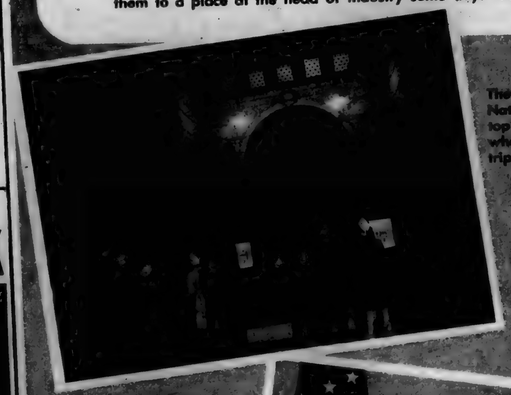
Rural Youth

ANYONE attending the yearly 4-H Congress in Chicago can't help but be impressed by the wonderful opportunity it offers both to the 4-H boys and girls, and to the industrial leaders who help to sponsor the Congress. Here 4-H youngsters come from all quarters of America, and have a week to spend shoulder to shoulder with the top executives of our nation's business. And the industrialists — the presidents and managers, directors and executives — clear their schedules of conferences and board meetings and step out of their daily roles as businessmen to become youth counsellors, or more exactly "just friends" — to renew their acquaintance with memories of their youth — to look forward to and talk about the future with those who will be future leaders.

The inspiration and stimulation of the Congress works both ways. To the 4-H boys and girls, the glimpse of the big city's enormity, variety, and its gigantic industry plus the personal warm meetings with the city's great men, may be the beginning of a dream which will lead them to a place at the head of industry some day. For others, the trip may point out that for them the large city holds little lure and they go back sure of what they want their life to be. For all, it's fun — fun to meet new friends from strange places, fun to explore Chicago's stores and museums, fun to be the recipients of honors and awards for excelling in projects on which they have worked hard.

To the industrial leaders who participate in the conferences, the Congress means even more. To many it brings back their own beginnings and they are eager to encourage the youngsters, hear of their accomplishments and help the 4-H cause in any way they can. This is evidenced by their generous gifts of scholarships and prizes as well as their personal support and contribution to the 4-H Congress and all 4-H projects. To the many leaders of business who are plagued with doubts about where America is heading these days, this annual get-together with 4-H youth provides food for more optimistic thought. They invariably emerge from the meetings feeling younger and confident that whatever the problems of the future may be, America will have the competent and resourceful leaders she needs to meet them.



The Chicago Museum of Natural History was on top of list for the 4-H'ers when they went out on trips to "see" Chicago.

DiAnne Mathre, DeKalb, Ill., and Dwight E. Nelson, Boone, Ia., winners of the Thos E. Wilson Citizenship awards with meatpacker Wilson. Tours of the stockyards area during the Congress help to give the boys and girls an idea of how industry and Agriculture team together to feed the nation.

Fred Waring made the Girls' Luncheon an occasion to be remembered by the 4-H Girls who attended. The popular band leader wrote a song for 4-H members called "A Place in the Sun".

SULMET*

SULFAMETHAZINE

Poultry Drinking Water SOLUTION 12.5%

Lederle

• This time-tested product saves poultrymen millions of dollars annually by effectively controlling outbreaks of coccidiosis, acute fowl cholera, pullorum disease in baby chicks, and coryza.

Sick birds will drink water containing SULMET SOLUTION 12.5% even though off feed . . . proper dosing of each bird is assured by uniform distribution of the drug in water . . . work of mixing SULMET in feed or of dosing individual birds is avoided.

Gives protection against losses by death and stunting in outbreaks of cecal and intestinal coccidiosis . . . infected birds become immune.

Reduces death losses in outbreaks of pullorum disease in baby chicks; of acute fowl cholera in chickens, turkeys and ducks; of coccidiosis in turkeys; in outbreaks of coryza (cold) in chickens. Rapid, highly effective control is obtained.

Read carefully the circular enclosed in the package for best results in the use of this product. Prompt treatment after accurate diagnosis is a key to best results. It is advisable to obtain a laboratory diagnosis, especially in intestinal coccidiosis, coryza, pullorum disease and fowl cholera. Do not hatch eggs laid by hens during medication with sulfas, or for five days thereafter.

We will gladly send upon request a new edition of "Control of Poultry Diseases."

Start with good chicks . . . the best money can buy. Remember, the original price of the chick is only a small part of the total cost of building a profitable egg layer. It takes as much time, labor, feed, heat and housing to grow a poor chick as a good one, so get the best . . . even if they cost a little more.

Brood Chicks Right

BROODING chicks is tricking business! If they're cheap chicks . . . chances are they won't "cheep" long. Even good chicks, raised on cheap, untested feed, may die off fast, and at best be slow gainers.

Good healthy chicks and a balanced chick starter are the first requirements for successful brooding. But even with these, a lot depends on you. For the first few days, newly hatched chicks are almost as "delicate" as infants in a nursery.

They're touchy about temperatures . . . it must be just right. Dampness depresses their spirit to live, and disease dwindles their numbers fast. It's up to you to keep your chicks healthy and happy, or you won't keep them long.

Provide a good brooder house, draftless but well-ventilated. Allow about half a square foot of floor space per chick up to four weeks of age. From four to eight weeks, provide about a square foot of floor space per chick.

Young chicks are timid when it comes to getting their share of the feed. If you're short on hopper space, chicks may forego eating rather than "elbow" their way through the crowd to the hopper. If they pass up a few meals, they'll soon begin to lag in gains and their resistance to disease will go down fast, exposing them to all sorts of troubles.

Many leading poultrymen follow the practice of feeding on inverted egg flats the first few days. This gets the feed down near the floor where chicks can see and reach it easily. After the first few days, hoppers may be added . . . at least one 2-foot hopper for each 50 chicks.

Don't forget plenty of clean, fresh water. A 1-gallon fountain per 100 chicks the first three weeks, and a 5-gallon fountain per 100 chicks from 3 to 8 weeks.

Other ideas for successful chick management are shown in the photos below. It will pay you to study up on them, and also get further details and free booklets on this important subject from your chick dealer, your feed store, the local county agent, or the high school agricultural teacher.

Dirt and disease go hand in hand. A disease outbreak among your chicks can put you out of the poultry business over-night. So before you put chicks into the brooder house, sweep down cobwebs, scrape floors, clean corners. Scrub with hot, soapy water or a solution of a 13 oz. can of lye in 15 gals. of water. Then disinfect with cresol.

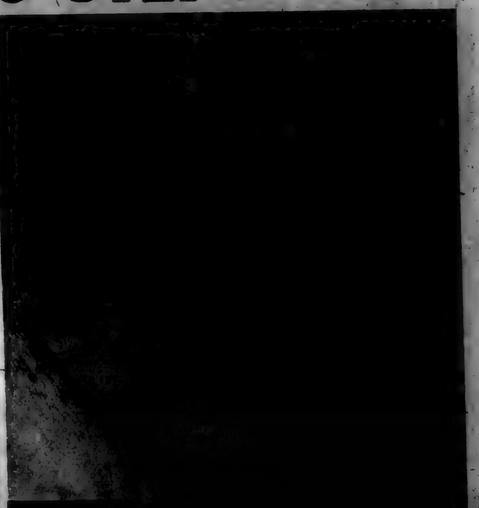
If old hoppers and waterers are to be used with new chicks, take them outdoors for a good scrubbing in hot, soapy water. Then disinfect and leave them out in the sunlight to dry. Inspect for leaks and make repairs. Old, rusty hoppers and waterers are hard to disinfect, so it may pay to replace them with new.

Keep hoppers about ⅔ filled, and add fresh feed daily. Feed the best commercial starting feed money can buy. Litter in this house is ground corn cobs. Some poultrymen prefer special bagged chick litter, chopped straw or peat moss, but long straw is not satisfactory. Cover litter with newspapers or clean sacks first three days.

Check the windows. Repair broken panes, rotted sills and frames. Be sure they close tight to prevent frigid winds from "whistling through", especially at the bottom where drafts might affect chicks. Windows that open like this permit ventilation without drafts.

Test your brooder several days before the chicks arrive so you'll have time for repairs, if needed. It should register at least 90° F. at highest setting. When chicks are underneath, temperature will go up to 95° F., about the average starting temperature for the first few days. Keep it running to dry house, drive out cresol fumes.

3 STEPS TO A BIGGER, MORE PROFITABLE PIG CROP



with KRAYLETS . . . the dry feed that's 80% dairy products in sows' and baby pigs' rations!

1 Before farrowing

The valuable dairy products in Kraylets help keep sows in vigorous health and build up husky unborn litters that have a better chance to survive.

2 After farrowing

Kraylets helps maintain lactation or full milk flow—so important in raising sturdy pigs that grow into profitable pork. And it helps maintain sows' weight during suckling period.

3 Creep feeding young pigs

Give baby pigs a fast, thrifty start by feeding small amounts of Kraylets before weaning. Kraylets, in convenient dry kernels, is ideal as first solid feed. Helps prevent costly weight set-back at weaning, too.

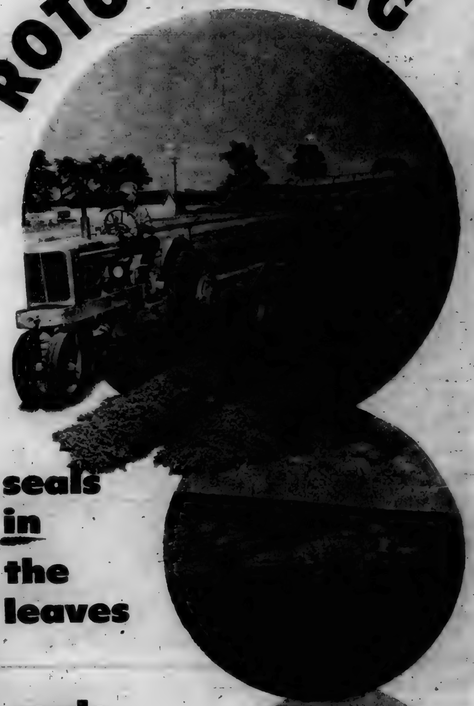
ROTO BALING



seals in the leaves

seals out the rain

The POWER DRIVEN A-C Rake steers true, makes ideal wide windrows for Roto-Baling.

Your ROTO-BALER rolls the windrow into a bale with leaves wrapped inside, protected from rain.

To feed it, you simply unroll a bale down the feedway . . . and there you have the hay just as it was in the field. The soft leafiness, the color and protein are still there.

With your own Roto-Baler, you're ready to go the hour your hay is cured. You can breathe easy when your crop is in rolled bales, for they shed rain like a thatched roof. Rolled bales store compactly, will not buckle; may be unrolled or fed whole in the open feedrack.

Pitchfork labor is no more when you Roto-Bale your hay or straw. The ONE-MAN ROTO-BALER is priced for home ownership. It's years ahead. It's Allis-Chalmers!

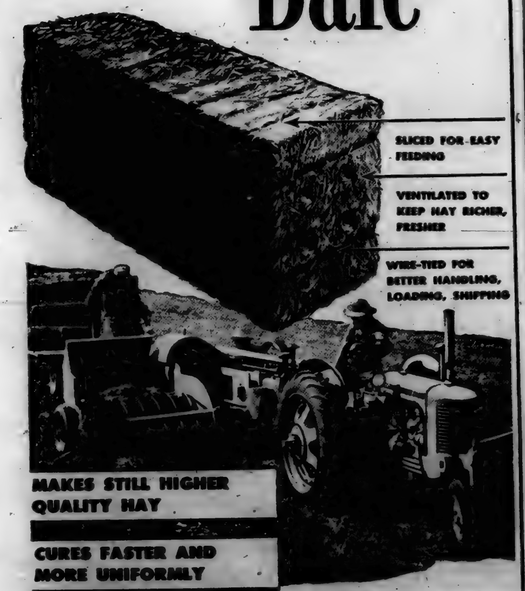
New CASE Ventilated Bale



The "NCM" Slicer-Baler for 1950 puts up ventilated bales—and it's the only baler that does. It's a proved baler, already used by more farmers than any other. And remember—it's the slicer-baler that costs less to own.

For two years an agricultural college compared ventilated bales and ordinary bales, side by side. The tests included different lots of hay, and a variety of weather—some of it very poor for hay curing. Expert hay graders did the judging. They found that the ventilated bales averaged consistently higher in grade.

Plan now to feed hay of still higher quality . . . save grain and concentrates . . . put more meat on the ribs and more milk in the pail. See your Case dealer now; learn how little it costs to have your own Case Slicer-Baler, avoid loss of leaves and quality while waiting on others.

Commercial Fertilizer

PUT IT ON, DON'T PUT IT Off!

No matter how well you farm . . . no matter how many acres of legumes you plow under . . . no matter how many tons of manure you spread, little by little, year by year, the essential plant foods required by your crops are being drained from the soil.

For example, one acre of your land producing 60 bushels of corn loses about 57 lbs. of pure nitrogen, 24 lbs. of phosphoric acid and 27 lbs. of potash. If the corn is fed on your farm and the manure promptly spread, as much as 75 percent of these precious plant foods can be returned to the land. But even so, about 20 to 30 percent will be lost to the farm forever in the milk, meat and eggs you sell for human food!

In addition to what crops take out of the soil, even more of these vital ingredients are lost by erosion leaching.

In a large part, nitrogen can be replaced by growing and plowing under properly innoculated legumes which capture it from the air and release it in the soil. But the other essentials, phosphate, potash, lime and minor elements, can only be replaced by applications of commercial fertilizer.

How you apply fertilizer to the soil may materially affect your yield results. For top yields have your soil tested, choose fertilizer of the right analysis for your soil needs, and apply it in one or more ways suggested in the photos below.

If tests indicate soil is acid, lime will be required, especially for legumes. Since lime is usually applied at heavy rates — from 2 ton to 4 tons per acre — trucks like this are often employed on a custom basis. Somewhat slower but more accurate spreading is accomplished with tractor-drawn lime and fertilizer spreaders.

Broadcasting or side-dressing of balanced fertilizers has become a popular method of application in this large corn area. Trucks can spread quickly and accurately. In the mixtures prepared, nitrogen is usually used in top-dressing portions, on legumes, and in the rotation before corn. Also applied to small grain seedings.

To complete two operations in the time of one, thousands of farmers apply fertilizer at the time of small grain planting by use of a fertilizer attachment on the grain drill. Still others accomplish the same thing by a grass seeder to their broadcast fertilizer spreader. Both methods save time and spreading costs.

Side-dress to provide extra nitrogen when corn needs it most. Some side-dress during first cultivation relying on later cultivation to work fertilizer into the soil. Others side-dress during last cultivation. Still others side-dress with depth attachments that put fertilizer in root area. Some broadcast spreaders can be [illegible] for side-dressing.

SPRING unleashes the homemaker's creative instincts — she may whip up new suits for her young fry's appearance in the Easter Parade — give her kitchen a new face — deck her hat with flowers — try out new menus with fervor and change the furniture around — put a fresh touch here and a gay one there — and all because it's spring outside and spring in her heart — and that's the way women are!

Kitchen Magic

It's hard to believe that the striking modern kitchen above (right), providing the utmost in efficiency, was made over from the small ordinary-looking kitchen at left. Typical of thousands of older, unplanned kitchens, this one had an inefficient back entry hall. Removing the partitions between the entryway and the main kitchen created an L-shaped area which was utilized to build a 4 foot circular table, providing loads of working area and storage space. Bringing the valance, which hides the lighting fixtures down 18" from ceiling and the toe space 10" up from floor makes storage space easily accessible — neither too high nor too low. The skimpy casement windows were lowered to counter height and extended around the corner, giving the kitchen an airy feeling. Against the opposite wall is an 8 foot cushioned bench, with wide arms hinged from wall to form little snack tables for four.

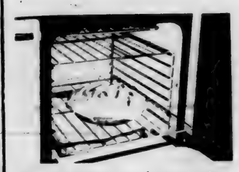
Here's that EXCITING NEW ELECTRIC RANGE

women are raving about from coast to coast!

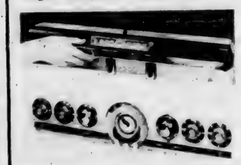
And no wonder! Just see what it does for you!



Gleaming-white oven—easiest-to-clean in the world. Rounded corners, removable racks and rack-guides give a surface as easy to clean as the inside of a mixing bowl! Bakes so evenly — no need to shift food from one rack to another! And a handy-height, full-power broiler, too!

A deep-well with a magic elevator! When you raise the handy deep-well, the fourth heating unit automatically comes up with it! You don't "dig down" for it or wait for it to cool to have an extra surface unit! This versatile deep-well also has a rack, a pudding pan and a deep-fat fry basket!

Here's a warming drawer to "warm a lady's heart"! Thermostat-controlled—just like an oven! No more worry about everything being done at the same time! If one dish is ready before the others, you can still serve them all piping hot! And it's big enough for dishes, platters and the food!



Just the lamp you've waited for! When you want to see "what's cooking", you slide this handy fluorescent lamp up . . . when through cooking, slide it down, where it blends beautifully with the modern lines of the range! It adjusts with fingertip pressure . . . and stays in any position!

Lightning-fast, heating units! In a mere matter of seconds these speed-packed units become red-hot! Each gives you seven speeds controlled by one simple dial! Certain dial-settings heat only the center coils for small pans. Saves electricity! And, these units clean themselves as you cook!

It works while you relax! Set the beautiful automatic control dial. Oven turns on, turns off, all automatically!

Springtime Saga . . .

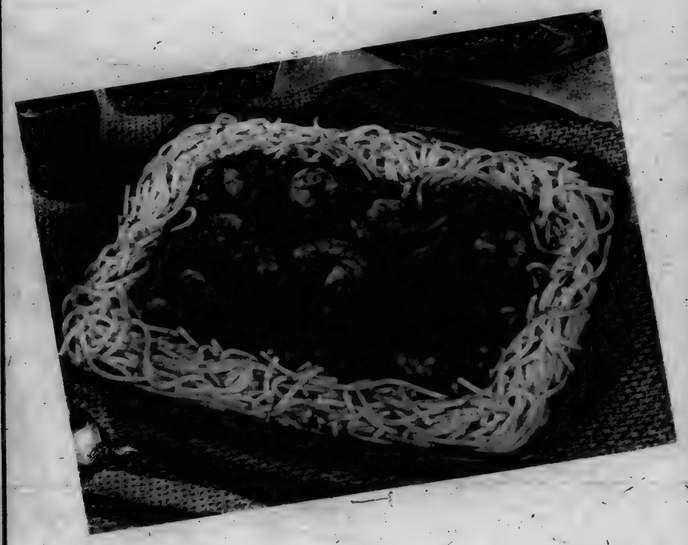
By SUSAN LOWE

THIS is a story of silvery skies and shamrock cookies . . . of balmy days and Lenten dishes . . . of trees in bud and hot cross buns . . . of Easter bonnets and Easter breakfasts.

Comes St. Pat's Day and the wearing O' the green! Chances are you'll be celebrating with a Saint Patrick's Day Party. There'll be shamrock cookies, of course. Make them thin and crisp; cut with a shamrock shaped cutter; then sprinkle green granulated sugar over the top. If it's a homey sort of party, maybe you'll serve old fashioned Irish Stew along with a dessert of Emerald Isle Custard with Green Meringue. This Emerald Isle Custard is a sort of glorified Floating Island . . . just add a few drops of green vegetable coloring to your meringue before dropping by the spoonful on to the custard to form Emerald Isle. Serve in individual dishes.

Hot Cross Buns have become a Lenten tradition and all because of an old wives' tale. 'Tis said that women in ancient times believed that ordinary bread couldn't be baked on Good Friday, and so the women baked an extra-ordinary bread — Hot Cross Buns.

No Saga of Springtime would be complete without an Easter parade. So let's lead off with a festive Easter breakfast of strawberries in cream, eggs in nests, frizzled ham and pineapple and Hot Cross Buns.



A DELIGHTFULLY DIFFERENT Lenten dish combines seafood and spaghetti.

SEAFOOD SPAGHETTI
(makes 4 servings)

½ c. finely chopped green pepper
½ c. finely chopped onion
3 tblsp. fat
1 No. 2 can tomatoes
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
½ tsp. chili powder
1 tsp. sugar
1 small bay leaf
⅛ tsp. ground cloves
4 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
2 5-ounce cans shrimp or 2 5-ounce packages frozen cooked shrimp
3 quarts boiling water
8 ounces spaghetti

Saute green pepper and onion in fat until tender. Add tomatoes, tomato sauce, chili powder, sugar, bay leaf, cloves, and 1 tsp. salt. Cook covered, stirring occasionally, over low heat 40 to 50 minutes. Add shrimp. Heat through; do not overcook. About 10 minutes before sauce is done, cook spaghetti. Add remaining 3 tsp. salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add spaghetti so water continues to boil. Cook uncovered stirring occasionally until tender. Drain in colander. Dot with butter. Place on serving dish and top with seafood sauce.

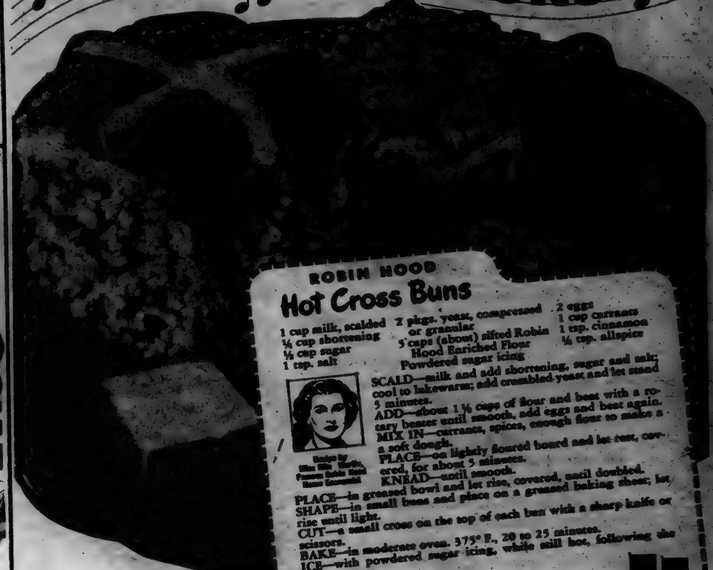
HOT CROSS BUNS



ROBIN HOOD
Hot Cross Buns

1 cup milk, scalded
¼ cup shortening
⅓ cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
2 pkgs. yeast, compressed or granular
5 cups (about) sifted Robin Hood Enriched Flour
Powdered sugar icing
2 eggs
1 cup currants
1 tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. allspice

Recipe by Mrs. Ella Rolfe, Famous Robin Hood Bake Shop Demonstrator

SCALD—milk and add shortening, sugar and salt; cool to lukewarm; add crumbled yeast and let stand 5 minutes.
ADD—about 1½ cups of flour and beat with a rotary beater until smooth, add eggs and beat again.
MIX IN—currants, spices, enough flour to make a soft dough.
PLACE—on lightly floured board and let rest, covered, for about 5 minutes.
KNEAD—until smooth.
PLACE—in greased bowl and let rise, covered, until doubled.
SHAPE—in small buns and place on a greased baking sheet; let rise until light.
CUT—a small cross on the top of each bun with a sharp knife or scissors.
BAKE—in moderate oven, 375° F., 20 to 25 minutes.
ICE—with powdered sugar icing, while still hot, following the cross on top.
YIELD—about 3 dozen buns.

Mid-Century Fashions

for a new golden era

FREEDOM is the theme for the '50s, and freedom with a flair is the special feature of the newest era in fashions, judging by the newest creations of all the top designers.

We women are going to enjoy dressing up in the latest, truly fashionable mode, for the 1950 look is much more comfortable and easier for the average woman to achieve — and still its refreshing and different! A large, blousy, roomy top, natural bustline, descending waistline, natural hip line, is replacing the nipped-in waist, bulging hipline of yesterday. Hips to knees will look slim and sleek, but skirts will have many concealed means for providing extra fullness and freedom for action. Look for full, bloused or back-pleated jackets fitting over lean skirts for the most part, or the new pleated skirts made of miraculous fabrics so that the pleats stay in — no matter how you may crush and wrinkle them.

Skirtlines are moving up a little — about an inch shorter — but Vogue says each woman should pick the length most becoming to her — best news we've heard! There will still be plenty of full flowing skirts until Fall, but the trend is toward the slim lean-looking skirt silhouette.

And now for the variations — the extra touches that are going to be fun! Watch for huge collars everywhere — and big, loose, flowing sleeves — wide, wing-like sides that make you feel practically poised for flight. Dropped shoulders, wide-sashed, lower waistlines, camisole tops, small hats molded to the head in cloche or seashell shapes, are reminiscent of the '20s — but never fear, the flour sack look of the '20s is not coming back. Just enough of that era to be charmingly nostalgic to those who remember it, and utterly different to those who don't!

HURRAY for 1950 and the MIDCENTURY LOOK —you're going to look well and wear well, from all we've seen of you!

Right, Jacque Fath's black and white plaid silk cocktail dress. Left, Gauntlet cuffs of "wood violet" faille match waistline trim for Ben Reig's black crepe dress for Spring.

Example of "larger at the top" silhouette.

Descending waistline — important feature for 1950.

Pleated and bloused backs — noted thruout 1950 collections.

Pleated chiffon — headline news in Spring fashion shows.

Pillsbury's $50,000 Prize-Winning Recipe!

Mrs. Ralph E. Smedley, Detroit, Michigan

—from Pillsbury's $100,000 GRAND NATIONAL RECIPE & BAKING CONTEST

This and 2 Other Grand Prize-Winning Recipes NOW AT YOUR GROCER'S!

Pillsbury's $50,000 No-Knead Water-Rising Twists

Adapted for your use by Ann Pillsbury

BAKE at 375° F. for 12 to 15 minutes. MAKES 2 doz. twists.

Combine.... ½ cup shortening
3 tablespoons sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup scalded milk*

Add..... 2 cakes compressed yeast, crumbled (or 2 packages dry granular yeast dissolved in ¼ cup lukewarm water); mix well.

Blend in.... 1½ cups sifted Pillsbury's Best Enriched Flour and beat until smooth. Cover and let rest 15 min.

Add..... 3 eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition.

Blend in.... 1½ cups sifted Pillsbury's Best Enriched Flour and mix thoroughly. (Dough will be quite soft.)

Let rise.... in one of two ways: (1.) Either set covered dough in warm place (80° to 90° F.) about ½ hour; (2.) or tie dough in a tea towel, allowing ample space for dough to rise. Then place in large mixing bowl and fill with water (75° to 80° F.). Let stand until dough rises to top of water, about 30 to 45 minutes. Remove from water. The dough will be soft and moist.

Combine.... ¼ cup chopped nuts (any kind)
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Divide..... dough into small pieces with a tablespoon. Roll each piece in sugar-nut mixture; stretch to about 8-inch length. Twist into desired shapes. Place on greased baking sheet. Let stand for 5 minutes.

Bake..... in moderate oven (375° F.) for 12 to 15 minutes.

*If dry yeast is used, decrease milk to ¼ cup.

You heard about it everywhere. And here it is—the food that is so unusual, so delicious that it won $50,000 in Pillsbury's $100,000 contest at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Now you can be among the first to enjoy Pillsbury's $50,000 No-Knead Water-Rising Twists. You will find them remarkably simple to prepare. They require no kneading, and rise very quickly either by regular method . . . or in water.

The $10,000 recipe for Starlight Mint Surprise cookies can be yours, too . . . and the $4,000 recipe for Aunt Carrie's Bonbon Cake. All you do is go to your grocer's and get all three grand prize-winning recipes!

SURGE TEAT CUPS JUST DON'T CREEP!

That's the big reason why in 1949 more than 20,000* Long Tube Milkers were discarded by men who switched to Surge.

So . . . during 1950 many more thousands of money-making udders will have the added protection that for 25 years only genuine Surge Milking has provided.

YOUR cows would surely appreciate the gentle but persistent TUG & PULL of the Surge that holds the teat cups down where they belong.

School Bus Driver Held On Assault Charge

Ned Keller, a St. Joe school bus driver, was booked last week in the Auburn city court on charges of assault and battery, preferred by the mother of a St. Joe high school student.

The mother, Mrs. Vivian Schaftner, of near St. Joe, charged that Keller struck her 15-year-old son, Burton Sproat. The alleged assault occurred several days ago on Keller's school bus.

Keller told police that the Sproat boy "wouldn't mind" while riding the bus.

The bus driver came to Auburn voluntarily to answer the charges in city court. His attorneys, Atkinson and Sanders of Auburn, were granted a petition by City Judge Harold D. Stump for continuance of the case.

4-H'ers Prepare For Garden Season

Now that they have received the signal - brightly colored seed catalogues - rural boys and girls throughout the nation are anxious to get started in becoming expert 4-H gardeners.

It is estimated that more than 300 thousand of these youth will take part in the 1950 National 4-H Garden program. In it they will learn how to manage a well-planed garden, carry out a program of insect and disease control and market produce in an economical and approved manner.

Through their garden project they will increase individual and family incomes by reducing the amount of food purchased. They will also contribute to better family health by producing sufficient amounts of essential and nutritious vegetables and fruits for use throughout the year. Illustrative of what 4-H'ers accomplish, club members raised 100,000 acres of gardens throughout the country last year.

Incentives for outstanding achievements in gardening include gold-filled medals of honor for four county winners, and an all-expense trip to the Chicago 4-H Club Congress next November for state champions, provided by Allis-Chalmers. Eight national winners selected from the state champions will each receive a $300 college scholarship.

Winners were named in 67 counties in Indiana last year.

The 4-H Garden program is conducted under the direction of the Cooperative Extension Service. County extension agents will furnish complete information.

C. A. WOODCOX, RESIDENT OF ST. JOE MANY YEARS, DIES

Cornelius Arlen Woodcox, 78, of St. Joe died Monday at 5:30 a.m. at the home of a son, Joe, residing two miles west of Garrett.

Mr. Woodcox, a retired painting contractor, had been ill with the flu for three weeks and pneumonia developed, resulting fatally. The body was removed to the Zimmerman funeral home in Garrett and rites were held there at 2 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. Robert J. Yunker of the Garrett Methodist church officiated and burial was in Embrey cemetery, southwest of Garrett.

Mr. Woodcox was born Jan. 11, 1872, near St. Joe. He became a school teacher while still in his teens and he followed the profession for about 20 years in the St. Joe area, Waterloo, Ind., in Iowa and at Convoy, O. For many years he was the leader of the school band at St. Joe and of the farmers' band at Coburntown. He was in the painting business all of his life except while teaching school. He retired a year and a half ago.

Mr. Woodcox and Leona Tustison of St. Joe were married in 1895 and she died in January, 1897, when their only child, now W. G. Woodcox of Garrett, was only three months old. In 1906, Mr. Woodcox and Daisy Dibert of Garrett were married. They had three children, Byron Woodcox of Hicksville, Joe Woodcox and Mary Louise Olson of Ardsley, N.Y. Surviving besides the widow and the three children are nine grandchildren, two great-grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Audrey Eichholtz of Las Vegas, N. M.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodcox had been residing temporarily in the Joe Woodcox home since last October. Mr. Woodcox was a member of St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church of St. Joe.

Fulfill An Obligation

The St. Joe News is covinced that the present trend of our national economy is detrimental to the interests of the American people. With this conviction in mind, we are asking our readers to study the following points. If your sentiments are as ours, sign the coupon and send it to the St. Joe News or stop at the News Office and sign a petition carrying the same convictions. The News intends to send the petition to our Congressmen as a fulfillment of an obligation of all citizens to let their representatives know their feelings concerning the policies of their government.

To my Congressmen:

As an American citizen I feel that the following actions are necessary to maintain the stability of my government and serve my and my neighbors' interest:

1.) Balance the budget.

2.) Reduce the cost of government in all phases, including administration and appropriation.

3.) Make a fairer distribution of a lower income tax burden; eliminate the "soak the rich" policy.

4.) Eliminate the war-time excise taxes which were levied for "emergency" purposes and reduce those which were previously in existence and raised during the war.

5.) Strive for legislation which gives the American citizen the chance and OBLIGATION to live on the merits of his efforts, depending less on governmental aid in the form of subsidies, etc., which aid certain groups at the expense of all.

6.) Stop the Social Security program from continuing in its present compulsory path before it becomes an economic monster depriving me of my independence.

Life's Greatest Gambol

Discipline Was In Order

A local school bus driver has been charged with assault and battery by a mother of one of the students who ride his bus.

The affair was the result of trying to make certain no students would be left behind at the end of the school day, as happened just a few days before the "assault" occurred. The driver made a seating chart to facilitate checking the students, but met with some opposition on the part of the youngsters. One had to be bodily moved to his assigned seat, and in the course of this action was slapped once or twice for emphasis. This brought on the assault charges.

Now, we're not saying that the slapping was in the best taste. But school bus drivers are only human; and when one individual blocks progress, we're all somewhat inclined to "get 'em out of the way." We do say that discipline WAS in order. There is a certain amount of lack of respect for those in authority on the part of some of the younger set which could disrupt all semblance of order not just on the school bus but in the classroom and even at home.

In ten or fifteen years these youngsters will understand more clearly what we mean.

LARGER SHEEP NUMBERS COULD TAX PASTURES

Indiana farmers reversed the trend of steadily declining sheep numbers to one of significant increases this year. On Jan. 1 Hoosier farmers reported 370,000 stock sheep on farms as compared with 359,000 sheep a year ago at that time.

This increased interest in sheep production will likewise increase the demands on good pasture to be shared by the flock and other livestock. Practical production of quality native lambs depends upon plenty of satisfactory milk from the mothers and supplementary feeds in the feed lot or in the pasture.

Henry Mayo, extension animal husbandryman at Purdue University, said that the successful producer of native lambs always plans to have more high quality, succulent pasture than he will ordinarily use. Ideal summer pastures are mixtures of legumes and grasses such as ladino clover, red clover and alfalfa mixed with timothy or brome grass. Another good summer pasture is spring oats and sweet clover. Lespedeza or a mixture of lespedeza and orchard grass is an excellent pasture where adaptable.

The Purdue man recommends that the flockowner lime the pasture if necessary and use the correct fertilizers. Lambs nursing heavy milking ewes which have plenty of good legume pasture will often weigh from 80 to 100 pounds and sell at top market prices at weaning time.

Helpful bulletins for the sheep raiser available free from county agents offices or the University are: "Sheep Management," 353, "Alfalfa-Brome-Grass Makes Good Pasture," No. 290 and "Essentials for Growing Alfalfa," No. 242.

For The Easter Parade

You will look no prettier parading in your Easter bonnet than this Easter Glory Cake will look on your dinner table!

The texture of the cake itself is fine and light; and it is covered all over with a fluffy frosting, tinted a soft, sunny yellow. On top are little nests made of green tinted coconut and filled with gay jelly bean eggs. If you prefer, you can toast the coconut lightly instead of tinting it — to give a more natural nest effect.

There are two ways to toast coconut — both simple and easy. (1) To toast in the oven: Spread coconut out thinly in shallow pan. Place in moderate oven (350°F.) and toast until delicately browned. Stir coconut or shake pan often to toast evenly. (2) To saute: Melt 1 tablespoon butter in a skillet. Add 1 cup shredded coconut and saute until coconut is golden brown.

Easter Glory Cake

2¼ cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
⅓ cup shortening
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs, unbeaten
*Milk (see below for amount)
1 teaspoon vanilla

*With butter, margarine, or lard, use 1 cup milk. With vegetable or any other shortening use 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons milk.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, beating very thoroughly after each. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla.

Turn into two deep 9-inch layer pans which have been lined on bottoms with paper, then greased. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 25 to 30 minutes.

Spread Seven Minute Frosting, tinted a delicate yellow, between layers and on top and sides of cake. Tint shredded coconut a delicate green. Arrange five small coconut nests around top of cake; fill centers with colored jelly beans.

World-Wide Church

Lesson for March 26, 1950

GOD WORKS his purposes out in ways that not even the wisest of his servants can foresee. A beautiful example of this is the way Paul went to Rome. Long before he saw that city he wanted to preach there. All roads led to Rome, as they do to all world-capitals, and people went there from everywhere.

World Horizon

When Paul writes to his "penfriends" at Rome (15:22-29) of a projected trip to Jerusalem and Spain, taking in Rome on the way, he was laying out a trip to the east and west ends of civilization, the jumping-off places. His plan was as ambitious as if a modern evangelist would write to some church in India: "I aim to visit Iceland and Japan, and call on you on the way out."

Dr. Foreman

Bond Voyage

PAUL EXPECTED to go to Rome a free man, his ticket (so to speak) reading on through Spain. Actually that was the end of his run. He went there under military guard, prisoner under sentence. The story is all there in Acts, how first he was jailed for protection from a blood-hungry mob, then kept in jail on general principles (which is to say, the governor kept hoping he would pay well for an acquittal), and finally appealed to Rome, the highest court of the empire. Appeals were expensive and slow, then as now.

But Paul must have come to look at his imprisonment, false as it was, as a heaven-sent opportunity to make that journey to Rome. It was a gilt-edged accident insurance. Free, he might never escape the plotters and reach Rome alive. Chained, the efficient Roman army would see that he arrived—and he did.

Four pairs of eyes were on him night and day. No plotter could stick him with a dagger or shove him overboard. So—after some hair-breadth escapes to be sure—he was delivered safe and sound in the very city of which he had been dreaming all these years.

The Church at the Hub Of the World

THERE IS NOTHING at all in the New Testament to indicate that the church at Rome was considered, by Paul or any one else, as The Church, or the Mother Church. There is no claim that it was founded by St. Paul, still less by St. Peter.

It grew, as other churches grew, by infiltration. Christians who moved to the big city would get together, and there the church would be. Yet, of course, the Roman church was important.

It was important because it was at the hub of the civilized world. Paul did not seem to mind it in the least, that he could work only inside his prison, or "confined to quarters."

Writing from his jail cell to the Philippians, he mentions converts from the army and from the imperial slaves. ("Caesar's household" in Phil. 4:22 does not refer to the Emperor's family, but to the retinue of palace slaves.) We know from the letter to Philemon that Paul converted at least one "jailbird" named Onesimus.

The True Church Is A Marching Church

PAUL KNEW that a soul is a soul, sitting in the emperor's chair or waiting at the emperor's table. God is no respecter of persons. But he also knew that these Christian soldiers would not always stay in Rome; that even Christian slaves would be sold down the river; that the restless feet which brought their owners to Rome would take them away again. Great cities are like that.

Putting down Christianity in Rome was not like putting a single seed into a sheltered corner of the garden. It was like scattering a handful of it to the breeze, to be carried far and wide. Paul's vision is still the vision of the church at its best. The true church marches on, along the highroads and byroads of the world.

We shall never be content with a narrow, sheltered Christianity. We cannot be satisfied with half-world religion. Only world-Christianity matches the grandeur of the New Testament ideal.

Mexico City
Feb. 22, 1950

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

We have enjoyed our stay in Mexico City and espesially our rooms and food at the Hotel Del Prado so much that it is with a feeling of regret that we drive away to continue our journey on to Acapulco. The American Embassy and many officials in the Mexican government were particularly friendly and helpful in giving us much desired information. It was sometimes inconvenient, but if it seemed to be the least bit embarassing an interpreter was procured at once. The visitor from the United States is very welcome for last year he spent over $133,000,000 in Mexico.

Mexico City is a very modern city offering many places of interest such as the Colonial churches and government buildings built three or four centuries ago. And then you find modern hotels and office buildings, wide boulevards and residential areas featuring many beautiful Spanish type homes. The Mexican people are very much interested in sports which is proven by the sell out crowds at the Plaza Mexico, a circular bowl seating 50,000 for the bull fights every Sunday, the football stadium near by seating 65,000 for both Rugby and American football, several arenas for basketball, numerous Jai Lai frontons and by the many public baseball fields scattered throughout the city. Mexico's race track is one of the finest in the world with horse racing a feature from November to June.

We find driving no problem in most cities except Mexico City where there are few policemen to direct traffic and almost no stop lights. Traffic here is very heavy most of the time and everybody keeps going it seems until someone gets in his way forcing him to slow up or stop. You just keep edging in until you finally get through. Mexico City is "the horn tooting town of North America." Here you step on the gas, shut your eyes, blow your horn and away you go. And really traffic moves faster with fewer accidents.

In a letter it is impossible to enumerate all of the points of interest, for there are quaint sights and a never ending flow of new and breathtaking experiences. The Zocalo or main square is almost a park in the center of the city and marks the former center of the Aztec Empire. On the ground now stands the impressive Cathedral started in 1563 and finished in 1813. In it are numerous paintings by famous masters and tombs of Agustin de Iturbide, Gregorio Lopez and others. The Sagario Metropolitano an example of flowery Mexican style with several beautiful paintings is near by and next to it the Artistic Museum. The National Pawn Shop and the National Palace, which has served many functions and whose walls have been destroyed and rebuilt several times, are both interesting because of the history of both.

The Palace of Fine Arts, all marble, a modern building housing the National Museum of Pictorial Art, was started in 1904 and finished in 1933.

Iturbide Palace, where Emperor Iturbide once resided, Chapultapec Castle and Park where Maximilian and Carlota lived while he was Emperor and which still houses much of the furniture used by them and Escuela Nacional Preparatoria built by Jesuits in 1749 and displaying murals by famous men, are sights that of course can only be found in a country representing the oldest civilization in the Americas.

The National Library, School of Medicine and Department of Education were interesting but we spent more time in the Department of Communicaions and Public Works for in this so much of Mexico's progress depends.

Around and near the city are many interesting places which we shall describe when we pass through them.

Sincerely,
O. D. Wearley

ORDER OF EASTERN STAR INSTALLS OFFICERS

On Thursday, March 16, the Order of the Eastern Star held its formal installation at the Spencerville Fire Hall.

The ceremony opened with a prayer and song. New installations were made by Mrs. Agnes Paschen, installation officer, Maryella Dilley, installation marshall, and Ruth Butler, installation chaplain.

Louise Zimmerman sang "Always" after the installation of Mrs. Lois Fisher as Worthy Matron. Then the other officers were installed and Mrs. Fisher took charge of the meeting. She read a poem entitled "The New Year."

Fara Lee Baidinger presented a gift on behalf of the chapter to the retiring Matron, Mrs. Louise Zimmerman. A song was sung by Mrs. Fisher to the tune of "That Wonderful Mother of Mine" titled "You Were A Wonderful Matron." She then made some remarks for the good of the order. After another song, "I Would Be True," was sung, the ceremony closed with a prayer. Refreshments were then served.

Officers installed were as follows: Worthy Matron, Lois Fisher; Associate Matron, Fara Lee Baidinger, Worthy Patron, James Jordan; Associate Patron, Clifford Billow; Secretary, Zelpha Steward; Treasurer, Cleo Reed; Conductress, Mildred Jordan; Associate Conductress, Edith McGrath; Organist, Janice Bowser; Marshall, Louise Zimmerman; Chaplain, Ethelyn Miller; Ada, Evelyn Brendel; Ruth, Rose Anthony; Esther, Marge Brattain; Martha, Ruth Weninger; Electa, Garnet Furnish; Warden, Ilif Ringenberg; Sentinel, Katherine Shockley; and Prompter, Clara Brattain.

The next regular meeting will be held at the Spencerville Fire Hall on April 6 at 7:30 p.m.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

INFANTILE ECZEMA

INFANTILE eczema is a mother's dilemma. What causes her baby to break out in an unsightly rash? Is it some blood disorder? Is it really serious? Will it disappear? These are questions which come to the mother's mind.

Infantile eczema is common during the first few months of life. The cause is usually an allergy to foods given the infant, in addition to milk. All eczemas are not caused by food, for soap or wool on a sensitive skin will also produce a rash.

An infant whose diet consists of milk with added carbohydrate, cereal, cod liver oil, and orange juice sometimes will show a rash on its cheeks. As the condition progresses, the rash spreads to the forehead, chin, legs, wrists and forearms. The anxious mother now becomes alarmed and calls the doctor.

In diagnosis of infantile eczema, the doctor will consider the family history, for, as a rule, if a child has eczema, other members of the family have had it, or hay fever, or asthma. The elimination of certain foods, one at a time, from the diet for a week will show if any of these are the cause. Milk, eggs and wheat are the three main offenders.

Eczema may appear within the first few days of life, but it is more common at about the third month or thereabouts. Baby will likely get over the eczema, although in many instances some other allergic disturbance will develop.

BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

The St. Joe Business Men's Association held a meeting Monday night at the town hall.

John L. Haverstock gave a final report on efforts to bring a factory to St. Joe after which Ed Storer, the retiring chairman, installed Roy Reidenbach as chairman for the coming year and Ted Haberkorn as secretary.

Discussion was held concerning the free movies which will again be sponsored by the organization this year. In connection with the movies, it was decided to sell the movie projector and equipment which the business men own since there is no further use for it.

A new committee was appointed for the coming year for further action in bringing a factory or industry to St. Joe. The members of this committee are Derwood Ridgway (chairman), Ed Storer and Ted Haberkorn.

CONCORD TWP. HOME EC

The Concord Twp. Home Ec Club met Friday, March 17, at the home of Mrs. Doris Yeiser. The meeting was called to order by the president after which the opening song, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," was sung. Devotions were given by Mrs. Kathryn Haller. The creed was read in unison followed by the prayer song.

The project lesson, "Master Mix," was continued from last meeting and given by Mrs. Myrtle Pugsley and Mrs. Laura Washler. After the lesson, the president gave dates of some future county programs.

Talks were given by Lookout leader, Mrs. Ella Meyers, and Preservation Leader, Mrs. Mary Washler. The secretary's report was read and twenty-four members responded to roll call with "St. Patricks." There were two guests, Miss Naoma Norman and Mrs. Mabel Baker. One new member, Mrs. Mabel Baker, was added to the membership list.

Mrs. Lula Armstrong conducted an interesting contest. The door prize was given to Bernice Sechler. A lunch of open-faced sandwiches, pickles, apple-crisp and coffee was served by the hostess and committee, Mrs. Edna Jenkins and Mrs. Violet Kline.

The April meeting place will be announced later.

NUISANCE CLUB

The Nuisance Club began its regular meetings after a two-week vacation due to the coal strike. There were twenty- one members present.

The club is planning on having a Bake Sale on Saturday, April 1,

The next meeting will be on Thursday, March 23. All members are urged to attend.

SCHOOL TRAINING HELPS DRIVERS

High school driver training is described by safety experts as the best solution to the nation's traffic accident toll of 31,500 lives and 1,100,000 personal injuries on the highways.

Immediate reduction of accidents by 50 percent was reported in Cleveland after driver training with behind-the-wheel instruction was introduced into the high schools. Analysis of driving records of 2352 Cleveland students showed that trained drivers had 2.80 accidents per 1,000 months of driving while untrained drivers had 5.38 accidents per 1,000 months of driving.

Trained students had 16 percent fewer traffic violation convictions during a two-year period.

In Illinois and Indiana over 240 high schools offer behind-the-wheel instruction with the cooperation of the Chicago Motor Club. Local dealers provide new cars on loan to the schools. The motor club trains the teachers, donates dual controls and provides free classroom materials, booklets, films and posters and text books at cost.

"High school youngsters do not become good drivers by chance," Chas. M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor Club, said. "Good driving habits are the result of prepared teaching, clear instruction and frequent repetition. Haphazard training is reflected in the present accident rates."

Farm

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

OFTEN overlooked in these years of record farm production is the fact that America's sheep population is currently at its lowest ebb since the Civil War. Without going into the reasons behind the decrease, it behooves producers to save every possible newborn lamb this spring.

Lots of lambs are lost from the average farm flock, representing a direct loss of income—as well as loss of valuable feed. The farmer can start saving lambs before they are born by exercising great care of the ewe. Guard them from injury, see that they get a fair amount of exercise and are not confined too much. Digestive difficulties, common at this period, can be overcome through the feeding of succulent or wet rations.

Healthy lambs from well-managed ewes require little attention after birth. But during lambing some cases will need extra attention—squeezing the chest to start breathing, clearance of air passages, and the use of stimulants to get the little fellows kicking. The next important job—one which Nature usually takes care of—is to get the lamb nursing. That first milk contains some very important nutritional qualities, including a laxative and a concentration of vitamin A. Within two or three days after birth the lambs are ready to add grain and hay to their diet. Then they're on their way to rapid, thrifty growth.

Incidentally, ewes with dead lambs should be given another lamb to raise. This can be done by tying the skinned hide of the dead animal on an orphan or spare twin. This usually will induce the ewe to adopt a foster child.

British Frustrated By "Top Button" Medicine

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

CARDIFF, Wales—Twenty-six people are crowded into a doctor's waiting room. Some of them look sick. Some of them look as if they are trying to look sick. Four of them are laughing and talking together.

The doctor is about to give an hour to seeing his office patients. He does this three times a day.

NOLAND

The door to the inner office opens and the doctor looks over his patients and nods to the woman nearest his door. She goes in. The silence which fell when he opened the door is broken as he closes it. The people start to talk again.

One man wants more food. "My brother got an order for a better ration by saying he feels weak when he goes to work. It took four visits to get the doctor to sign, but he finally signed. Maybe I can get more meat if I keep after him long enough."

"Wear Him Down!"

Another chimes in: "This is my third visit. I just tell him my head hurts and I feel dizzy of mornings. I never get the answers to suit him when he asks questions. Others where I work have worn him down that way and I can, too."

So it goes. Inside, the doctor is checking up on his really sick patients, writing prescriptions and keeping his records. A third of his time goes to filling out government forms, and under British socialized medicine he is not allowed the expense of hiring a secretary.

Most of the time he is practicing what the British call "top button medicine." This consists of unbuttoning the top button of the patient's shirt, squirming a stethoscope inside, and listening.

3 Minutes to a Patient

That's about all a doctor has time to do when the patient looks all right, and the M.D. has to average about three minutes to a patient in order to have time for his house calls and filling out the government papers. Since the government pays him $2.62 a year for each patient he has to be careful to have the papers right.

Try as he will, the doctor cannot possibly do a good job. Much of his time is given not to treating the sick and hurt, but to matching wits with loafers who have traded symptom experiences with other loafers until they have become expert in annoying a conscientious doctor. Finally, in desperation, the doctor orders them to stay home on sick pay, or unloads them on a hospital waiting list, or stalls them off some more by writing harmless prescriptions which they get filled for a token fee of 14 cents.

"Give Us This Day . . ."

The British goal of adequate health service for all people is approved by nearly all Britons. They feel the same as Americans do—that a way should be found to apply the benefits of modern medical miracles to every citizen who will do his part to get protection.

But the British made the mistake of setting so-called "free" medical service into the Socialist program of making the citizen entirely dependent on the state. The result is that Britain has overloaded its doctors and hospitals and has created a whole new class of complainers and fakers.

There is a saying now heard all over Britain: "In the liturgy of Socialism is the craven prayer; 'Give us this day our day in bed.'"

Farm

By EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

GOING to start a brood of baby chicks this spring? You know, poultry raising is becoming more and more specialized every year, so you'll find a wide choice of chick varieties at the local hatchery.

If your poultry venture is to come out on the right side of the profit-and-loss ledger, you'll want to exercise care in the selection of a proper type of bird for your particular needs. What are you going to use the chickens for—high egg production, poultry meat for the market, or a combination of meat and eggs?

Whatever you decide, there is a variety of chick tailored to your specifications. If it's egg production, poultry specialists suggest trying the hybrid chicks—Hy-Lines, a new variety bred like hybrid corn—or the better strains of White Leghorns. The meat producers with the lowest feed investment per pound of grain include New Hampshires, Neel Barred Rocks or Indian River Cross.

For the magic combination of both meat and eggs, they recommend White Rocks, dual-purpose New Hampshires and the meat-producing Indian River Cross. With this latter strain, the cockerels are top meat quality birds, and the pullets make fine layers.

The next consideration in buying baby chicks is the size of the flock. If you are planning a small flock of 50 to 150 layers, the dual-purpose or egg breeds are probably your best bet. The small flock needs only a minimum of care, keeps the family table supplied, and maybe brings in a little extra money.

Specialization is the key to successfully raising a large flock, say from 300 to 1,000 layers. Whether it's eggs or meat, the very best varieties for either purpose should be selected. A few extra dozen eggs or fractions of a pound of meat per bird can add up to extra dollars for the large-scale producer.

CULTURE CLUB

The regular meeting of the Culture Club was held Wednesday evening, March 8, at the home of Mrs. Lynn Fisher.

The meeting was opened by the reading of the club collect. Mrs. Virgil Laux read a poem entitled "Thy Way, Oh Lord," written by Horatius Bomar, as the devotions for the evening. Mrs. Ray Reasoner, lesson leader, chose two articles from the Reader's Digest for the lesson of the evening. The articles were "A Way To Lessen World Hunger" and "A Workable Cue To Happiness and Personality."

The regular business meeting followed. Roll call was held with nineteen regular members answering with a humorous joke. The meeting was then adjourned.

The special work for the evening was in charge of Mrs. Merle Furnish who conducted a lesson in handicraft work.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Baidinger, served a delicious lunch.

The next meeting will be the annual guest night and will be held at the Legion Home in St. Joe. It was postponed previously because of the coal shortage.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

Mrs. Claude Laub was hostess to the Ladies Literary Club on March 15.

The collect was read by Mrs. Weldon Shafer after which the lesson on "Indiana Cities and Their Industries" was given in an interesting presentation by Mrs. Carl Carpenter and Mrs. Don McElroy.

The course of study for the club next year will be Miscellaneous Topics. There will be a debate, a book review and work on health.

Mrs. Carlos Church has asked to be transferred from the active to the honorary membership roll. New words for the club's vocabulary are "euthenasia" and "gimmick."

Members voted into the club recently are Mrs. Henry Lung, Mrs. Calvin Lessing and Mrs. Harold Baker.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Stanley Means. The lesson will be "Indiana Schools and Colleges" and will be given by one of the club's honorary members, Miss Janalyce Rouls, from Purdue University.

SOYBEAN PRICES APPROACH STABILITY

Although the soybean industry has been undergoing revolutionary changes in the past decade, it is coming to an equilibrium so that a price analysis of the three major products of the industry, recently completed by Purdue University agricultural economists, can now have prediction value.

A new bulletin, "Prices of Soybeans and Soybean Products," written by Dr. Don Paarlberg of the Purdue staff, and published by the Agricultural Experiment Station, is now available free from county agent offices or the University. The bulletin discusses soybeans, soybean meal and sopbean oil in relation to trends in production, purchasing power, season variations and other factors of these products.

In the Purdue study it was shown that the price level, supply and the price of a competing product were the most important influences on the prices of the products. For example, Dr. Paarlberg points out that the price of soybeans is associated with many different factors, such as acreage of soybeans, the price of corn and other causes.

Dr. Paarlberg said, however, that the report will need to be interpreted with more caution than would a study of a product which had long been in equilibrium or in a steady condition.

Alice L. Hart, 98, Passes On

A pioneer DeKalb county woman and one of the oldest residents of the county, Mrs. Alice L. Hart, 98, died at 12:45 p. m. Sunday at the home of her son, Clyde Hart, of near Coburn's Corners, three miles east of Spencerville.

Her body was removed to the Walter Funeral Home at Spencerville for burial preparations and was returned at noon Monday to the son's residence. At noon Tuesday the body was taken to the Coburn's Corners Church of Christ for final rites at 2 p.m. Darris D. Hamilton, pastor of the church, officiated at the services with burial in Alton cemetery north of the church.

Mrs. Hart's death was attributed to senility and complications. She had been bedfast for three weeks preceding her death. Until the past year, when her health began failing, she was active despite her advanced age.

A native of Trumbull county, O., she was born near Warren, Aug. 9, 1851, the daughter of the late Homer and Electra Abel. She was the youngest of 10 children. In 1837, her parents came to the present site of Coburntown and purchased a quarter section of land from the government. Several years later, the couple returned to Ohio, leaving the older children to operate the farm. Mrs. Hart was born while they were in Ohio. When she was 3, the family returned to Coburntown. The land the Abels purchased from the government remains in the family.

When Mrs. Hart was 10, the Civil war between the states broke out. She recalled vividly when three of her brothers entered service. She also decribed her first trip to Fort Wayne when the canal from Fort Wayne to Toledo was in operation.

On Nov. 11, 1860, she was married to Washington Hart. He died July 4, 1908. Mr. Hart was a brick maker by trade and operated kilns on the farm where the son, Clyde, now lives. The couple built the present home on the farm in 1876.

Surviving, besides the son, Clyde, are two other sons, Clarence Hart of Kent, O., and Fred Hart of near Coburn's Corners; seven grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. Three sons preceded her in death. Adrian died in 1946 at Hicksville, Ray died at the age of 1 and Charles died in infancy.

Local Youth Dies

Final rites for 17-year-old Richard (Dick) Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith of near St. Joe, were conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Johnson Funeral Home in Butler.

The youth died at 8:05 p.m. Saturday in the Methodist Hospital in Ft. Wayne. He had been ill for over a year with leukemia. He entered the hospital 26 days ago.

At Tuesday's services, the Rev. J. F. Bright of Butler, pastor of the Evangelical United Brethren circuit, larger parish, officiated. Burial was in the Knights of Pythias cemetery at St. Joe.

Richard was born Aug. 5, 1932, on the farm nine miles east of Auburn where his parents reside. He attended the St. Joe schools before he was stricken with the blood disease.

Surviving besides the parents are two sisters, Mrs. Huber Carr of near Butler and Mrs. William Roop of east of Auburn, and the maternal grandfather, Amos Gambel, of Lima, O. Mrs. Carr's son, five-year-old Jimmie, was buried Sunday afternoon. He died of pneumonia Friday morning.

Fulfill An Obligation

The St. Joe News is covinced that the present trend of our national economy is detrimental to the interests of the American people. With this conviction in mind, we are asking our readers to study the following points. If your sentiments are as ours, sign the coupon and send it to the St. Joe News or stop at the News Office and sign a petition carrying the same convictions. The News intends to send the petition to our Congressmen as a fulfillment of an obligation of all citizens to let their representatives know their feelings concerning the policies of their government.

To my Congressmen:

As an American citizen I feel that the following actions are necessary to maintain the stability of my government and serve my and my neighbors' interest:

1.) Balance the budget.

2.) Reduce the cost of government in all phases, including administration and appropriation.

3.) Make a fairer distribution of a lower income tax burden; eliminate the "soak the rich" policy.

4.) Eliminate the war-time excise taxes which were levied for "emergency" purposes and reduce those which were previously in existence and raised during the war.

5.) Strive for legislation which gives the American citizen the chance and OBLIGATION to live on the merits of his efforts, depending less on governmental aid in the form of subsidies, etc., which aid certain groups at the expense of all.

6.) Stop the Social Security program from continuing in its present compulsory path before it becomes an economic monster depriving me of my independence.

A Room Full of Noses

SOME FACTS ABOUT

Automotive Excise Taxes

Federal automotive excises are SPECIAL taxes on cars, trucks, repair parts, tires, tubes, accessories, gasoline and lubricants. They're in addition to GENERAL federal, state and local taxes.

Federal excises apply to no other kinds of vehicles. Most excises are on "luxury" items - alcoholic beverages, tobacco, jewelry, furs, amusement tickets, and so on.

Automotive excises were put in force in World War I, and repealed afterward. In 1932, they were imposed again for emergency revenues, with Congress promising to repeal them quickly. Instead they're still in force. The rates were doubled in 1941, for war revenue and to discourage wartime motoring.

They add about $100 to the price of the average car, and $76 to average truck prices.

TRANSPLANT TREES WHILE DORMANT

Tree planting time, which began as early as Feb. for Hoosiers, may continue into April or as long as trees remain dormant.

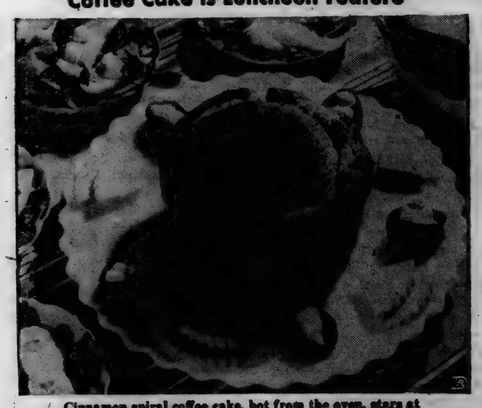
R. B. Hull, extension landscape architect, Purdue University, advises that fleshy rooted trees such as Flowering Dogwood, Sour Gum, Sassafras, Tulip trees and Magnolia, are best planted in the spring, (late March if weather is favorable). But the important guide for planting is that soil should not be too wet and particularly if the tree is to be planted in heavy soils there should not be puddling as this condition of the soil structure is unfavorable to growth.

Hull points out that nursery-grown trees usually become established more quickly than do collected trees since the transplanting in the nursery and growth in a soil favorable to root development insures a concentrated root system near the base of the tree.

Among the tips given by the Purdue man on tree care in the Purdue Agricultural Extension bulletin "Trees, Their Planting and Care," are: select trees of good form and those that show indication of vigorous growth; once the tree has been dug, the roots should be wrapped to protect against drying and should never be exposed to freezing temperature. Another precaution is that smooth barked trees should be wrapped to prevent sun scald. If the transplanted tree is six feet or more high it will be well to anchor the tree to guard against wind damage.

Copies of the bulletin are available free from the county agricultural agent or the University.

Coffee Cake is Luncheon Feature



Cinnamon spiral coffee cake, hot from the oven, stars at a light luncheon of fruit salads and cheese.

When you plan menus around fruit platters and crisp vegetable salads, be sure to include one hot food at the meal. Hot pan rolls, yeast breads or quick coffee cakes are an excellent choice, for they satisfy hungry folks, and complete the menu nutritionally, too. These enriched breads are a good source of the B-vitamins and iron important for good health.

Cinnamon spiral coffee cake is a new member of the family of yeast breads. The home baker will enjoy making it, for it is easy to shape. A roll of the sweet dough is coiled round and round in a tube pan. Cinnamon and nuts go on each layer to make the bread spicy and good.

Serve cinnamon spiral coffee cake on a large plate, garnishing with stuffed prunes and cheese wedges. Cheese in the picture was cut with scalloped cookie cutter, then quartered. Complete the menu with fruit salads and baked custard.

CINNAMON SPIRAL COFFEE CAKE

1 package yeast, compressed or dry
½ cup lukewarm water
½ cup milk
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons melted shortening
2½ cups sifted enriched flour (about)
1 egg, beaten
Melted butter or margarine
Cinnamon-sugar
½ cup chopped nuts

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Add enough more flour to make a thick batter. Mix well. Add softened yeast and egg. Beat well. Add more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until smooth and satiny. Place in greased bowl. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled (about 1½ hours). When light, punch down. Let rest 10 minutes. Divide dough in half. Roll under hand to 1 inch thickness. Coil around in greased ring mold 6½ inches in diameter, brushing between each roll with melted butter or margarine and sprinkling with cinnamon sugar and chopped nuts. Bake in moderate oven. (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes.

Makes two cinnamon spiral coffee cakes.

Trial and Triumph

Lesson for April 2, 1950

IF YOU HAD BEEN on the top of the city wall on that first Palm Sunday, watching the crowds roaring into Jerusalem, and some one had told you that all the shouting was for Jesus of Nazareth, you would certainly have thought that his success was assured. Here, surely, was a King who had arrived!

Dr. Foreman

But before the week was out you would have seen this same Jesus on trial for his life, and not a voice raised in his defense. The same dusty-throated mob on that Sunday shouted "Hosanna! Blessed is He!" was shrieking on Friday morning, "Crucify him!"

Flowery Beds or Bloody Seas?

There is a popular notion floating around to the effect that God gives good people an easy time. It is not always put just that way. But when a man who has been good (or thinks he has, or has tried to be), runs into trouble, he asks right away, "Why must this happen to Me?" The truth of the matter is better expressed in the lines of an old hymn:

"Must I be carried to the skies
On flowery beds of ease,
While others fought to win the prize,
Or sailed through bloody seas?"

Jesus was incomparably the best who ever lived; yet his moments of popularity were short, and he was finally tortured and killed by the leaders of church and state, amid the jeering approval of masses of the people.

He himself said that any follower of his must be willing to take up his own cross. "In the world you will have tribulation," he said to his disciples.

All Tyrants Hate the Church

THE MORE GENUINELY Christian the church is, the more it is likely to run into opposition. There are several reasons for this. For one thing, the church stands for love, and the generosity and unselfishness, the sympathy and even the sacrifice that go with love and are produced by it. But "what makes the world go 'round," —the world of the politician, the money-maker, the social climber, the war-maker, the world of the power-thirsty in every sphere—what makes that world go 'round is pride, selfishness, shoving-ahead, Me-firstness. The selfish and the proud do not take kindly to love of the Christian sort, indeed they despise it as a weakness.

But the church, when it is a true church, stands up for Humanity even when it has to stand against Profits; and the man for whom Profit is the first law of life never understands the attitude of the church. Then the church (when it is a real one) always stands for the people against the Tyrant, whoever and wherever he may be, even when he is in some church himself.

And consequently all tyrants hate the church. The Roman emperors hated it and persecuted it till they found they could use it (which, by the way, was a bad day for the church). Mohammed, a tyrant of sorts, hated the Christian church and would have totally destroyed it if he could.

Victory—When?

"IF WE SUFFER with him we shall also reign with him," said St. Paul. But when and how? The end of the church's struggles could come in either of two ways. One way would be for the church to give up struggling against the world. Let the church become a club for the sociable, let the church raise no voice of protest against injustice in society, against untruth, violence and greed; let the church give in to the world, in short, and she will have no further trouble from the world.

But in that case she would be dead. Another way is for the church finally to overcome the world. The triumph of the true church is the same as the triumph of divine Love.

That is the future to which the Bible bids us look. When? We do not know. But the Kingdom comes "one heart at a time," and with every soul the church wins from the world-way to the Christ-way, the victory of Love draws nearer.

Cuernavaca, Morelos, Mexico
Feb. 28, 1950

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Cuernavaca, capitol of the state of Morelos, population about 28.-000, altitude 5000 feet, only forty-seven miles south of Mexico City, known for centuries as a comfortable resort, has probably the most ideal weather of any city in Mexico. It has tried to go modern by establishing several wide boulevards through the city but most of the streets are so narrow that it is necessary to have one way streets.

The Aztec emperors made their summer homes here followed later by Cortes, practically all the rulers of Mexico and Jose de la Borda, the silver king, who built a large home with a garden covering a large city block enclosed by a high stone wall. It is reported that he spent a million pesos on the garden with stone walks, sunken gardens, very large swimming pool and numerous fountains. This was probably built about 1725 and, although some repairs may have been made from time to time, it is in very bad condition. When we walked through we realized that it must have been a magnificent place. It should be repaired and placed in its original condition. The church of Guadalupe, erected on the corner of the estate by Borda's son, was used as a chapel by the family and is the burial place of Borda. Maximilian and Carlotta used it as their summer home in 1864.

The Palacio de Cortes started in 1530 but rebuilt several times is the home of the state government. It contains many interesting paintings and sculptures. Ambassador Dwight Morrow who particularly liked Cuernavaca gave the Palacio some murals by Diego Rivera.

Many other places of interest are located near such as the cave of Cocahuanilpa, largest known cave in Mexico. The caves have been formed by two hidden rivers which unite at the entrance. Beautiful formations in many corridors are comparable to those of other known caves in the world. More exploration in this cave would probably discover many more sections, some of which are known to exist, but not much effort has been made. Mexico seems to be limited in funds with which to carry on work of this kind.

Cuernavaca is just a lovely place to rest. Our hotel is located on a hill away from the center of town across a ravine reached by a very narrow road but once you get here you just feel like staying.

Spencerville High School Notes

This is the first of a series of Spencerville High School News to appear in the St. Joe News. This was made possible through the cooperation of the Beta Club of Spencerville and the St. Joe News Editor.

NEWS AND VIEWS

The Sophomore Class has ordered their class rings. They are all hoping the rings will arrive before school is out.

Eddie Hook's team defeated Bob Hoover's in the final game of the noon basketball tourney for the championship.

The Seniors have selected "Take Your Medicine" as their class play. The cast and date have not been chosen.

On Tuesday, March 21, Rev. Salisbury presented two blankets to the 1949-50 basketball team. These were a result of the Basketball Banquet held in honor of the county champs last Femruary. As this was to be a non-profitable affair, the committee decided to use the funds for basketball blankets for the team. The two blankets are red with white letters spelling "Red Raiders." They were expecting the blankets by sectional time but as they didn't arrive, we're hoping they will spur our future teams on to victory, and they will remain as a memorial to the County Champs of 1949-50.

The Beta Club has decided to conduct a lost and found department at school. Details are not complete at this time.

Committees from the Junior Class have been selected for the Junior-Senior Banquet. They are:,

TATTLE TALES

Jack Hollabaugh has been beating a path through the church yard lately. We followed and it leads straight to the Akey's front door. Well!!?

Marlene Cook and Dean Cornel are still hitting it off at a steady pace, so we were told.

Madolyn Reid has been seen recently with Wayne Michael of Auburn.

Jim Webb has hit on a new remedy for colds. Does it work, Nancy V?

Several times in the last two weeks we have caught Senie Hoover gazing into space humming "Charlie, My Boy." Could it be she's dreaming of one Charlie S. from Auburn?

Break down and tell us who escorted you to the Fish Fry, Bonnie Witt.

Why did Pat Akey jump about a foot when she sat down in the assembly the other day? It couldn't be because of that tack that was there, could it, Pat?

COMMERCIAL AWARDS

The Commerce Deparment presents certificates of honor to students of typing and shorthand upon completion of specific requirements set up by the Gregg Publishing Co.

Every member of the shorthand class has a membership certificate for the Order of Gregg Artists. Phyllis Warner and Doris Longardner have also received awards for speed. After taking "new-matter" dictation at 60 words a minute for five minutes, they were able to transcribe accurately at the typewriter.

The accuracy award for beginners in typing has been received by Mabel Schaftner, Lucy Warstler, Joan Cook, Ruth Easley, Mary Potts, Beverley Laux, Bonnie Witt, Peggy Smith, Maxine Hoover, Davey Doll, Jack Mann, Gene Mann, Jim Dwyer, Gerald Gerig, Bob Hoover, Jim Webb and Larry Waggoner.

Speed awards have gone to Jack and Joan for acquiring 30 words per minute for 10 minutes. Mabel has reached 40 words per minute. Five errors are the maximum.

4-H YOUTH RAISE 8,000,000 BIRDS IN POULTRY PROGRAM

Based on the increasing popularity of the National 4-H Poultry Achievement program, 4-H'ers should top their last year's record of raising a total of 8,000,000 chickens, turkeys, ducks and geese. Likewise the enrollment figure is expected to pass the 150,000 mark reached in 1949.

County extension agents and local 4-H club leaders work with the youth, instructing them in newest methods and approved practices used in poultry and egg production. Members are encouraged to carry out the six main objectives of the program which briefly are: learn the place of poultry in the economy of the farm; acquire skill in poultry raising; assist in production of eggs and fowl to provide adequate supplies for food; appreciate the nutritive value of eggs; learn to grade and market poultry products; study scientific developments and apply the knowledge to home flock production.

The 4-H'ers carefully keep records showing production of birds and eggs, and also general achievements in other phases of club work. At the end of the year these records are judged for special honors which will again be provided by Dearborn Motors, program sponsor. Five sterling silver medals will be presented to winners in each county; a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago for the state winner; and college scholarships of $300 each to the 10 national champions.

The program is under the direction of the Cooperative Extension Service.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

THE PRESCRIPTION

A PRESCRIPTION is a personal matter. Whether written by a physician for a pharmacist to fill, or compounded by the doctor himself, it is for a definite ailment of a definite individual. Only through its proper use will the patient derive benefit from it.

The prescription is written after the physician has made a study of the patient's illness. It is tailored to fit the need. Patients should not neglect to follow the directions as to size and frequency of the dose.

Drugs act differently in different people. Children are usually more sensitive to drugs than adults and women are more susceptible to certain drugs than men. The dose of a given drug may be satisfactory for one and not another.

Misuse of a prescription can lead to trouble. Lending a prescription to a complaining friend, for example, is a well-known and careless act. Taking a double dose to feel twice as good as when taking one dose, too, is a dangerous act. A double dose, or doses taken more frequently than indicated, may nullify the benefits, even cause untoward reaction.

Depend upon the physician to prescribe what is needed for relief of illness. He understands the symptoms and is qualified to recommend the best treatment.

Ewing Kept One Eye Shut on British Trip

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

LONDON, England—Oscar R. ("Jack") Ewing, product of Greensburg, Indiana, where he was born March 8, 1889, recently breezed through Britain to the conclusion, as quoted in British newspapers and the American press, that socialized medicine "is working remarkably well."

NOLAND

Speaking for himself and his team of Washington experts which he took along, he said:

"What we have seen in England confirms my deep conviction that the national health proposal will be good for the United States."

It is not the fact of Ewing's Hoosier birth that landed his London statement on the cables to the far parts of the world, but what happened to him later. By way of Indiana University and the Harvard Law School, he arrived in a New York law firm known for its substantial fees.

"Best-Hated Bureaucrat"

The New Deal drew him to Washington and pleasant relations with the administration. He gained headlines as the special prosecutor for the government in the William Dudley Pelley case at Indianapolis. He worked for President Truman's election in 1948 and is today head of the Federal Security Administration, which means he is not only boss of social security but also of the U. S. Public Health Service and the Office of Education, to name a few of the eleven.

Thus, when Mr. Ewing speaks abroad, he commands the attention due "a high official of the United States government." In a recent issue of Collier's, Ewing was called "Mr. Welfare State Himself" and "Washington's best-hated bureaucrat since Harry Hopkins."

Ignored Protest Meeting

It was noted, however, that as he swept through London in the company of the Laborite inventors of socialized medicine, he failed somehow to observe that, only two weeks earlier, the Fellowship for Medical Freedom, numbering 3,000 of Britain's 18,000 doctors in general practice, had met in Caxton Hall to try to save their profession from bureaucratic degradation and to take steps to stop, in the name of the healing art's public duty, the costly abuse of so-called "free" medicine.

Indiana's Mr. Ewing also apparently overlooked the increase in work lay-offs due to illness, the lag of 11 months in getting government spectacles fitted, and the domination of the physicians, dentists, optometrists and druggists by lay boards which treat sick people as government projects.

Missed Loafers, Snoopers

Ewing certainly couldn't have spent much time in doctors' waiting rooms hearing loafers trading symptoms in order to learn more about fooling a doctor into letting them stay at home on sick pay.

He must have been in a very big hurry if he failed to hear a dentist tell about being forced to run a denture mill, or a druggist eyeing every strange customer to see whether he was a government snooper trying to trap him on a prescription deal.

He certainly could not have tarried long in a hospital without seeing the long waiting lists and the beds occupied indefinitely by older people whose families refuse to take them back home.

But it is assumed that, as he left Britain, Indiana's Mr. Ewing did tarry long enough to see his pictures on the front page of the Laborite newspapers and his approving remarks hailed as evidence of America's trend to Socialism.

EVERETT MITCHELL
Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

WE COULD set a new record this year in the reforestation of an estimated 60 million acres of barren, unproductive land in the United States. Private and public forest nurseries have done their part by making available 500 million baby trees for planting this spring.

State and federal government forest agencies are geared for the largest tree planting program since the war, and are ready and willing to give a hand to the individual farmer. All that remains to be done is for the farmer to get the trees and get them planted.

Now about those 60 million empty acres: Some of them are completely barren, while others are covered with such a heavy growth of brush that good trees never can grow there naturally. In any case, millions of acres are worthless when they could provide their owners with a profitable crop in the future, not to mention meeting a vital soil conservation need today.

High lumber prices have resulted in many farm woodlands being stripped of salable timber, unfortunately including young trees that might have grown rapidly in the next few years. Young trees that are planted now, and spared from the woodman's axe, eventually will be worth more—both in terms of market lumber and in the job they do rebuilding depleted soil resources.

You can get baby trees for idle acres through your state tree nursery at a very low cost. If you have trouble locating the state forester, ask your county agricultural agent or write to your state agricultural college for details. Let's set that record in 1950!

CULTURE CLUB

The Culture Club held its third annual guest night last Wednesday evening, March 22, at the St. Joe Legion Home with fifty-two guests present.

At 6:30 the guests gathered in the dining room. The toastmistress, Mrs. Lester Anthony, called on Mrs. Paul Drerup to give the welcome and Mr. Clyde Duker for the response.

The guests were then served dinner from tables which were artistically decorated with the Easter season in mind.

After the meal was served, the guests retired to other rooms for the evening's entertainment. Special music was presented by Connie Stewart, Marcia Mertens and Jean Perkins. Mrs. Anthony then introduced Dr. Earl Frisbie who showed pictures of his trip west.

The evening was enjoyed very much by all.

TWO AUTOS AND TRUCK DAMAGED NEAR WATERLOO

Two automobiles and a truck were damaged Friday when they sideswiped on U.S. 27 about two miles north of Waterloo.

One of the damaged cars was driven by Charles Bennett of Murray, Ky. The automobile, a 1941 Pontiac, was towing another 1941 Pontiac.

Driver of the truck was Lorin E. Cook of St. Joe. The crash occurred when Cook slowed his 1947 Chevrolet truck to turn into a farmer's driveway and the vehicle sideswiped with the two Pontiacs.

Damage to the car driven by Murray was estimated at $175. Nearly $300 damage resulted to the towed car while damage to the truck was set at $50.

BARGAIN FOR MUSIC LOVERS

Mr. A. M. Bisel, president of the DeKalb County Community Concert Association, announced today a bargain for music lovers of this area. Within the limits of the seating capacity of the Court Theatre in Auburn, any person procuring membership in the local Community Concert Association for the 1950-51 series will be admitted to the final concert of the present season.

Miss Mona Paulee, mezzo-soprano, and one of the brightest stars of the musical world will appear in Auburn on April 13 at the Court Theatre in what promises to be a fitting climax to a highly entertaining and musically worthwhile set of programs.

Anyone interested in becoming a new member of the DeKalb County Community Concert Association should immediately contact Mrs. Marion Peckhart of 1009 S. Van Buren, Auburn, association secretary, since with this year's membership there is only a limited number of seats available.

"Citizens Of Tomorrow" Coming

This Newspaper To Feature Series of Photographic Studies of Local Youngsters

"The best investment is in children," says Wm. J. Cameron. "You had better take a good look at them as they pass you on the street, for they are the ones who are going to make a new world for you, and you can catch some glimmer of the dawn in their fresh young faces."

And because this newspaper believes that its readers should catch some glimmer of the dawn, we intend to help them do it. That is, of course, with the cooperation of the mothers and fathers of the children of this community.

The only way we can give all our readers a good look at these future "world builders" is by publishing pictures of them in a feature series titled "Citizens of Tomorrow."

Nationally Known Studio

To assure the latest and best reproduction picture - they must all be of a uniform size and quality - we have made arrangements with the Woltz Studios, nationally known children's photographers, to take these special pictures.

Expert children's photographers for the studies, with all the necessary equipment for this specialized work, will be here Saturday, April 15. The special studio will be set up at the Legion Home in St. Joe and will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

No Charge To Parents

There will be no charge for the pictures taken for publication. There is no age limit. Parents do not have to be subscribers or readers of this paper to take advantage of this feature. Nor are they obligated to buy pictures after they are taken. Those who want some additional prints may obtain a limited number by arrangement with the studio representative when they select the pose they want printed in the paper.

The More Pictures, The Better

The News simply wants pictures of youngsters, and the more the better. So, Mother and Dad, remember the date, April 15, and the place, the Legion Home in St. Joe. You'll be mighty glad you did when you see your son's or daughter's picture in the paper. And it will be fun later on, too, when you bring out the family album and show the kids what they looked like "back in 1950."

All-Stars Beat Sechlers, 51-50

Before a small but generous crowd last Friday night, the St. Joe All-Stars defeated Sechler's by the score of 51 to 50.

The game was a little rough as the referees, "Whitey" Fetters and Roland Davis, let the teams play pretty much as they pleased - probably because the ref's had no whistles, just small nickel horns, one of which stuck on the first blow.

The leading scorers for the All-Stars were Pete Akey with 17 points, Russell Ridgway with 14 and Bob Walters with 12. The big gun for Sechler's again was Gene Dietrich who tossed in 19 points.

The game which was played as a benefit for the Red Cross netted $10.62 for the fund.

LADIES DEMOCRATIC CLUB

The Ladies of the Democratic Club met Thursday evening at Waterloo. The meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Mrs. Monica Dunn. Mrs. Betty Grimm gave a short talk describing the Jackson Day dinner. Plans were made for a reception to be held in April at the home of Mrs. Ralph Elam honoring State Officers.

The social hour committee consisting of Mrs. Francis Doll, Mrs. Lola Moore and Miss Galen Markle entertained the club with games and served refreshments. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Dorothy Elam, Mrs. Elizabeth Olds and Mrs. Martha Odenkirk.

Jean Perkins Selected For Girls' State

Jean Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Perkins of St. Joe, has been selected to attend Girls' State this summer by the American Legion Auxiliary of the Walter Whitehurst Post 283 of St. Joe. Carol Coburn is alternate. These girls were chosen from the Junior Class of the local high school on the basis of scholarship, personality and character.

Hoosier Girls' State is an effort on the part of the American Legion Auxiliary to bring to the girls of Indiana a knowledge of the fundamental principles of American government through actual practice and control. Girls' State is a mythical state with city, county and state officials nominated and elected by Girls' Staters.

Girls' State will open in June on the Indiana University campus, Bloomington, Indiana. Nine days will be given to concentrated study and application to government, companionship and supervised recreation and music.

Mrs. Ralph Sechler is Girls' State chairman.

Final Rites For Ivan Richmond

The late Ivan Richmond, 75, of Newville, who committed suicide Friday afternoon in a shack at the rear of his brother's home in Newville, was buried Sunday afternoon in Riverside cemetery at Newville. Final rites were conducted at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Johnson funeral home in Butler. The Rev. Calvin Murphy, pastor of the Butler Church of Christ, officiated at the services. Mr. Richmond killed himself when he fired a .22-caliber rifle bullet into his head. He was believed despondent over failing health. The suicide was the second in DeKalb county in 1950.

Pat Angel and Maxine Hoover spent Friday night with Miss Angel's aunt in Ft. Wayne. They called on Pat Akey Saturday afternoon.

The March meeting of the Loyal Women's Class of the Lutheran Sunday School was held Thursday, Mar. 30, at the home of Mrs. Izetta Chaney. Fifteen members and one guest, Mrs. Alwilda Walter, were present to enjoy the occasion. The program committee was Mrs. Winifred Shook and Mrs. Florence Silberg. After devotions were conducted, Mrs. Shook had several selections read from the 4th and 5th McGuffey Readers which brought out much reminiscing besides being very interesting. She also read a poem she wrote following an injury to her hand some time ago. Mrs. Silberg had each member write lyrics in keeping with the St. Patrick's Day spirit. Following the program "Happy Birthday" was sung for Mrs. Francena Lake. After enjoying a bountiful carry-in dinner, the guests departed, thanking the hostess for a very enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Fisher and family entertained to Sunday dinner Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bohl of Ft. Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. John Biraley and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sunday of Leo and Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Fisher.

Last Chance

There is an old saying that the third time is a charm. So, the coupon below is being published for the last time. Although many names are on the petition, there are many other individuals who have verbally expressed agreement on our six points — but they just haven't bothered to clip the coupon, sign it and mail it in, or stop at the News Office to sign.

This is one way to give the News a boost. You can show your appreciation for our efforts to give you a hometown paper you will be proud of by responding to requests such as this. ....

If you DON'T agree with our six points, write us a few lines and tell us why. We want to hear your thoughts, too.

To my Congressmen:
As an American citizen I feel that the following actions are necessary to maintain the stability of my government and serve my and my neighbors' interest:

1.) Balance the budget.

2.) Reduce the cost of government in all phases, including administration and appropriation.

3.) Make a fairer distribution of a lower income tax burden; eliminate the "soak the rich" policy.

4.) Eliminate the war-time excise taxes which were levied for "emergency" purposes and reduce those which were previously in existence and raised during the war.

5.) Strive for legislation which gives the American citizen the chance and OBLIGATION to live on the merits of his efforts, depending less on governmental aid in the form of subsidies, etc., which aid certain groups at the expense of all.

6.) Stop the Social Security program from continuing in its present compulsory path before it becomes an economic monster depriving me of my independence.

Easter Parades

Signatures Coming In

Several coupons and signatures have been received for the petition to our Congressmen which appeared in the issues of March 23 and 30.

Most signers were agreed on the points regarding budget balancing and reduction of federal expenditures. Some comment was caused concerning the excise taxes which we indicated should be reduced or eliminated. The opinion was voiced that excise taxes on luxuries should be retained — the specific luxury named was a $4000 mink coat and the reasoning was that anyone with $4000 to spend on a fur coat could afford to pay the tax. Maybe that reasoning is all right — but we can't offhand think of any St. Joe merchants who adjust their prices to fit each customer's ability to pay. The excise taxes we referred to were those which were intended to decrease war-time demands for commodities in short supply needed for the war effort, and those placed on commodities with great demand but with ample supply, thus giving a large revenue for war-time emergencies. These taxes are on such items as automobile tires, railroad fares, alarm clocks, cosmetics (including, of all things, baby powder), and many more.

The other point which some are taking exception to is the one concerning social security. Perhaps we used the wrong words or phrases - we didn't actually mean STOP the program; a better word probably is "reorganize." Our principal objections are that the program is compulsory; and that as years pass it will have to be supported by increased deductions from the worker's income to compensate for increased numbers eligible for benefits and increased payments (the benefits now paid out are supplementary, not basic). If the benefits are to be large enough to sustain the life of a human being, the "premiums" must be substantial. That means that many people will seldom be able to buy a new radio, refrigerator or stove as they need these necessities. The extra cash used for such purchases would be absorbed by the social security deductions.

Individual tastes are varied. Who should decide WHAT we, as individuals, want? Who should decide what is BEST for us?

We say — "you and me."

Truth About Easter

Lesson for April 9, 1950

"UP THIS WAY," writes a friend in a great city, "the hats and the bunny-rabbits have run away with Easter." The fact is, the world has stolen Easter and made something silly out of it. The world will not believe the truth about Easter, yet the world wants a holiday.

Dr. Foreman

The Man from Mars, visiting our planet at Easter time, would have a hard time guessing what the festival means. Rabbits? New clothes? A day off? The return of spring? Not at all, nothing of the sort. Bunnies and hats are gay; but the right word for Easter is not Gaiety, it is Glory.

God's Victory

EVEN IN churches you will not always hear the whole truth about Easter. You may hear that it is the festival of Returning Hope, or that it symbolizes new life, or that it stands for the triumph of faith over despair, or that it expresses our belief in immortality. In a way, all these ideas about Easter are true, but if that is all, then we have not yet got down to the truth about Easter.

The fact is—the fact which gives a solid ground for all these other facts—the first Easter was the day when God raised Jesus Christ from the dead. It was the day of God's victory over death, when the gates of death swung backward and the bars of death were broken.

The truth about Easter is that something happened on that day that never happened before and never will happen again. Because never before had the Son of God risen in personal triumph from the grave, and never will that have to be done over again.

If it were not for that fact, Jesus might have been remembered as a long-dead Jewish teacher, a hopeful but mistaken and defeated teacher, a name to be found only in encyclopaedias. But the truth about Easter is that Jesus is not dead, his hopes were not mistaken, he was not defeated, his Name is above every man! He is the Christian's living Lord.

His Power in Us

THAT STRANGELY TWISTED man Kierkegaard called Christianity "God's attack on man." You could not get that idea from the New Testament.

Marvelous as it is, Christianity is God offering to man the power to rise out of our dead selves, to do for us what we could never have done for ourselves. What has this to do with Easter? Just this: That when the Apostle Paul wants to explain what the power is which God sets at our disposal, what it is like and what it will do, he tells us it is the same power with which God raised Christ from the dead. (See 1 Cor. 6:14 Eph. 1:19,20; 3:6; Phil. 3:10.)

You see the truth about Easter is that it is the day when the Christians celebrate the most tremendous act God ever performed on this planet, or rather that day when God brought to a climax the whole mighty action of the coming and the life and death of Christ. And that is the power which is available for the Christian.

A Christian Is Supernatural

IF ALL YOU WANT of God is to have him do something for you, then you are rather like a baby who keeps crying for some one to bring him more toys . . . but he stays a baby. If your want of God is to have him do something with you, in you and through you, then you are like a child who really wants to grow up.

The Christian is a supernatural being. As C. S. Lewis puts it, we are not God's little toy soldiers, we are intended to be his sons and daughters.

But if the Christ is the "first-born among many brethren" then here is this life those who accept him have access to the same power that wrought in him. And at the end of life we shall not be afraid, knowing that we belong to the same God who raised our Lord from the dead.

The glory of Easter is not something merely to be remembered or sung about; it is something to be experienced. The same God who conquered death "giveth us victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

To Publish Pictures of LOCAL CHILDREN

● Pictures of the children of this community are to be published in this newspaper as a special tribute to our Young Citizens of Tomorrow. Soon the responsibility for world destiny will rest heavily upon their shoulders. As Americans, they will meet those responsibilities without faltering. Among them, in the years to come will be many with fame and fortune. But, just as they are right now . . . with the dawn of a greater tomorrow in their fresh young faces . . . this newspaper wants a picture of these future professional men and women, and, who knows, perhaps a future president of our country. These pictures will be published in a forthcoming special feature. So, Mother and Dad, your cooperation will be needed to help make this event a colorful and inspiring exhibit!

● Arrangements have been made with The Woltz Studios, nationally known children's photographers for newspapers, to take the pictures at the time and place given below. All you have to do is bring your children to the photographer. There is no charge or obligation. Children must be accompanied by one parent or other guardian.

● You do not have to be a subscriber to this newspaper and you do not need to purchase photographs, although you may do so if you wish. Just bring your children down and have the pictures taken. Later you will be shown proofs from which you select the pose you prefer having printed in the paper. It is as simple as that!

● You can clip these pictures from the paper, thus obtaining a memento of childhood which will become a treasured keepsake and memory record for both you and your children.

Below is the time and place to have your pictures taken without cost!

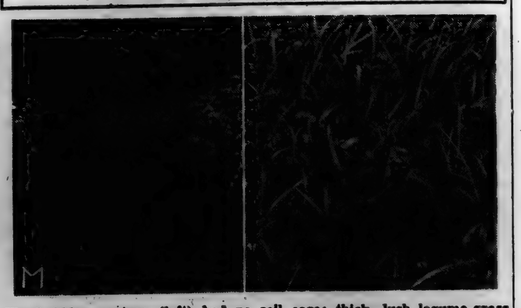
Pastures 'Don't Just Stay Good'; Need Planning, Management and Fertilization



Weed-ridden pasture (left) had no soil care: thick, lush legume-grass growth (right) was well fertilized and managed.

PASTURES just "don't stay good." They have to be kept that way by careful planning, management and adequate fertilization, according to a statement issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

The committee cites these steps suggested by J. L. Haynes, of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station for keeping semi-permanent grassland acreages in top production for five or six years without reseeding:

Seed well adapted, high-yielding legumes and grasses. Alfalfa and ladino clover and brome-grass or orchard grass make good combinations.

Maintain a high lime level in the soil.

At seeding time add the equivalent of 100 pounds per acre of 20 per cent superphosphate for each year of expected stand. Thereafter top-dress pastures each year with generous amounts of phosphate and potash. On most farms, 300 to 400 pounds per acre of 0-9-27, 0-10-20 or 0-20-20 will keep legume stands thick and vigorous.

Maintain the life and palatability of pasture with good grazing management. Avoid overgrazing. Don't let cattle graze on one field for too long a period.

Divide pastures into small fenced paddocks so that most of the forage in any given paddock will be eaten within 10 days or less—at the rate of an acre for each 5 or 6 cows in the herd.

Harvest as grass silage the surplus forage in paddocks not used in the lush spring season. These harvested paddocks can later be included in the regular grazing sequence with spring grazed paddocks.

"Cloud-Jumpers" Mix Socialist Fact, Fiction

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

INDIANAPOLIS—"Sky-writers" and "cloud-jumpers" are common names for political theorists such as those who dreamed up British Socialism. They have many converts in the United States. In fact, during the last 17 years, they have been imported to Washington to back up the New Dealers in their scheme to spend the country to prosperity.

NOLAND

An example of how their dreaming wins friends in the United States has come to this writer's attention by way of a Hoosier newspaper, the Greenfield Republican.

According to an article in that esteemed journal's issue of February 9, it reprinted an account of a speech by this writer in which the destructive effect of British Socialism on the church, home and school was pointed out. This article was read, according to the newspaper's account, by "Carl F. Brand, a former Greenfield resident . . . who is now professor of history at Stanford University, with particular emphasis on English history."

Cites British Labor Aims

Professor Brand wrote to the Greenfield Republican that in Britain "the labour (this is the English spelling quoted by the newspapar) movement has its mainspring in religion and humanitarianism, and among its leaders are many devout churchmen." Also: "The primary purpose of the movement is to lift the masses out of poverty and, in spite of wartime shortages and postwar austerities, there has been a large measure of success."

The language is the language of the British intellectuals. The statement of purpose is true. The statement that some of its leaders are devout churchmen is true.

Other Things True, Too

It is also true that, with church membership in Britain reduced to less than 20 per cent, religion is taking a severe beating. It is also true that there is no humanitarianism in inciting class hatred as the Socialist leaders are doing. And it is also true that without the billions of dollars that American taxpayers are giving to the British Socialist government to spend on keeping 2,000,000 people at work in Britain, that country would be busted.

Socialism is a political confidence game, put over in Britain by intellectuals who played to the soft side of the people with such come-on schemes as the "cradle-to-grave" security dream. They broke the morale of enough sturdy Britons to win the 1945 election on their promises. They had backseat driven so long that the people, tired of war, hunger and export business paralysis, said:

"All right, take the wheel and see what you can do."

Acts and Promises Differ

What they are doing, with Uncle Sam pumping the gas and oil to them, is not what they said they would do—or even what they say they are doing. What they are doing is conditioning free Britons for Socialistic servitude.

They are still writing about "religion and humanitarianism," and Professor Brand and his intellectual buddies are still reading and believing.

This is not critical of the sincerity of Professor Brand. He is being himself. It is merely by way of being a reminder to the good people of Hancock county and of all Indiana, and their kinfolks everywhere, that the old rule still holds good:

Judge a man not by what he says he will do, or by what he can do, but by what he will do.

CONCORD JUNIOR HOME EC

The Concord Junior Home Ec Club met April 1 at the home of Dorothy Simanton.

The meeting was opened by singing led by Katy Crow. Devotions followed by Billie Mason. The president, Marcia Sible, gave a report on the Home Ec Club planning meeting held at Auburn. She also gave the 2nd part of the Master-Mix lesson. A report on "Farm Outlook" was given by Dorothy Simanton. Katy Crow, Harriett Baker and Rose Means were appointed to write the club history.

Twelve members responded to roll call with "My Favorite Radio Program." Three guests were present. Mrs. Lois Strombeck has joined the club.

The meeting was adjourned by repeating the club creed. An auction was held by Florence Miller and Billie Mason. Dorothy and her guest, Katrina Prosser, served a nice lunch.

The next meeting will be held at Alton Park on May 1. This will be family night and 100 percent attendance is expected.

Bus Driver "Not Guilty"

Ned Keller, 24, of St. Joe, was found not guilty last week on charges of assault and battery preferred by the mother of a St. Joe high school student.

Auburn City Judge Harold D. Stump said he made a "borderline decision" in acquiting Keller. He stated that there was insufficient evidence to convict him on the charge.

Native Of Newville Passes Away

Jay Glenn Miller, 67, a practicing attorney in Auburn before the outbreak of World War I, died Friday, April 7, at his home in Los Angeles, California.

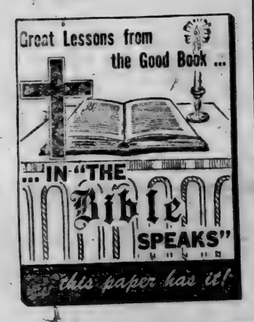
Mr. Miller was a lawyer in Auburn for about two years before he moved west because of poor health.

After leaving Auburn he resided in Colorado and for the past eight or nine years had lived in Los Angeles.

He was a native of the Newville community.

His first wife preceded him in death. Surviving are his second wife and three childeen, all residing on the west coast; a sister, Ethel Huffman, of Chicago; and two cousins, Dr. Cecil Miller, a dentist residing near Newville, and Mrs. C. C. Woodcox of St. Joe.

He was a member of the Church of Christ.



Children's Pictures To Be Taken Saturday

Saturday, April 15, is the big day for the picture taking of your youngsters! The News is having pictures taken of all children who are brought by their parents or other guardian to the Legion Home in St. Joe between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. absolutely free of charge. The Woltz Studios of DesMoines, Iowa, nationally known children's photographers, will be in charge of the photography. The News wants a picture of your child to print in its forthcoming feature "Citizens of Tomorrow," a series of photographic studies of local children. The more pictures taken, the better the feature will be, so the cooperation of mothers and fathers is urged.

It often seems to parents that children are little one minute and grown the next, so fast does a child's growing stage pass. Here is a splendid opportunity to catch a likeness of your child or children at this present stage for the pleasure you will get out of it in the future years and for the pleasure you will enjoy in seeing it in print. You will want to clip it from this, your hometown newspaper, and preserve it for the youngster when he or she grows up.

There is absolutely no charge or obligation for taking the pictures. Parents do not even have to be subscribers to the News. You do not have to purchase the pictures either, though you may obtain a limited number of additional prints by arranging direct with the studio if you want them. It's entirely up to you.

There is no age limit.

CHICKEN SUPPER AND BAZAAR

There will be a chicken supper and bazaar Friday evening, April 14, at the Mt. Pleasant E. U. B. Church cafeteria. The menu includes fried chicken, mashed potatoes, biscuits, gravy, vegetables, salads, pie, homemade ice cream, sandwiches and soup - all at reasonable prices.

The public is cordially invited.

Serving begins at 5:30 p.m.

Sechlers Team To Play Former "Pickles" Five

The original St. Joe Pickle basketball team of the mid-thirties has long wanted to return to their "lucky" floor here in St. Joe. This they are going to do on Saturday, April 15, when they return to play the present pickle team consisting of local players.

The old pickle team is made up mostly of state-finalists of the 1934 North Side High team, but was further strengthened by other Fort Wayne school stars.

In spite of their age and the fact that only one or two are still playing, they will probably be the favorites against the younger pickle aggregation.

Game time is 8:30 p.m. and there will be no admission charge.

Six-Year-Olds To School

The boys and girls in Concord and Jackson townships, who will be old enough to come to school in September, 1950, are invited to attend school for a day on Friday, April 14. Children who are six years old by October 10, 1950, are legally old enough to come to school in this county.

It is the desire of the school to have these children as guests for the whole day. Parents are asked to send only children who are old enough to come to school in the fall. If there are no older children in the family attending school, perhaps a neighbor's child will bring your boy or girl to the primary room. This is being done to familiarize the children with the surroundings they will be in next fall.

Birth certificates will not be necessary for this visiting day, but will be required by the end of the first week of school in September.

ST. JOE VALLEY CONSERVATION CLUB MEETING

An important meeting of the St. Joe Valley Conservation Club will be held at the Town Hall on Friday, April 14, at 8 p.m.

Reorganization or dissolvement will be discussed along with other matters of financial nature.

All old members are urged to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Dannie Baker spent the week-end with Rev. W. H. Baker and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hollopeter of St. Madrid, Mo., spent from Friday until Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Hollopeter.

Lavern Koch and Raymond Rhoads spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James Neher of Ft. Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kalpan of Ft. Wayne called on Mr. and Mrs. Paul Evans and family Sunday.

Mrs. Audrey Wade returned Easter Sunday from Memphis, Tenn., where she spent the winter with her daughter and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Stemen and family were Sunday dinner guests of his mother, Mrs. Mary Stemen. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Edwards were afternoon callers.

Mr. and Mr. Ted Moore are visiting relations here a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Smith and family entertained for supper Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Roger Smith and family of Ft. Wayne and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Smith of Spencerville.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Kelly of Indianapolis visited over the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Zimmerman.

Mrs. Ethel Bowser is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Ada Whitacre, and family at Highland, Ind., for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. James Montgomery visited with Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Garman over the week-end.

Mr. Henry Hertzfield visited in Spencerville Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Webb and daughter of St. Joe and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Webb and son of Paulding visited Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Webb, Sr. Sunday.

James Bowser spent Easter vacation at home.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Hollabaugh and family were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Derwood Ridgway of St. Joe.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Povser and family from Milwaukee, Wis., visited Mrs. Poyser's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Newport, over the Easter week-end.

Claudia Hafner returned home Monday from Bradenton, Florida, where she spent the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Kimes are the proud parents of a baby girl, born April 10 at a Ft. Wayne hospital.

The Youth Center of Spencerville, Club Thursday, will have a dancing instructor from Ft. Wayne at the April 13 meeting. He will teach all teen agers who wish to learn how to dance. With the summer months coming a lot of dances are being planned. The canteen feels this will help get all you "kids" in trim. This class is mainly in preparation for Club Thursday's round and square dance on April 22. The April 13 meeting will start at 7:30 and will be in the basement of the Spencerville gym. This will also be a chance for the renewal of memberships.

DEADLINE TUESDAY NOON FOR ITEMS AND ADS

In an effort to get the St. Joe News in the mail a little more on schedule, the deadline of Tuesday noon for items and ads to appear the same week will be strictly adhered to.

Church Group Continues Opposition

Charles G. (Chuck) McIntosh has been ordered to appear in Auburn Tuesday, April 18, as a result of an action filed last Thursday by Winslow Van Horne, Auburn attorney, asking that McIntosh be perpetually enjoined from engaging in the sale of beverages at his establishment. He recently was granted a license by the Indianaa State Alcoholic Beverage Commision to sell packaged wine and "carry-out" beer.

The members of the St. Mark's Lutheran church council who appear as plaintiffs in the action are Vernie Monroe, Frank Shull, Everett Collins, Clifford Billow, William Staman, William Sible, Joseph Foltz and Roy Reidenbach. The church also was named as a complainant.

In the action, the plaintiffs charged that the DeKalb alcoholic beverage board arbitrarily and in complete disregard of evidence, recommended issuance of the license to McIntosh. The license was granted by the state commission.

TO REPEAT CANTATA

The sacred Cantata presented at Spencerville last Sunday was well received and will be sung again next Sunday at 7;30 p.m. at Butler Lutheran Church on West Main street.

All are invited and welcome to all services.

Guest Editorial

Each month your editor buries herself deep in encyclopedias, books, pamphlets and almanacs to bring the readers a worthy editorial. This month my source of ideas failed me. After spending a few weary hours, I finally decided to give up in favor of looking for jokes for the joke column.

One of my classmates had given an old St. Joe school paper to me dated December 9, 1940 - - - in hopes of finding funnier jokes. My search for jokes was soon forgotten when I saw such headlines as these: SEVERAL STUDENTS AND TEACHERS GO TO BLOOMINGTON FOR ANNUAL DRAMA CONFERENCE - - ST. JOE CHALKS UP ANOTHER VICTORY BY DEFEATING HUNTERTOWN - - VERSE CHOIR SINGS "THE MATCH GIRL" - - MATH CLUBS (JUNIOR AND SENIOR) ELECT NEW OFFICERS - - BAND PURCHASES NEW MUSIC - - DRAMA CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS - - ORCHESTRA PLAYS THREE ENGAGEMENTS - - ENGLISH CLUB MEETS AT PAUL KELLER'S - - FIFTEEN JOIN JUNIOR BAND. In those brief lines was my editorial.

You can look long and hard through our previous school papers this year and find none of these announcements of ten years ago, simply because there are none of them existing in our high school today. What has happened to these clubs and activities which were indeed something the entire community was proud of???? They are no longer present. That is a statement which no one can doubt, but on whom shall we place the blame??? The ever moving finger of accusation points to students, parents, taxpayers and teachers alike. Neither you or I have the right to single out any individual or group to place the blame on, but all of us should be keenly aware that those clubs and activities were a help to the students, teachers, and most of all – the community, and certainly the return of some of these higher educational projects would not be a detriment to the community, but an asset.

There aren't any references which will tell you or me the answers to these questions. There is only one solution - - to work co-operatively and build our school standards higher - - and still higher. If our enthusiasm has degraded this much in ten years - - what will ten more years do????? Now is the time to act - - - - not later.

Rugged Prophet

Lesson for April 16, 1950

DON'T MAKE the mistake of thinking that the "minor" prophets of the Old Testament were less important than the "majors." The 12 men whose writings end our Old Testament are in no way less important than Isaiah, Jeremiah or Ezekiel. They are called "minor" only because their writings cover fewer pages. First in point of time came Amos.

Ranch-Hand Preacher

AMOS WAS NO city preacher, in fact not a preacher at all. He would not even call himself a prophet. He was a ranch-hand from the back country, more like what we would call a hired hand than a farmer on his own. He had no prestige, no backing, no social or official position, no money, no high education, no national reputation, in fact none of the things that make us "take notice" of a strange speaker. He had no lecture bureau, had no luncheon-club, he could not even hire a hall.

Dr. Foreman

But the Lord had spoken to him and he knew it. He was determined that the wealthy people who crowded the temple yard in Bethel should hear him. No doubt the mere sight of the man would attract attention. In his rough working clothes he would look as out-of-place in that well-polished crowd as a huckleberry in a pan of milk.

As his voice, trained in the wide open spaces, rang out over the crowd, a few people may have laughed at first. But a circle of respectful silence would grow around him. Indeed they liked what he said, at first.

Roll-Call of Doomsday

"FOR three transgressions of Damascus, yea for four . . . I will not turn away the punishment thereof," he began. Damascus was capital of Syria, for generations their country's bitter and all too successful enemy. So when Amos predicted a crash for Syria, you may imagine the applause would be loud.

Then, one after another, as Amos points his finger east, north, south, the lightning of God's curse is called down on enemy after enemy of the nation of Israel. Fire, hurricane, defeat and disaster are foretold for every one.

Too Close Home

EVERYTHING Amos had said was true, and came true; every nation whose downfall he predicted collapsed just as he said it would. But that was not the main reason he had tramped all the way to Bethel. He had some things to say to the very people before him, something about themselves and their own country. So when he had his audience in the palm of his hand, just as they were gloating over the terrible fate of the nations they hated, Amos dropped his bomb on their complacent heads.

"Thus saith the Lord: For three transgressions of ISRAEL, yea for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof." The roll-call of doomsday includes every sinful nation. God has no pets, he plays no favorites. His laws are the same for all men. Naturally, Israelites could well believe that God hated the sins of their enemies. But their own? That was a different story.

Amos plunged from being the most popular sidewalk preacher of his day to being the best-hated man in Israel. In fact, because he dared to name the king as sinner number one, he was accused of treason, a capital crime in any country.

"One Man With God Is a Majority"

AMOS WROTE OUT his prophecies at some later time and they have been handed down to us, with all their fire and force, in the book that bears his name.

We shall see in later lessons some of his great messages. What stands out here is this: Truth is sometimes popular, sometimes not, but the living power of truth has nothing to do with the number of people who believe it, or whether it is pleasant; or with the prestige of the man who proclaims it. If it is God's truth, it will live even if the only man who believes it is banished; as Amos was, to the silent wilderness.

Spencerville High School Notes

HONORS FOR SPENCERVILLE HIGH SCHOOL

Word has been received that two senior girls have won honors for the high school. Doris Longardner has been chosen first alternate for a scholarship to Ball State Teachers College as a result of a state test administered by Mr. Paschen. Good luck, Doris.

Patsy Angel received a gold pin and a year's subscription to the "Gregg Writer" magazine as a result of an entry in an International Shorthand Contest. The contest entries were articles written in shorthand. Pat is a first-year shorthand student. —Congratulations.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY

The Seniors have chosen the play, "Take Your Medicine," to be given at the Spencerville Community Hall in the early part of May.

The cast is as follows:
Davey Doll—Henry K. Dodson
Phyllis Warner—Angela Warren
Jim Dwyer—Dr. Wm. Jackson
Marlene Cook——Miss Holt
Lois Romine—Patricia Pryor
Adah Ruth Gerig—Dorothy Carelton
Pat Angel—Charlotte Nelson
Jerry Bowser—Jack Benson
Gerald Gerig—Jonathan Puckett
Doris Longardner—Miss Cordelia Puckett
Geraldine Shull—Miss Dovie Finkledink
Ellen Mae Knop—Dodie Blake

Pat Akey was taken to the Methodist Hospital in Ft. Wayne recently for an appendectomy. She is home now and expected back to school soon.

IDEAL FRESHMAN GIRL

She would have the:
sparkling eyes of Betty Witt;
teen-age hair-do of Adair Reed;
complexion of Cleo Gerig or Dorothy Nusbaum;
posture of Alice Easley;
friendliness of Ruth Friend;
piquancy of Imogene Conley;
demureness of Emily Shull;
capability of Nancy Vendrely.

IDEAL SENIOR BOY

He would have the:
smile of Jerry Gerig;
capabiltiy of Jerry Bowser;
personality of Jim Dwyer;
friendliness of Gene Mann;
love of sports which Bob Hoover has;
hair of Jack Mann;
eyes of Davey Doll;
lankiness of Jim Webb.

WE WONDER WHY—

Pat Angel missed the Sock Dance?

Gene Dwyer likes Jim Shilling's desk better than his own?

Clarence Mathes doesn't know that he is the "dream-boat" of a blond Junior girl?

Peggy Romine is so anxious for her sixteenth birthday?

Imogene Conley spends all her noon hours in Shirley Ritenour's seat?

Pat Angel can't make up her mind between Ashley and Spencerville?

Joan Cook and John Leonard didn't show up for Cantata practice last Friday night?

Jim Dwyer spends so much time in St. Joe?

GRADE NEWS

The primary room welcomed a new pupil recently. She is Rosalind Storer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Storer.

We are wishing a speedy recovery for Donald Baidinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Baidinger, who had the misfortune of getting badly burned.

Karen Hart is back in school after several weeks' absence due to illness.

The sixth grade Language Class has been having debates. The winning debaters are Wayne Akey, Betty Hursh and Mary Beckman.

Paul Easley and Nixon Lawhead won the grade-school double ping-pong tourney.

P. T. A.

New officers were elected at the March meeting of the Spencerville P. T. A. Rev. Salibury was elected President with the following to serve with him: E. H. Paschen—Vice-President; Helen Koch—Secretary; Nellie Allen—Treasurer.

Rev. Eddy of the Brush College Church of God was the speaker of the evening. Mrs. Marian Rediger gave a reading and Mr. and Mrs. Onan Laughman presented some musical numbers.

The April meeting will be held at the high school. Open House will follow the meeting.

ANNA LIECHTY OF GRABILL PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Anna Liechty, 82, of Rt. 2, Grabill, mother of Mrs. Anna Graber of near Auburn and Mrs. Lillie Lederman and Mrs. Verda Graber, both of near Spencerville, died at 2:30 a.m., April 3, in her home. Surviving are 134 living descendants. She was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage several days ago. The body was removed to the Walter funeral home in Spencerville for burial preparations and returned to the home Monday to remain for funeral services at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday followed by 10:00 a.m. rites in the Leo Mennonite church. Rev. E. B. Frey of Pettisville, O., assisted by the Rev. S. J. Miller of the Leo church, officiated at the services. Burial was in Leo cemetery.

GET-TO-GETHER 4-H CLUB

The first meeting of the Get-To-Gether club of St. Joe was held in Study Hall April 5, 1950. The following officers were elected:

Pres.—Ruth Trenary
Vice-Pres.—Sue Walter
Sec. & Treas.—Mary Cook
News Reporter—Carol Billow
Recreation Leader—Mary Lou Trenary
Ass't—Sandra McCann
Song Leader—Norma Tharp
Health & Safety Leader—Ruth Fetters

The Junior Leaders are Ruth Trenary and Sue Walter.

It was decided that the club would meet Friday afternoons at one o'clock. The vice-president will make the schedule of meetings. Hard work will be necessary to complete the projects.

The next meeting will be held after school April 28.

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

THE heavy work season will be getting under way on most American farms in the next few weeks, and now, while you still have a few spare moments, is the time to check and prepare your grain drill. It'll probably pay dividends when the spring rush starts.

The proper operation of the drill, its light draft and long life, can be achieved only through using recommended lubrication, correct adjustments and good maintenance. Before starting the drill, check the feeding mechanism by turning it several times with a wrench. If the shafts stick or do not turn easily, foreign particles may be present in the feeds. Cleansing and lubrication should be done with kerosene.

Remove grease and oil from inside the fertilizer box, and if you see any evidence of corrosion, clean the metal parts and slap on a new coat of paint. All the fertilizer and seed tubes should be removed and thoroughly cleaned. The proper alignment of furrow openers will help you get the best possible performance from the machine.

Old hardened grease and dirt should be wiped off all moving parts of the machine, and these lubricated with the type of oil and grease recommended by the manufacturer. When using treated seeds be sure the feeds are kept clean, because treated seed may create enough friction to retard the flow, reduce quantity and require more power.

Check the drill, tighten nuts and bolts and spread the cotter pins. Replace missing drag chains to insure even coverage of the seed. You'll probably find a complete set of rules concerning the most efficient operation of your grain drill in the instruction booklet. Read it over and save yourself possible trouble in the field.

It's MISS AMERICA for beauty

Just one look will tell you why the '50 Ford is a style show all by itself . . . why it's the only car in automotive history to twice receive the Fashion Academy's Gold Medal Award as "Fashion Car of the Year" (and two years in a row, at that!)

It's MR. BIG for size

No other car in Ford's field offers so much hip and shoulder room. The '50 Ford is big and feels big. The minute you take this great car out on the road you'll feel its luxurious big car comfort, its effortless "Finger-Tip" steering and its solid roadability. A ten-minute "Test Drive" will convince you that the '50 Ford is truly Mr. Big for spaciousness, for comfort, for performance and for value.

And Champion of its Class for ECONOMY

Here's real evidence of Ford's extraordinary gas economy. In the official AAA supervised Mobilgas Grand Canyon Economy Run, a '50 Ford Six equipped with Overdrive* won in its class—the three full-size cars in the low-price field. Low first cost, low operating cost and high resale value mark Ford—V-8 or Six*—as the "Big Economy Package" in its field. "Test Drive" it at your Ford Dealer's today. (*Available at extra cost.)

is the one place where they have ever existed in combination . . .

When we talk about our American system, we're talking about something more productive, more promising, more thrilling than any system the world has ever seen.

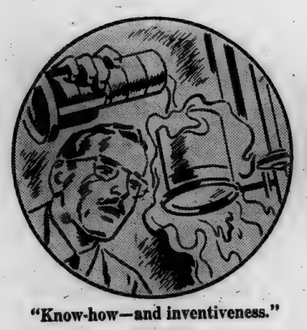
And we're strong because we enjoy the unique combination of qualities that make our nation the most productive of any country on earth. Why? First, because we've built our whole system on a solid faith and belief in the dignity of the individual.

Out of our belief in the dignity of the individual has evolved the wonderful pattern of America. Our policy of free markets and free collective bargaining. Our belief in competition. Our adherence to the principle of constantly better quality at consistently lower cost.

Our emphasis on research—on invention—on new and better methods.

Our faith in the future and our desire ever to advance—ever to improve the lot of everybody, regardless of race, creed or color.

These—in combination—are America. And nowhere else in the world is there such a combination—that's your U. S. A. Let's keep it this way. Sure our system has its faults such as sharp ups and down in prices and jobs but we are trying to correct those faults—and with even better teamwork, the future is unlimited.



"Know-how—and inventiveness."

"Free government—of the people—by the people—for the people."

CULTURE CLUB

The Culture Club met Wednesday, April 5, with Mrs. Willard Hurni and her co-hostess, Mrs. Sam Armstrong.

The meeting was opened by the repeating of the club collect. Mrs. Leslie Meek read two appropriate poems for the devotional period of the evening. They were "Candles" and "Easter - 1941."

Mrs. Clyde Duker was lesson leader for the evening. She chose two interesting articles entitled "Terror in Philadelphia" and "Things I Can't Explain." Mrs. James Tatlock gave the special work for the evening. She talked about the new cold drug "antihistimine." She told of the good it can do and also the harm if not properly taken.

Roll call was answered by twenty active members and one associate member showing and explaining "An Interesting Picture." The regular business meeting followed.

A report of the attendance contest was given with the purple team ahead eight points. The gold team then announced that to entertain the winning team they were inviting them to a chicken supper at the Mt. Pleasant Church Friday evening, April 14, at 6 p.m. Anyone planning to come who doesn't have transportation is asked to come to Mrs. Arthur Culbertson's home at 5:30 p.m. and transportation will be provided.

The meeting was then adjourned followed by a delicious lunch served by the co-hostesses.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Lester Anthony on April 19, and it will be a pot-luck supper at 6:30 p.m. This will be the meeting for election of officers so all members are urged to be present.

NUISANCE CLUB BAKE SALE

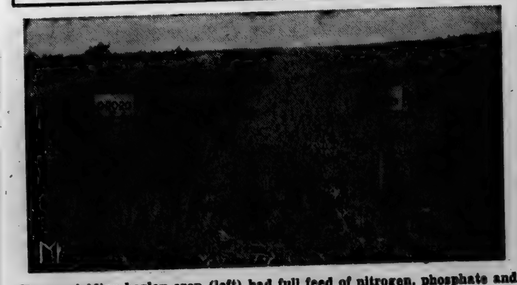
The Nuisance Club is having a bake sale on Saturday, April 15, beginning at approximately 9 a.m.

The last meeting was held on April 6 with Mr. Calvin Lessing as chaperon. Nineteen members were present.

BAKE SALE AT SPENCERVILLE

The Winners 4-H Club of Spencerville will have a bake sale on Saturday, April 22, at Fisher's Corner Market in Spencerville.

Building Up Fertility Is Key to Soil Conservation and Protection from Erosion



Heavy-yielding barley crop (left) had full feed of nitrogen, phosphate and potash; plot on right was unfertilized.

BUILDING soil fertility is the key to soil conservation, declared Prof. Emil Truog, chairman of the soils department of the University of Wisconsin.

"Keeping our soils high in mineral nutrients works six ways to conserve our soils and protect them from erosion," he declared:

"1—High soil fertility produces a heavier plant growth that protects soil from washing and blowing.

"2—Heavier plant growth uses more water from the land. This allows the soil to absorb more rainfall, thereby reducing soil and water losses caused by runoff.

"3—Fertile soil is in better physical shape to take in water from rainfall. Thus more is stored up for crops and less runs off.

"4—Higher soil fertility increases crop yields on more level fields. This reduces the need for growing clean cultivated row crops on sloping fields, where soil erosion takes a heavy toll.

"5—By improving our soil fertility, we make it possible to grow more crops on fewer acres, thus releasing more land for forestry, wildlife and recreation.

"6—Increased crop yields from soils of higher fertility increases the farmer's income. This, in turn, provides the farmer with money for installing terraces, grass waterways, gully control and other conservation practices.

"With such a program we not only save our soils but give strong aid to the conservation of other resources—forests, wildlife and people," he concluded.

by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

SPRING HAY FEVER

SOME two million individuals are not happy about spring, aside from coal and oil dealers and fur coat merchants. We refer to hay fever sufferers. Warm weather means sneezing, running and itching noses, and watering eyes, to hay fever victims.

Three types of hay fever occur in three different seasons. The early spring kind starts in April and lasts through May. It is caused by pollen of trees—oak, elm, maple, birch and hickory. Summer hay fever, beginning at the end of May, runs through the middle of July. The pollen of timothy, redtop, June grass, orchard grass, sweet vernal and plantain is the cause. Fall hay fever, for which ragweed pollen is responsible, starts in mid-August and lasts until frost.

Whether it comes from pollen of trees, plants, grasses or weeds, hay fever causes misery. Some victims are able to go to high places, or to the seashore, to avoid discomfort. For those who must remain in the vicinity of the offending pollen, there is some relief. Air conditining gives temporary aid, and injections of pollen extracts is a prophylactic that often eases the condition.

Don't make fun of your neighbor's hay fever. His suffering is very real.

EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:45-6:55 a.m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

SOIL and water conservation probably have warranted more space in these columns than any other farm subject. Perhaps, however, in dealing with it on a rather general, large-scale level, I have overlooked some of the really inspirational work being done by small neighborhood groups of farmers.

The basic conservation worker, of course, is the individual farmer. And more and more of them are realizing that by joining together with their neighbors they can better work out conservation programs to mutual advantage.

I recently talked with one such group of 10 neighbors from Kankakee County, Ill. The group got started when one of the young neighborhood men returned to his father's farm after several years in the service. He noticed a considerable increase in water damage to his father's fields, and talked his dad into attending a conservation group meeting.

What they heard and saw there convinced them that they should form their own group, and, after some over-the-fence talk with the neighbors, it was done. County district supervisor Bill Hendrix helped them set up their first meeting and selected one of the farms as representative of all in the neighborhood. A soil conservation survey map of the farm was made, tests compared the depth of top soil at fence rows and in the field, dirt samples were taken and water tests conducted.

After this first session was over, all of the farmers who attended asked that soil conservation survey maps be made of their farms. The district board, seeing the group really meant business, began work on a neighborhood program.

This was just the beginning. I'll have more to tell next time.

Date-Filled Muffins

There's a sweet date-and-nut surprise in each of these golden, crisp muffins, appropriate for meals or snacks.

Easy-to-make quickbreads always please company, yet make preparing the special meal easy on the hostess. Even the homey muffin can be the glamor feature of a luncheon, as these date-filled muffins prove.

In making them, first prepare the filling of chopped dates and nuts moistened with dark corn sirup so that it will be ready to spoon between two layers of a standard muffin batter. Sprinkle tops of muffins with cereal crumbs before baking to achieve the crumbly effect.

Enough of the date-and-nut mixture will poke through the top during baking to make the muffins look as good as they taste, and urge folks to ask for seconds.

The ingredients used give this quickbread excellent food value. Most economical of all is the enriched flour with its important B-vitamins, iron, and protein.

DATE-FILLED MUFFINS

2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons melted shortening
½ cup chopped dates
¼ cup chopped nuts
2 tablespoons dark corn sirup
2 tablespoons cereal crumbs

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar. Beat egg and add milk and shortening. Add egg mixture to flour mixture, stirring only until flour is moistened. Combine dates, nuts, and sirup. Fill greased muffin pans one-fourth full of muffin batter. Put one tablespoon date mixture in center of each muffin. Cover with more muffin batter to fill pans half full. Sprinkle with cereal crumbs. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 20 minutes.

Makes one dozen muffins two and one-half inches across.

Do you want health insurance that is a sickness tax?

Socialized Medicine guarantees just one thing—more taxes out of your pocket!

It is not insurance. Your benefits are neither specified nor guaranteed. You get medical care "insofar as possible" and "when facilities are available."

Certainly you want protection against the financial shock of accident or illness. The only question is: How will you have it—on a voluntary basis with guaranteed protection or as compulsory "low-quality, high-priced" medicine, with nothing guaranteed!

Our nation's health is at an all-time high under the present system. Let's keep it that way.

Tell the Congress of the U.S.A. you are opposed to government controlled health insurance, but favor voluntary health insurance. Your future depends on what Congress does. Eternal vigilance is the price of freedom.

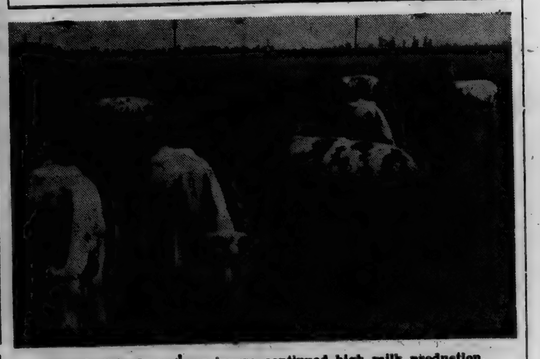
Emergency Pasture Keeps Milk Output High When Summer Heat Dries Up Grass



Well-fertilized pastures insure continued high milk production.

NOW is the time to plan for emergency pasture that will keep milk production high next summer when drouthy weather dries up your regular pastures, advises the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

A few acres of Sudan grass seeded in late spring can be a life saver when bluegrass fades in July and August, or if there is not a sufficient acreage of legume-grass mixtures to give dairy cows all the succulent, nutritious forage they need.

Agronomists say the best time to seed Sudan grass is about two weeks after corn planting. It should not be grazed until it is 18 inches high. With favorable growing weather, it will reach that height in six to seven weeks.

Sudan grass can take plenty of dry weather punishment. It is palatable and productive. As a fast growing, high yielding annual grass, Sudan needs a good supply of readily available plant food. While its requirements for phosphate are high, it needs other nutrients, too. Agronomists at various Midwestern agricultural colleges recommend adding a complete fertilizer, carrying nitrogen, phosphate and potash. In some cases they recommend applications of 500 pounds of fertilizer per acre.

A firm, well-prepared seed bed is needed. Some agronomists suggest working up the seed bed just as you would for corn. About 25 pounds of seed is usually enough. Be careful about seeding. Don't put seeds down too deep. Otherwise, you may get a thin stand.

British Socialist Tax 41¢ on 49¢ Cigarettes

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

LONDON, England—Eight minutes on the job is the time required by the average American wage earner to make the money to pay for a pack of 20 cigarettes. In Britain, a man working at the same kind of job would have to put in 80 minutes to make the money for a pack of 20 cigarettes.

NOLAND

British workers frequently brought this subject up in discussions of their problems with this American investigator. They know that comparisons of hourly wage rates in the United States with hourly wage rates in Great Britain give an unfair picture. The comparison seems to show that the British worker is badly underpaid under Socialism. He is underpaid according to American standards, but his lower pay goes farther in paying his living costs. Hence, in fairness, the bare figures need some explanation.

The minimum wage on British railroads, which are government owned, is $12.95 for a 40-hour week. This is a measure of wages more or less set by the government in a major industry. It seems low to Americans; but thousands of railroad workers manage somehow to get along on it, especially when they get some "free" services from the government.

Averages $19.60 a Week

The present average weekly wage of all male industrial workers in Britain is $19.60 a week, figuring the pound, as in the case of railroad workers, at $2.80. However, the pound is still the pound in Britain. That is, prices in terms of pounds and shillings have not been raised much. The British worker is justified in asking that Americans take this fact into consideration in explaining his wages to Hoosiers.

But the cigarette comparison is in terms of time worked, not coins. True, cigarettes are scarce in Britain. But British workers must have their cigarettes. And they pay 49 cents a pack of 20 for them. What many of them don't understand is that 41 cents of the 49 is tax. That's one way the government raises money to pay for subsidized housing, so-called "free" medical service and other Socialist "handouts."

Lots Easier for Hoosiers

But it also takes a British worker two and one-half times as long to earn the money for a pound of sugar as it takes an Indiana worker, four times as long to buy a hat and three times as long to buy a modest radio. The American figures are from the National Industrial Conference Board, the British are from an official Ministry of Labor publication.

The advantage is so great in favor of the American wage-earner that no amount of allowing for money-juggling will make much difference.

Why Monkey With it Here?

As every wage-earner knows, pay expressed in dollars and cents doesn't mean much. The real measure of earnings is what they will buy. Americans are familiar with the old one about the man who got $20,000 for his dog by trading it for two $10,000 cats.

The cold fact which British Socialists cannot dodge is that under America's competitive, freedom-of-opportunity system, a wage-earner gets a better break in terms of what his work will buy than in any country at any time in the history of the world. That's why many British workingmen will say, if assured that they will not be quoted by name, that they can't understand why the American people are monkeying with Socialistic experiments.

Wm. Laux Dies

William Laux, 72, a Spencer township farmer and lifelong resident of the Spencerville community, died at 7 a.m. Monday in the Methodist Hospital in Ft. Wayne.

His body was removed to the Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville for burial preparations and remained there until final rites were held Wednesday. The Rev. W. H. Baker, pastor of the Lutheran Church at Spencerville, officiated at the services with burial in White City Cemetery. at Spencerville.

Mr. Laux was born Aug. 31, 1877, on the farm where he resided all his life. He was the son of the late Frank and Lydia Renn Laux. Since the death of his parents about 30 years ago, he resided alone on the farm.

Surviving are a brother, Calvin Laux, of Spencerville; one sister, Mrs. Jennie Walz, of Edon, O.; five nieces and five nephews.

Mr. Laux was admitted to the hospital at Ft. Wayne seven days before his death. His death was attributed to uremic poisoning following an illness of three weeks.

we go as far as the Moon to serve our customers

When most people say they'd "go as far as the moon" to please you, they're talking in figures of speech. When we say it, we really mean it. The figures we use are right off the speedometers of our company cars and company trucks.

Last year these 463 Indiana & Michigan vehicles traveled 5,556,777 miles . . . in building and maintaining lines, connecting new customers, answering hurry calls when something needed fixing, on all sorts of trips to help homemakers, farmers, and businessmen get the most out of their electric service.

This distance they traveled is equal to eleven trips to the moon (and back!) and enough additional mileage to circle the earth 12 times at the equator.

We know that our cars and trucks don't look like interplanet space ships when you see them on the streets. They're business-like, work-a-day vehicles that you take pretty much for granted. But in running up their astronomical mileage on routine and emergency trips, they are one of many reasons why you can take your electric service so much for granted, too.

MORE BEEF... LESS FEED

with Morton's Free Choice Trace Mineralized Salt

Beef cattle do better with Trace Mineralized Salt. There is less difficulty in reproduction. Calves are sturdier, thriftier. Fattening stock make better use of feed . . . cost less to finish. Salt makes digestion more complete and efficient. Trace minerals — iron, copper, cobalt, manganese, and iodine — stimulate the enzyme, vitamin, and hormone functions by which feed nutrients are converted into blood, bone, tissue, and muscle. All livestock are healthier and thriftier for getting Morton's Trace Mineralized Salt. Feed it free choice.

FREE FOLDER For important information on feeding salt and trace minerals, write Morton Salt Co., P. O. Box 781, Chicago 90, Illinois.

This may be the dairy barn of the future. Of pole-type construction and open to the weather on one side, this low cost barn stables the cows loose, cuts chore time to a minimum, eliminates ventilation problems, and is reported to reduce udder troubles and respiratory infections. Cows milk as well in this barn as in a warm one.

Loose-Run Dairy Barns

HAVE MANY ADVANTAGES

THE pen-type or "loose-run" dairy barn is gaining favor with midwest dairy farmers. First off, they like it because it's cheap to build. With pole-type construction, it's about a third the cost of conventional, stanchion-type barns.

It's a labor-saver, too. Barn-cleaning is a once-a-year task. Time is saved even in feeding in a loafing barn designed like the one on the Lapeer County Press Farm in Michigan (shown in photos).

In a six year test recently completed by the University of Wisconsin, performance of cows in a loose-run barn was compared with performance in an ordinary stanchion barn. Results were quite surprising.

Although the temperature in the loose-run, open-ended barn was about 15 degrees colder than in the insulated stanchion barn, the cows didn't seem to mind the severe Wisconsin winters. Milk production averaged about 6 percent higher, and less feed was required to produce each pound of milk. Labor requirements were sharply reduced, and the humidity in the barn (often a problem during winter) was considerably lower.

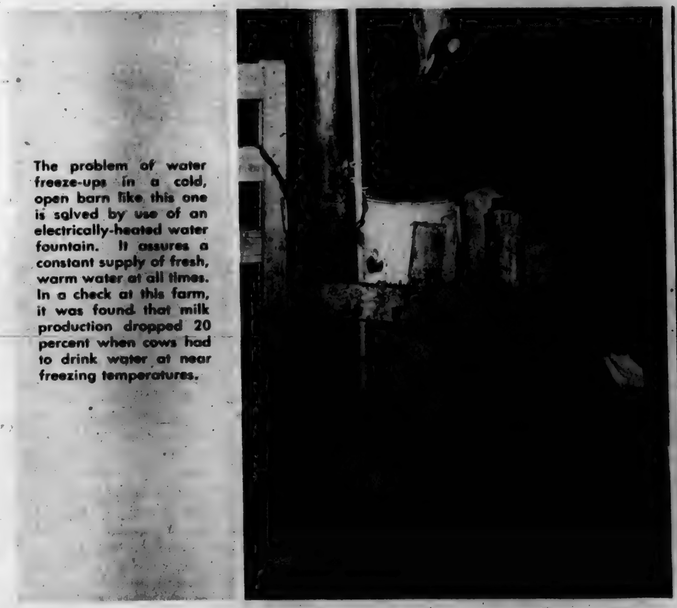
With packed manure as a floor instead of cold, hard concrete, there were less udder injuries, less sore knees and hocks, and the cows were generally more healthy. One disadvantage of the loose-run barn in the Wisconsin test was a somewhat higher bacterial count in the raw milk, but in similar studies carried out in New York State, the bacterial count in the milk produced in loose-run barns was even lower than in stanchion barns. Bacteria count has never been over 9,000 in the Lapeer, Michigan herd.

In the loose-run barn, more bedding was used, but since this increased the amount of manure available for spreading, it can hardly be considered a disadvantage.

If you are considering a new dairy barn, or are planning to remodel your old one, it may pay yon to study these photos and see if a loose-run barn might prove a money-saver for you.

No stanchions are required; cows can wander where they will, inside or out, except at milking time. Manure and bedding are allowed to build up "deep litter" fashion, which gives the cows a warm, soft bed and reduces barn cleaning to a once-a-year operation. Surprisingly, bacteria count is generally as low or lower than in milk from conventional-type barns.

Adjacent to the barn is a paved yard which keeps the cows out of the mud. Silage feeding bunks are built into the barnyard fence which permits filling from outside the yard. This eliminates opening of gates, saves time and labor. Though winter temperatures may skid to zero, the cows don't seem to mind and milk production holds up well.



The problem of water freeze-ups in a cold, open barn like this one is solved by use of an electrically-heated water fountain. It assures a constant supply of fresh, warm water at all times. In a check at this farm, it was found that milk production dropped 20 percent when cows had to drink water at near freezing temperatures.

Cows are milked, two at a time, in this raised platform milking parlor. The raised milking platform saves back-bending, makes washing the udder, milking and grain feeding easier, more efficient. Before each cow is milked, a little foremilk from each udder is drawn into a strip cup so that mastitis can be spotted and checked early.

This insulated milk house attached to the barn is heated by thermostatically controlled electric space heater and stays at 50 degrees regardless of zero temperatures outside. The electric water heater provides plenty of hot water for washing utensils. Insulation in the ceiling prevents moisture condensation which could blister paint and rot the wood.

Today's most widely accepted treatment for mastitis*!

SQUIBB "INSTANT-USE" PENICILLIN

EASY TO USE! Simply unscrew cap, insert tip of Squibb Penicillin Ointment tube into teat, squeeze out ointment, massage upward into quarter. That's all EFFECTIVE! A simple experiment, results of which are shown in this unretouched photograph of a detached udder frozen for cross-sectioning, demonstrates how thoroughly Squibb Ointment disperses penicillin throughout a treated quarter of a cow's udder.

● Widely accepted because it is a completely proved product. More than one million cases of mastitis* have been successfully treated with Squibb "Instant-Use" Penicillin. Penicillin is the "product of choice" of veterinarians and farmers.

● Widely accepted because only one tube is required for many cases. Once injected, Squibb Penicillin Ointment continues its effective action even after several milkings.

● Widely accepted because penicillin ointment is the most economical of all mastitis* treatments. Squibb "Instant-Use" Penicillin Ointment costs you up to 66⅔% less than other types of treatment.

● Widely accepted because it's a clear ointment, and won't discolor milk.

Dairymen, who keep Squibb "Instant-Use" Penicillin always on hand in the barn, treat mastitis at the first sign—stop its spread—save themselves many dollars! Ask your druggist for it by name. He has it, or can get it for you.

For SCOURS in calves and other young animals—PENOVOXIL CAPSULES. A specially prepared, exclusive Squibb formula—only product of its kind on market. Effective—easy to use—no drenches—no injections. If your druggist isn't supplied, write to E. R. Squibb & Sons, Veterinary and Animal Feeding Products Division, Dept. RG-4, 745 Fifth Avenue, New York. Literature on Penovoxil Capsules, and other Squibb specialties available on request.

*Due to Streptococcus agalactiae, the cause of the largest percentage of all mastitis cases.

Safeguard Your Dairy Herd with SULMET* SULFAMETHAZINE Lederle

Highly effective against Bacillary Enteritis
Calf Scours • Pneumonia • Metritis
Acute Mastitis • Shipping Fever • Foot Rot
Calf Diphtheria

One prompt treatment with SULMET Sulfamethazine Lederle frequently restores normal temperature and overcomes infection in an animal suffering from an acute bacterial disease. If necessary, successive treatments should be given once a day.

SULMET Sulfamethazine at recommended dosage is effective for 24 hours. Its fast action results in shortening the period of sickness and costly losses from prolonged illness are avoided. All things considered—low and infrequent dosage, rapid recovery, time and labor saved—SULMET Sulfamethazine is the most soundly economical of the miracle sulfas.

In addition to udder infusions of AUREOMYCIN Hydrochloride OINTMENT Lederle, cows suffering from acute, septic mastitis should be treated with SULMET Sulfamethazine, by injection or by mouth.

SULMET Sulfamethazine is available in several forms to suit your need: POWDER, TABLETS, OBLETS*, SOLUTION INJECTABLE Veterinary (available by or on a veterinarian's prescription) EMULSION, SOLUTION 12.5% (for use as a drench).

For maximum efficiency in the use of SULMET, as well as for best management practices and disease-control procedures, consult your veterinarian.

Battle the Corn Borer

IN 1949, the corn borer "put the bite" on farmers for about 500 million dollars of their corn crop! It was by far the worst borer year in history! The hungry, little, flesh-colored, brown-spotted, black-headed "worms" riddled stalks, leaves, shanks and ears . . . toppling corn plants and slashing yields on thousands and thousands of farms throughout the Corn Belt.

To many farmers in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana, the borer was nothing new. He had been an unwelcomed dinner guest in their cornfields for more than 20 years. Most farmers in these states had learned to "live" with him.

But in many sections of Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin, the borer struck hard for the first time . . . and the toll was terrific.

The extent of borer damage this year will depend upon weather and upon the success farmers will have in counter attacking with sound corn-growing practices.

Now, on the eve of the 1950 corn planting season, it will pay farmers to study the "borer battling" ideas offered in the pictures below, and consult with their county agents and other local farm authorities on the best means of holding down their numbers and bringing through a big, profitable corn crop.

It may already be too late, but if you have any stalk fields from last year's corn still unplowed, better get them turned under immediately. The broken old stalks are literally crawling with borer moths, ready to take flight from winter hibernation and lay eggs on your young corn when it starts leafing out.

Don't be too anxious to get your seed corn in the ground. By planting ten days later than normal, the corn's not high enough for the moths to lay eggs in it and they'll move to other fields or other crops. If practiced widely, delayed planting could reduce first brood numbers sharply, which in turn, would reduce size of the second brood.

You can plant later than usual and still get a good yield of ripe corn before frost by using extra fertilizer. The right combination of fertilizers for your particular soil will stimulate faster growth and hasten ripening so that late planted corn will mature safely. Regardless of planting date, it pays to fertilize the corn crop.

Airplane or ground sprays of DDT can aid in destroying billions of borers, but proper timing — almost to the hour — is essential for success. Last year, thousands of farmers reported excellent results with spraying, while many others reported failure. The difference in results was probably due to the difference in timing.

Hybrid corn breeders like Ralph Gunn (above) are working to develop varieties with extra corn borer tolerance. To date, no great difference in tolerance has been demonstrated between one variety and another. Many breeders recommend varieties with extra tough stalks and shanks that seem able to stand up and yield despite borer attacks.

THIS OFFICE KITCHEN provides perfect convenience, will be a lifetime pleasure to the woman who is really making a career of her life as a homemaker. Imagine having all your cook books, recipes, stationery, writing equipment and telephone efficiently brought together in one nook — and right where you can keep an eye on what's cooking in your kitchen! Are you a 4-H leader, church club officer, or member of the school board? You'll find this the perfect spot to organize your work. Are you "tied down" with small children and home most of the day? You'll love having a well ordered place of your own in which to escape confusion and write letters, plan meals, keep your accounts, etc. Even Dad will probably use this little office on occasional evenings to do some of his own "paper work". Definitely this new idea for an office kitchen fills a long felt need.

FLOODED WITH SUNLIGHT, a cheery place for the family to eat breakfast and "start the day right", a cheery place for the homemaker all day — this kitchen has one complete wall of glass, with lovely view of garden. If you were going to remodel, you'd find the glass wall not a problem at all — the trick is to plan so that your view will be in the very prettiest direction, either overlooking a garden spot, or looking toward the most scenic part of your farmlands.

ALL 9 Top PRIZE-WINNING RECIPES (from the 100 best) in Pillsbury's $100,000 GRAND NATIONAL RECIPE & BAKING CONTEST

Adapted for your use by Ann Pillsbury

At our Grand National "Bake-off" at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel last December, I realized how strong the love for good baked foods still is in this country of ours.

You may want to add some touch of your own to these nine grand-prize-winning recipes (as women do, who bake with their hearts, as well as their hands). But I know that you will find the recipes every bit as interesting as I did . . . and that you'll want to try them soon.

These nine recipes now are in every sack of our Pillsbury's Best Flour. Each one was especially submitted by the contestant for use with Pillsbury's Best. Each one is arranged in easy-to-follow, step-by-step form.

Good luck and good baking!

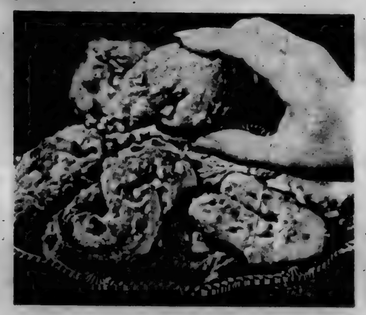
Pillsbury's $50,000 No-Knead Water-Rising Twists

submitted by
Mrs. Ralph E. Smafield, Detroit, Michigan



BAKE at 375° F. for 12 to 15 minutes.
MAKES 2 dozen twists.

Combine... ½ cup shortening
3 tablespoons sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup scalded milk

Add..... 2 cakes compressed yeast, crumbled (or 2 packages dry granular yeast dissolved in ¼ cup lukewarm water); mix well.

Blend in... 1½ cups sifted Pillsbury's Best Enriched Flour and beat until smooth. Cover and let rest 15 minutes.

Add..... 3 eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition.

Blend in... 1½ cups sifted Pillsbury's Best Enriched Flour and mix thoroughly. The dough will be quite soft.

Let rise.... in one of two ways: (1.) Either set covered dough in warm place (80° to 90° F.) about ½ hour; (2.) or tie dough in a tea towel, allowing ample space for dough to rise. Then place in large mixing bowl and fill with water (75° to 80° F.). Let stand until dough rises to top of water, about 30 to 45 minutes. Remove from water. The dough will be soft and moist.

Combine... ½ cup chopped nuts (any kind)
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Divide..... dough into small pieces with a tablespoon. Roll each piece in sugar-nut mixture; stretch to about 8-inch length. Twist into desired shape. Place on greased baking sheet. Let stand for 5 minutes.

Bake..... in moderate oven (375° F.) for 12 to 15 minutes.

*If dry yeast is used, decrease milk to ¼ cup.

By SUSAN LOWE

THIS year we've a Hit Parade of foods again, but this time it's a sort of ROUND ROBIN Hit Parade, for we've assembled the foods that rate number one with midwestern cooks. State by state, our Round Robin Parade will present the foods which are tops in popularity.

MICHIGAN leads off appropriately with something new in cherry desserts — Cherry Petal Baskets. This new cherry concoction is made of pastry rounds cleverly laid to over-lap. The baskets are filled with a cherry glace.

True to its tradition of Scandinavian cookery, MINNESOTA'S favorite proves to be Pancake Rolls with Cheese Sauce. Thin pancakes are made and spread with a cheese sauce to which chopped hard boiled eggs have been added. The pancakes are then rolled up like a jelly roll, arranged spoke-fashion in a casserole with more cheese sauce.

Coffee-cake seems to have been in the lime-light for centuries, so it's no wonder that our IOWA women are going all out for the 1950 version of coffee-cake, one with a lattice top. For filling, some use cherry jam, others orange marmalade, then weave criss-cross strips of the coffee-cake dough across the top.

ILLINOIS women seem to have less time for cooking and baking, but their families are just as devoted to delicious foods. So here we find ingenuity coming to the rescue and a Marble Pie walking off with top honors. It's something that can be made quickly and easily by using prepared chocolate and vanilla pudding mix.

Down in INDIANA they're all for Ice Cream Meringue Torte, a dessert which could win a popularity contest anywhere. This delicious torte is made up of two layers of meringue-topped cake, put together with an ice cream center and topped with strawberries!

OHIO cooks have come up with something that would make news in any hit parade. It's Salmon Puff . . . sort of a cream puff with chopped pimento and chopped green pepper added to the puff paste . . . and the filling is creamed salmon. For contrast, serve with peach and lettuce salad.

WISCONSIN'S choice of Cream Topped Chocolate Pie would be a hit in any language. It's really an old favorite with a brand new rich chocolate filling. Topped with a ring of whipped cream and sprinkled with chopped nuts, it has zoomed right into top demand.

In true American fashion, some Round Robin favorites are simple . . . some elaborate . . . but each is a HIT in its own right!

CHERRY PETAL BASKETS (MICHIGAN)

Cherry filling

½ cup sugar
2 tblsp. cornstarch
½ tsp. salt
1½ cups cherry juice or water
1 tblsp. lemon juice
2 cups pitted cherries, fresh or canned

Mix together sugar, cornstarch, and salt. Heat cherry juice or water and add sugar mixture to cherry juice, stirring constantly. Cook until cherry juice is clear and medium thick. Add cherries and blend well. When cherry filling cools, fill pastry baskets.

Pastry Baskets

Prepare standard pastry dough. Roll out about ⅛" thick. Cut into rounds with 2½" biscuit cutter. Place one round on bottom of each 2½" muffin cup. Line sides of muffin cup by overlapping 5 pastry rounds around each cup, setting the rounds on edge. Press edges of pastry on sides firmly to edges of pastry on bottom. Prick with fork. Bake in hot oven 8-10 minutes. Cool. Fill with cherry filling.

SALMON PUFFS (OHIO)

Sift together — ½ cup sifted flour, ¼ tsp. salt, few grains pepper.

Melt — ¼ cup shortening in ½ cup boiling water over heat.

Add — 2 tblsp. chopped pimento and 2 tblsp. chopped green pepper to liquid.

Add — dry ingedients all at once to boiling liquid; stir constantly.

Cook — until mixture leaves sides of pan in a smoth compact ball, stirring vigorously. Remove from heat and cool 1 minute.

Add — 2 eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition until mixture is smooth again.

Drop — by rounded tblspfuls 1½" apart on greased baking sheet.

Bake — in hot oven (450) for 10 minutes, then at 400 F. for 15-20 minutes.

Cut — opening in top of puff and fill with creamed Salmon.

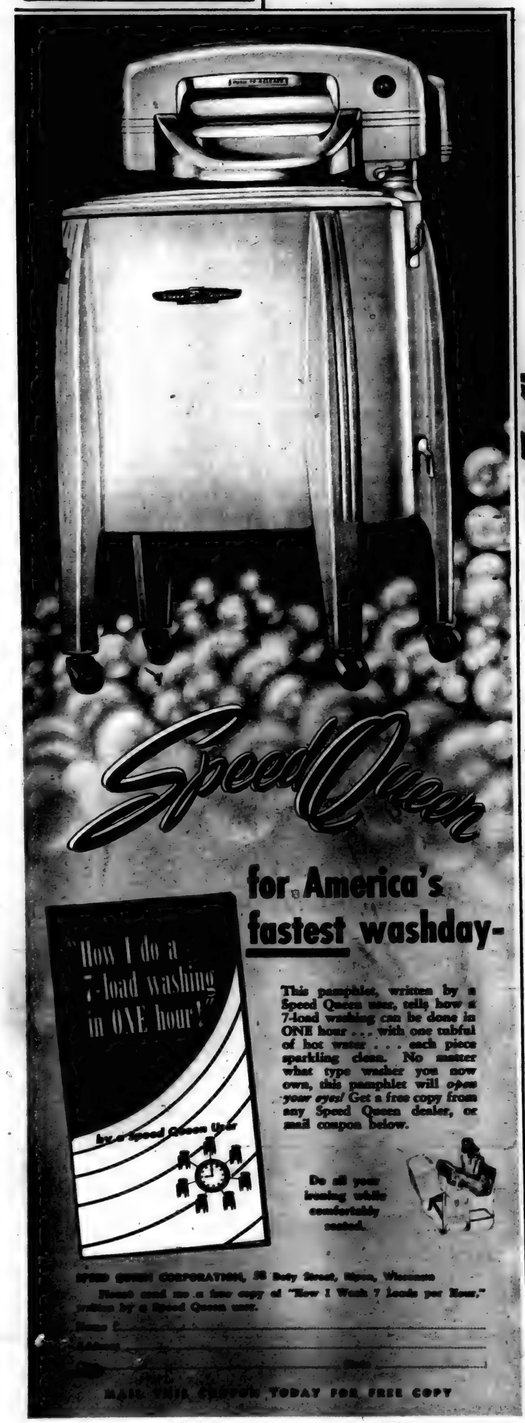
Note: ½ cup chopped celery and 1 tblsp. chopped green pepper may be added to creamed salmon when cooking cream sauce.

Better Icings always with the One and Only BURNETT'S Vanilla

MARBLE PIE (ILLINOIS)

1	pkg vanilla pudding	3½	cups milk
1	pkg. chocolate pudding	1	baked 9" pie shell

Prepare puddings as directed on package, reducing milk in each recipe to 1¾ cups. Cool to lukewarm. Put by tablespoons into cold pie shell, alternating light and dark puddings. Then with knife or spatula, cut through filling in wide zig-zag course; repeat in opposite direction. Chill.



LATTICE COFFEE CAKE (IOWA)

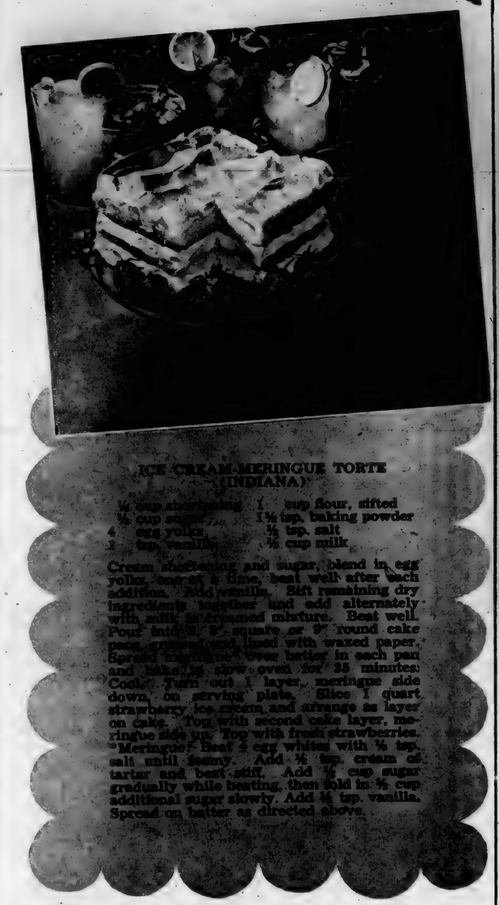
2	cups sifted flour	¼	cup sugar
3	tsp. baking powder	1	egg, beaten
1	tsp. salt	½	cup milk
½	cup shortening	1	cup orange marmalade or fruit jam

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg. Mix well. Add flour mixture and milk alternately to creamed mixture. Spread ⅔ of dough in lined 7 x 11-inch pan. Spread marmalade or jam on dough. Roll remaining dough on floured board —⅛ inch thick. Cut in strips ½ inch wide. Place strips on marmalade in lattice fashion, tucking ends of strips down on edge of coffee cake. Bake in moderate oven (375) 30 minutes.

CREAM TOPPED CHOCOLATE PIE (WISCONSIN)

2	sq. unsweetened chocolate	2	tblsp. butter
1	cup light brown sugar	1	tsp. vanilla extract
3	tblsp. flour	6	tblsp. granulated sugar
2	eggs, beaten		sweetened whipped cream
1½	cups scalded milk		chopped nuts

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Add sugar, flour, eggs and milk. Cook over hot water until thick, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add butter and vanilla. Pour into baked pastry shell. Top with ring of whipped cream and sprinkle with chopped nuts.



ICE CREAM-MERINGUE TORTE (INDIANA)

½	cup shortening	1	cup flour, sifted
½	cup sugar	1½	tsp. baking powder
4	egg yolks	½	tsp. salt
1	tsp. vanilla	½	cup milk

Cream shortening and sugar, blend in egg yolks, mixed at first, beat well after each addition. Add vanilla. Sift remaining dry ingredients together and add alternately with milk to creamed mixture. Beat well. Pour into 2 8-inch square or 9" round cake pans, greased and lined with waxed paper. Spread meringue over batter in each pan and bake in slow oven for 35 minutes. Cool. Turn out 1 layer, meringue side down, on serving plate. Slice 1 quart strawberry ice cream and arrange as layer on cake. Top with second cake layer, meringue side up. Top with fresh strawberries.

Meringue: Beat egg whites with ½ tsp. salt until foamy. Add ½ tsp. cream of tartar and beat stiff. Add ¾ cup sugar gradually while beating, then fold in ½ cup additional sugar slowly. Add ½ tsp. vanilla. Spread on batter as directed above.

PANCAKE ROLLS WITH CHEESE SAUCE (MINNESOTA)

3	tblsp. butter	½	lb. cheese, shredded
3	tblsp. flour	4	hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1½	cups milk		Hot thin pancakes

Make a cream sauce with the butter, flour and milk. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Add about ¾ of the cheese, and stir until melted. Add enough cheese sauce to the chopped hard-cooked eggs to moisten them. Season to taste. Spread about 2 tblsp. of this mixture on each of the pancakes. Roll up like a jelly roll. Arrange spoke fashion in a well greased casserole. Pour the cheese sauce over the pancakes and top with the remaining cheese. Place in moderate oven, or under low broiler heat until cheese melts.

Birthday Parties FOR THE Young Fry

THERE'S been an epidemic of birthday parties in our neighborhood and I never can tell whether the mommies or the kiddies have the most fun. And don't think for a moment that the only ingredients necessary for a party are little girls with shining curls and small boys whose chief interest in life is to make noise. It also takes prizes and surprises, games and more games, and no birthday would be complete without a birthday cake a-light with twinkling candles and accompanied by overflowing dishes of ice cream.

Remember that surprise packages are just as precious to the young guests as to the Birthday Boy or Girl, so if you really want your party to go over in a big way, you'll have favors for each child — possibly a tiny auto — a horn — or at least a paper hat.

Our Larry just celebrated his fourth birthday and his mommie had horns for each of the nine little boys who were there. She placed the horns in the center of the table and ran ribbons to each plate. She had lots of little prizes, too, for their games. If the children are old enough, play should be organized. They can pin the tail on the donkey, drop clothes pins into milk bottles and so on. If there are little two-year-olds, you can have them build piles of blocks and give a prize to the one building the highest.

Larry's mommie had made Tiny Tim cakes so each youngster had a little individual cake with a single candle that he could blow out. Then she'd made a large cake for the mothers.

Sometimes a birthday-pie goes over for a change from the traditional cake. This can be surrounded with candles stuck in chocolate mint patties. The circus motif is always a favorite with the young fry and a gelatin mold supporting a parade of animal crackers is bound to win friends.

Snowman ice-cream serves as the grand finale!

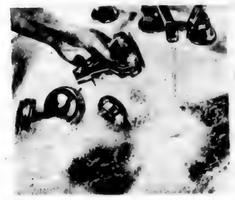
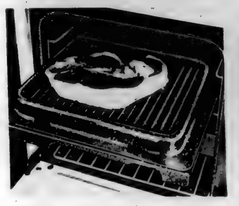
Broiler converts into an extra economy oven! First time in history! Simply by pushing a lever, the broiler instantly becomes a small heat-controlled extra oven! Perfect for baking when you want the master oven free for roasting . . . perfect for a one-dish meal! Helps co-ordinate your meals; gives you added baking space; saves you money on fuel!



LOOK!

Lift-out burners as small and as easily washed as teacups! Nothing like these burners anywhere! No more grimy, tedious burner-cleaning for you! Just dunk them in the dishpan, shake them, drop them back in place—and they operate immediately! Each burner has a true simmer control—each a lifetime guarantee!



LOOK!

"No-Turn" broiler—sizzles both sides of meat at once! Imagine! No bother of turning the meat just when you're busy with the rest of the dinner! You simply put the steaks or chops in, time, take out! Both sides are broiled evenly, beautifully at the same time! No smoking! No flaming! Vitamin-packed juices are sealed in!

LOOK!

Gleaming-white oven—easiest-to-clean in the world! As white and bright as the inside of your refrigerator! Its rounded corners, removable racks and rack-guides give a surface as easy to clean as the inside of a mixing bowl! Bakes so evenly that no time is spent shifting food from one rack to another!

FRUITY ORANGE CAKE

Sift 2 cups sifted Robin Hood Enriched Flour, 1 cup sugar, 1 tsp. soda and 1 tsp. salt into mixing bowl. Drop in ½ cup Spry. Add ½ cup buttermilk or thick sour milk, ¼ tsp. lemon extract, 1 unpeeled medium-sized orange, seeded and finely ground, and 1 egg, unbeaten; beat 200 strokes (2 minutes by hand or on mixer at low speed). Scrape bowl and spoon or beater. Add another egg (unbeaten) and beat 200 strokes (2 min. on mixer at low speed). Add 1 cup seedless raisins, finely ground, and beat 50 strokes (½ min. on mixer at low speed).

Bake in Spry-coated 8½-inch tube pan in moderate oven (350° F.) 1 hour and 20 minutes, or until done; or in Spry-coated 8 x 12 x 2-inch pan at 350° F. 45-55 minutes. Cool. Spread fresh Orange Frosting on top and sides of cake; decorate top with a crown of fine shreds of orange rind.

Fresh Orange Frosting: Combine 1 tbsp. Spry, 1 tbsp. butter, ¼ tsp. salt, 1 tsp. grated orange rind, 2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar, and 3 tbsp. orange juice. Beat well.

RAISIN SURPRISE ROLLS

Pour 2 cups scalded milk over 6 tbsps. sugar, ½ cup shortening, 1 tsp. salt, and ½ cup mashed potatoes; stir until well-blended and shortening has melted. Add 2 cups sifted Robin Hood Enriched Flour; beat with rotary beater until well mixed; cool to lukewarm.

Let 1 cake compressed yeast or 1 pkg. dry granular yeast stand in ¼ cup lukewarm water 5 min. Add to milk mixture; beat again. Place batter in warm place until bubbly (1-1½ hrs.) Mix in 3½-4 cups sifted Robin Hood Enriched Flour (enough to make a stiff dough) and knead on lightly floured board until smooth and elastic. Place dough in greased bowl, cover securely; place in refrigerator. (Dough will rise in refrigerator and may have to be punched down once or twice.)

Pinch off small amount of dough, flatten into patty, place some of raisin mixture (mix together 1 cup Sun-Maid Seedless Raisins, ½ cup sugar and 1 tsp. cinnamon) in center of dough. Pull sides up and together and seal well. (24 rolls to one 8-in. sq. pan.) Place seam side down in well-greased 8-in. sq. pan; let rise until light. Snip top of each roll with scissors just before placing in oven. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) for 15 to 20 min. Frost with powdered sugar icing and anchor a raisin with frosting in depression on top of each roll. Total yield: 4 to 5 doz. rolls.

Robin Hood Flour—
The Priceless Ingredient in Every Great Recipe.

There are a thousand and one recipes, but the three you will find on this page are unusual. Each was created by one of the most famous home economists in the country. All are recommended by Rita Martin. Each of these recipes is one of the greatest of its kind.

You will find that every one of these recipes contains Robin Hood Flour! A great flour is the one essential ingredient in every great recipe. So when you try them, be sure that you use Robin Hood as well as the other ingredients named.

We know that if you use Robin Hood for all your baking, you will get the lightest, fluffiest cakes . . . the tenderest, flakiest pastry . . . and rolls and bread that are just out of this world. Robin Hood's Million Dollar "Secret Blend" will insure that everything you bake is perfection.

Look for the ingredients in these great recipes at your grocer's now. He will have them on display. Ask him for extra copies of the recipes. He has them in easy-to-read cook book style. Try them, and see if you don't agree that they are the greatest recipes ever created.

Conservation Club Reorganized

The St. Joe Valley Conservation Club held a reorganizational meeting last Friday, April 14, at the St. Joe Town Hall.

Approximately twenty-two persons attended and paid dues for membership in the club which had been inactive for the past few years. New officers were elected as follows: president - Elmer McKay; vice-president - Jerry Haver; and secretary - Paul C. Fetters.

Membership cards will be given out in the next week or so, and it is planned to have a membership drive in the near future.

The next meeting has been set for Friday, May 5.

Local Serviceman Participates In Maneuvers

Corporal Harry W. Schendel, son of L. A. Schendel of St. Joe, has been selected to take part in the gigantic airborne manuevers now starting in the Carolinas. "Exercise Swarmer," as the Army and Air Force refer to it, will be the largest maneuver of the Summer and will be the first since the war that involves two Airborne Divisions.

A member of the Division Artillery of the 11th Airborne Division of Pacific warfare fame, Cpl. Schendel is a qualified parachutist with a number of jumps to his credit. As an artillery-man, the local soldier will be charged with helping deliver heavy firepower in support of the Airborne Operation.

Headquarters Battery, 675th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion, Commanded by Capt. Ralph E. Lipscomb, of which Cpl. Schendel is a member, will be parachuted and air transported into the "fighting" area. Not only will the jumping artillerymen come floating down on silk, but they intend to bring their big calibered guns down on parachutes, too.

Recent weeks have found the men of the "Angels" polishing their well-known jump boots, oiling their carbines and practicing with their big guns in eager anticipation of war-like practice session.

Stephen Brown, 79, Dies

Stephen Brown, 79, a life-long resident of DeKalb county, passed away in the Sanders Hospital in Auburn at 3:30 Saturday morning from complications and old age.

Mr. Brown was born on Sept. 11, 1870, and had been ill for a period of nearly six months. He was taken to the Sanders Hospital on March 14 from his farm home, a mile and a half west of St. Joe.

The 79-year-ol retired farmer was later dismissed from the hospital and moved into the home of his stepson and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Russell L. Davis, in Auburn.

Mr. Brown re-entered the hospital on April 3 and remained there until his death. The body was removed to the Dilgard and Cline Funeral Home for burial preparation and funeral services were held there on Monday afternoon.

The Rev. Joseph Ferguson of near Auburn conducted the funeral services and burial followed in the Woodlawn Cemetery.

The elderly retired farmer was married to the former Miss Della Kline on Nov. 15, 1899, in Auburn. The widow lives in the couple's farm home near St. Joe.

Other survivors are a sister, Mrs. Sidney Gill of Auburn; a brother, Russell Brown, of Angola; and two step-grandchildren.

JEAN COLISTA BILLOW TO WED APRIL 29

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Billow of St. Joe announced this week the coming marriage of their daughter, Jean Colista, to Mr. George Danchi of Hammond, Ind., on Saturday, April 29, at 3 p.m.

The ceremony will be performed at the St. Mark's Lutheran Church in St. Joe, and members of the church and the community are invited to attend.

New Feature

Around the Town

With the Editor

Well, I'm trying something new - new for me, anyhow. I'm just going to write about things that happen every day in our little town - or other thoughts may just pop into my mind that I'll pass on to you in a nice little bit of informal conversation. Sometimes I may just talk about things, such as that DEElicious combination salad that was served at the Juniors' Cafeteria Supper last Friday night. Of course, the other food was fine, too (chicken sandwiches, ham, potato salad, baked beans, ice cream, cake, etc.). But I really went for that salad. I bought six servings of it and two of the jello salad for our (the family's) supper - and I think Esther and the kids got the jello salads and one - just one - combination between them. - The others??? SMACK!! Boy, was it good.!

And then maybe I'll switch to something serious, like, for instance, the tough time Mike McElroy has had this winter. He no more than recovers from one ailment when, just like that - he's got another. Between the flu, chicken-pox, and now complications arising from the chicken-pox, - well, I'd say he's had it. He was in pretty bad shape last week-end. I talked to his daddy and grandpa, asking about his condition. I could tell they were feeling pretty discouraged - and I didn't know what to say. What is there to say? Our Mike is about the same age as their Mike, and I tried to think of something to say to them that would be comforting to me if my Mike were seriously ill — there was nothing.

I left the store in silence.

. . . . . Speaking of Mike reminds me of Davey, which reminds me of an episode at home involving his logical little mind. Esther was chopping up onions for spaghetti, or something, and naturally he wanted a bite. Helping himself to a good sized cut, he bit off a chunk and chewed - for just a few seconds.

"Hot, Mommy!" was his quick complaint.

Well, Mommy gave him a drink of water to cool his mouth. But that wasn't enough. He took the remaining piece of onion, opened the refrigerator, carefully placed the onion on one of the shelves, closed the door and went back to his toys. Five minuutes later, back to the kitchen, open the refrigerator, take another bite of onion, ponder a moment; then back into the refrigerator with the onion, saying, "Still hot!"

I've got a good one about Mike - but I'll save it for next week. I'm warning you, you may read a lot about those kids here. They do some of the darndest things.

—And that's "Around the Town With the Editor."

They also especially thank Mr. and Mrs. Howard for their help and the use of their store.

Names Withdrawn From Action

Five members of the church council of the St. Mark's Lutheran Church were removed Monday from the list of plaintiffs seeking an injunction against Charles G. (Chuck) McIntosh.

The five men, Frank Shull, William Staman, William Sible, Joseph Foltz and Roy Reidenbach, asked that their names be removed from the list as individual complainants in the action.

The other members of the council remain as plaintiffs along with the entire congregation of the church, which as a body voted to press the action.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

Mrs. Frank Shull entertained the Ladies Literary Club Wednesday, April 19, at the schoolhouse. She showed a film, "18th Century Life in Williamsburg, Va." One of the points emphasized was the pride and confidence our ancestors had in their way of life and their handicraft.

Mrs. Glen Cole read two amusing selections. Mrs. Hadsell read the collect. Year-end reports were heard.

Arrangements were made for the officers' meeting the 2nd Wednesday in May. The mid-summer meeting will be the 2nd Wednesday in June.

The next meeting will be at the Lutheran Church with the members of the Culture Club as guests. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Nation Going Soft

Lesson for April 23, 1950

AFTER the fraternity dance one of the "brothers" shot another, for no good reason. Well, there was a reason of a sort. The killer was drunk, on liquor the fraternity had bought and served him. His excuse, when arrested, was that when he was "tight" he was trigger-happy . . . . A prominent motion picture star divorces her husband for cruelty. It comes out at the trial that he was mean anyhow, and that all his meannesses got worse when he was drunk. One wonders: Did she know him very well before she married him?

Dr. Foreman

Every day the papers carry reports of cars that "went out of control" with serious or fatal results. Careful reading of the story too often brings out the fact that the boys had been visiting a night-spot or two before the crash. Survivors will tell the police they couldn't have been drunk, they had only had a few beers. Well, you don't have to be drunk to let a car get out from your control. This writer personally has observed a driver who had had exactly one beer run a car right off the pavement in broad sunlight.

Gets Monotonous, Doesn't It?

A SEX CRIME is committed by a middle-aged man who sheds tears over it afterward and can hardly remember anything about it. "I never would have done it if I had been sober," he says . . . A girl is found murdered in a men's rooming-house, a nice girl too.

Nobody was drunk—they had only been taking a few drinks . . . A 27-year-old woman was shot and killed during an argument with her sister-in-law. The shooting, it was claimed, was accidental. They had been having some friendly beers in a near-by tavern "for a couple of hours" before the shooting.

After they got home, there was an argument. One woman got her husband's revolver out to scare the other woman, and the first thing she knew, she was being arrested for murder. Her husband told the police that when sober his wife was "deathly scared" of guns.

(Beer, the brewers' ads tell us, is the friendly drink, it is the drink of moderation; "Beer Belongs." It does, indeed, but where? Possibly that unfortunate killer-woman had believed what the ads told her.) . . .

The Truth About Liquor

WELL . . . this could be strung out to the length of several columns, without half trying. The above items are not from some chamber of horrors conducted by the W.C.T.U., not from a sermon by some Anti-Saloon league preacher, but gathered from newspaper items from a few days' papers in a city which certainly is not prejudiced against liquor.

The truth about liquor can never be learned from the advertising pages, it can be better learned from the news columns. Better yet, if you want to know the truth about it, ask the lawyers, doctors and ministers you know. Ask the lawyers if their business would be brisker or slower if liquor were not in existence.

Ask the doctors whether steady drinkers have stronger or weaker resistance to disease. Ask the ministers if they know of any troubles in their congregations due to liquor. (And if even church people have troubles with it, what about people with no religion?)

Drink and Doom

IT IS NOT TRUE that if liquor were totally abolished from the earth, all the troubles of mankind would vanish. Man has too much meanness in him. A sober scoundrel is one of the worst. But it is true that liquor lends itself all too easily to all sorts of troubles, all sorts of sins. When Amos thunders against the evils of his time, drunkenness is one of the sins prominent on his list.

Remember that in Amos' time there was no whisky, no brandy, no distilled liquors, only "mild" stuff like wine. Every denunciation of drink in the Bible is directed against what would now be called light wine and beers.

One thing is as certain now as it was in Amos' time: A nation that insists on having its liquor is not the nation God will insist on saving when its day of doom arrives.

NITROGEN INCREASES OATS AND RYE YIELDS

When farmers purchase their nitrogen fertilizer supplies this spring for top dressing needs, the rye and oats crops will benefit by being included in the plans. Excessive winter rains have depleted many soils of nitrogen.

The response of oats to nitrogen is about the same as that of wheat. For every three pounds of nitrogen applied per acre, the increased oat yield will be approximately one bushel.

Profitable results can be expected from nitrogen applications on oats particularly if the oats were seeded on just average ground and on light colored soils following soybeans. Generally rates of over 30 pounds of elemental nitrogen are not profitable.

The nitrogen materials can be broadcast prior to working up the seed bed, drilled with the seed in the form of mixed fertilizer such as an 8-8-8 or top dressed on the oats after seeding if it is done within a ten-day period.

Most of the rye grown in this state is produced on sandy soil. Such soils are short of nitrogen and top dressing with nitrogen in the spring should be a regular practice for both wheat and rye regardless of previous weather conditions.

State Medicine Really Forced on Britishers

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

LONDON, England—If it is true that a large proportion of Britain's 18,000 practicing physicians are against socialized medicine, why did 95 percent of them sign up for the plan when it went into effect July 5, 1948?

NOLAND

This question is often asked of those who have looked into medical practice in Britain under Socialism. It is a very important point in American consideration of socialized medicine, for it clearly implies that Britain's doctors are practically unanimously for the plan.

But the fact that 95 percent did sign up to practice under the scheme, although in theory they had an open choice to carry on as free practitioners or to submit themselves to bureaucratic government control, is enlightening only when explained.

In Britain a doctor owns his practice. He probably obtained it by purchase from an elderly doctor who wished to retire. Few young doctors have the money to buy a practice, so they arrange to borrow the money and to pay it back from their income. This takes several years.

Claim "Right to Seize"

The doctor is bound, both legally and as a matter of honor, to keep his practice in a flourishing condition so he can finally own what he bought and in the course of years get a good price for his practice when it comes his turn to sell and retire.

The Socialist government classed the practice of a doctor as property and said that it had the same right to seize his property that it had to seize the coal mines or any other property which it believed would better serve the people under public ownership.

Thus the doctor really had the choice of signing up under the socialized medicine scheme or facing the loss of his practice. He was pointedly given to understand that his choice was to sign up or else.

Socialists Used Club

Most of those who did not sign up were in some such field as hospital or public health administration. Some specialists whose high reputation assured them a good practice taking care of cases referred to them did not feel the force of the threat to their livelihood and did not sign up.

But the Socialists were swinging the club when they set a date for doctors to make a decision. It was on the same date that the people were required to sign up with a doctor.

Both doctors and patients freely admit that the signing propaganda was loaded with threatening hints which the people took as more evidence that the Socialist political leaders had them tied hand and foot to government.

Basically Untrue

Thus the fact of 95 percent voluntary participation by patients as well as doctors can with some justice be used by proponents of socialized medicine in the United States. But, like much of the British Socialism propaganda flowing from the minds of America's bureaucratic intellectuals and their political front men, it is basically untrue.

The Socialist always argues that the end—state control of everything—justifies the means. In this instance, the Socialist leaders convinced doctors that they would not have a practice unless they lined up, and also convinced the people that they could not get a doctor when sick unless they signed up, too.

The Socialists reaching for power did not hesitate to scare both doctor and patient into submission.

Hints On Health

INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

SPRING EXERCISE

WARM spring weather brings out the redbud in the woods, the primrose in the garden and the golfer on the green. It is the season that inspires all of us to get out of doors and exercise. Exercise is a fine thing—when properly taken.

Over-exercise can be harmful to heart, arteries, lungs, bones and joints. Many persons who have idled all winter indoors suddenly pop out in spring with enthusiasm . . . with ideas too big for their physical capacity. Although pushing a lawnmower may seem easy, imperfect hearts are strained this way and sometimes death occurs from this strain.

Individuals should take their spring work-out gradually. Whether it is working in the yard, gardening, moving furniture, spring housecleaning or playing golf or baseball, exercise which brings on exhaustion is not good. Fatigue should be guarded against at all times.

The normal person in good health will profit by taking exercise suitable for him. The right playtime exercise for each person is the one which appeals to him and is within his physical limitations. Walking, horseback riding, horseshoe and croquet are comparatively mild forms of exercise. Handball, tennis and baseball are strenuous games.

ALUMINUM ROOF NEEDS PROPER APPLICATION

Aluminum has many advantages as a farm building material when proper methods are used in applying it, according to prof. Alvin C. Dale, of the Purdue University agricultural engineering department.

He points out that aluminum is fire resistant, offers ample protection from lightning when securely grounded, can be laid without skilled labor with regular carpenter's tools, and if properly applied has a low maintenance cost and long life. Due to its high reflective qualities, it offers more resistance to absorption of the sun's heat than other roofing materials.

The first point to consider in applying any roof is the proper roof deck for the material. For aluminum a good roof deck material one inch or more in thickness is desirable. For the 0.019-inch, 26-gauge 1.25-inch corrugated aluminum, the sheathing should not be spaced more than 12 inches on centers. The spacing may be increased for thicker gauges. The roof deck should be kept square or should be straightened in reroofing if the old deck has warped or deflected.

Application of the roofing material should begin on the end opposite from which the prevailing winds blow, lapping the sides of each successive sheet over the preceding sheet. Since the prevailing winds in Indiana are south, southwest or west, the application should be started on the east or north end of the building, depending on its orientation.

Side laps with aluminum should be two and a half corrugations for slopes less than six inches per foot or more than 12 inches per foot. For slopes from six inches to 12 inches per foot, the sides should lap one and a half corrugations. End laps should be eight inches for any slope less than 6 inches per foot and 6 inches for any slope greater than that. The minimum roof slope for satisfactory use of aluminum is 3 to 4 inches rise for each horizontal foot of run. Roofs with less slope than this will probably give trouble. An aluminum roofing nail with a ring or screw shank is strongly recommended for fastening aluminum roofing, the Purdue specialist says.

WINNERS 4-H CLUB

The Winners 4-H Club met April 10 at the home of Kathleen Anthony with all of the members present and many parents.

John Witt opened the meeting by calling on the song leaders to lead group singing. Devotions were lead by Rev. Fry. Several musical numbers were given by Kathleen Anthony, Tahoma Jean Laughman, Donna Wagner and Connie Fisher. Pledges were lead by Donna Lou Cook.

A report on ticket sales was given by each member for the "Hoosier Cornhuskers" program. The club is sponsoring this program to be given in the Spencerville gym on May 12 at 8 p.m. The price of the tickets is 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. Tickets may be purchased from any member.

Health and Safety was given by Franklin Johnson and Jerry Leonard. After several games of bingo, delicious refreshments were served by Donna Lou Cook and Kathleen Anthony.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS

The statements giving the reappraisal values of your property have now been mailed. The new appraisals have caused much discussion. Only information was gathered by the field men, Mr. Haverstock and Mr. Keller, of Concord Township, and this information was turned in to the County Assessor's Office. The "yard stick" this office used for your actual appraisal was set up by the State Tax Board.

The County Board of Review is now in session and will hear the complaints of Concord Township on April 27 at the County Assessor's Office at Auburn. If you have a complaint, we suggest that you bring along the exact date your buildings were built, other information concerning your buildings and, if you have one, a map showing the cleared land and woodland of your farm. (Many of you have maps furnished by the A.A.A.)

I will be present on this date to help you all I can.

Around the Town

With the Editor

First of all, that story about Mike.

You know how kids play around at the table when they've had enough to eat. Mike was doing just that one day when he knocked his glass of milk off the table and it broke. Mommy gave him a look that would scare a canasta player who had just gone "out" without asking his partner's permission. Figuring that this was a golden opportunity to try some child psychology, she asked, "What do you think I should do about it?"

A sly grin was followed by the reply, "Clean it up."

St. Joe residents will set their clocks ahead one hour at midnight Saturday, April 29, for the daylight savings time season. If you think of it, you might shut off the rain at the same time.

This weather isn't helping the ball season. Just about the time I figure warm weather is here to stay and I'm ready to oil up the glove, "rain and cooler" returns. If this kind of weather continues, the next thing we know the young men's fancies WILL turn to thoughts of love — it's too wet for baseball.

There was a news item in the Saturday issue of the Auburn Star about the second tragedy in a displaced family who moved to DeKalb county just last September. A 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jastrzembski was crushed to death by a telegraph pole while playing with a schoolmate. They were playing on a pile of the poles stacked like cordwood when one dislodged and rolled on top of the Polish girl, smashing her head. She died instantly.

Only last November her 7-year-old brother was killed when struck by an automobile as he crossed the highway to enter another car enroute to mass.

I wonder what the thoughts of that family are today, coming here from a war-torn continent - only to lose two of their number under the most illogical circumstances - one on the way to worship, the other at play.

—And I thought I had troubles.

Senior Week begins May 17.

COMMENCEMENT HIGHLIGHTS

Phyllis Warner is valedictorian with an average of 94.09 and Doris Longardner is salutatorian with an average of 93.6. Congratulations, girls.

Something new. The Seniors will wear caps and gowns at the commencement exercises on May 17.

"TAKE YOUR MEDICINE"

The Senior Class will present its class play on Friday, May 5, in the Community Hall.

The action of the play is concerned largely with Henry K. Dodson, banker, who is sent to the hospital for a series of tests. During his stay there his niece and her fiance, Bill, a college professor, call on him. Mr. Dodson mistakes the college Dr. for a medical doctor and says he will give Angela and Bill $50,000 for a wedding gift for the first life Bill saves.

The regular staff physician is suddenly called away and Dr. William Jackson finds himself called upon to assist in several emergencies. The situations which develop affect the whole staff of nurses and several other patients before conditions settle down to normal.

IDEAL JUNIOR GIRL

She would have the eyes of Bonnie Witt, personality of Lucy Warstler, wit of Mary Potts, hair of Ruth Easey, smile of Eloise Timmerman, capability of Mable Schaftner, complexion of Maxine Hoover, cheerfulness of Beverley Laux, posture of Shirley Crothers and friendliness of Peggy Smith.

IDEAL SOPHOMORE BOY

He would have the personality of Jack Haas, wit of Dale Butler, sports ability of Edie Hook, smile of Nelson Lung, cheerfulness of John Witt, serenity of Bill Wilder, physique of Arthur Warner, friendliness of Ray Carnahan and capability of Jim Knop.

TATTLE TALES

Bud Vendrely's broken heart seems to be doing o.k. with the help of his steady, Jo Bowser. Keep up the good work, Bud.

What's this about Shirley Ritenour and Gene Dwyer double dating with Mr. and Mrs. Ritenour?

Ruth Brace, tell us, does that pretty green sweater you were modeling belong to Howard Bonnett from Garrett?

Why does Peggy Romine look forward to the "Breezy" days?

Pat Akey spends all her time dreaming about "Buchs." (School books, that is!)

Say, we hear that Senie Hoover and Amy Snyder are back together again. How about that?

What has Ruth Brace got around her neck? Looks like a Garrett football.

Pat Angel and Corky Conrad were seen at the Sock Dance.

Mr. and Mrs. George Baker, Mrs. Minnie Kimes and Mrs. Rose Belay of Ft. Wayne were Sunday afternoon guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kimes.

Mrs. Earl Mortorff of Garrett was a Saturday afternoon guest in the Harvey Kimes home.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kimes of near Leo spent Sunday afternoon in the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kimes.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Genth and Mr. and Mrs. George Limecooly and daughter, Charlene, of Ft. Wayne recently visited with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rhoads.

Last Tuesday evening, April 11, Sarah McCarter, Mary Lou Clark, Richard Haynes, Doris Longarner, Ernie Keeckuck and Bonnie Witt attended the Rural Youth District meeting held at Columbia City. Many more from DeKalb county attended this meeting which was enjoyed by all. A square dance was held after the business session.

Mrs. Lola Moore visited in the home of her brother, Mr. Ray Elliott, in Ft. Wayne from Friday until Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kelly spent Friday in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Stemen of Middlepoint, O., and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Edwards and son of Ft. Wayne had Sunday dinner with Mrs. Mary Stemen.

Mrs. Claudia Hafner returned home Saturday evening from Lansing, Mich., where she visited for two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hafner and daughter.

James Bowser spent from Friday night until Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Guil Bowser and son, Jerry.

Frank Stewart of Garrett called on Cora Stewart and Arminta and other relations and friends in Spencerville Thursday.

Friends in Spencerville have received invitations to the wedding of Miss Jean Clay, neice of Dr. Kreischer, to Mr. Ronald Stuck of Convoy, O., on May 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Baldinger and family were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Baidinger, Sr. of Mishawaka.

Mrs. Rosa Widdefield came last week to spend a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. Harvey Kimes.

Club Thursday sponsored a round and square dance Saturday night. A nice crowd enjoyed the evening of dancing. Keep up the good work, "Kids."

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stewart of Cleveland has been quite sick with the mumps.

BARBERSHOP QUARTET PROGRAM AT DEFIANCE

Those mad-cap international barber shop quartet champions, the Mid-States Four of Chicago, will headline an evening of harmony and comedy marking the fifth annual Parade of Quartets of Defiance Chapter, S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A., Saturday, April 29, at 8:30 p.m. in the community auditorium at Defiance.

Two other top-ranking foursomes also will sing. They are the Antlers of Flint, Mich., third-place winners in the international contest last June in Buffalo and Michigan State Champions, and the Buzz Saws of Columbus, international finalists and Ohio State Champions.

Additional harmonizing will be provided by the Unaccounted Four of Bowling Green, winners of the Defiance Chapter High School Barber Shop Quartet Contest last January, and Defiance chapter chorus and quartets.

TRI-TWP. FARM BUREAU

Readers interested in the local Farm Bureau meetings have no doubt noticed that the programs are now appearing in the St. Joe News before the meetings instead of after. Meetings have been starting on time and have been well worth attending.

According to custom, meetings will be held beginning May 2 at the Alton Park Community building on road 101 during the warm months at 8 p.m. DST.

The following program is scheduled for May 2:

Group Singing led by Mr. Laughman.

Devotions.

Business.

Numbers by a local male quartette.

Reading "Ma's Tools," Janet Jarrett.

Recognition of Mothers with small gifts for the oldest and youngest mothers and the mother of the most children.

Debate: Resolved, the Farm Bureau Coops should continue to be exempt from federal income taxes.

Aff. Carl Perkins, Wilbur Beree.

Neg. Maurice Kline Franklin Sechler.

"The Dairy Program, A Growing Industry," Cecil Fitch.

Concord Twp. S. & E. Leader - Mildred Jarrett.

ROBERTS-HARTS

Paula Joan Harts and Richard Lee Roberts of St. Joe were united in marriage at the Angola Church of Christ parsonage by the pastor, Mr. Krouch, on April 22 at 8:30 p.m.

The attendants to the young couple were Mr. William Mansfield of near St. Joe and Beverly Ridgway.

The bride was attired in a light blue suit with carnation corsage, Miss Ridgway in a navy blue suit with orchid corsage and the men wore business suits.

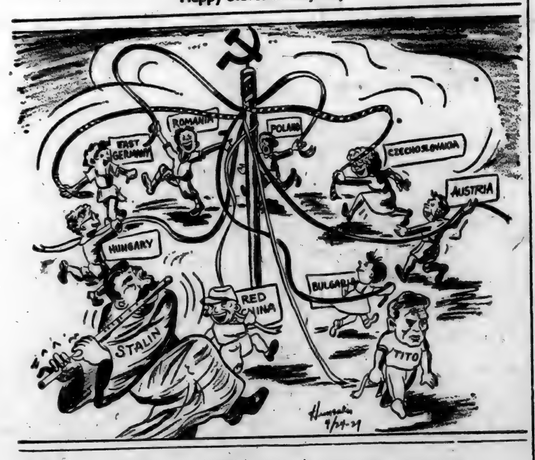
Happy Slaves of May Day



About Your Tax Assessment

We've heard several complaints concerning the reassessment which recently was completed, chiefly about the method of determining the assessment value of property and the individuals involved in determining the new figures.

On Monday the News Office made a call to the office of the County Assessor, Elmer O. Likens, for some official statements. We asked if the local fieldmen had any say about the actual cash values or assessment values (as shown on your tax forms) placed on the real estate. The answer was, "They did NOT. They completed field forms which were turned in to this office." These field forms contain general information such as types of buildings, type of construction, dimensions, type of roof, age, improvements, etc. The Assessor's Office used this general information for assessing. Mr. Likens stated that the trustee also does not do any evaluating in the reassessment.

Another question was; "How was the assessment value determined?" The answer: "The assessment value is figured as one-third the replacment value in 1949."

Mr. Likens concluded the conversation with: "Tell those people in St. Joe and Concord Township that we'll be glad to have them come to the Assessor's Office on April 27 to review their complaints."

Progress - 1950 Version

The U. S. Postal Department's economy drive seems to us to be a weak attempt to satisfy the rising public demand for governmental economy. Mail deliveries and the number of employees have been reduced. Locally the effect is not unbearable; the post office is closed from 1 p.m. to 1:45 p.m. each day and classified clerical help has been reduced from 6 hours to 4 hours daily.

We can not understand why the economy drive had to start in a department which offers SERVICE as its chief commodity. Progress in any service field is measured by the improvements in such service. We haven't heard of any official comments to the effect that postal service will be improved by the new regulations. Would the electric or telephone companies "improve" their services if they cut the availability of electricity and telephone wires to the hours between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.? We think not.

The Postal Department has evidently taken a step backward.

When Worship Is Wicked

Lesson for April 30, 1950

DON'T THINK for a moment you could stand before some Recording Angel, with a memorandum in your hand showing the number of times you had attended church last year, and expect to see the angel break out into a beaming smile. "Fifty - two trips to church, 52 Good Deeds!" you would smile confidently at him. But he might freeze you with a look of complete contempt. "Fifty-two sins!" he might say. "Next case!"

Can It Be a Sin To Go to Church?

Church-going is not necessarily a good act. Worship may be a quite wicked deed. Most people are slow getting that into their heads. They think that one act of worship on Sunday will somehow make up for a lot of bad behavior Monday through Saturday inclusive. But it is not so. The first person in history to see and to say that worship need not be good and can even be very bad, was none other than the prophet Amos.

The Israelites to whom he spoke were what we would call a church - going people; they were certainly temple - going. They followed the same ritual that was used in Jerusalem, they offered tithes and sacrifices, they kept the Sabbath, they attended the feasts and they observed the fasts and they sang the sacred hymns.

Yet Amos denounces the whole business, and condemns the worshippers as guilty sinners. What was wrong?

It Looked All Right

READERS of the Old Testament will remember that at Bethel, where the Israelites had one of their principal temples, golden calves had been set up to represent Jehovah their God. Now even though the people worshipped the true God, surely it was wrong to worship him in the form of an animal.

The form of their worship was all wrong, much further wrong than any form of Christian worship is today; yet Amos does not condemn them for worshipping in this mistaken way. Never once anywhere does he say a word about the golden calves. And if he does not say anything about a big thing like golden calves, still less does he have anything severe to say about less important departures from "good form" in worship.

He does not condemn the people for having the wrong hymnbook, or for not having a good choir. He hasn't a word of blame for non-attendance at worship; indeed he comes down hardest on those who do attend. Apparently church attendance in Bethel was excellent—that was not their trouble.

Again, he has no fault to find with the Israelites because their 'services were uninteresting.' Maybe they were; but on the other hand they were probably full of color and of pageantry, something to see as well as to hear. Yet Amos was not impressed. Further, he makes no complaint about poor sermons.

What Was the Trouble?

THE TROUBLE with those people, the thing that made their worship sinful, was not some defect in the act of worship itself. There was nothing they could do, Amos can think of nothing they could do, to "improve the worship program" as we would say.

The trouble with those people was not in church at all. It was on the outside. Almost alone in his time, a voice in the wilderness—for no one paid him any real attention—Amos, speaking for God, told the Sabbath - keeping, church - going, hymn-singing, tithing citizens of Israel an important truth.

Religion, in short, cannot be shut off from the rest of life, as nearly everybody then thought and as too many people now think. Worship is simply no good if it is not lined up with a good life, a life good by intention and effort.

Jesus underscored this same point. If you are at the very altar of God, in the act of offering him a gift, and remember that your brother has something against you, go and make matters right with your brother before you offer the gift. See your brother before you see God! Or else God will not be at home to you.

Letters to the Editor

(This column is offered to give the reader a chance to have his say. Any and all contributions are welcome-poetry, prose or what have you. All letters should have a signature to insure publication.)

Dear Editor, St. Joe News:

There has been too much confusion concerning the paper reports of St. Mark Church filing for Court Review of the sale of liquor in St. Joe. It was the Congregation that voted to take the matter to court. It was not the Church Council nor the individual members. So, they should have been named as officers. but not as individual petitioners. There is no temporary injunction asked, but a court decision on the legality of such sale.

As Christians we could not do otherwise than what we did. The Anti-saloon League is backing us, and all the Churches of the vicinity asked us to do it. And the County Ministerial Association voted support. Think of this great cause of Crime and auto wrecks and wrecked homes and lives! And think of the nuisance it would be in Saint Joe, if we did not protest.

How much would Socialized Medicine take out of your pocket?

Under this compulsory medical plan, wage earners would pay extra taxes. Employers would pay extra too. The self-employed, however, would pay the entire tax out of their own pockets.

In other words, the farmer must pay twice as much for Socialized Medicine!

And that's only the beginning of sky-rocketing governmental costs to grab chunks of your income.

Our Nation's health is at an all-time high under the present system. Let's keep it that way.

Tell the Congress of the U.S.A. you are opposed to government controlled health insurance, but favor voluntary health insurance. Your future depends on what Congress does. Eternal vigilance is the price of freedom.

You're right if your answer is "cheap electricity." Part of the miracle of electric service today is its low cost.

You've helped make electricity cheap, by using it for more and more jobs. So have the people of the business-managed electric companies, who long ago foresaw the need for low-cost electric service. Their skills, and experience, and sound business methods have made it today's best buy. What else can you buy that costs so little — and does so much?

Feather-bedding scheme of Firemen's Union to put an additional fireman on diesel locomotives has been CONSIDERED TWICE!

Fact Finding Boards appointed by Presidents Roosevelt and Truman have said these demands were "devoid of merit" and they were REJECTED TWICE!

Now the Firemen's leaders seek to paralyze railroad transportation to compel the railroads to employ a wholly unnecessary additional fireman to ride on diesel locomotives. This scheme is plain

FEATHER-BEDDING!

Leaders of the Firemen's union have called a nationwide strike starting with four great railroads on April 26. These railroads are the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, and Southern.

The union claim that a second fireman is needed on grounds of safety is sheer hypocrisy. Safety has been dragged into this dispute only in an unsuccessful effort to give a cloak of respectability to vicious feather-bedding demands.

After a careful study of the first demands of this union, a Presidential Fact Finding Board on May 21, 1948, reported to President Roosevelt that there was no need for an extra fireman on diesel locomotives.

Again, on September 19, 1949, after a second hearing on the union leaders' demands, a second Board reported to President Truman that: "there presently exists no need for an additional fireman . . . upon either the ground of safety or that of efficiency and economy of operation."

Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good

Although the railroads accepted the Board findings the union leaders have brazenly rejected them. They propose that an extra fireman is needed for "safety" reasons. Here's what the Board had to say on that point:

"The safety and on-time performance of diesel electric locomotives operated under current rules have been notably good . . .

"Upon careful analysis of the data submitted on safety, we have concluded that no valid reasons have been shown as a support for the Brotherhood proposal under which a fireman would be required to be at all times continuously in the cab of road diesels. The proposal must be rejected."

The real reason behind these demands is that the union leaders are trying to make jobs where there is no work. In other words, a plain case of "feather-bedding."

The railroads have no intention of yielding to these wasteful make-work demands.

"The Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good . . ."
Presidential Fact Finding Board Report

Read these excerpts from official reports of Presidential Fact Finding Boards:

"The safety record of Diesels is outstandingly good, and it follows that the safety rules now applicable have produced good results."

"The safety and on-time performance of Diesel-electric locomotives operated under current rules indicate that Diesel-electric operation has been safer than steam locomotive operation . . ."

Remember! These are not statements of the railroads. They are just a few of the many similar conclusions reached by President Truman's Fact Finding Board which spent months investigating the claims of the union leaders.

Around the Town

With the Editor

While I was in Yelser's on Monday morning fighting with Mose for an add for the paper, the conversation with Roy Koch, John Coburn and Roy Reidenbach turned to baseball, in particular the Cubs-Cards game of Sunday which the Cards won in the 13th inning, 1 to 0 on a home run. Roy Koch made the remark that he won a game like that years ago. I asked him if he meant pitching and found out that he meant hitting a home run. When it came his time to bat in the 13th, he told his team mates, "I've waited on you guys long enough; I'm ending this game right now!" If you know Roy and his baseball, you know it takes no encouragement to get him to tell his tales - so he continued.

"The pitcher came in with a fast ball - high and outside - and I swung from the heels. . . . . That ball went a hundred feet over the centerfielder's head." I was going to ask him how long since he accomplished that feat, but didn't — thought he might be embarrassed if somebody figured out his age.

I like to hear his baseball yarns—they're always different.

Incidently, I was just kidding about "fighting" with Mose for an add. He's one of the best supporters of the St. Joe News in this community.

This warm weather we've had the past few days has made the grass grow. Ed Leichty was puttering around the church yard Monday, cutting the grass, trimming here and there, etc. At noon I got out our lawn mower figuring on cutting the back yard grass before lunch. WHOOF! Was I wrong. After about six rows of pushing, I needed five minutes rest between each row.

I was up in the County Clerk's office Tuesday night with John Haverstock listening to the primary returns as they came in. As I sat in that busy office I chuckled at this business of politics. From the manner in which the men walked about and the expressions on their faces, they seemed to be trying to act important and at the same time trying to figure out if the guy standing right next to them really WAS important.

Concord township was one of the last to arrive with its returns. I was just about ready to head for St. Joe and hunt for Derwood Ridgway, who brought the ballots to Auburn from here. —He could have had a flat tire.

Free movies will be shown next Wednesday, May 10, and every Wednesday thereafter this summer in St. Joe. You know, it might be a good idea to make Wednesday night your shopping night as well as entertainment night in St. Joe. Your groceries, that pair of pliers you need, material for a dress, gasoline, information on car repairs - take care of 'em all on Wednesday night. That's a practical way to say "Thanks" to the local merchants for sponsoring this community activity.

Extra Day For Concord Twp. Complaints

Property owners of Concord township and St. Joe descended upon the DeKalb county board of review in the court house in Auburn Thursday in the second mass protest against valuations set by reappraisal fieldmen.

Forty residents of the township gathered in the assessor's office in the court house to file official protests.

The protests followed closely on the heels of objections raised April 19 by taxpayers of Ashley. On that date, over 20 property owners appeared to present objections. The group was instructed to call a town meeting and appoint their own field men whose figures would then be compared with the original valuations set by the regular fieldmen.

The unexpected wave of protests from Concord township residents has forced a second revision in the schedule of hearings set up by regular board members. Concord township and St. Joe property owners will be given an extra day for hearing on Wednesday, May 17.

Good Earth—But Not That Good

"-let 'em holler!"

There is a feature article in the May 1 issue of Life magazine titled "Politician Without A Future." The person about whom the article is written is Gov. Brack Lee of Utah. It concerns his independence in administering the affairs of his state. His actions have angered both political parties and various labor groups, teachers, business men, farmers and veterans. He has based his governing on the almost unheard of idea (politically speaking) of living-within-income. Hence, the various groups seeking projects of special privilege have been infuriated by his lack of "cooperation."

His economizing has run from wiping out a nest of state jobs including half his office staff to driving the governor's car himself, saving the state a chauffeur's salary; his wife helped her staff of four recently in giving the 32-room governor's mansion its spring cleaning.

His actions have made enemies in the state as well as federal departments. He has refused to accept his state's "share" of federal-aid-grants on the belief that the program is unsound-taxes paid in to the federal government and amounts received back by the state are so out of proportion that it is better to work with funds available locally and keep the federal government out of state finances.

He has confessed, "Sometimes I get mighty tired of this job and feel like just throwing it up and going back home. But my philosophy of living is that the thing you get out of life is your frame of mind. The price you pay for taking anything that isn't yours just isn't worth it. That's why I come back to the same old conclusion — do it honestly, do the best you know how, and let 'em holler!"

If you have an opportuity to read the article, do so. It's very interesting and contains much food for thought.

And if Brack Lee is the man he appears to be, the citizens of Utah are to be congratulated for putting him in the office of governor. We admire his courage in carrying out the duties of his office to the best of his judgment regardless of the individuals or groups involved, a principle which few public office holders today have the guts to follow.

He should be in the White House.

CULTURE CLUB

The last regular Culture Club meeting of the year was held Wednesday evening, April 19, 1950, at the home of Mrs. Lester Anthony.

A bountiful pot-luck supper was held at 6:30 with everyone enjoying themselves. The meeting was opened by the reading of the Club Commandments. Mrs. Ray Reasoner read an appropriate poem entitled "Some Reasons Why I Go To Church" and, while all heads were bowed, Mrs. Reasoner read a beautiful prayer.

The election of officers for 1950-51 was held with the following results: President—Mrs. Lester Anthony, Vice-President—Mrs. Merl Furnish, Secretary—Mrs. Clyde Duker, Ass't Secretary—Mrs. Dewey White, Treasurer—Mrs. Virgil Laux, Critic—Mrs. Joseph Baidinger, Ass't Critic—Mrs. Lynn Fisher, Press Correspondent—Mrs. Herschel Shockley, Ass't Press Correspondent—Mrs. Olen Waltz.

Regular business meeting activities followed. Roll call was answered by twenty-six active members with "My Letter and Answer." One guest was present.

A meeting of the executive board will be held June 21, 1950, at the home of Mrs. Olen Waltz to plan next year's club books. The mid-summer club meeting will be held July 19 at the home of Mrs. Lynn Fisher. Mrs. Herschel Shockley and Mrs. Russell Hoffer were appointed as the entertainment committee.

The group then repeated the Club Collect for the adjournment.

Tragedy to Truth

Lesson for May 7, 1950

GOOD PREACHERS are not all of one kind. In listening to some of them, you have the impression that what this man says would be just as true if another man said it; that he is uttering a universal truth that might as well have been written on the sky; he is a voice, only a voice. In listening to other good preachers you have the impression that no other man could have said this as well as he; what he says is distilled from his own experience; he is not only a voice, he is a heart, and you hear the man's heart-beats all through his words. Now Hosea was this kind of prophet. You might say that his experience was the text of all his sermons.

Dr. Foreman

And so They Were Married

THE STORY of Hosea is in chapters 1—3. (Experts in Old Testament study have never quite agreed as to the meaning of the story. However, the interpretation which is offered here is the one now held by the majority of scholars.) It is the story of Hosea's marriage to a girl named Gomer. If it was a normal marriage, he loved her with all his heart, and his hopes for the future were as bright as any young bridegroom's could be. In time they had a little boy named Jezreel.

Then came the second child, a girl named Lo-Ruhamah. In Hebrew, that name means "No-Mercy." What a name for a little girl! But is it possible that Hosea named her for her mother—not for her mother's name but for her mother's character? At all events, things were not well in that home; indeed, it soon ceased to be a home. For when the third child was born, Hosea gave the boy the dreadful name of Lo-Ammi, No-Child-of-Mine.

There was no use in pretending any more. The home had collapsed, happiness had fled. No experience a man can have is more bitter than this, to know that the one great love of his life has been given to the wrong woman. But Gomer vanished, leaving Hosea, as such a woman would, to care for the three motherless children.

Home Again

HOW MANY MONTHS or years later it was we do not know. But one day, in the slave market, Hosea saw a woman for sale. The price was low (as slaves went in those days); evidently few buyers were expected. A half-price slave would not attract attention from most men, but Hosea looked twice. . . . Yes, it was his Gomer! Where she had been, who has abused her, made her a slave, how many times she had been sold and resold, no one knows. But there she was.

Hosea might easily have stood and laughed bitterly in her bedraggled face. It serves her right, he might have thought. The way of the transgressor is hard, she made her bed and now she can lie in it. Justice has been done, I am avenged. And with a parting curse he might have gone his way.

Somehow beneath all the shame and disillusionment, beneath the bitterness and the pain, still the old love was burning bright. Paying the small price asked, he took Gomer home again. Love had conquered evil.

Long before Christianity, Hosea did that rarely Christian thing, he did good to one who had done him harm. Gomer was unloving, unlovable; yet he loved her in spite of all.

Sermons From the Heart

THIS BITTER EXPERIENCE God turned into a blessing, for Hosea and for his nation and for us. In our study next week we shall see more of what God taught Hosea through these experiences.

But the first thing Hosea learned was that the experience was a lesson, God's lesson. He could even look back on the tragedy of his marriage and see that God was leading him all along, from the very first. God knew what sort of woman Gomer was and would be, yet he wished Hosea to marry her. God intended that he should go through just those years.

Without the tragedy, he could not have arrived at the truth. His sermons thenceforth came from the depths of his heart. Hosea, like all the prophets, denounced sin; like all the prophets, he could see the fatal effects of sin on his nation.

Dear namesake,

On account of curiosity, in a newspaper of this country there was reproduced your remark of your periodikal, in which you beg your friends to give no ice or bonbons to your children, because the rombs do not eat at home otherwise.

As yet our common name is very seldom, I and probably also you are interested, whether kinsmanlike relations exist between us. This would be possible, because about 1863 after the death of his wife, a nee Pietschner, my grandfather Friedrich Wilhelm Haberkorn has emigrated to America. My emigrated grandfather has been supposed to be a wheelwrighter. The family is originated from Oberkoskau, near Plauen-Vogtland.

My father August Haberkorn, born on 16.July 1856 at Oberkoskau and his only brother Otto has been educated by relatives.

As far as I remember, my father, who died in 1918, related, that he and his brother never had heard of my grandfather. Only by report they heard, that he should have lost his life by a railway-accident.

I, myself, have been born in Meerane-Sachsen, and indirectly I have come to Hannover, where I possessed the big and famous restaurant "Georgs-Palast."

In 1943, the house was destroyed by air raid. Since 1946, I am a private person and in consideration of claims which are not to high, I am well.

I would be very glad, if by the a.m. newspaper-report I find a relative in America and I ask for an answer, so that we could begin an exchange of letters then.

Yours faithfully,
Max Haberkorn

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

One of the most pleasant pastimes in these United States today is a little game called "passing the buck."

In your editorial of April 27th you say the local fieldmen had nothing to say about the actual cash values or assessment values placed on real estate.

An Auburn paper concerning the Ashley protest says: "The group was instructed to - - - appoint their own fieldman whose figures would then be compared with the ORIGINAL VALUATIONS set by the REGULAR FIELDMEN." That certainly would sound as tho' the "regular fieldmen" set a valuation. But, let us disregard WHO set the valuation and consider who if anyone furnished the fiction on which was based the valuation.

I had understood that these fieldmen were to, at least, furnish true measurements and facts concerning our real estate. I could give several cases but as I am more familiar with my own I will use it as an example.

When I went to the board last Thursday to protest what I considered an unreasonable valuation I found to my surprise that I had a hot air furnace in my farm home. Boy, was I thrilled! I came right home-rather steamed up tho' with indignation at the thought that I'd been burning an old soft coal stove all winter when I had a nice hot air furnace. I rushed to my basement and started looking for it. I looked high and low - and you've guessed it brother, no furnace. Then according to the books in Auburn I had a cement basement - again I rushed down the stairs, again I was doomed to disappointment - no cement basement.

I was working across the Railroad tracks in my chicken coop the day the "appraisers" came to my house. I didn't see them, a neighbor saw them at the house as she drove in and across to my coop. I was very much impressed by the little effort they made to find me and obtain the facts from me.

Instead, they guessed the size of the chicken coop - wrong, they guessed the size of my brooder house - wrong, they guessed the age of an addition on the house - wrong, (by fifteen years which added a neat little sum to the taxation value of the house) they guessed a coat of paint was an extensive remodeling job - wrong again.

Now if this had been an appraisment for one year we might have stood it, but remember I would have been paying taxes for ten years on a furnace I don't have, a cement basement I don't have, and on and on through the whole list of fictitious sizes, improvements and appurtainments with which we surround ourselves in this day and age, most of which I don't have.

The biggest complaint I hear is that the appraisers made so little effort to get the true facts on which to base their valuations. In other words why should our tax dollar be spent on an appraisment which for the most part was sheer guess work? This is really not a personal criticism, our local "field men" are grand people, "salt of the earth," but as far as getting the facts in this appraisement they might as well have set by their fireside and flipped a penny, "heads they have a furnace, tails they don't."

Gertrude Borthwick

Since the editorial contained information quoted from the Assessor's office, we can't explain the contradictions which readers found in the Auburn papers or even this paper. The story on page one of this issue concerning the extra day allotted Concord township contains the same wording that you quoted.

Part of the misunderstanding possibly arises from the fact that we, and apparently the Assessor's office, didn't explain explicitly in terms of "real estate" and "improvements." The interpretation of "real estate" in the assessment referred to land and lots ONLY. We were wrong in saying that the fieldmen didn't place any values in your assessment. They did—but only on the land.

As far as the other complaints regarding measurements, improvements, not putting forth enough effort to find the home owners, etc., are concerned, we suggest you contact the fieldmen.

—Say, you didn't see them coming and run and HIDE in that chicken coop, did you?

GET-TO-GETHER 4-H CLUB

The second meeting of the Get-To-Gether 4-H Club was held April 28 in the Home Ec room immediately after school. The roll was called and answered with a favorite song.

The club decided to have soft-ball for recreation whenever weather permits. It was also decided that on May 14, 4-H Sunday, the club will attend church in the morning and then, if possible, attend the program of the Newville club that day in a body.

Audrea Carr entertained by playing "I Said My Pajamas." Everyone enjoyed this very much. The new members were initiated and made their promise to complete the projects and conscientiously obey the laws and regulations of the club.

The next meeting will be on May 12.

CAKE WALK AND DANCE

There will be a cake walk and round and square dancing at the K. of P. Hall in St. Joe on Saturday night, May 6.

You are cordially invited to join in on an evening of fun and entertainment.

Gambling "Only Hope" For Ambitious Briton

LONDON, England—The constant appeal of the Socialist intellectuals is to the weak side of man.

They say that hard work only makes more money for the boss. The man takes it easy with the result that when the country needs his strength and efficiency he is weak and bumbling. They further encourage him to loaf by saying government will take care of him all his life.

NOLAND

But, as their promises fade out in practice, they must do something to take the people's minds off their troubles. Their scheme for keeping the dream alive is to encourage gambling.

There was plenty of gambling in Britain before Socialism. It is legalised and accepted as a deplorable but incurable human weakness.

The Socialist government had five years in which to use its taxing power to cut down the impoverished people's loss of money to gamblers. It had five years in which to remove many of the temptations to gamble. But it did neither.

It put no effective restrictions on gambling, and it made gambling so attractive in an economy which forbids saving any money against a rainy day that today gambling is the enemy of the church, the home and the moral decency of millions of men and women.

Now 7th Largest Industry

The Socialist government encourages gambling to lull the people into dreams of great winnings—untaxed—and to produce revenue to finance Socialistic pie in the sky.

In association with the British Council of Churches, the Churches' Committee on Gambling has been formed. Its reports accept the estimate that gambling is now Britain's seventh largest industry. Its chairman, the Rev. E. C. Unwin, said gambling has "left a trail of social ruin, poverty and broken homes."

Children Gambling, Too

Gambling in the football pools and on horse and dog racing, and at what are called "fun fairs," is a family activity in which even the children engage. It leads men to squander their wages, women to pawn their household utensils for an afternoon at the dog tracks, and young people to fritter away their savings on a chance that they can win enough to finance their marriage.

Last December, Gen Albert Orsborn, international leader of the Salvation Army, told Britain's Royal Commission on Gambling that excessive gambling has taken the place of drink as the principal cause of disruption in family life. "It is now social enemy Number One," he said.

Bets Taxed—Winnings Not

Sir Laurence Dunn, London's chief metropolitan magistrate, denounced gambling before the same Commission. Said he:

"In these days of repressive taxation, and at a time when the value of money has ceased to bear any relation to what it was even prior to the last war, gambling offers the only obvious hope to many people of securing sufficient money in a lump sum to acquire a business, purchase a home, or do many of the things which everyone at heart wishes to do."

The lure is in the fact that winnings are not taxed. The citizen gambles what little he might save in a wild bid for a big winning with no tax on it.

The excuse for encouraging gambling is that it yields many millions to the public treasury. The betting is taxed where the bets are laid. The bettor finds himself a prisoner of the habit, which is what the Socialists planned.

CONCORD JUNIOR HOME EC

A group of nine young farm women met at the home of Katy Crow on February 7, 1949, for the purpose of organizing a junior Home Economics Club, electing Katy Crow as president. It was primarily for those who had small children and found it inconvenient to attend meetings during the day. At the present time six more women have decided to join the group.

The members have all been active and enthusiastic over the lessons that have been brought before the club throughout this past year.

The club is a very small part of the nation-wide Home Econmoics organization, which was started years ago for the benefit of rural women and the betterment of farm homes.

The Home Economics Clubs are a unit of the County Agricultural and Home Economics Extension Service, working co-operatively with the Agricultural Extension Service of Purdue University and the United States Department of Agriculture. As such they receive the co-operation of the county home demonstration agent and county agricultural agent in planning and executing their program.

Two officers from each club meet at the annual Purdue Conference held in August each year at which time they make plans for the ensuing year.

Special leaders have gone to Auburn and have received project material and presented it to the club members. The subjects were: Personality Style Trends, Poultry and Gardening, Safe Milk, Kitchen Sanitation, Importance of Nourishing Breakfasts for School and Pre-School Children.

This year the lessons will be on Master Mix, Home Sewing, Upholstering, Landscaping and Plastics.

A family night has been planned for May, and in June the club will entertain the Smithfield Township Home Economics Club.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

Wednesday, April 26, marked the closing of the current year of activities for the LLC. On this occasion members of the Culture Club were special guests. At 6:30 the clubs were welcomed at the Lutheran Church by Mrs. Claude Laub, Mrs. C. O. Krise and the president, Mrs. William Staman, as the reception committee. Through an ingenious matching of pictures, each LLC member drew a CC lady as her dinner partner.

The tables were decorated with purple and gold umbrellas and streamers. Each place was marked by a program enclosed in a gold umbrella and tied with a purple ribbon. This was in keeping with the theme "April Showers" in the Culture Club colors.

The menu was fruit juices, chicken casserole, mashed potatoes and gravy, perfection salad in fancy shapes, chocolate ice cream roll, assorted relishes, hot rolls and coffee.

On the program was a welcome by Mrs. Staman, response by Mrs. Paul Drerup, group singing led by Mrs. Allen Haller with Mrs. Carl Perkins at the piano and vocal solo by Shirley Jean Perkins. Mrs. Frank Weathers of Auburn gave a very fine review of "The Mudlark," a novel by Theodore Bonnet.

Nineteen members of the sister club were present. Other guests were Mrs. Clarence Woodcox and Mrs. Lora Leighty (emeritus members), and Mrs. Roy Baker, an honorary member.

Those responsible for the worthwhile evening were Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser, Mrs. Don Burley, Mrs. Cora Curie, Mrs. Edna Perkins, Mrs. Glen Cole and their helpers.

Members will be notified of the annual midsummer meeting.

Grocers Hear Plan To Lower Prices

A plan to reduce retail food prices and continue paying high prices to the farmer was outlined Sunday night by Frank Grimes, president of the Independent Grocer's Alliance of America.

Speaking before some 400 IGA retail grocers from Indiana and Northern Ohio at the Hotel Van Orman, Mr. Grimes said the plan could be achieved by cutting distribution costs in half and coordinating activities of food manufacturers, wholesalers and grocers.

The speaker, who founded IGA in 1925, appeared in Ft. Wayne under the sponsorship of A. H. Perfect & Co., sponsors of IGA in this area for the last 25 years. F. E. Perfect, firm president, was host.

Mr. Grimes said many retailers and wholesalers have made radical changes in merchandising and proved the IGA plan will work. He said IGA expects to increase its membership by 5,000 retail stores in the next 18 months.

"The very existence of the unaffiliated retailer is at stake and he must join some organization to remain 'alive'," the speaker declared. He said it is important that the retail grocer retain full ownership of his store and remain in integral part of his community.

(We attended this meeting which explained our plan of doing business in this community.)

Around the Town

With the Editor

In preparation for the coming softball season I purchased some equipment last week including bats, balls, gloves, etc. The stuff was piled up on my desk last Wednesday during the noon hour when three young boys came in and exclamations such as "Oooooo!" "Gee!" "Boy, look at this bat!" followed. I mentioned that in about five years they would be old enough to use those gloves if they still wanted to play ball. One answered, "Ahhhh, yer nuts! I'll be fifty then." One of the other two boys observed, "In two years I'll be ten (pause)—I'm seven now!"

Sunday afternoon was a big day for fishermen on the local river bank. Elmer McKay fought a 10 lb. carp for fifteen minutes before landing the fighter. Mac Keller caught a big sucker later in the afternoon. I saw Mac's but I didn't see Mac's. —Figure that one out.

Jim Kinsey is out of the navy now and back in St. Joe. He stopped in Monday morning and we chewed the fat a while. Boy, that navy life really must be a soft touch from what he told me — in fact, that's exactly what he said, "It's a soft touch." When he left the office, he took a glove and ball along to get some warm-up tosses in (he'll be pitching for the News team). I told him that I didn't know if Lou Walter was going to play this year. Jim said, "Yeah, he's going to play. He said he'd come out of 'retirement' to catch my pitchin'."

Middle age must be creeping up on me with its complications. Pete Walter made the remark Monday when I was in his store, —"Say, you're getting fat, aren't you?" It wouldn't be so bad except that I was walking AWAY from him when he made the observation.

Don Keller gave Bill Hurni and I a "sneak" preview of the snappy new Kaiser Monday night in front of the post office. Old Henry J. got the jump on everybody—the 1951 models are out already. At that rate, soon your new car will be out of date before you get it.

Sight of the week—Janice Hollabaugh perched on the high seat of the family's 19? Model T "convertible" on the main street of St. Joe, patiently waiting for hubby.

Scholarships Earned By County Students

Six DeKalb County high school seniors have been granted scholarships to Indiana University for the 1950-51 school year by the I.U. Board of Trustees.

Roberta Little of Auburn is winner of a state scholarship which has a value of $60 in payment of fees; Robert Dilgard of Waterloo will receive a $50 special merit scholarship and Jerry Bowser and Phyllis Warner, both of Spencerville, will have $60 special scholarships.

Donald Robinson and Ronald Robinson of Waterloo are winners of $60 scholarships as children of a disabled veteran.

The awards, announced in Bloomington by the I.U. Committee on Scholarships, are made on the basis of special tests and the students' outstanding scholastic records in high school.

Danchi-Billow

Miss Jean Billow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Billow, and George Danchi of Hammond, Ind., were wed on Saturday, April 29, 1950, in the St. Mark's Lutheran Church. The Rev. W. H. Baker, pastor of the church, officiated at the exchange of vows and the double ring ceremony.

The chancel was banked with palms and fern trees and formed a background for masses of white and yellow snap-dagons. At right and left of the sanctuary were large seven taper candelabras and the altar cross and candles were flanked with vases of white and yellow flowers.

A musicale was presented by Miss Jo Anne Bowser, pianist, and Miss Lesley Robinson, soloist, from Evanston, Ill. Piano selections were "Rustle of Spring" and "Pleyeli Hymn." The vocal numbers were "On Wings of Song" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Preceded by the maid of honor Miss Billow entered on the arm of her father who gave his daughter in marriage. The bride was lovely in a gown of white faille taffeta made princess with nylon marquisette yoke and wide lace bertha. The sleeves were long and pointed over the hands. The full skirt fell into a short train. A tiara of seed pearls held in place the embroidered finger-tip veil. She carried a bouquet of white daisies and white rosebuds.

Miss Carol Billow, younger sister of the bride, attended her sister as maid of honor. She was attired in a yellow taffeta gown made princess with short puff sleeves. She wore a short yellow halo veil and carried a bouquet of blue daisies.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Billow wore a navy blue ensemble with pink accessories and a corsage of carnations.

Andrew Rosalanka, brother-in-law of the groom, served as best man and the ushers were William Billow and Michael Danchi, brother of the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church recreation room.

The bride and groom were Purdue graduates in the class of '49, both majoring in chemistry.

After the wedding reception, they left for a short honeymoon. On their return they will reside in Erie, Pa., where Mr. Danchi is employed by the G. E. Company.

Out-of-town guests were: Samuel Danchi, father of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Vienna, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Fuss, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Rosalanka from Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Danchi of Gary, Miss Helen Zgiber of Butler, Pa., John Billow, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Carl Billow of Napoleon, O., Mr. and Mrs. William Billow of Fremont, O., Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Billow, Mr. and Mrs. John Billow, Jr. and two children, Erma and Marvin, of Ney, O., Mr. and Mrs. Peter Swenski, Mrs. Benoit Ellert and little daughter, Mrs. William Bebee and daughter, Patricia, of Ft. Wayne, Janet Hart of Richmond, Ind., William Ridgway of West Unity, O., Howard Myers of Montpelier, O., and Mrs. Robert Shaw of West Lafayette, Ind.

News To Sponsor Softball Team

The St. Joe News is taking steps to sponsor an independent softball team with the possibility of entering competition in the Auburn league which the Legion team competed in last year.

A call is extended to all boys and young men out of high school who want to play ball. It is hoped that enough players will participate wholeheartedly so that a consistent line-up can be put on the field at every game giving the home town fans a team to follow with interest.

The weather has "dampened" an earlier start of practices. So far just a few warm-up drills have been held. The first official practice will be held next Tuesday at the local diamond at 6:30 p.m. (weather permitting).

So fellas, if you like to play ball, come on out. Everyone has a chance.

BUSINESS MEN MEET MONDAY

The St. Joe Business Men's Association will have a meeting on Monday, May 15, at the Town Hall at 8 p.m.

Fire Damages Farm Home

Auburn volunteer firemen battled high winds for over 2 hours Saturday before extinguishing a stubborn fire that threatened to destroy the Henry Dixon farm home four miles east and a mile south of Auburn.

The blaze, discovered shortly after 11:30 a.m., destroyed the main section of the shingle roof covering the brick home. Fire loss was expected to exceed $1,500.

Auburn firemen said Mrs. Dixon reported that she discovered the fire shortly after she started a fire in her kitchen stove. Firemen reported that the blaze apparently was started by sparks from the chimney.

By the time firemen, notified by the Dixon family, arrived on the scene, a large section of the main roof was ablaze. Quick action by the firemen halted the spread of the flames and kept the fire from eating into the upstairs section of the home.

Firemen summoned the St. Joe fire department to the scene when their water supply gave out. A bucket brigade, formed by neighbors and bystanders, assisted in extinguishing the blaze. Water for the brigade was obtained from a well near the Dixon barn, 200 feet from the house.

Most of the home's furnishings were carried out before they were damaged by smoke and water. Some loss resulted to furnishings in an upstairs bedroom.

CONSERVATION CLUB MEETS FRIDAY EVENING

The St. Joe Valley Conservation Club will have a meeting on Friday evening, May 12, at 8 p.m.

The meeting, which was postponed last week, will be held at the school house.

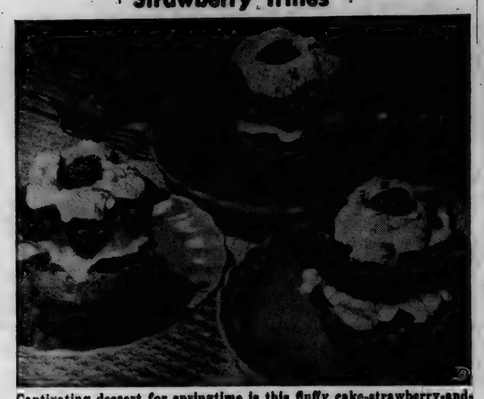
The Two Great Hopes For Peace

Strawberry Trifles



Captivating dessert for springtime is this fluffy cake-strawberry-and-whipped cream combination called a "trifle."

When you want something superlative for dessert, strawberry shortcakes, or variations on that theme, are the answer. Shortcakes are a nutritious dessert, too, since enriched flour is used in the shortcake base and provides essential food values.

Fluffy cake is often used for shortcakes, and individual ones are made by baking batter in muffin pans. Use either a conventionally mixed two-egg or quick-mix cake, or sponge cake recipe. If you do not have time to make them buy plain cup or sponge cakes from your baker's to make this excellent springtime dessert.

When ready to serve, cut tops off cupcakes and spread with whipped cream and berries. Put top back on, and then cover with more berries and whipped cream. The result is delectable.

STRAWBERRY TRIFLES

2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
½ cup milk

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs, beating well. Add vanilla extract. Add flour mixture to creamed mixture alternately with milk. Fill greased three-inch muffin pans one-half full. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 25 minutes. Cut off tops of cup cakes, and spread with whipped cream and halves of strawberries. Replace tops of cup cakes, garnish with more strawberry halves, and top with whipped cream and one whole strawberry. Makes about 14 three-inch cakes.

Forgiving Love

Lesson for May 14, 1950

ALL RELIGIONS believe in God, but not all religions know the God who loves. Gods that rule, gods that threaten and punish, gods that sit on high and distant thrones—yes, the history of religions shows plenty of these. But it is not every religion that believes in a God capable of love. We Christians say that God is love, but already centuries before Christ the inspired Hebrew prophet Hosea was saying that the high God, the holy God, not only can but does love his creatures on earth.

Dr. Foreman

Love With an IF

BUT HOSEA goes further than this. Even the religions that teach the love of God do not always understand it. That there are "favorites of heaven" is an idea common to many religions, ancient and recent.

The notion that God loves those who love him, that his love is a reward for good behavior, that he loves good people but not bad people, in short that he loves only the lovable—this is believed by a great many, but it is not true. To put it in another way: Many religions, and even some persons in the Hebrew and Christian religions, suppose that God loves us with an IF.

Some of the more primitive religions think of God as loving only if he feels like it, if he happens to be in the right mood. There is no telling when he may love and when not; he is as unpredictable as spring weather. The higher religions know better; God is not capricious and impulsive like a child.

But still sometimes even in better religions God is thought of as loving with an IF. If you love me (he is thought of as saying) I will love you. If you are good enough to love, I will love you. If you earn my love, I will pay you by loving you.

No IF in God's Heart

HOSEA HAD LEARNED a deeper lesson from God. Through his own bitter experience (see last Sunday's lesson) he knew that his own love for his wife outlived all the shame she had brought to his heart and home. In himself he knew, as a living fact, love for an unloving and unlovable person. So—and so much more—God could, would and did love his unfaithful people Israel.

"God so loved Israel—," said the prophet. "God so loved the world," says the Gospel. God's love is not the bargaining kind. He does not wait till we are "good enough." His love has no IF in it.

Suppose We Say No?

AT THIS POINT something must be said that would seem to go without saying, only there are so many persons who misunderstand the truth just here. God is love: we learned that in Sunday school when we were small, we have seen it in mottoes on the wall, we have grown used to the idea. But sometimes we twist this truth into something else.

We think, "If God is love then it doesn't matter much what we do. He is going to look after us and see that we come out all right. Nothing's going to hurt us because our loving Father is right here to protect us." This is a mistake.

Hosea teaches, and the Bible as a whole teaches, that God's love is not compulsive; that is, his love must be freely received because it is freely offered. We can say "No" if we insist.

And if we do turn our backs and run away, the consequences are terrible and not even God's love will keep us from them.

It is only the person who turns his heart to God who finds that love, like sunlight, casting out the fear and the evil from his mind and heart.

The Cost of Love

THE DEEPEST TRUTH of all is one which Hosea partly sees, but is fully seen only in the New Testament. God's love for sinners is costly. It is not a light thing, easily given.

As Hosea's forgiving of Gomer cost him much, so the love of God for his wandering children costs him more. That this is true, Hosea realized.

But to know what the love of God really costs, we have to stand in the light of Calvary. Paul speaks of the church of God "which he purchased with his own blood." There can be no higher price than that.

St. Joe News
Mr. T. E. Haberkorn - Editor

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Just to say and send a few words of appreciation for your fine paper.

I'm a former pastor of the Nazarene Church in Auburn, and E. O. Steininger and family attended our church. They put us on their mailing list when we moved from Auburn to Richmond and now you are sending your fine paper to us in Tulsa.

Can say it has certainly become more interesting and in general greatly improved since we first started reading. And as a preacher, I do enjoy Dr. Foreman's Bible talks. This feature we most heartily commend you for publishing each week. Trust you shall keep him with you. And I like your editorial policies.

May God bless you and yours there in St. Joe. Cordially and gratefully yours,

Geo. Brannon

Mr. Editor,

This is a letter to everyone in the community and we would like to ask just one question. What "kick" would anyone get out of going to the cemetery and destroying property?

For the last three or four years when we have kone down to clean the cemetery we have found that there have been cars driven across the graves for the tire prints were still there.

Also there are many grave markers which some person or persons have pushed off their bases and broken.

Someone tried to pick open the lock on the tool shed.

Now we have found the pump, which stands on the river bank, laying on the ground. Someone had screwed the pump from the pipe.

We have had the State Police down several times. Would you think it would be necessary to sit down in the cemetery for hours to keep the people from making the drive ways a race track, cutting in and out at break neck speed. Well we have sat there evenings at a time.

If anyone is caught in the cemetery destroying property we will prosecute to the limit of the law.

We would much rather the "dirty work" would stop than prosecute. That is why we wish you would publish this letter as it may serve as a warning.

The K. of P. Cemetery Association
Riverside Cemetery

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Replying to your little quip with which you ended your answer to my last weeks letter, which I assume was meant for a joke, and which had better be, if you'll re-read my letter you will notice I said, I was WORKING in my chicken coop, and didn't see them, (the appraisers). I meant just that, I DIDN'T see them. If I had seen them, I would have had no occasion to "run and hide" as I wouldn't have known their business, for until that time I didn't know who the appraisers were.

Also I said I was WORKING, not hiding, remember? Some people hide from work, but very few try to hide while working.

If you knew the distance from my house to my chicken coop you would know it's a long way to "run" and hide, if you knew ME you'd know I don't run. There are two kinds of people in this world, those who run and those who fight - I'm not the running kind. If they had come to the chicken coop to measure it, they would have had no trouble finding me even in a coop full of chickens - I was wearing a dust cap and manipulating a wheel barrow. I can't believe there was anyone stupid enough to HIDE from these appraisers. I'm sure all like me would rather have given them the facts which would have taken ten minutes at most, than to have spent a full day in Auburn in the court house waiting our turn to get their mistakes rectified.

SO, I guess it's time to forget the whole thing and apply our minds to weightier and more important questions, as for instance, what percentage of the people of Saint Joe were in a house of worship last Sunday morning in this year of our Lord 1950, in so-called CHRISTIAN AMERICA?

Would you establish a home in Saint Joe if there were no churches here? Are you doing as much for the churches in this community as the churches are doing for you?

These are not questions for the Editor of the Saint Joe News to answer, but questions for each person who enjoys the blessings of freedom and the right to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience, each to answer for himself.

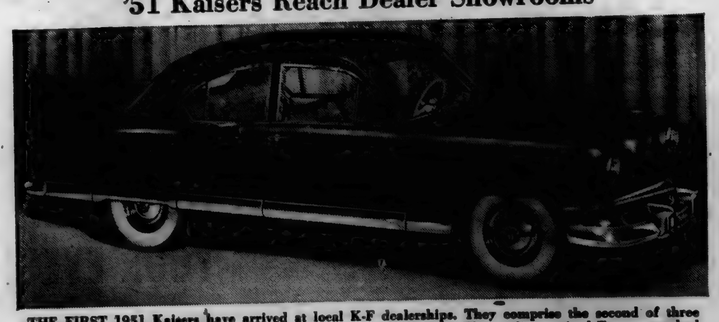
'51 Kaisers Reach Dealer Showrooms



THE FIRST 1951 Kaisers have arrived at local K-F dealerships. They comprise the second of three complete new lines of K-F automobiles to be introduced this year. The medium priced Frazers reached showrooms around the country in April, and the company's forthcoming low-priced model is due in July. Above is the Kaiser two-door sedan, one of a complete range of 12 body types in the popular priced series.

New Kaiser Now On Display

The first Kaiser models to reach St. Joe are now on display at Keller's Garage in St. Joe. Don Keller, head of the local dealership, said that the initial cars to arrive from the factory at Willow Run, Mich., will be four-door sedans.

Other Kaiser models will arrive at a later date to complete the 1951 series of 12 body types.

The all-new Kaisers feature such industry "firsts" as a crash-absorbing padded panel across the full length of the dash; a "tuck-away" tire well in which the spare tire is recessed below the floor of the trunk; the largest safety glass area of any sedan, and advanced aerodynamic styling which is expected to establish a new trend in the auto industry.

The power-plant is the new Kaiser "Supersonic" high-compression engine which delivers 115-h.p. It will be available with conventional overdrive or Hydra-Matic transmissions.

Blending of chassis and body design has resulted in two "plus" performance factors. One is an unusually short turning radius which permits the driver to maneuver the car in a tight circle. The other is exceptional clearance provided for vertical travel or "jounce' of wheels when the car is driven over rough roads.

Farm

by EVERETT MITCHELL
Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

SHOO FLY! It's been months since we've heard that complaint, usually accompanied by a hefty swing with a folded newspaper or fly swatter. But it won't be long now until hordes of the pesky, disease-carrying insects make life unpleasant for humans and farm animals unless adequate control measures are taken.

The earlier in the season that control measures can be started, before the fly menace gets up a full head of steam, the more likely that farm homes, barns and other buildings will be relatively free from the insects.

The very first precaution to take is assuring proper collection, storage and disposal of garbage. Flies thrive on uncovered garbage, and cardboard or wooden boxes offer practically no protection at all. Well-constructed metal containers with tight covers are priority weapons against the fly.

Floors in farm buildings are likely spots for flies to lay eggs. For this reason, a concrete floor is preferred because it can be kept clean easily. But even with wooden plank or dirt floors, some control is possible. Most of all, keep cracks clean and if floors are earthen, rake and pound them down frequently.

Sewage system openings should be sealed tight or screened. Septic tanks should never be overloaded, and be sure windows are screened wherever possible during the fly season. Screening the dairy barn is of utmost importance, not only to protect milk but also to keep the cows comfortable. If the pests have moved in, use insecticides to kill them! There's a new one—Lindane—on the market this year, which is not toxic to animals and humans, and cannot contaminate milk.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HABIT

Flipping switches is The Great American Habit. Even children have it. And it's a habit that has given America the world's highest standard of living.

In the home, electricity is just about the smallest item in the family budget, but what else makes life so easy, so healthy, so comfortable?

In industry, electricity lends the employee the strength of giants. Electric motors multiply his muscular strength by dozens or even by thousands—making it possible for him to produce more, better, faster—to earn more.

Electricity is certainly a vital part of our American life yet, oddly, this country spends only 2% of its vast income for electric service. Such a bargain in efficiency didn't happen by accident, of course. Business-managed electric light and power companies pioneered the electric industry—progressed and expanded because of investors with faith and vision, employees with skill and experience.

There are still broad fields of electric living yet to be tapped. Business men can do the job better than bureaucrats. That's always been the secret of America's progress.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Saturday afternoon as I approached the turn down at Mutt and Ruth's Home Store, Don McElroy came around the corner, saw me and held out his hand with the first two fingers exended. Since he was returning from the Methodist Hospital in Ft. Wayne where his Mrs. gave birth to twin boys that day, I didn't know if he was signaling "two babies" or giving the "V-for-Victory" sign. —Maybe it's my imagination, but he seems to have a sort of stunned expression on his face since last week-end.

The free movies are certainly popular with the younger set of St. Joe. Last week the music department of the school had to give a second performance of its "1950 Revue" because of the great demand for tickets for the performance on the preceding Friday (some even went both times). And the second revue had to be given on Wednesday, the same night as the movies. Three or four students stopped at the News Office the few days before the show to ask if the movies were cancelled. When told "No," a sad expression came over their faces. On Tuesday one boy said he heard that the school program had been cancelled. I answered "No" to that rumor, too. He said, "Aw, gee, now I'll HAFTA go to the school tomorrow night." Some grownups think the kids started that rumor themselves, plotting to cancel the musical program with their own methods.

—Aw, c'mon now, our kids wouldn't do THAT!

Monday afternoon me and the Mrs. took the kids to the Shamrock Fountain for a coke. The Seyfert's salesman was talking with Mr. Howard, who made the remark, "You better be careful; I'm kind of tough today." The salesman said, "Aren't you always that way?" Before answering, Howard quickly glanced to the rear of the store where Mrs. Howard was, then in a low voice said, "The wife is bossin' me around today."

Mrs. Anna Koch is making her home temporarily with Mr. and Mrs. Lester Coburn of near St. Joe.

Mrs. Nettie Minick of Harlan, who is 99 years old, sent Mrs. Harriett Johnson a Mother's Day poem which she wrote as follows:

Some women have climbed to the heights of fame where only a few can go;
Others have stayed in a little home where gardens and children grow,
And sewed on buttons and spread on jam, and cooked and ironed and swept.
And worked in the night with weary eyes while the rest of the family slept.
She's bound up bruises and banished cares, and thought up olden tales,
Sewed baseball gloves for little boys made dolls and kites and sails,
And child size pies and apple tarts that children like to eat --
Rewarded by the eager tread of little hurrying feet.
She's worn hats and coats quite out of style, and gone with something less,
To give a little blue eyed girl a hat or party dress,
Stayed home around the evening lamp while others laughed and played;
Shut away the merry scene, and smiled and talked and prayed.
And yet she wants no sympathy for well she always knows
There's something more to motherhood than wearing worn-out clothes.
The gleam of costly jewels and the luster of soft furs
Can't sparkle like the faces of the children who are hers.

Mr. and Mrs. James Monroe and family of Denver, Colorado, and Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Monroe of near St. Joe spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. Bowen of Ft. Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Aikens and Sam Mumaw were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Akins in Fort Wayne.

Factory Moving To Butler

Announcement was made Saturday that a new industry will locate in Butler as soon as the building can be erected. The Universal Tool and Stamping company of Spencerville and the Mayer Tool & Die company of Fort Wayne will combine their plants and move to Butler. The Butler Chamber of Commerce was instrumental in bringing the industry to that town. The Spencerville firm normally employes about 85 workmen making auto jacks for the automotive industry. The Mayer firm specializes in rebuilding and erecting machine tools and manufacturing dies for production work in machine shops. That firm employes about 45 people. Plans call for the construction of the new building to be completed before the first of September. The new factory will be located on the William Ocker property on West Main street in Butler.

NEWVILLE TWP. HOME EC

The Newville Home Ec Club met at the Newville Center club house for the May meeting with Mary Guthrie as hostess and Bivere Brush, Gladys Hart, Ida Brush and Lethia Hart assisting.

The meeting was called to order by singing "Long Long Ago." Devotions was led by Gladys Impton with Scripture reading from the Bible and a reading on "What It Is For Mother's Day" followed by singing "My Faith Looks Up To Thee."

Home Agent Mary Lenore Moore gave a lesson on Health and Health Agencies.

Roll call, "My Grandmother's Maiden Name," was answered by thirty-two members. Two guests and several children were present also.

Announcement was made that the County Home Ec picnic will be on June 29 at Auburn. The Newville Township club is to look after the tables. A committee was appointed as follows: Leah Thomas, chairman; Gladys Murphy; Blen Moore; Grace Robertson and Daisy Roberts.

A committee was also appointed to take care of the booth at the fair in Auburn next September. The committee is as follows: Irene Emenhiser, chairman; Josephine Beree; Dorothy Meek; Mary Platter and Lucille Nelson.

In memory of the club's deceased members, Mrs. Verna Tustison used a basket of mixed flowers to illustrate the different races of people and their different talents, that all on earth live to die, and in heaven we have died to live for a place of rest and happiness from our toils and cares here on earth. She read a very impressive poem followed by prayer. The basket of flowers was later sent to a sick member, Mrs. Aylene Kline.

The Red Cross and Welfare fund was taken up with a good response.

The meeting was then turned over to the entertainment committee which gave a stork shower for Mrs. Alice Dillander who received many useful gifts.

Luncheon was served and the meeting was then adjourned to meet again in June at the club house with Maria Suckle as hostess.

Hints On Health

CARE OF FEET

THE foot, the terminal organ of the leg, is a part of the body which works hard for us. It is composed of 52 bones and 214 ligaments, and is subjected to tons of pressure from the more than eight miles a day most people walk.

With proper care, the feet give us perfect, painless service. Without care, they will lead us into poor posture, lack of pep, cramps, ringworm, athlete's foot, backache, sluggishness, headaches, and loss of time and earning power.

More than 85 per cent of foot troubles come from faulty footwear. Shoes should be selected for the type of work to be done. When work is hazardous, safety shoes should be worn. For most occasions, low-heeled, all-leather shoes are needed. Shoes need firm soles and uppers for supple firmness and for proper ventilation to reduce foot perspiration. Stockings and shoes should be at least half an inch longer than the longest toe.

Feet should be thoroughly dried after bathing and toenails should be trimmed straight across, and not too short. Good posture should be cultivated and certain muscles of the feet should be exercised daily by wiggling the toes and walking a few steps on tiptoe.

Corns, callouses, ringworm and more serious foot ailments can be prevented by proper care of the feet.

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

VETERINARY medicine has made good progress against Newcastle disease in poultry during the past few years. Not too long ago this disease was ravaging flocks across the nation, but new methods of combating it have curtailed the outbreak and curbed its spread.

Recently I made a field trip to Franklin Grove, Ill., where I visited a large hatchery and saw 30,000 day-old chicks being vaccinated by the new nasal method. A worker would pick up a chick, hold its beak shut, and put a finger over one nostril, while another worker squeezed a drop of vaccine onto the other nostril with a medicine dropper.

It was a painstakingly, slow chore, but the result—immunity against Newcastle disease for these baby chicks—made it worthwhile to the poultryman. Birds which survive exposure to the infection or have been vaccinated against it can pass on their immunity to chicks that are hatched from their eggs. These chicks then are immune temporarily, from two to four weeks.

Older birds can be vaccinated with the new live-virus, but bad effects can be expected along with the immunity they'll get. First, if the birds have started to lay, vaccination will cause a slump in egg production, maybe as much as 60 per cent. It takes about a month for production to get back to normal. Sometimes flocks go into a molt.

Vaccination of laying flocks should be done in the summer months, when egg production is naturally off. Veterinarians point out that uncontrolled vaccination is dangerous and could do more harm than good to poultry flocks. But vaccination is a must where Newcastle disease has broken out in a flock, where the disease has occurred and where survivors are present, or where survivors are added to healthy flocks.

Congress of the United States
House of Representatives
Washington, D.C.

May 8, 1950

Edward H. Kruse, Jr.
Fourth District, Indiana

Dear Ted:

Thanks very much for your letter of May 1, which was awaiting me upon my return to Washington. It is always good to hear from you, and I certainly appreciate your sending me the replies to the coupon you ran in your paper.

Let me assure you that I agree with you in your desire to reduce insofar as possible the expenditures of our federal government. It is, of course, a matter of record that 70 percent of all governmental expenditures today are related directly to either past wars or presently unsettled world conditions. Expenditures for the national defense alone amount to approximately 13½ billion dollars; expenditures for the Veterans Administration approxi-6 billion dollars; for international affairs, primarily the European Recovery Program, amount to over 4 billion dollars; and finally, interest on the national debt, which is an annually recurring obligation, amounts to approximately 5½ billion dollars. The remaining provisions of the Budget are devoted to all other governmental items and functions. It indeed true that every constructive and proper effort should be made to reduce all of our present expenditures, and believe me, I shall continue to lend my efforts in this direction.

Permit me state in conclusion that I am now and always have been an advocate of and a strong believer in our free enterprise system. I am well aware of the fact that only under such a system as ours can a person properly, effectively and naturally utilize his own talents and abilities. You may be sure that I shall continue doing everything possible to help maintain our government on a sound basis, and that I shall at all times oppose any proposal which I consider unsound and detrimental to the best interest of the American people and our system of free enterprise.

As you doubtless know, I have openly advocated the repeal of wartime imposed excised taxes. In fact, I have introduced testimony to the Committee on Ways and Means, indicating that I favor such repeal. Please be assured of my continued interest in the matter.

Your good wishes are greatly appreciated, and I trust that my efforts will continue to merit your confidence and approval.

Please don't hesitate to write me at any time on subjects of concern to you. I will always welcome the benefit of your views and opinions.

With best personal regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

Ed

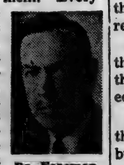
SCRIPTURE: Micah, especially 1:1; 2:1-2; 3:5-12; 6:6-8.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 72: 1-9.

God and Our Rights

Lesson for May 21, 1950

CIVIL RIGHTS are now a political football in the United States. Every legislator likes to be known as favoring them. Everybody seems to be all out for rights for everybody. Then why isn't everybody satisfied? The truth is, a lot of us just talk. When it comes down to political facts, the people who get their "rights" recognized first are the people with the most votes. The little people, especially if they haven't too many votes, are likely to be stepped on.



Dr. Foreman

Cannibal Country

THIS IS NOT a new problem. Long ago the prophet Micah faced it, said some brave words about it. He was a small-town man living in a village near the Judah-Philistine border line. Judah was at that time mostly rural.

The villages were made up of farmers, who did not live on their farms as we do but lived all together for protection, going out into the country by day to work their farms, coming back to the village at night. None of them owned very much land, and few indeed were rich.

There was just one big city in Judah, Jerusalem the capital. Compared with the rest of the country it was immense and enormously rich. Now it does not take two guesses to know how Judah, as a nation, was run. Jerusalem ran it. The big city was growing richer and richer while the country grew poorer and poorer.

The small farmers were losing their lands and becoming tenants or hired men (2:1-2). Micah even talks of the princes of Israel, the aristocracy, as cannibals, eating the flesh of the people.

Half Slave, Half Free

NO COUNTRY is a good country, no country is in a healthy condition, if one part of it is tearing the other part down. If the strong are living off the weak, the whole nation grows weak. Micah saw that exactly; indeed, he predicted that because of the kind of country it was, half opposed and half oppressing, it would be destroyed.

No enemy of his country, he did not enjoy forecasting its downfall. But he loved people, he loved his country neighbors; he could see what was happening to people who were being crushed down into the dirt, he knew that could not go on and on without a smash. (And it came!)

This has been the story over and over again in the history of nations. When the few grow strong at the expense of the many, when wealth is concentrated in a few cities, or in a few individuals or families, look out!

When this goes on for a long time and becomes a sort of national habit, the nation may not fall at once but becomes a pushover for anybody who wants to take it. Why, for instance, was the downfall of the "Nationalists" in China so swift? It was because the Chinese people had become convinced that the political leaders and their wealthy backers were in it for what they could get out of it.

Why did so many Nationalist troops fail to fight, why did they surrender repeatedly without striking a blow? Because armies are made of common men, and the common man has been taking a beating too long. There is very little patriotism in a beaten man.

We Have Our Own Problems

WE ARE FORTUNATE in that we live in more democratic times and lands. It should never be forgotten that democracy is a fruit of the Jewish-Christian tradition which the prophet Micah helped to form. It was the prophets who plowed deeply the soil out of which democracy has grown.

Many of the laws of our land are intended to keep the strong from eating up the weak. The farmer, the man out of work, the man with the small job, the man with the small business—they are protected under our government, whether in Canada or in the United States, as they never were in ancient Judah.

To test whether we are treating others right, especially those who are weaker than ourselves, we need first to ask these basic questions: Do these people get their share of justice, and are we helping them get it? Do we treat them with mercy or do we only "use" them for our own benefit?

CONSERVATION BUILDING NOW BEING BUILT

To be erected at a cost of $242,068 the new Conservation building soon will take its place alongside other modern buildings at the Indiana State Fairgrounds.

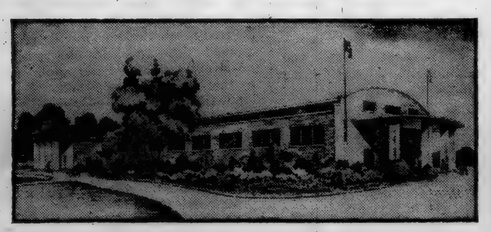
For years the Indiana Department of Conservation has catered to millions of State Fair visitors. It has been necessary to use a building which is in a state of complete dilapidation. Only the valiant efforts of several adminstrations using corps of workmen, have made the building "seaworthy" to a small degree. The need for a new conservation building long has been seen.

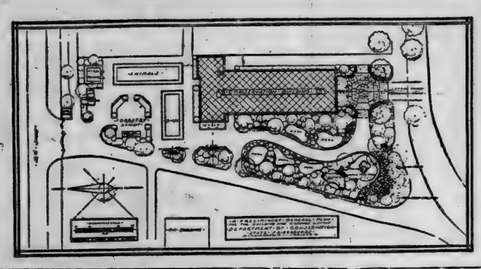
Conservationists and Conservation organizations throughout the state most assuredly will be grateful to the State Fair Board for making this much needed state building a reality.

Kenneth M. Kunkel, Director of the Conservation Department, fears the new edifice will not be completed in time for the 1950 State Fair.

Located across the race track near the Forty-second street gates, the building is to be erected amid a series of winding paths, shrubbery and trees. Around it will be pools for the display of fish, and animal pens for the proper showing of the state's wildlife. The interior will embrace two auditoriums, artificially lighted aquariums and spacious dormitories for Conservation Officers and others employed during the Fair. A full basement will house fish storage tanks, electric pumps and other devices necessary for operation. Water will be provided from a driven well.

Built in the form of a "T" the overall length of the building will be 200 feet not counting a large porch on the south or main entrance end. In width it will be approximately 100 feet plus the added width of a west porch. With the exception of the roof and roof supports the building will be built of Indiana Lime Stone. Laminated wooded arches support the roof, eliminating the need for uprights. Tarazzo flooring is to be used throughout, according to Henry Prange, Conservation Department engineer. Daylight illumination will be supplied by banks of windows in the roof and sides of the display room.





WINNERS 4-H CLUB

The Winners 4-H Club met at the home of Jack Hart on Monday evening, May 8, with twenty-four members naming fire and accident hazards at home for roll call. Group singing was led by Mary Wilder and Kathleen Anthony. Pledges were led by Jack Hart. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were given and approved. The club has planned a picnic for July 4th at 6:30 p.m. at Cedarville Park. The parents and families are invited.

The Concord Twp. Club is to be invited to a weiner roast at the next regular meeting.

Health report was given by Franklin Johnson, Wade Libey, the agriculture teacher at Ashley and 4-H leader of Smithfield twp., showed pictures of a fishing trip to Canada.

Jim Knopp led prayer before refreshments of dixie cups, cup cakes and cool aid were served. Refreshment committee was Jack Hart and Jim Knopp.

LEO UNIT OPPOSES SOCIALIZED MEDICINE

Mrs. Edward Halter, Legislation Chairman of the Leo American Auxiliary, has submitted a resolution against any form of compulsory health insurance or any system of political medicine designed for national bureaucratic control. The resolution was voted on at a regular business meeting and passed unanimously with recommendation that a copy be sent to our congressmen and representatives.

Delegates to the 4th District meeting at Woodburn were the Mesdames Darwin Savage, William Warner, James Savage and Harold Kryder.

Members who attended the training school and served as guides at the dedication of the new Veterans Administration Hospital Sunday were Mrs. Mary B. Hooper, Mrs. Mary Savage, Mrs. Pauline Savage, Mrs. Roxie Warner and Mrs. Della Kryder. "Gray Lady" Mrs. Richard Hartigan was also on duty as hostess.

Poppy Day will be observed on Saturday, May 27, with Mrs. Levon Bender. Canisters will be placed in leading business places with poppies for sale in Leo, Cedarville and Grabill. A Service Sales and Poppy Window display will be arranged by Mrs. Bender and Mrs. Elmor Griswold, Unit Sales Service Chairman. These articles are all made by disabled veterans and sold by the Auxiliary to help in Veteran Rehabilitation.

Unit President, Mrs. Fred Marolff, is in charge of the committees who will serve the Leo High School Alumni Banquet Saturday, May 20, at 7 p.m. in the school dining room.

All members are urged to take part in the Memorial Day Services and Parade to be held at the Leo High School Gym on Sunday, May 28.

ST. JOE GROCERY

We are always trying for more sales volume. More sales volume means lower overhead, fresher stock and less loss on perishables. All this makes possible lower prices and we have continuously passed these lower prices on to our customers until we now believe that we are filling an average family's entire grocery order for less money than any other grocery in our trading area. This statement applies to chains as well as to independent stores. In this connection we wish to make the point VERY CLEAR that the struggle for sales volume lays mostly between us and the CHAIN stores surrounding us rather than between other local stores and ourselves. Last year the chain stores did over 40 percent of the food business in the United States. Our aim is to give our trading community better hours of service, better convenience, a better selection of merchandise plus at least as low prices as can be found in any of the larger towns surrounding us so that we can reverse the trend from chain stores and larger town independents and keep our business right here among us. As we see it most independent grocers are fully aware that trying to operate on the old fashioned, out-moded idea of low volume and high prices is only helping to make the chain stores stronger and the independents weaker. What will the future opportunities in America be for your kids and ours if little business is swallowed up by a few large corporations?

FORD F-5
outsells every other truck in the 1½ ton field!

The first choice of smart truckers who use 1½ ton trucks is the Ford F-5. National registration figures prove this heavy duty truck has outsold every other make in its class—bar none—in the postwar period. Since the war it has outsold the next leading make by a ratio of 5 to 3. Cash in on the experience of men who know trucks. Switch to Ford and feel the difference—in your pocketbook.

Ford Model F-5 shown, available with 95-h.p. Six or 100-h.p. V-8 is one of over 175 Ford Truck models varying from 95-h.p. Pickups to 145-h.p. Big Jobs.

FOR EVEN BIGGER LOADS, GREATER POWER—THE FORD F-6

Choose Ford F-6, rated up to 16,000 lbs. G.V.W. on 8.25-20 duals. You get a choice of V-8 or Six in three great engines, including the new 110-h.p. Six.

FIRST IN VALUE!

TEN WAYS BETTER than the 4 other leading makes in the 1½ ton field!

Ford is first in sales because it is first in value. The F-5 offers these 10 advantages over the next four leading makes. (1) Up to 1,720 lbs. more payload capacity. (2) Up to 1,500 lbs. higher G.V.W. (3) Up to 310 lbs. less chassis dead weight. (4) Widest (3½-inch) rear brake shoe lining. (5) Highest compression ratio. (6) Only choice of V-8 or Six engines. (7) Oil Filter at no extra cost. (8) One quart oil bath air cleaner at no extra cost. (9) Biggest clutch lining area. (10) Only Ford has worm and dual rear needle bearing roller steering.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Last Thursday afternoon several young men from St. Joe invaded the lowlands east of town with spray guns and cans filled with oil in an attempt to reduce the mosquito menace. Every year this event takes place with volunteers from this community participating.

I went along this year for the first time. Merle Guilford drove his "new" truck out to the property bordering the river, accompanied by Donald Yeiser, Bud Shuff and me. Bud and I packed the spray guns on our backs while Merle and Donald carried the buckets. I had heard several comments about carrying those spray guns with blistered backs resulting but figured I'd try anyhow. As I started out I thought, "This'll be a cinch; this rig ain't so heavy." But fifty-five minutes later I gladly turned it over to Merle and grabbed a bucket. I made two excursions with the bucket and on the second blazed a new trail (I thought) into the wilderness thinking that I would find some pools the others wouldn't find. You know the old story about wandering in circles when lost in the woods? —It's true. I wandered about for fifteen or twenty minutes not knowing which way was out, and tossed the last drop of oil on a pool which I thought no one had sprayed. As I rounded the end of it and walked along the other side, I recognized it as the first pool Bud and I sprayed an hour and a half before.

I wasn't completely lost in my wandering. As long as Cliff Billow ran the feed grinder at the elevator, I knew where home was. But he turned the darn thing off a couple of times and left me on my own.

There was a second group who started their spraying down by the cemetery. It included Mose Yeiser, Ed Wade (who was "drafted" by his boss, Dairyman Kline), Melvin Hershberger, Don McElroy and Joe Walter.

The supply of oil was furnished by Roy Reidenbach; so, if you see any mosquitos flying around wearing red crowns this summer, don't be surprised.

The local baseball diamond is sporting a new backstop, thanks to the efforts of Coach Jim Tatlock. The old one which was taken down was too small to be practical and had seen much better days. I recall one loose section right at the base of the screen. If the catcher missed the ball, it ALWAYS went through that little opening. That won't happen any more; the screen is anchored in cement.

Billy Haverstock had his tonsils removed last week. On the eve of the operation, Ethel Haverstock, with typical motherly affection, asked him what he would like to have to eat (he wasn't supposed to eat anything the next morning). Billy's request was simple — six cups of cocoa and six glasses of water!

The best things in life are free.

Bible School Starts Monday

The Daily Vacation Bible School, which last year numbered 125, will begin this year on Monday, May 29, at the Spencerville Methodist Church.

The school is sponsored by the Concord, St. Joe Lutheran, Spencerville Lutheran and Spencerville Methodist churches. Classes are held daily from 8:30 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. A bus will be available for those who have no other means of transportation.

A basket dinner is planned for Friday, June 9, at noon on the church lawn for the children, parents and friends. It it should rain, the noon dinner will be held in the church basement.

The school will close on Sunday, June 11, with a program at 7:30 p.m.

Children of all ages and denominations are welcome to attend the Daily Vacation Bible School.

Mobile X-Ray Unit Coming

The mobile unit for mass X-ray public survey will visit DeKalb county from June 5 through 9. The unit will be in St. Joe on Friday, June 9.

Every person over 15 years of age is urged to take advantage of this free service and get an X-ray taken at that time. The examination, which is the only way that the dreaded disease can be detected in its earliest stages, only takes a few seconds and it is not necessary to undress for the X-ray.

The mobile unit will be in St. Joe June 9 from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. It is owned by the Indiana Tuberculosis Association and the Indiana State Board of Health. Its visit to DeKalb County is sponsored by the DeKalb County Tuberculosis Association.

Memorial Day Services At St. Joe

Frank Shull, Commander of Walter Whitehurst Post 283, announces the following program for Memorial Day, Tuesday, May 30, at St. Joe.

A parade will form at the Legion Home at 1:30 p.m., DST, and march to the Riverside Cemetery where Descendants of the G. A. R. Fife and Drum Corps will play a few numbers and Joseph R. Shenault, pastor of Newville Church of Christ, will give an address at 2 p.m.

Children of the community are invited to meet at the Legion Home at 1:30 p.m. to march in the parade. They will be given flags to carry. The American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary members are to march. The K of P members are also invited.

The Legion is fortunate in securing the Fife annd Drum Corps. This is a national organization which was founded in 1870, two years after the G.A.R. was organized. The daughters of Union Veterans were organized in 1905 as the National Ladies Fife and Drum Corps. In 1940, as there were no more G.A.R. veterans, the name was changed to the name announced above. There will be approximately 16 members, both men and women, in this corps appearing in St. Joe. The members are from DeKalb, Steuben and Allen counties.

In case of bad weather, the program will be held in the high school gymnasium.

Poppy Day, May 27

The American Legion Auxiliary's poppy program begins in the late fall and early winter when the manufacture of the poppies is started by disabled veterans in government hospitals and in special convalescent workshops maintained by the Auxiliary. Throughout the winter and spring months the disabled men are given profitable employment shaping the little red flowers. The program comes to a climax in May when, on Saturday before Memorial Day in most communities, the sale takes place on the streets and by a door to door canvas of the homes.

The work of making the poppies is a true God-send to many hundreds of disabled veterans. They are paid for the flowers they shape and if not too badly disabled they can earn a fair days wage without exerting themselves to a harmful extent. For many it is the only possibility of earning money during the year. This money is used when the veteran goes from the hospital to face the battle of winning back a place in the economic life of the country or helps toward buying fuel, food and clothing for his family at home.

The sale of the poppies is conducted entirely by volunteer workers and every penny received goes into direct relief for the disabled men and the dependents of the dead and disabled.

No price is fixed for the poppy. The newsboy's pennies and the businessman's dollar are equally acceptable. The memorial poppy you'll receive on Saturday from the American Legion Auxiliary was made by a disabled veteran. It's his badge of courage, his symbol of hope. Give generously and gratefully for he fought that you might live in freedom. It means so much to so many.

American Legion Auxiliary
Alice Reidenbach, Chairman

One Who Never Forgets

SPENCER TWP. HOME EC.

The Spencer Twp. Home Ec Club meeting was held the afternoon of May 10 at the home of Mrs. Grace Laub with Mrs. Winifred Hart assisting.

The meeting was called to order by the president and devotions were in charge of Dorothy Kimes. The song of the month, "Comin' Thro' the Rye," was led by the chorister, Lois Fisher, accompanied by the pianist, Marilyn Salisbury. Reports were given by the Special Leaders, Izetta Chaney, Mildred Jordan, Marjie and Fara Lee Baidinger. The minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer's report were read and approved. Mrs. Mildred Grogg, Mrs. Velma Husselman, Mrs. Lucille Nelson, Mrs. Ruth Teutsch and Mrs. Helen Blaker were guests of the club. Mrs. Grogg, Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Husselman gave short talks which everyone enjoyed.

Roll call was answered with "My Favorite Vegetable and Preparation."

The president reminded the club of the dates of county events of the coming summer.

The hostess served ice cream, cake and coffee to twenty-two members, five guests and ten children.

The next meeting will be at the home of Maxine Kelley with Mildred Jordan and Bernlece Jones, hostesses, June 14.

Pineapple Upside-Down Cake Is an Easy-to-Make Favorite

Pineapple upside-down cakes, light and luscious, are a favorite American dessert. And they're one of the easiest to make, if you use a white cake mix for the foundation, and canned pineapple, in chunks or slices or crisp-cut crushed bits, for the topping.

The pineapple, enriched with brown sugar and butter, is the topping when the cake is served, but it is the part that goes into the pan first. So prepare it first, in whatever kind of pan you choose to use—a square one, individual casseroles, a ring or even an iron skillet. It is easy to cut and serve an upside-down cake topped with the crisp-cut variety of crushed pineapple.

You'll be sure of a downy light cake with the white cake mix. The batter can be ready to pour over the pineapple four minutes after you open the package. The routine is simple—mix with milk, beat and bake. In this cake the baking comes after you have poured the batter over the pineapple mixture. And when you cut your cake, while it's still warm—the pineapple golden brown and fragrant, the cake snowy-white and downy-light—you'll get more praise than you deserve for such an easy triumph.

You can vary your basic pineapple cake—made of white cake mix, baked in a square pan, if that's the one you choose—by varied garnishes. Halved or whole red or green cherries, for instance, pecan or walnut meats or blanched almonds, are attractive garnishes—and any one of these nuts added, chopped, to the pineapple mixture, gives appetising variety. You can make a pineapple upside-down cake, too, out of the spice cake version of the mix. And you can serve it with whipped cream, if you like that extra touch of richness.

God Has a Plan

Lesson for May 28, 1950

GOD HANDS DOWN no blueprints. He never yet has been willing to save any man the trouble of thinking. The Bible is God's guidebook, and in it is revealed God's will. But it is not a guidebook of such a sort that you can take it from the shelf and look up in it the answer to every one of your problems in detail. Nevertheless the Bible is a guide, "the infallible rule of faith and practice" as some churches express it.

Dr. Foreman

God's will is shown there plainly enough so that we can know whether we are building on the right foundation or not.

Sins Into The Sea

NOW THE PLAN of God is so simple, that is, it can be so simply expressed, that one is almost tempted to say, "Oh, that!" as if it were something we knew already. Well, we do know it. But the thing is, we don't do it.

Part of God's plan for mankind, a very important part, in fact indispensable—something the Bible talks about from the beginning to end—is this. The forgiveness and the destruction of sins. (Micah 7: 18-20.) Now everybody can see others' sins.

The Romans used to say that every man carries others' sins in a bag in front of him where he can see them very well, but his own sins he carries in a bag hanging down his back where he cannot see them.

We are all in favor of other people's forsaking their sins. But how about you? The world does need to confess its sin; but you need to confess you own. No sins walk by themselves; sins exist only in sinners. Sin does not commit itself. Sin is something a sinner does. We shall never get rid of sins by exhorting other people. We get rid of them by repenting in the presence of God and receiving his forgiveness.

It is always so easy to think: If we only had a good society we could have better people. That is backing into an idea the wrong way. The right idea is: If we have better people we shall be on the way to the good society.

If Not Peace, Then What?

WE ALSO KNOW something about God's plan for society at large. The Bible does not leave us in the dark. One thing that Micah brings out is the ideal of peace. (Micah 4:1-5.)

So long as we are making war, preparing for and expecting war, doing or saying things that make war inevitable or even likely, we are out of line with the will of God. Conversely, whatever we do to foster peace is in line with the plan of God. War was bad enough in the days of Micah; it is incalculably worse today.

War always was the effect and cause of hate, it always brought suffering and death, war seldom settled anything. But this is the atomic age. Dean Rusk of the U.S. state department has said that in all present - day discussions we have to remember one solemn fact: The human race now has in its hands the means of its own total destruction.

Any war nowadays is a war against the whole human race, for any large-scale war with atomic weapons may well make the entire globe uninhabitable by man. A voice for war is a voice for universal death.

Christ The King

SINLESS MAN is a warless world; such is God's plan. Is this possible? Only on one condition; that Christ shall be king. (Micah 5:2-4.) This has two meanings, one far-off, and one near; one complete and one partial. The far-off, completed meaning (which may be nearer than we think) is that after the history of this planet is over and done with, in the "new heavens and the new earth" the final destiny of God's people is to live under the Lord Christ as leader and king.

The nearer, here - and - now meaning of Christ's kingship is this: Wherever, in the plans of men, the spirit of Christ, his way and his ideal, are being trampled on or ignored, there God's plan is forgotten and there disaster is certain.

But wherever the spirit of Christ is in control, there God's plan is being carried out and there the Kingdom of God is coming nearer.

State of Utah
Office of the Governor
Salt Lake City

May 16, 1950

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Thank you very kindly for the generous editorial you wrote about my efforts as Governor of Utah.

There have been several articles published in national magazines recently, all of which have been quite factual. There seems to be a unanimous agreement, however, that I have no political future.

I hope the response to these articles will belie this conclusion -- not so much for my benefit, but for the benefit of the American people. I am afraid that if someone does not soon reverse our present trend in government, we will lose our free-enterprise system, plunge into Socialism and become slaves to a dictatorial few.

I appreciate your kindness in forwarding your editorial. I hope that my future activities will merit your words of praise.

Sincerely yours,
J. Bracken Lee

Spencerville High School Notes

The seniors, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Paschen, went to Detroit by bus last Thursday and Friday. They had rooms equipped with telephone and television (both kept busy) at the Fort Shelby Hotel.

A few of the highlights of the trip were the baseball game at Briggs Stadium, sight-seeing at Ford's Museum and a meal at Dearborn Inn.

Phyllis Warner was awarded the citizenship award at Commencement by the St. Joe American Legion. This award is based on honor, honesty, high morals, citizenship, scholarship and leadership.

SPORTS

Alf Paschen, Ed Hook, Bud Vendrely and Bob Hoover participated in the sectional track meet held at Ft. Wayne recently. Alf and Bob qualified for the regional. Bob got first in pole vaulting and Alf a fourth in high jump. At the regional Bob tied for third place with Michael of Auburn and Beard of Fremont. He lost the trip to state by the toss of a coin.

Ken Butler got second place in pole vaulting at the County Junior High Track Meet.

Tatle Tales

The flame between Pat Angel and Bud Vendrely is burning strong again. Good luck, kids.

Is it true that Jerry Bowser brought Mary Potts home from the Junior-Senior Banquet? Watch your step, Jerry! Madolyn has a good right!

Nancy Vendrely is saving herself for a rainy day. The "shower" couldn't be "Curly", could it?

Imogene Conley and Jim Dwyer are getting quite chummy. Too bad her mother came after her Thursday night.

It seems "Bobbie" is still the man in Dorothy Nusbaum's life, although rumors have it that Bud Vendrely and Kenny Akey haven't exactly been ignoring her.

Did you have a nice walk back to town Thursday night, Pat and Alf.

If Madolyn Reed isn't with Jerry Bowser, she's with Eddie Hook. Nothing like being sure of a date.

Who did Sonny Mathes have at the Hoosier Cornhuskers program. Could it have been Jeanette Osmun.

Bonnie Furnish and Jerry Baker must have some common interests, else why would they spend so much time together.

The sophomores are expecting their rings any day now. We wonder who will "lose" theirs first.

GET-TO-GETHER 4-H CLUB

Twenty-four members of the Get-To-Gether 4-H Club met May 12 after school in the home ec room.

A special number was given by Mary Lou Trenary and Jane Draggoo on their flutes, "The Skaters' Waltz." A work period was held to give the members a chance to ask any questions necessary.

The next meeting will be held at the school on May 26. The Newville and Spencerville clubs have been invited to attend.

Softball Teams Ready For Opener

Auburn Softball League competition gets under way on June 6, according to information from the Softball Association which held a meeting last Thursday at the Y.M.C.A. in Auburn.

Nine teams have entered the league this year including the local St. Joe News team and one entered by Universal Tool & Stamping Co. or Spencerville. Each team is allowed up to fifteen players, a list of whom must be turned in to the association by June 15. Players will not be allowed to change teams except under strict regulation.

Local fans will get a look at the News team and the high school team next Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m. when a practice game will be played at the school diamond.

Players you will probably see in action for the News team this year include Lewis Walter, Wayne Surface, Donald Yeiser, Harold Yeiser, Jim Kinsey, Gene Baker, Frank Sechler, Ed Wade, Bob Walters, Bud Shuff, Ted Haberkorn and possibly Marcel Pugsley.

CONCORD TWP. HOME EC

The Concord Twp. Home Ec Club met at the home of Mrs. Pluma Hamilton Friday, May 19. The meeting was opened by singing "Comin' Thro' the Rye." Mrs. Mary Krise gave the history of the song. The creed was read and "Prayer Song" sung, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison.

The project lesson, "Upholstering," was given by Mrs. Kathryn Haller. Mrs. Cora Curie, chairman of special leaders, gave a few pointers on gardening.

The president, Mrs. Doris Yeiser, announced the Flower Show to be held at the court house in Auburn on June 24 and 25. The "June Brunch" will be at the home of Mrs. Ella Meyers on June 16 at 11:30 a.m.

The secretary's report was read and sixteen members responded to roll call with "A verse in honor of Mother."

The door prize was given to Mrs. Cora Fetters. The hostess with her committee, Mrs. Harriett Johnson and Mrs. Mayola Zuber, served lunch consisting of wafers, pineapple salad and coffee.

Labor Took Rights of Dozing British Farmer

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

DURHAM, England—The British farmer is like the American farmer in being hard to kick around.

The British intellectuals, who lead the Labor party with its Socialist plans and specifications, took a long and envious look at the way the Russian Communists handled the 3,000,000 landowning farmers of Russia when they took over the government by violence. The Russian Communists seized the land of the 3,000,000 landowning farmers, known as kulaks, and sent the owners away to work in the woods and the mine labor camps. The Communists were so sure that the kulaks would never come back that they divided the land into big neighborhood farms owned by the government and made the farm laborers work on them as sharecroppers.

NOLAND

In Britain the Socialists couldn't do that. But they could make the farmer over into a mere food raiser for the city wage earner.

They did this by taking advantage of Britain's war food crisis—and it was a crisis with only a three-week supply of food at times—to take over all farm land use. They froze farmers and farm laborers at their jobs. They told the farmer what to raise, fixed the price, became his only customer, and armed themselves to throw him off his own land if he did not obey orders. The British farmer, who is an able and patriotic citizen, obeyed orders as a way to help win the war.

Other Excuses Followed

But after the war the Socialists won the election, and the farmer soon was told that food controls had to be continued in order to "eliminate profiteers." The labor leaders, who were running the government for the wage-earners, explained that they had to have complete control of food, from seed to plate on the table, to make sure of "fair shares of the shortages."

British farmers have a powerful organization called the Farmers' Union. Its leaders warned that, under Socialism, government must control the people's food supply. But the British farmer was kept half asleep by fairly good prices. He did not wake up to his peril until he began to see what the labor bosses of the country were doing. They were paying a fairly good price on the farm, but selling farm products at a loss in town.

Lost Profit "Pottage," Too

When the ministry of food lost 200 million dollars on meat and 320 million dollars on wheat flour and bread in one year, the farmer saw that he was sunk. Then he got his tax bill—and saw that what he thought he made by forfeiting his independence he was really paying out in taxes to help the city worker pay below-cost prices for food.

Today, every step in food supply is taken only on permits from the minister of agriculture or the minister of food. No one can raise, buy, sell, manufacture or eat food except on government permits.

The farmer still owns his land. It has not been seized as farm land was seized in Russia. But he no longer controls the use of his own land.

Labor His New Landlord

He recalls his long struggle to free himself from tenancy on vast estates given by the king in the old days to reward favorites of the crown. He is asking himself whether, under "free government," he has not been lured back into the chains which his ancestors struck off in the name of liberty. He is asking himself whether the labor union is now the landlord and he is the peasant. Since neither he nor any farm laborer can leave the farm for other kind of work without a government permit, he is wondering whether he has been subsidized back into serfdom.

Mrs Cora Steward received word that her brother-in-law, Mr. Wallace Wilson, passed away in his home at Estes Park, Colorado, on April 25. He was laid to rest at Loveland, Colorado, beside his wife, Rosella Steward Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Steward and son, Jimmy, of Cleveland, O., called on their grandmother, Mrs. Cora Steward, and aunt, Arminta, last Saturday evening. Callers in the same home Sunday afternoon were Mrs. Florence Baker and two children, Darwin and Phyllis, of Concord and Mrs. George Baker of St. Joe.

Mrs. Ethelyn Miller and children and Mrs. Florence Silberg called on Mr. and Mrs. Howard Beams and family at Fremont, Mich., Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Reed and daughter attended the Tulip Festival at Holland, Mich., Saturday and Sunday. They then went to Chicago and Highland, Ind., and visited Mrs. Ada Whitacre and family.

Mr. R. U. Bowser received word from his aunt, Mrs. Emilia Gloyd, that she suffered another stroke and is quite bad. She is at the home of her son, Mr. Ralph Gloyd, at Royal Oak, Mich.

Several from Spencerville and St. Joe attended the New York Yankee-Cleveland Indian baseball game at Cleveland Sunday.

Daisy Markle helped out in the Harvey Carr home at St. Joe last week. Mrs. Carr is in the Hicksville Hospital. The Carrs were blessed with a baby girl.

The Senior Class returned home Friday night from Detroit where they spent two days.

Davey Doll left Monday evening for Indianapolis where he will be inducted into the navy. He will be sent to Great Lakes.

Ruben Renn was taken to the Sanders hospital in Auburn where it was discovered he had a light stroke. He is somewhat improved.

FOOD PREPARATION HINTS GIVEN

In a short time Hoosier homemakers will be gathering fresh vegetables from their gardens. Mary Lenore Moore, home demonstration agent, suggests ways to retain the greatest amount of food value.

Food cooking and salad use vegetables should be cut in as large pieces as practical. Salad ingredients should be kept in the refrigerator and not chopped until time to take to the table. Vegetables for cooking should be pared or cut at cooking time.

When vegetables are pared and allowed to stand in water for some time before cooking, the surfaces exposed to air and water permit a loss of water-soluble vitamins and minerals. Before head vegetables, such as cabbage, cauliflower and broccoli, are cut for cooking, they should be placed head down in cold, salt water to remove insects.

Miss Moore cautions homemakers to cook only as much as is needed for the meal and to serve them immediately. Research shows that vegetables held 24 hours, even in the refrigerator, lose additional vitamins when reheated and have little vitamin value left.

Heat, air and water cause loss of food value; so, little or no water should be used. If water is used, it should be boiling when the vegetable is added. They should be cooked as quickly as possible, but boiled gently to avoid breaking. When cooking is completed, there should be little or no water left on them. Concentrating the water to this small quantity retains all the flavor and food value and does not allow it to be dissolved in the juice.

Cutting green beans lengthwise shortens the cooking time, thus retaining the attractive green color. They should be cooked until tender but not overcooked. Research workers recommend cooking vegetables in salted water to improve the green color and flavor and to preserve the ascorbic acid (Vitamin C).

Around the Town

With the Editor

Never again! !

Last Sunday at the local softball game there was a shortage of umpires "available" for the game. I thought we'd be able to pick up a couple of men at the game to call the balls and strikes and outs. But the stalwart young men of the community, including Ned Keller, Hubert Bleeks, Joe and Dick Freeburn, "Bub" Richmond and several others seem to fear the jeers of the crowd more than anything else.

Finally when it was apparent that no umps could be drafted from the crowd, "Lew" Walter came through as he usually does when somebody needs help. He said, "Gimme the mask; I'll call 'em." Dick Freeburn then lost some of his fears and went out to give the call on base runners.

When the game reached the fifth inning, I could see that "Lew" was chomping at the bit (or maybe in this case I should say "mask"), just itching to get in the game. Then it was that I made a fatal decision—I thought it was my turn to say, "Gimme the mask; I'll call 'em." —I said it. —He gave it to me.

I repeat — "Never again! !"

In the first place, I don't know all the rules of the game; in the second place, the mask wouldn't fit over my glasses; and in the third place, the first two places are enough.

If you want to get in on something different for amusement, try playing in an eleven-handed Canasta game. I did last week at my Dad's birthday party. There were six men and five ladies present, so one of the men became a "lady" for the game; that made the odds a little more even —too even. The men lost.

Some of the regular rules were changed slightly. The winner had to get 10,000 instead of 5,000 points (with five or six on a side it's easy to get five, six or seven canastas in one hand); and a side couldn't "go out" until every player had played at least once. In this particular game a player sometimes gets but one chance to play; so it's a little difficult to get rid of a fistfull of cards if the pile is picked up.

If you do try it sometime, you might have a good book handy to read between your draws. It's nothing to wait ten minutes for everyone to play once.

Sounds crazy, doesn't it? —It is.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

The American Legion Auxiliary of Walter Whitehurst Post 283 met at the Legion home at 8 p.m. on May 22.

The meeting was opened in ritualistic form by the president. Mrs. Clayton A. Baker. Seven members responded to roll call.

Mrs. Roy Reidenbach, Poppy Chairman, organized the Poppy Drive. Claudia Shuff is to be awarded first prize of one dollar and Sally Wade second prize of fifty cents for the poppy posters they made.

Mrs. Harold Noragon announced the Marion Birthday Party on June 8. The Auxiliary is going to send candy bars. Mrs. Noragon is also planning for the Irene Byron treat in June.

The president received replies to the letters sent to Congress against socialized medicine.

FUTURE GAME FOR HUNTERS DISTRIBUTED

Thousands of pheasant and quail chicks and the eggs of both are currently being distributed to conservation clubs by the Indiana Department of Conservation Division of Fish and Game.

Through the two state game farms, Wells county and Jasper-Pulaski, these eggs and chicks are being allocated to clubs throughout the state which operate and maintain brooders.

Pheasant eggs are being distributed by conservation officers in every county which has requested them. Club hatcheries incubate these eggs until they hatch, whereupon the young pheasants are turned into the brooders and pens until they reach maturity. They are eventually liberated to increase the natural game supply, thereby providing sportsmen with an abundant fall harvest.

Within 12 to 24 hours after quail and pheasant chicks have hatched at the state game farms, the chicks are boxed and shipped in a special temperature controlled truck to clubs cooperating with the Division of Fish and Game in propagating game birds. This truck is equipped to maintain a constant temperature of 97 degrees F. in order that the chicks may have every chance to live.

All quail and pheasant received under this club operated plan must be liberated when they reach maturity. Clubs requesting eggs or chicks operate equipment inspected and approved by Division of Fish and Game.

Game farm superintendants handpick all parent stock on the basis of their capabilities, thus insuring excellent game hatches and full propagation returns.

High School Edges News In Warmup Tilt

In a wild and wooly game which ended as a football-score victory for the St. Joe High School team, the St. Joe News softball nine was defeated in the last half of the 7th inning last Sunday when Francis Dulle rapped out a solid hit to drive in the winning run. The score was 14 to 13.

The game was riddled with errors and bases on balls. Of the total of 27 runs scored, only 9 were legitimate scores.

The News team got off to a 1-0 lead in the first inning, added two more in both the 2nd and 3rd before the high school tied it up with five runs in the last half of the 3rd. The News bounced back with six runs in the 4th to one for their opponents, and added one in both the 5th and 6th before things fell apart in the last of the 6th. The high school scored 7 runs on 6 walks, 4 errors and no hits. Goings held the News in check in the first of the 7th. Then in the school's half of the inning, Hull was safe on an error, moved to third on two walks, and scored on Dulle's single.

THREE IN SPENCERVILLE FRAUD TO BE TRIED IN JUNE

Andrew J. Miller, 31, of Leo will be the first of three men charged with aiding and abetting in the $350,000 Spencerville bank fraud last September to be tried in the federal court at Fort Wayne this summer.

Miller will go to trial June 5. He was indicted on six counts in the fraud. Others to be tried on similar charges in the fraud and dates for their trials are: Dale C. Wicoff, 32, of Spencerville, June 8, and Ray Hoover, 48, of Spencerville on June 13.

Clyde Rectenwall, 65-year-old former cashier of the Spencerville bank, and Leroy Chaney, Ft. Wayne and Harlan used car dealer, pleaded guilty last January to charges implicating them in the bank swindle and probably will be sentenced during the coming Ft. Wayne court session.

Lessil O. Bardsley also has been found guilty in the same fraud case. Bardsley, Harlan trucker, also remains to be sentenced.

SCRIPTURE: Habakkuk. DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 97: 1-7.

Questioning God

Lesson for June 4, 1950

HABAKKUK has been called the prophet who dared to ask God questions. If he had not asked these questions he would not have had his answers, so we ought to be thankful for him. If he had meekly "taken it" without (so to speak) talking back to God, he himself might never have became a prophet and we might have missed the truth which he was enabled to see. If there had been morning papers in those days, Habakkuk would seldom have read anything good in them. As for local news, it was all scandal. Murders, judges dispensing injustice in the courts, good people having a very hard time of it . . . Abroad; things looked dark. The giant nation of Babylonia was on the march westward, and it did not look as if the nation of Judah had what it would take to stop an invasion.

Dr. Foreman

Habakkuk, a deeply sensitive man, could not brush it all off. He could not say, "Oh well, what can you expect?" or "I see the boys are at it again." He could not think of what was going on around him as if it were all a story, a murder-mystery to be enjoyed in an easy chair. He could not say "It is fate" and let it go at that.

He was desperate in his mind about it all. "Under mine eyes outrage and injury go on," he said (1:3, Moffatt's translation). He dared to ask the question, Why? Why does God permit such things?

God's Terrible Answer

GOD HAD AN ANSWER for Habakkuk, but it did not satisfy him at first; indeed it disturbed him deeply, for the answer looked worse than the original problem. The essence of it was this (Hab. 2:5-11): God had indeed seen the wicked ways of the nation of Judah, and was going to punish the whole country by defeat in war. He was bringing up against them the Babylonians (Chaldeans), an aggressive, fighting, ruthless nation. Sooner or later Babylon and Judah would clash, and then—Smash!

The Prophet Still Asks Questions

HABAKKUK KNEW very well what the Babylonian armies were like and what they had been doing. But could it be true that God would actually make use of a wicked nation like Babylonia? God was "of purer eyes than to behold evil;" how then could a good God use the cruel violence of godless armies, even for a righteous purpose?

The Babylonians were not God's people — they did not worship him or know him. How could God use his enemies to punish his own people? Does God justify the means by the end? Does God do evil that good may come?

Habakkuk, in short, was troubled by exactly the same kind of questions that have always arisen when men who believe in a righteous God ponder the meaning of the power of evil.

Faith Comes Through

HABAKKUK never did get a complete, logical answer to his doubts. What he did get was something more valuable. It was a two-fold answer. First, WAIT AND SEE. (2:1-3.) The crushing of Judah by Babylon would not be the last chapter of history. God has yet to settle his account with Babylon, and "God does settle all his accounts in October."

The other part of the answer is: THE JUST SHALL LIVE BY FAITH. The meaning here (2:4) is that there are two kinds of life, two types of character, two sorts of men. One is the man of pride and unfaith, the other is the man of faith. Unfaith kills, faith makes alive. Unfaith trembles and falls, faith endures.

So it is with men and nations. At that time you might have thought, Babylon will survive, Judah has no chance. But in the light of history, we know it was Babylon that perished, Judah that endured. Godlessness may have terrible power, but since it is godlessness, it has no final power against the real God.

So Habakkuk, who begun by asking questions, came out into glorious faith. The great poem with which his book closes is a bold confession of faith. No longer complaining, he cries out, "The Lord God is my strength!"

Looky, Looky, Looky...

"...here comes cookie!" "Cooky" is scarcely the term to apply to these glamorous little Coconut Marshmallow Treats—they deserve a much fancier one. However, there is nothing fancy about making them! They couldn't be simpler! The beverage you serve with them should be equally glamourous, so why not try tall, cool Mocha Floats. They are quick and easy to make, too, if you use the wonderful new 4 in 1 instant cocoa mix. What a treat—for a planned party or for the friend who drops in casually on an afternoon!

And, by the way, with this instant cocoa mix, you can meet daily dairy food requirements of growing bodies, as well as small fry demands for chocolate milk shakes, with no trouble at all. And for additional nourishment, you'd better keep the cookie jar well stocked with tempting Spicy Oatmeal Cookies that have in them sugar and spice and coconut nice!

Coconut Marshmallow Treats

Cut marshmallows in halves. Dip cut-side in shredded coconut. Place, coconut up, on graham crackers. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) about 10 minutes, or broil under medium heat until delicately browned.

Mocha Float

½ cup cold Chocolate Sauce
1 cup chilled milk
Coffee ice cream

Combine chocolate sauce and milk and blend well. Pour into tall glass. Add ice cream and serve at once. Makes 1 serving.

Chocolate Sauce: Combine 1 cup instant sweet cocoa mix and a dash of salt in saucepan. Add 1½ cups hot water. Place over medium heat, bring to a boil, and boil 4 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, add 2 tablespoons butter, and mix until smooth. Makes 1⅔ cups sauce.

Spicy Oatmeal Cookies

2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup sugar
1½ cups rolled oats
1 cup shredded coconut
2 eggs, well beaten
¾ cup melted butter or other shortening
¼ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add soda, salt, spices, and sugar, and sift again. Add rolled oats and coconut and mix well. Combine eggs, shortening, milk, and vanilla and add all at once to dry ingredients. For cookies with a rough appearance stir batter until ingredients are just blended. Or beat well for smoother, cake-like cookies. Drop from tablespoon on ungreased baking sheet 2 inches apart. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 15 to 18 minutes. Makes about 3 dozen large cookies.

CONSERVATION CLUB

The June meeting of the St. Joe Valley Conservation Club will be held at the school house on Friday, June 2, at 8 p.m.

Conservation Officer Campbell will be present to show movies.

"Is it too Late, Doctor?"

SOONER OR LATER, one out of every five living Americans may ask his doctor this question about cancer.

The answer may be: "Yes . . . I'm afraid so . . ."

But, today, the doctor can say to increasing numbers of cancer victims, "No, it is by no means too late . . . There is much that we can do . . . In fact, your chances for recovery are good."

THIS heartening reply reflects the great progress of medical science against cancer. And there is every reason to believe that, as the years go by, the ancient dream of conquering this disease in all its forms will be realized.

Cancer research supported by the American Cancer Society has already yielded new surgical techniques and improved methods of using x-ray and radium. More recently, research with radio-active isotopes has revealed facts about processes heretofore completely hidden in the body's cells. It has also given scientists new knowledge of hormones and certain anti-cancer drugs—thus making possible more effective control of some types of cancer.

Part of the money you donate will support research that may save millions of lives. Won't you give—and give generously—so that sometime in the future doctors may never have to face another patient and say: "I'm afraid it's too late."

Remember: Cancer can strike anyone, but you can strike back. There's hope—if you give for research and the other vital activities of the American Cancer Society.

Health Insurance 'Calf' Is Now Socialist 'Bull'

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

LONDON, England—Socialism is a sneak. Ask the informed Englishman how his country ever got itself involved in what he calls the health scheme, which is known in the United States as Socialized medicine, and he will say that it was all started by good people with the best intentions in the world.

NOLAND

He will go back to the first compulsory health insurance act. It compelled wage-earners to take out government health insurance and to share its cost with their employers. The date of the act is 1911.

David Lloyd George was the father of the act. One of his principal helpers in shoving the bill through parliament was Winston Churchill. The Liberal party had a working majority of 126. Such Socialistic-minded members of the House of Commons as were active at the time did not think much of the plan. They wanted the employer to pay all.

"Took Calf Into Kitchen"

The Liberals who put the plan into effect said they wanted to do something for the wage-earner who would not save money to pay for a sick spell or take out insurance to protect himself against heavy emergency sick costs. They argued that if he had to pay part of the cost of the compulsory plan he would not abuse it and his dignity as a pay-as-you-go citizen would be respected.

"We took a bull calf into the kitchen to raise," they will tell you. "How were we to know in 1911 that we couldn't get him out?"

It was the Conservative party which in 1928 liberalized the act to carry on credit the people who had been contributors but were out of work. This party also added about a million beneficiaries in 1937 by lowering the age of eligible juvenile workers.

It was also the Churchill-led coalition government which, in 1941, with the Labor party Socialists making their growing strength felt, took in another large group by raising the income level for workers outside the manual classification.

"The State Is My Shepherd"

There was where the plan was, with about 20,000,000 of Britain's 50,000,000 people covered, when the Labor party, with its Socialist platform, scored a smashing victory at the polls in 1945 by promising the people that it would demobilize the armed forces and get rid of civilian war misery at home.

So it was not much of a job for the Socialists, when they set out to coddle the people into total dependence on government, to go the limit. "The state is my shepherd, I shall not want" is the way some say it. They really fattened the bull in the kitchen.

The intellectual Socialists figured that government could easily pay all the cost, and that 18,000 doctors could take care of 50,000,000 people, because early treatment under free medicine would stop most illness, reduce the heavy cost of people staying away from their jobs, and switch the money spent for patent medicine to paying the cost of doctor's prescriptions.

Human Nature Ignored Again

They estimated the cost to the taxpayers at $560,000,000 the first year. They were a little off. They had to hike the tax collection to $1,024,800,000.

Human nature did not change. People who only thought they were sick overran the really-sick. Doctors, hospitals, dentists, opticians were overloaded. The quality of service had to suffer. Patients became government projects, and practitioners of the healing art became government hacks. Absenteeism went up 20 percent.

All because back in 1911 Lloyd George did not see what would happen if government took over an insurance job that the people should have kept in their own hands.

PUZZLE PICTURE

Which one works for the Electric Company?

Pick the electric company worker from this assorted group? That's easy, you say. It's the lineman in the front row!

But wait . . . what about that farm specialist right next to him? And the home economist with the tray of food?

Fact is, every one of these people represents a specialized job that is part and parcel of your dependable, low-cost electric service.

All told, we employ 2,156 men and women of many skills. There are draftsmen, safety engineers, typists, truck drivers, photographers, writers, map-makers, porters . . . We have men skilled in applying electricity to use in stores, schools, factories, homes, farms . . . We have men who help industries find the best sites for plants and put electricity to work to best advantage . . .

Yes, there's a lot more of them than the meter reader—important though he is—and a chap down at the power house to throw a switch. A whole lot more. So get acquainted with them. They are eager to help you get the most from the many specialized services your electric company has to offer. They and the company—all of us—are a part of this community and so far as electricity is concerned, we intend to serve everybody, large user or small, in every way we can.

Around the Town

With the Editor

You probably noticed the chicken supper advertised in last week's issue of the paper by Chaney's Restaurant in Spencerville. If you waited till Saturday afternoon (as I did) to call for reservations, you didn't get any chicken (as I didn't).

I was talking to Margaret Chaney Monday morning. She said they had to turn away people at the door besides turning down calls for reservations. They served sixty-one dinners between 5:30 and 8 p.m. That's a lot of serving. And they used every piece of chicken available — the customers were really hungry for chicken. There wasn't even a neck left for the cook.

Margaret said she plans to serve another chicken supper pretty quick. So, if you want in on a good deal (chicken, potatoes and gravy, rolls and butter, vegetable, dessert—the works), the next time you see an ad for one of those chicken suppers, grab the phone quick and make your reservation.

Several people have remarked about the "playground" I've got in my back yard at home since Mike got a swing set for his birthday last week. It's on of those affairs with two swings, a teeter-board, ladder, trapeze bar and rings. Every day you'll find kids from the neighborhood playing on it.

With so many youngsters using the set, and also making improvised teeter-totters with the boards by the town hall used for the Wednesday night movies, it looks like St. Joe could do something to provide recreational facilities for them. I heard that there used to be swings between those two trees west of the town hall. Why can't there be some now, with a slide and a couple of real-for-sure teeter-totters?

I think the kids would go for it.

What do you think?

FREE X-RAYS FRIDAY IN ST. JOE IN MOBILE UNIT

The mobile unit touring DeKalb County will be in St. Joe Friday, June 9, from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. to 3 p.m.

The unit will be located at the St. Mark's Lutheran Church. There is no charge for the X-rays, available to those fifteen years of age and over.

Universal Noses News, 13-12

Universal Tool of Spencerville defeated the St. Joe News in an Auburn softball league contest by the score of 13 to 12.

Jim Kinsey hurled a good game but received spotty support in the form of errors and mental lapses on the field by his team mates. Spencerville used three pitchers, Garver, Akey and Bice.

The lead see-sawed back and forth several times before St. Joe tied the score at 11-all in the last of the seventh. In the extra inning Spencerville scored twice and St. Joe once to end the game at 13-12.

I. U. Graduating Class Largest In History

Twenty-one students from DeKalb county will be in this year's Indiana University graduating class. The graduation list as announced by Registrar Charles E. Harrell numbers 3659 candidates for degrees and is the largest in the history of the school. Of this number, 983 will complete their academic work in August.

Commencement exercises for this year's class will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, June 12, in Memorial Stadium with Baccalaureate services scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Sunday, June 11, in the auditorium.

The 3659 figure is in addition to 472 students who received degrees at the midyear commencement in February. The total number of graduates for 1950 will exceed by approximately 600 the number of 1949 graduates. Every county in the state is represented in this year's class.

Among those in the graduating class of 1950 are Robert H. Wahlig of Spencerville who received an M.S. degree in education, and James R. Kees of St. Joe who received a B.S. degree in business.

During the three-day commencement exercises, June 3-5, Wittenberg celebrated the 75th anniversary of coeducation at the college.

Billow, who majored in psychology, is a member of the Dorm league, a local fraternity; the Psi Chi national society in psychology; Beta Beta Beta, national biology fraternity; the Young Men's Christian Association; and the Lutheran Student Association.

TUBERCULOSIS

TUBERCULOSIS in humans is caused by a germ called the tubercle bacillus. This germ may settle in almost any of the body organs, but it is found most frequently in the lungs.

The death rate from tuberculosis has been declining steadily. Thirty years ago the death rate in Indiana was 174 per 100,000; in 1948 it was only 23 per 100,000. This tremendous decrease has moved tuberculosis from first to seventh place as a killing disease.

The decline in deaths from tuberculosis, however, should not lull the public into complacency. Tuberculosis is a crippling and expensive disease, wasteful and unnecessary. Death is not its only victory. Studies reveal there are approximately nine active cases of tuberculosis for each death from the disease. Only about half of the cases are known to health authorities. Discovery of the unknown cases is the problem.

Mobile unit x-ray surveys sponsored by the medical societies, tuberculosis associations and public health agencies are helping find the unknown tuberculosis cases. Tuberculosis health clinics, too, are aiding in the search. In all cases, persons suspected of having the disease are referred to their family physician. Routine x-raying of admissions to general hospitals is another means of turning up active cases. Even more dependence is placed upon the private practitioner for finding active tuberculosis.

Complete rest, probably for a year or more, under medical supervision is a necessity for the tuberculous patient. The earlier the diagnosis is made and treatment begun, the sooner can the patient expect to return to normal living.

MEMORIAL DAY

Walter Whitehurst Post 283 wishes to thank all those who helped with the Memorial Day services. The services were a fitting tribute to those who died in battle that we might live in peace.

Short services were also conducted at Spencerville, Newville and Alton Grove cemeteries by the local Legion post. Flags were placed on the graves of all war dead.

More thanks go to the Descendants of the G.A.R. Fife and Drum Corps and to Joseph R. Shensault, pastor of the Newville Church of Christ.

The wreaths for the four cemeteries were made by the Auxiliary, Mrs. Lehr Wilder and Mrs. Rally Markle.

The list of veterans buried in local cemeteries which appeared in the St. Joe News was published with the help of Mr. Harvey Hull and Mr. Leon Kees.

By EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

IN recent years there has been an alarming increase in that deadly and frightening disease rabies. Some 30,000 persons a year have to be inoculated because they have been bitten by rabid dogs or by dogs suspected of having the disease.

In addition, livestock owners lose millions of dollars each year because rabies breaks out in cattle, sheep and swine herds. Veterinarians estimate that about 15 per cent of human beings and from 30 to 40 per cent of animals that are bitten by rabid dogs develop the disease.

The preventative treatment, named after the famed French scientist Pasteur, will save bite victims if it is given before the deadly infection has a chance to reach the brain. Actually, despite the deadliness of rabies, control measures are simple and effective.

The Pasteur treatment is highly effective if given in time after a person or animal has been bitten. Also, animals (principally dogs, which are the most common victims of rabies infection) can be protected by vaccination. Most dog owners realize that this is necessary not only to protect the life of their own pet, but also the lives of other pets in the community . . . and perhaps the life of a human being.

While rabies can be pretty well controlled among well-cared-for pets, the greater menace exists in the packs of stray, wild dogs that run loose, usually in rural areas. These unfortunate animals offer a special target for rabies, and once they become infected may run over a large area, biting humans, other dogs and livestock.

The licensing of dogs helps to keep down the number of strays. Why is it, that with the control measures available, there is still much danger from the disease? Well, Dr. C. D. Van Houweling, of the American Veterinary Medical Association, blames the condition on lack of adequate rabies control measures in many areas and lack of community cooperation.

Repentance

Lesson for June 11, 1950

ZEPHANIAH seldom has been any reader's favorite prophet. His pictures of doom are enough to send shudders down any one's spine. It is as realistic as if he were describing H-bomb day. But the main point of Zephaniah is plain and practical: Repent! For selfish man and stubborn nation, that is the first necessity of all. Repentance is not merely regretting something one has done. Anybody can do that—and go right on committing the same sin. Furthermore, a man's regret for something he has done may be for a wrong reason.

Dr. Foreman

Suppose an adulterer is sorry for the publicity he got when the newspapers caught up with him? Suppose a lazy farmer is sorry, at harvest time, that he didn't work harder during the summer? That sort of thing is not repentance at all.

Also, repentance is not just repentance-in-general. It is one thing to say, "O God, I am a sinner." It is quite another thing, and a harder one, to kneel and say to God: "You know well what a liar I have been."

Repentance is not real unless it is honest; and it is not honest till the repenter looks squarely at his own sins, knows them for real sins and is willing to call them by the ugly names they deserve.

Repentance As The Bible Sees It

THE BIBLE MEANING of repentance is something radical, something life-changing. As the prophets and our Lord set it before us, it means a total change of inner attitude and viewpoint. It does not mean so much stopping something you enjoy, as it means enjoying something altogether different from what you used to enjoy.

For example, you never truly repent of pride until you are really humble on the inside. You never have fully repented of selfishness so long as your biggest "kick" comes from kicking other people around. Repentance means a redirection of life. It means loving whatever good you hated and hating whatever evil you loved.

The question is: Are you content to be what you are, as you are, or do you sincerely want to be a better, indeed a different person? For that, the grace of God is necessary. For repentance means nothing short of being made over.

Are you aware that by yourself you are doomed to be yourself, your worst self? What is needed is not that you shall make yourself over, what is needed is that you shall pray God to make you over. His grace is not forced on the unwilling. The change may not come all at once, not overnight. Yet surely, and it may be swiftly.

There have been persons whose lives have changed in a single night, in a single moment. There are others whose life - transformation has come slowly. But wherever real repentance is, there the Spirit of God has been at work.

Why Repentance Is Needed

ZEPHANIAH POINTS UP the same two reasons for repentance that we find all through the Bible. One reason is the judgement of God: the other is the promise of God. These are two sides of the same thing.

Man does not live in his own universe. He lives in a universe which he could not have created—in a sense he is a guest of it. It is a universe God created in love, and rules in love. Work and live "against the grain" of God's law of love, and you are headed for destruction.

To repent means that you come out new, in the image of God. Not to repent means that you are a breaker of God's laws because you do not like his laws. To repent means that (in the language of the ancient Psalmist) you love the law of God.

To the unrepentant, the laws of God are like the bars of a cruel cage. To the repentant, the laws of God are like rails to a locomotive. —the highway of power.

(Readers who wish to examine the Bible's teachings on repentance should read "The Meaning of Repentance" by William Douglas Chamberlain, published by the Westminister Press.)

Socialists Emphasizing Red Influence in U.S.

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

LONDON, England—"Wall Street's Allies Were Communists" is the headline that took the breath of Americans visiting in London toward the end of last year.

The headline was in the London Herald, circulation 2,108,000, the principal newspaper supporter of the Socialistic Labor government. The same report appeared in other British newspapers, but it was not as prominently displayed.

NOLAND

The London Herald was not slanting a rumor story to create the impression that in the United States the Communists control high finance, or that Wall street controls the Communist party in the United States. It was doing a straight job of factual reporting.

It was reporting what was said by American delegates to the International Trade Union Conference, which was then being held in London. Labor delegates from all over the world—250 of them—were there. They claimed to represent 48,000,000 workers from five continents.

Reference to U. S. Strike

The United States had 21 delegates there—10 from the American Federation of Labor, 10 from the Congress of Industrial Organizations and one from the United Mine Workers.

One of the American delegates, David MacDonald, C. I. O., was reporting on the outcome of the steel strike in the United States. It was in this report that he told the 48,000,000, through their delegates, that the strike was forced on the union by pressure from Wall street and from the Communist party. Thus the headline about Wall street and the Communists being in cahoots.

The average Briton had heard a good deal about Communists squirming into the American State department and into many kinds of American organizations. Is it any wonder that he asked American visitors whether it could be possible that the Communists were so influential in the United States that they had made a deal with the owners of the big steel companies to break the steel workers' union by wearing it out in a long strike?

Americans Used to It

The same story was turned loose in the United States, but Americans are accustomed to making big allowances for charges hurled in the heat of strike controversies, sometimes by both sides in order to influence public opinion during the process of bargaining.

But people in Britain naturally assumed that the delegates sent by American labor unions to the International Trade Union Congress would hardly say anything that would give a false impression of conditions in the United States. Taking the statement at face value, they could not fairly be blamed for assuming that the Communists had gained great power in the United States.

Helps Socialist Cause

As this speech of MacDonald's was being made, the Communists in London were boasting of their campaign in the United States to destroy the unions.

The episode is typical of many which give Britons some funny ideas about life in the United States under a free economy and freedom of opportunity. The British Labor party politicians use such statements to fortify their arguments for Socialism. They quote the MacDonalds and their like to build themselves up, but always at the expense of American prestige at a time when America's example is a hope of freedom-loving men the world over.

IRONING HINTS

"Is it all right to wash better cotton dresses in the washing machine?" This question is often asked of Mary Lenore Moore, home demonstration agent.

Cotton dresses which are fast-colored to laundering may be washed in the machine. However, Miss Moore cautions that the temperature of the water should be moderate and the washer should run about three or four minutes. If soft water is used, mild soap is recommended, but a detergent should be used with hard water.

Fine cottons should be thoroughly rinsed. Those with large buttons should not be put through the wringer. Garments with small buttons may be put through the wringer if the buttons are turned inside. Cotton dresses should be hung on wooden or plastic hangers to dry.

As with any colored fabric, fine cottons should be dried in the shade. Ironing time can be cut considerably if a few minutes are spent in straightening, shaping and smoothing the garments, especially the shoulders, cuffs, pockets and trimmings.

To iron, they should be sprinkled evenly with warm water and folded lightly. They should not be rolled and kneaded because this makes more wrinkles to iron out and does not help moisture penetrate the fabric. The garments should be wrapped in plastic cloth so that the water will be absorbed evenly throughout the fabric.

Dresses should be ironed with a thermostatically - controlled iron which has been set for the lower degrees of the cotton scale.

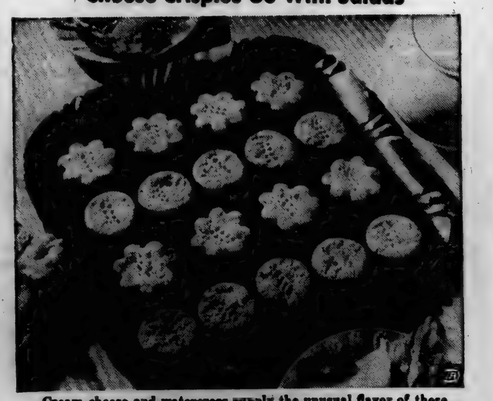
Cheese Crispies Go With Salads



Cream cheese and watercress supply the unusual flavor of these crisp wafers, good to munch as appetizers, good to eat with soups and salads.

Neither a pastry nor a cracker but a little of both are the dainty cress cheese crispies pictured here. These tender, flaky crispies are cut from a cream cheese pastry flavored with watercress.

Make the dough much as you would for pie crust, cutting or rubbing both shortening and cream cheese into the flour mixture. The dough will be easy to roll out if pressed together in a wax paper bag and chilled. Use biscuit cutter and cookie cutters to cut an assortment of shapes for your tea time tray.

Let the children eat crispies by the handful because they will benefit from the food values provided by such nutritious ingredients as enriched flour and cheese.

Cream cheese crispies are thrifty to serve with the luncheon soup or salad, for they need no spread.

CRESS CHEESE CRISPIES

1 cup sifted enriched flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
¼ cup finely chopped watercress or parsley
2 tablespoons cold water

Sift together flour and salt. Cut or rub in shortening and cream cheese. Add watercress. Mix well. Add water. Mix to a dry crumbly dough. Turn out on lightly floured pastry cloth. Press dough together. Roll out about one-eighth inch thick. Cut with two-inch biscuit cutter. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Prick several times with fork. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 10 minutes.

Makes about three dozen crispies.

Hadacol Helps Wife Keep Her Family Well and Happy

HADACOL HELPS FOLKS SUFFERING FROM DEFICIENCY OF VITAMINS B_1, B_2, NIACIN AND IRON

Mrs. Edward H. Newton, 4364 Reading Road, Cincinnati, Ohio, feels that a wife's chief responsibility is attending to the welfare of her family at all times. HADACOL has been a big help to her in keeping her husband and little nephew well and happy.

Mrs. Newton's family, like so many, were suffering deficiencies Vitamins B_1, B_2, Niacin and Iron, which HADACOL contains.

HADACOL brought such wonderful results to her husband, who had suffered from stomach distress that Mrs. Newton gave HADACOL to her three-year-old nephew, Bobby Newton, with equally gratifying results.

Mrs. Newton's Statement

Here is Mrs. Newton's statement: "I gave my little nephew HADACOL because he was pale; he had no appetite; he was run down and he caught colds repeatedly. After taking HADACOL, he has an appetite, has color in his cheeks and he is healthier all the way. My husband has always been troubled with his stomach. After taking five large bottles and three small bottles of HADACOL, he eats anything and is not bothered with his stomach." Mrs. Newton has recommended HADACOL to many of her friends.

Helps You Feel Wonderful!

Why not have a similar happy experience happen to you? Now don't keep putting it off—don't say that you'll start taking HADACOL tomorrow. START TAKING IT TODAY! If only you'd realize the wonderful benefits that people by the thousands are getting from HADACOL, you wouldn't delay a single minute.

Hundreds of Doctors

. . . have prescribed HADACOL for their patients, have requested quantities of HADACOL for their own clinical use and for their own families. The fact that HADACOL is scientifically formulated, compounded so that it contains therapeutic quantities of Vitamins B_1, B_2, Niacin and Iron to supply deficiencies of these vital elements and is enriched with helpful amounts of Manganese, Calcium and Phosphorous (in liquid form), help to account for its increasing acceptance by doctors.

You'll Feel Great . . .

. . . with the first few bottles you take, or your money back. There is only one HADACOL and it is sold on a strict money-back guarantee. So give this remarkable HADACOL formula a chance to help you if you suffer from any sickness caused by deficiencies of Vitamins B_1, B_2, Niacin and Iron. Remember that HADACOL is amazingly different and amazingly effective because it treats the real cause of the conditions you suffer from by supplying the deficient elements of Vitamins B_1, B_2, Niacin and Iron. Make up your mind to take HADACOL regularly. Refuse substitutes. Don't be satisfied with temporary relief. Insist on the genuine. You can't lose a cent, because it's sold on a strict money-back guarantee. Only $1.25 for Trial size. Large Family or Hospital size, $3.50.

What a racket! !

That thought ran through my mind as I sat in the basement of the Spencerville Lutheran Church last Friday noon eating what was planned to be a picnic lunch on the shady lawn of the church. The weatherman had other ideas and the rains came; so the group of children, parents and teachers of the daily Vacation Bible School had to find shelter in the church basement. That's where the racket came in — kids hollering at one another, dishes and pans clattering and parents hollering at the kids. You know, the teachers and all those who contributed their efforts for this undertaking deserve a "Thank you" from all of us who sent our children to the school. In case you're wondering who to thank, here is who: Rev. W. H. Baker, Rev. D. R. Salisbury, Mrs. Edith Akey, Mrs. Valda Brown, Miss Peggy Koch, Mrs. Lois Fisher, Mrs. W. H. Baker, Mrs. Maxine Kelley, Mrs. Margaret Barnes, Mrs. Jeanette Woodring, Mrs. Jean Moore, Miss Gloria Steward, Miss Nancy Vendrely, Mrs. Dorothy Smith, Mrs. Nellie Allen, Miss Adair Reed, Miss Imogene Conley, Mrs. Gladys Wasson, Mrs. Pauline Trammel, Mrs. Lucy Beams, Mrs. Ethel Webb, Mrs. Grace Leonard, Mrs. Helen Lohse, Miss Carolyn Kimes, Miss Lois Kimes and Miss Betty Beckman.

I hope I didn't miss anyone.

Before the rain and lunch started, Howard Shilling had the job (and I do mean job) of taking a group picture of the school. About the time he was ready to snap the picture one of the kids would see a better place to sit and move there. Then some one else would move his bicycle or scooter to another spot. I arrived at the conclusion that photographers must have a lot of patience.

After last week's paper came out with that little bit about some swings, etc., for the kids, Earl Kinsey and Mayola Zuber informed me that the Kinsey Hardware Co. donated a slide for the use of the children several years ago, but the little ones manhandled it and it shortly was a total wreck.

Having lived here just a couple of years, I don't know what has been done before. I'm glad to hear about this contribution to the children of the town, but it was made years ago. If we assume that because the slide was ruined then by the kids, another would be ruined now, we're calling two strikes on today's younger generation before they know how to swing a bat.

I guess there isn't any doubt as to who is boss in the Russell Walter family. When I stopped at his parents' farm (Mr. and Mrs. George Walter of north of St. Joe), Russell was cutting the grass. I talked to him a few minutes, and as I drove away, I saw his wife come out the back door. When he saw her, he pointed to the mower and gave a look which, translated, said, "Get busy!" She did —and as she started pushing the lawn mower, Russell made himself comfortable in a nearby hammock.

Whatta man! ! !

Lions Club Elects Officers

The St. Joe Lions club held its June 12 meeting at the Chaney Restaurant in Spencerville.

County Agent Ernest Lesiuk was introduced by Fred Stemen. Mr. Lesiuk gave a short resume of the different departments and organizations of the county extension offfice and their functions.

Election of officers was then held with the following members elected: M. H. Hollabaugh, pres.; Maurice Kline, 1st vice-pres.; Dale Wicoff, 2nd vice-pres.; Ralph Keeler, 3rd vice-pres.; D. B. Ridgway, sec'y-treas.; L. B. Fisher, tail-twister; John L. Haverstock, lion-tamer; and two new board members, Franklin Sechler and Virgil Kimes.

Present at the meeting were Dick Sauder and Rev. W. B. Eddy of Leo who gathered information concerning the charter of a Lions club at Leo. The local club offered to sponsor the Leo group if they organize.

A delicious chicken dinner was served to twenty-six members and guests.

The next meeting will be held on Monday, June 26, at which time the newly elected officers will be installed.

Olive Federspiel Killed At R.R. Crossing

Mrs. Olive Eda Federspiel, 53, of southwest of Spencerville, was fatally injured last Thursday evening when the car she was riding in stalled at a railroad crossing near her home and was struck by a train.

The fatal crash occurred at the Wabash railroad crossing on the Cuba road in Allen County about a half mile south of the DeKalb-Allen county line.

Her daughter, Miss Doris Federspiel, 20, and a second daughter, Miss Ellen Federspiel, 21, jumped to safety seconds before the fast-moving freight crashed broadside into the machine. Doris was driving the car.

Doris made a heroic effort to get her mother out of the front seat after the car stalled on the crossing. Ellen was seated in the back seat. When the impact came, pieces of the wreckage struck Doris on the face and arm. She also underwent severe shock.

The three were on their way to visit Mrs. Federspiel's sister at Woodburn when the accident happened.

Investigating officers reported that as the car stalled on the crossing, Doris restarted the motor and attempted to shift the gears in reverse but apparently became confused and only raced the motor. As the train bore down on the car, Doris jumped from the front seat and attempted to open the door on the side where her mother was seated. The 13-year-old car landed 250 feet from the crossing in a 40-foot ravine.

The injured woman was rushed to the Methodist Hospital at Fort Wayne where she was pronounced dead upon arrival at 8 p.m. She suffered head and internal injuries and broken legs. The accident occurred about 7:10 p.m.

Final rites were conducted Monday in the Salem Lutheran Church at Springfield Center with Rev. H. J. Fennig officiating. Burial was in Harlan Cemetery.

Surviving are the husband, Edward Federspiel, four other daughters, Mrs. Opal Himler of Dayton, O., Mrs. Ruth Brendel of Churubusco, Mrs. Marcella Johnson of Spencerville and Mrs. Edythe Eager of Antwerp, O.; two sons, Earl of New Haven and Bert of Spencerville; her father, Bert Lee, of Spencerville; three brothers, Arthur, Robert and Russell Lee, all of Fort Wayne; three sisters, Mrs. Margaret Clowers of Seattle, Wash., Mrs. Alice Dolgner of Omak, Wash., and Mrs. Eleanor Walker of Ft. Wayne; and eight grandchildren.

CONCORD JR. HOME EC CLUB

Concord Twp. Jr. Home Ec Club held its regular meeting on June 5 at the Lutheran Church.. Twenty-two Smithfield Twp. club members were guests at this meeting.

The program was opened with the singing of "Faith of Our Fathers" followed by the devotions by Harriett Baker. Jo Bowser then gave a selection accompanied by her sister, April, at the piano. Marcia Sible welcomed the guests, including Miss Mary Lenore Moore, and the response was given by Mrs. Funk. The group then sang "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" and "In the Garden." Florence Miller gave a few timely hints on food preservation.

An invitation was received from Fairfield Twp. to be their guests on June 30 at 1 p.m. in the Fairfield community building. The invitation was accepted. Lois Fisher gave a very interesting book review on "Cheaper By the Dozen." The secretary's report then was read and roll call taken. Jo Bowser gave another selection, "The Lord's Prayer."

The club then went to the basement and were given numbers to find partners. They were served at one long table with yellow rose favors at each place and bouquets of yellow roses here and there. Forty members and guests introduced themselves. Chicken salad, crackers, potato chips, ice cream, cake and coffee were served to all.

Before adjourning the club sang "Till We Meet Again."

The July meeting will be held at the home of Marcelle Storer.

The Priscilla Prim 4-H Club met May 26 at the home of Carolyn and Lois Kimes. Songs were led by Peggy Koch. Pledges were led by Peggy Koch and Betty Mann. Roll call was answered with "What Progress I Have Made On My Projects." The secretary's report was read and approved. Health and Safety report was given by Betty Hursh. Betty Mann gave a demonstration on "How To Make and Use a Hem Gage." Games were played followed by serving of refreshments by Carolyn and Lois Kimes and Betty Hursh.

1300 In County Get X-Rays

Nearly 1,300 DeKalb County residents were X-rayed during the tour of the free mobile X-ray unit of the tuberculosis association in DeKalb County last week.

The mobile unit made stops at Waterloo, Butler, Garrett, Auburn and St. Joe, Technicians J. B. Richardson and Oscar Boswell of the State Board of Health and the DeKalb County Red Cross nurse, Mrs. Erthenia Quance, of near Auburn operated the unit. They were assisted by Mrs. Mabel Browand, executive secretary of the association, and Mrs. Miriam Tracy of Auburn.

Mrs. Browand said 523 persons were X-rayed when the unit stopped in Auburn, 120 in Waterloo, 285 in Butler, 203 in Garrett and 125 in St. Joe.

It is planned to have the unit in the county every other year. The expense of the chest X-rays is taken care of by the sale of the Christmas seals.

Approximately two months will elapse before persons X-rayed will receive reports. If there is no finding, the report will be sent direct to the individual. Otherwise, the report will be forwarded to the person's physician.

The X-rays will be processed at Indianapolis and then sent to the Irene Byron Sanatorium near Huntertown to be read by technicians.

NUISANCE CLUB

Franklin Sechler was chaperon at the last meeting of the Nuisance Club. The main topic of discussion was the planning of a day to be spent in Sweeney Park in Ft. Wayne.

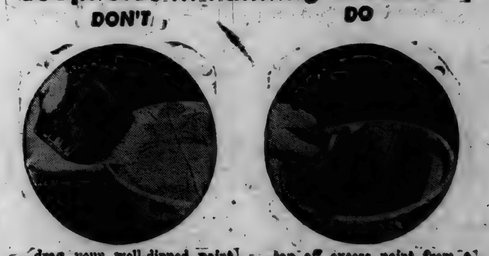
Loopholes in Painting Methods

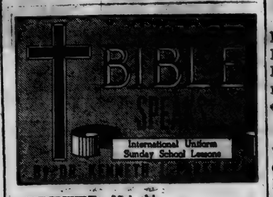


...drag your well-dipped paint brush across the edge of the paint can to remove excess paint. That's a procedure which is very wearing on the bristles, even with the new consumer paint brushes bristled with nylon. In addition, if you drag the narrow ends of the brush against the edge of the can, you scrape off a greater percentage of paint than you want to—which means a thin coat and more trips back and forth for dipping.

...tap off excess paint from a brush dipped only half the length of its bristles, against the side of the can opposite you. This practical suggestion not only retains a goodly share of the paint in the brush, but saves needless wear and tear on those bristles. Whether they be in the new nylon bristled paint brushes, or the older type hog bristle, they won't last long if constantly dragged across the edge of the paint can.

...ride your paint brush. A heavy forcing stroke does not distribute paint properly and ruins your brush. Don't poke or jab a large brush into the corners. Use the brush designed for the job!

...grip the brush on the metal ferrule, the handle between the thumb and forefinger. Use a long, steady, even stroke, lifting the brush gradually at the end of the stroke to feather out the edge.



SCRIPTURE: Malachi. DEVOTIONAL READING: Malachi 4: 1-6.

Help for Our Times

Lesson for June 18, 1950

FOR TIMES that are dull, times without hope, Malachi is the prophet. When he lived the exile was over; but it was no golden age. In the dingy little city of Jerusalem, rich and beautiful no longer, lived only a comparative handful of rather poor people, dragging out a monotonous existence. To these people, living in discouraging times, Malachi had, and has, a message from God.

Dr. Foreman

His prophecies do not have the bitter tang of Amos nor the melancholy of Hosea, the grandeur of Isaiah, the dramatic power of Jeremiah or the eerie visions of Ezekiel. But with inspired common-sense, he offers in the name of God a simple remedy with four ingredients.

Better Leaders

SPEAKING DIRECTLY to the leaders of the people, namely the priests, Malachi condemns them for not really taking stock in the thing they were doing. How we need that today! If the church today in any place is dead, you may be sure there are some dead leaders.

Dead from the neck up, that is. And not necessarily the preachers.

Many a good preacher breaks his heart for lack of support. How many men and women, in your church, can the minister count on to fill in where they are needed, without making up a dozen reasons why they "can't" do it?

Why do Christians talk and pray as if their religion were all-important, but act as if everything else came first?

Law Observance

ANOTHER THING for which Malachi pleads is law observance. (E.g. 2:8; 3:5) They did not need new laws, for they had good ones. What they needed was to obey the laws they had. This again is what our times need. We have so many laws now that only an expert can keep up with them. No civilized nation could live, to be sure, under the unchanged statutes of a generation ago.

Nevertheless, if all the legislatures in America were to resolve to pass no more laws for five years, and if for five years the energy, time and money spent ordinarily on getting up new laws were put in on educating the people in the laws now in existence, and in fostering law observance and in preventing and punishing crimes, ours would be a better country.

The Unbroken Home

AGAIN, Malachi stands for the unbroken home. He knows that no country can be strong when its homes are weak. (2:10-17.) In the year 1948 there were about 420,000 divorces in the United States, and 1.80 million marriages.

That is a divorce rate of about 23 per cent. In some states the percentage of divorce is even higher. Indeed, in one large midwestern city it was announced in the papers about two years ago that the marriages had "caught up with" the divorces, i.e., they were at last having more marriages than divorces! This was an extreme case.

To say nothing else about it, 420,000 divorces and 12,000 desertions means that in the United States alone there are at least 432,000 persons who have no regard for the most solemn promises.

Support The Church

FIRST AND LAST, Malachi asks better support of the church. You need the church, of course; but then the church needs you. There is need for better leadership in the first place, and better support from the common man. Few persons want to live in a community without churches; yet a mere church building will not effect community life in the least. A beautiful building and a tall white spire are not a church.

The only church which will help a neighborhood is one in which the neighborhood takes an active part, a church where neighbors together worship God and where they are inspired to plans and acts of service for their fellow-men.

The main object of the church is not to shore up the country; still if you want a better country, one of the best ways to support it is to support the Christian church. For of all the institutions in the nation, the church is the only one devoted to the purpose of transforming human lives.

Reas-Hart

Lora Reas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reas of R.1, Auburn, and Lavon Hart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hart of Spencerville, were married June 3 in the Evangelical United Brethren Church in Newville.

At the 7 o'clock candlelight service with the Mr. Darris Hamilton officiating, Avanell Ginther of Hicksville, cousin of the bride, accompanied by Marion Baker of Spencerville, sang "All My Love," "Because," "I Love You Truly" and "With This Ring I Thee Wed." During the song "I Love You Truly," the groom's brother, Thomas Hart, 12 years of age, very effectively lit the candles. He wore light grey as did the groom.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a white slipper satin gown neatly trimmed with buttons of the same material. The long sleeves were pointed over her hands. She carried an arrangement of white roses and lily of the valley centered with a going-away corsage. Her only jewelry was a two-strand pearl necklace, a gift from the groom. A tiara of braided satin held in place her fingertip-length veil of illusion.

Marjie Ann Fetters, 7-year-old niece of the bride, was flower girl and was dressed in green.

Jimmy Reas and Jerry Tyson, nephews of the bride, 7 and 8 years old respectively, acted as train bearers.

Miss Marlene Cook, a cousin of the groom, attended the bride in a blue net formal with long sleeves and appropriate neckline. She carried a colonial bouquet of deep pink carnations. Miss Joan Cook and Miss Amy Wagner attended as bridesmaids attired in pink and carried similar colonial bouquets. The mothers of the bride and groom wore navy blue with white accessories and corsages of pink carnations.

The groom was dressed in a light grey gabardine suit with a maroon carnation.

Dean Cornell of Auburn was best man and Walter Reas, Weldon Reas, Frank Laub and Earl Richard Hart ushered. The bride's brother-in-laws, Wayne Fetters and Leo Tyson, helped with the gifts.

A reception followed in the dining room of the church for 200 guests. Serving were the bride's sisters, Dorothy Fetters, LaVern Tyson and Rebecca Reas, and Miss Lola Evans, Audrey Trenary, Joyce Woodcox and Joan Curie.

The couple left the reception for a honeymoon in Chicago and a short trip of eight days. The bride wore a navy blue suit with accessories of navy and white. A white corsage completed her ensemble.

Upon returning Mr. and Mrs. Hart will reside at Spencerville.

SUMMER CAMPS

MORE than 6,000 camps, accommodating two million children, will operate in the United States this summer. If your child wants to go to camp, make sure that it is one that is approved and meets your social and financial position.

Summer camps are splendid for children. The ordered play and exercises, the regular routine of camp life, and living and playing with other children are valuable aids in the proper mental and physical development of most children. Children are taught much useful information, such as crafts, swimming, first aid, etc. Through association with other campers, and thoughtful guidance of camp instructors and leaders, children receive moral development as well as physical training.

Some children do not want to go to camp because they do not like the rugged life, or they do not want to be removed from their accustomed family life. Children should be encouraged to go to camp, but not forced. The problem children in the camps are invariably the ones whose parents, wishing to be relieved of the responsibility of caring for them during the summer, have sent them off to camp against their will.

No child should leave for camp without the approval of the family physician. A child, for instance, who is recuperating from a serious illness may not be physically fit for strenuous camp life.

ONE Look

Yes, a look will show you why it's Ford for Fashion, again for '50! Once again Ford's modern styling earned it the Fashion Academy's coveted medal as "Fashion Car of the Year." No other car at any price has received such an honor 2 years in a row.

ONE Listen

You can hardly hear the '50 Ford's powerful V-8, or its companion in quality, the 95-h.p. Six—both are "hushed" to a whisper. Your ride is quiet, too, because "sound-conditioning" throughout Ford's roomy and sturdy "Lifeguard" Body keeps noise out!

ONE Ride

One "Test Drive" and you'll know the luxury comfort of Ford's "Mid Ship" Ride . . . the safety of its "Lifeguard" Body and King-Size Brakes . . . its big car roadability. Then check Ford's low first cost, great mileage, low upkeep and high resale value. You'll agree—Ford's the "Big Economy Package" of the low-price field.

Butler Produce Trounces News, 10-1

The St. Joe News softball team went to Butler Tuesday evening to take a 10 to 1 lacing at the hands of the Butler Produce nine.

Pepple, Butler's starting pitcher, had the game well under control during his 5-inning stint on the mound and Knox continued to handcuff the locals except for a 7th inning triple by Harold Yeiser. He scored when the Butler catcher let a third strike get away from him. The only other hit was a bunt which Jim Kinsey beat out in the 4th.

Farm

By EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

BOSSY has her day—30 of them, in fact—this month of June, which has been set aside for the 14th annual national observance of Dairy Month. The nation's press and radio will join in focusing our attention on one of nature's greatest miracles, the dairy cow.

Every day Bossy consumes about 12 pounds of grain, 30 to 50 pounds of grass and about 15 gallons of water, mixes them together, and produces our most nearly perfect food. Although the cow gets and deserves a lion's share (rather a cow's share) of the credit, June Dairy Month activities also point out some other interesting facts about an industry that employs a million and a half persons in the production, processing and distribution of the 60 million quarts of milk we consume each day.

Dairying is the largest single source of farm income in the United States. About five million farmers depend on milk as their major source of income. Production last year was 118,348,000,000 pounds! Half of this is used for drinking and cooking. The other half goes into the production of cheese, butter, ice cream and a host of byproducts.

This tremendous flow of milk would fill a river 3,000 miles long, three feet deep and 40 feet wide. Despite this, a 100 per cent increase in the world milk supply would be necessary to meet even the minimum nutritional goals of the Food and Agricultural Organization. America, of course, produces and consumes much more milk than the rest of the world.

I think that it's a great tribute to the industry that in the past 100 years the annual production of a single cow has improved from 2,360 pounds to 5,036 pounds. And there's an even greater increase in sight in the next decade!

Even Socialists Aren't Really for "Equal Pay"

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

LONDON, England—The Socialism of the British intellectuals assumes that the work of all men is of equal importance—hence that they should be paid the same, regardless of their ability, industry or strength.

NOLAND

The dreamers know better than to try to limit pay in top industrial jobs. Uniform pay regardless of ability or output has done so much to quench ambition in the unionized trades and to limit output that the government, desperately pressed to recover Britain's export business, dares not abolish the gain incentive in management. It is afraid to devalue the ambition which drives some men to superior achievement.

But government can tax away the high pay of the outstanding man. The theorists are working toward some effective sales talk that will persuade the superior man to work as hard as ever for low pay, but they seem to feel that it will take a long time to bring him around. So they let the pay go up and then tax it away into the government treasury.

Test Socialists' Faith

Obviously the man who is smart enough to command a high salary is smart enough to see that the Socialists are doing by trickery what they are afraid to do by direct action. And it can also be assumed that a man who has the ability, courage, initiative and ingenuity to create business and jobs and contribute to the country's recovery is quick to sense this fear in the intellectuals and to apply his wits to a further test of their faith in their dream.

The scheme which employers of outstanding managers have worked out to keep the gain incentive in high gear is simple. The employers of these men also plead fear—fear that they will lose their good manager to a competitor, to an overseas firm in the same line, or to the man himself who may quit his job and collect some capital to go into the business for himself.

So the employers of these outstanding men agree to pay the successful manager a substantial sum never to serve another employer or to go into business for himself. These payments may run to $100,000 or more. They are not paid in a lump sum, but are strung out and are charged to operating costs.

Naturally the Socialist orators rose in the House of Commons and denounced what they called this brazen evasion of the clear intent of their leveling-down tax laws. They even tried to shame the successful recipients of these rewards by accusing them of accepting a handout to stay on the job instead of accepting a better offer from a competitor.

Pulled Their Punches

But in this collision of Socialist dream and the realism of men who get things done in this world, the Socialists seem to have lost their wind. They talked themselves out. They made no serious effort to change the law. They said that that is one of the changes they would make after the election.

Another explanation of the failure of the Socialists to outlaw this pay device is that they learned from Russian experience that equal pay produces equal output—all of it, pay and output, low. The Communists had to find a way to reward the better worker to keep him going as a better worker.

Furthermore, the Socialists had to take a look at what would happen to Britain if they drove its best men to other countries.

with Chevrolet Trucks

Take time out to talk to some Chevrolet truck users. You'll find it revealing. You'll discover that Chevrolet trucks pay their way by hauling more loads—more miles—for less! And you'll find that this extra measure of value is even more apparent in the new Chevrolet models. Definitely, they're America's first-choice trucks. Heavy-duty units feature a brand-new 105-h.p. Valve-in-Head engine with the power to pull heavy loads and conquer steep grades. They offer new Power-Jet carburetion for smoother, quicker operation. They bring you the fast, safe shifting of Chevrolet's 4-speed Synchro-Mesh transmission. But whatever your hauling requirements, Chevrolet trucks are your best bet. See them in our showroom. ST. JOE HOUSEWIFE ESCAPES INJURY IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mrs. Leona Bender miraculously escaped injury Sunday morning when the automobile she was driving spun out of control on a rural highway near St. Joe and upset in a roadside ditch.

Mrs. Bender told Deputy Sheriff George A. Milks that she lost control of the 1940 Ford when the front wheels struck loose gravel on the highway. The deputy said the car swerved across the highway and off the berm, then skidded back across the road and rolled over on its top in the ditch.

Damage to the car was estimated at $150.

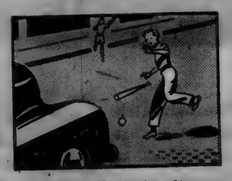
Accidents never happen to you!

Your brakes are good. Only last week you had them tested and you know you can count on them in a pinch. So why should you worry about a little rain on the streets? What if you are doing 45! Accidents never happen to you.

Or do they?

The driver of this car had good brakes, too. But they weren't good enough to stop him in time on the slippery pavement. He thought he wasn't going too fast, but it was too fast to live! Don't count on your car to save you from your own careless driving habits. Drive carefully—the life you save may be your own!

Darkness doubles danger to both drivers and pedestrians. Be extra careful at twilight and dawn when visibility is poorest, danger greatest.



Truck drivers know that a bouncing ball is invariably followed by a child. Many motorists do not. Drive cautiously near schools and wherever children play.

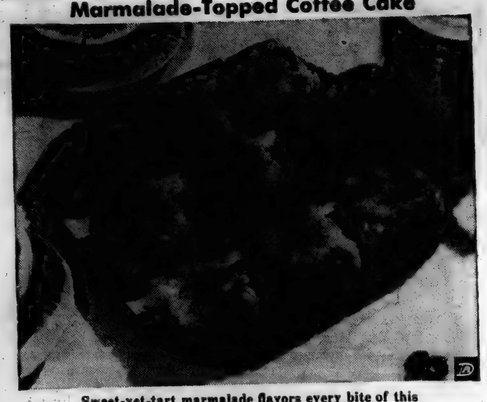
Marmalade-Topped Coffee Cake



Sweet-yet-tart marmalade flavors every bite of this light and luscious coffee cake, good for breakfast or luncheon bread.

There's nothing like a yeast coffee cake to fill the kitchen with tempting aromas. Marmalade-topped coffee cake is a very special version of enriched toast spread with marmalade. It provides the same good nourishment, since enriched flour is the basic ingredient in both breads.

Marmalade-topped coffee cake is made from a yeast batter which requires no kneading. Beat batter thoroughly for a light even texture in the baked bread. There is no shaping or molding—just spread batter in pan over the melted butter-and-marmalade topping. Let batter rise until light before baking.

Start the family off to a good day with an appetizing, nourishing breakfast—and how easy this is to do with yeast and quick coffee cakes! Everyone likes these sweet breads which so thriftily provide important B-vitamins and iron, as well as good taste.

MARMALADE-TOPPED COFFEE CAKE

1 package yeast, compressed or dry
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup melted shortening
2 eggs
3½ cups sifted enriched flour
½ teaspoon vanilla extract (optional)
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
½ cup orange marmalade

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Add 1 cup flour and beat well. Add eggs. Beat well. Add softened yeast. Mix well. Add more flour to make a stiff batter. Add vanilla extract. Beat thoroughly until smooth. Cover and let rise until bubbly (about 1 hour). Prepare 2 8-inch square pans by spreading each with 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine and ½ cup orange marmalade. When batter is light, stir down. Spread over marmalade in pans. Let rise until light (about 20 minutes). Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 30 to 35 minutes. Turn out upside down. Makes 2 8-inch coffee cakes.

CONSERVATION CLUB

The Conservation Club was host to about twenty-five boys at an outdoor meeting at Walter Reinhart's farm last Saturday afternoon.

The boys were given some information on conservation and the purposes for which conservation clubs are organized. After the discussion period there was a game of softball followed by refreshments of soft drinks and about a hundred hot dogs.

The committee in charge of the afternoon's proceedings was composed of Von Tharp, Walter Reinhart and Howard McMaken.

Around the Town

With the Editor

I really bit on an old one last week. As I crossed the street returning to the office from the post office, Melvin Hershberger and Bill Coburn were strolling along the sidewalk enjoying a couple of ice cream bars. Melvin called, "Hey, Ted, they're lookin' for you."

"Who?"

"The squirrels—they think you're nuts!"

Well, the kids have some swings to play on now. Jesse Loftus placed a log between the two trees back of the town hall with the help of his horse, "Bob," and Mose Yeiser, Roy Reidenbach, Cliff Billow and Elmer McKay. Financial assistance for purchasing the rope was given by Don McElroy, Chuck McIntosh, Mose Yeiser, Jesse Loftus and Herman Zuber.

Harvey Hull has entered a contest —not for himself, though. Mr. and Mrs. Don McElroy were married in June years and years ago so Harvey entered their names in a "June-Bride" contest currently be staged by a Ft. Wayne furniture company. A lot of valuable prizes will be awarded and naturally Don and Mary want all the votse they can get.

All you have to say is, "Say Don. I hear you—" —and you'll get all the details on how to vote.

The score of 14-0 doesn't show it, but that softball game the News played Tuesday night against the Auburn Legion in league competition at Auburn was a pretty good game. Our trouble seemed to be that everything happened at the same time (as usual). The Legion scored eight runs in one inning when they got three or four solid hits and there were one or two errors and a couple of confused minds—something like a Chicago Cubs game.

The bright spot of the game was the pitching of Jim Kinsey. He really had them shaking their heads and muttering to themselves with the things he did with that ball. The Legion has a good team—and they know it. It did my heart good to see their boys strut up to the plate with murder in their eyes, swing that bat as if to slug the ball out of the park —and then fan the breeze fishing for a shoulder high pitch that wasn't there—or literally break their backs going for that tricky change of pace Jim has developed.

Yes, it was a good game. You should have been there.

Mr. William Erick is getting some better and is able to sit up a short while each day.

Lola Moore attended the graduation exercises at Lafayette Sunday where Ted Moore was one of the students to graduate.

Paul Sechler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Sechler, is able to be out again. He submitted to a tonsilectomy on June 10.

Mrs. Carrie Stewart and children and Mr. George Stewart of Ft. Wayne called on Mrs. Daisy Markle Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Kimes and family attended the commencement exercises of Miss Ruth Kelley, who graduated from the St. Joseph School of Nursing Sunday. They were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Minerva Kelley and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollo Deright and daughter of Bell, Cal., are visiting with relatives here. Mrs. Deright is a sister of Mrs. Virgil Kimes.

Krafft-Haiflich

Miss Jennie Haiflich, daughter of Mrs. Edith Haiflich, Auburn, became the bride of Gerald E. Krafft, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Krafft of R. 3 Butler, Sunday at 2 p.m.

The wedding took place in the Mt. Pleasant Evangelical United Brethren Church near Butler with the Rev. A. Swenson, pastor of the church, officiating. A 15 minute musicale was presented by Mrs. Arthur Culbertson of near Butler, a friend of the couple, and Mrs. Harold Johnson of Butler, aunt of the groom.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Dallas Haiflich, of Ossian, Ind.

Miss Rosalie Haiflich attended her sister as maid of honor, Miss Rita Lou Swaim of Ossian, niece of the bride, served as flower girl and Wendell Krafft served his brother as best man. Ellis Ewing of near Butler, nephew of the groom, and Marlene Krafft, sister of the groom, lighted the candles at the altar. Ushers were Reynold Johnson of Butler, cousin of the groom, and James Swaim of Ossian, brother-in-law of the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception for 100 guests was held at the home of the bride's mother in Auburn.

Mrs. Krafft is a graduate of Auburn high school. Mr. Krafft is a graduate of Concord township high school and is employed in Spencerville. The couple will reside on R.1, Auburn.

Universal Wins Two; News Drops Pair

Universal Tool won their second and third softball games in the Auburn league during the past week, defeating Wakefield's of Waterloo 15-10 last week and coming from behind Tuesday of this week to defeat DeMolay, 9-6.

The St. Joe News lost their second and third games in the league, losing to Ball Brass 11-2, and the Auburn Legion, 14-0.

Next Tuesday, June 27, Universal tackles the strong Auburn Legion nine in the first game and the News meets Schaab's Kids in the second tilt.

Marcel Pugsley will bring a ball team from Ft. Wayne Sunday afternoon for a practice game or two at the local diamond with the News.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish in this way to thank my friends for their cards and get-well wishes during my recent illness.

FINAL RITES CONDUCTED FOR FOR MRS. EMMA BAKER

Final rites for Mrs. Emma Baker, 92, who died last Wednesday of arthritis and senility at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. R. Bowman, were conducted Saturday, June 17, at the Johnson Funeral Home in Butler at 2 p.m. One of DeKalb County's oldest residents, the aged widow died following an extended illness. She had been bedfast for six years.

The Rev. W. H. Baker, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, of which Mrs. Baker was a member, officiated at the service. Mrs. Roy Bowser read two favorite hymns of the deceased, "Lead Kindly Light" and "Abide With Me." Mrs. Funk of Butler furnished organ music. Pall bearers were Ray Reasoner, Derwood Ridgway, Joseph Foltz, Roy Bowser, Foster Gee and Olen Waltz.

A native of Morrow County, Ohio, Mrs. Baker was born December 6, 1857, the daughter of the late Eli and Naomi (Reasoner) Dean. She was married to Daniel J. Baker in 1675. The couple, married in Keokuk County, Iowa, came to Indiana in 1884, bringing their year old daughter. Mr. Baker died February 11, 1925. They had resided in northern Indiana and northwestern Ohio for many years. After the death of her husband, Mrs. Baker made her home with her only child, residing in St. Joe.

Surviving besides the daughter are one grandchild, Mrs. Max Chapman, of Big Rapids, Mich., and one great-grandchild, Lois.

Burial was in the St. Joe K. of P. Cemetery.

BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: The Book of Jonah. DEVOTIONAL READING: Ephesians 3: 14-21.

Peevish Prophet

Lesson for June 25, 1950.

JONAH THOUGHT he knew better than God. When men said, "Be a prophet," Jonah decided to take a long vacation. He took a ship for a far place so far away he thought even God could not follow. When God said, "Preach to Nineveh," Jonah decided that was the very thing he did not want to do. When God said, in effect, "Be a missionary," Jonah thought he would rather be a tourist. Of all the prophets on record, Jonah was the peevish one.

Dr. Foreman

The remarkable and unique little book of Jonah is perhaps the most misunderstood book in the Bible. Nobody knows how much ink has been wasted on the whale (which, incidentally, was not a whale but a fish!), whereas the real message of Jonah is not about whales at all. It is about taking the message of God to the most unlikely places in the world; it is the story of how the very people who ought to be doing it, sometimes won't do it.

Does God Care?

CONSIDER the good reasons Jonah might have given for not going to Nineveh. They are like the reasons people give nowadays for not believing in foreign missions. (A mission to Nineveh was about as foreign a mission as any one could have thought of, in those days.

Reason number one: The Ninevites were mean people. So they were. Assyria, of which Nineveh was the capital city, had done, and would do, Israel more harm than any other enemy she had.

The Ninevites were an unscrupulous, greedy people. They knew no law but force. They spread by violence into many a country. They were the nation nobody loved.

Should the message of God be given to such a city? Jonah thought not; God said it should.

And of course, God was right. If the message of God had been sent only to peoples and nations that "deserved" such a favor, God's messengers would all have stayed at home.

Too Far From God

REASON number two: Nineveh is a long way off. Indeed it was. To reach Nineveh, Jonah would have to pass through at least a dozen other cities, all of which no doubt needed preachers. Were there not enough people at home who needed preaching? Of course there were . . . Only Jonah did not preach to them. He had a wonderful missionary opportunity there on the ship. Every man of the crew was a heathen. But Jonah was fast asleep.

This is often too true. People will protest about foreign missions; why send preachers and doctors and teachers and money so far away? Aren't there plenty of heathen right at home? Of course; but you won't often find the objector to foreign missions doing much about it.

Any church that is awake and active in supporting foreign missions will be found to be just as alive and intelligent in meeting the problems of the neighborhood.

Judge The World

REASON number three: (This sounds like a silly reason, but Jonah actually put it forward—Jonah 4:2.) God is too good! What was the use of preaching to Nineveh, Jonah wanted to know, if God was going to be gracious and not destroy the city with fire from the sky?

If God is good and merciful, why should we bother about sending missionaries anywhere? Won't he save every one anyhow? Isn't God too good to judge the world?

Jonah overlooked the fact that God had mercy on the Ninevites because they repented. Nowhere in the Bible is there any encouragement to believe that God has mercy on the unrepentant. To all who turn to him, God is gracious; and the job of the missionary, whatever else he does, is to persuade people to turn to God. Be ye reconciled to God," said Paul, the great Christian missionary. If rebels will not lay down their arms, how can there be an amnesty?

The great tragedy of Judaism is the tragedy of Jonah: God wanted his people to win the world; but they became ingrown, they ceased even to wish to be a missionary faith. Shall the same tragedy overtake Christianity?

Socialists' Censorship Continues From Habit

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

EASINGTON VILLAGE, Durham County, England—Here is the Easington Colliery, one of the better coal mines of Great Britain. It is in the Newcastle-Upon-Tyne area, where coal has been mined since the days of the Roman occupation.

NOLAND

This mine was practically rebuilt by the owners just as the British went into World War II. It is electrified. Facilities for coal processing and grading are good. The mine had a good wartime production record. It is on a bluff overlooking the North Sea and today the face of the coal is two and one-half miles out under the sea. The slag is dumped into the sea and carried out by the tide.

Like all other coal mines in Great Britain, this one was bought by the government when the Socialists came into full power. The mines were taken over January 1, 1947. It was bought by giving the owners government bonds bearing interest in return for title to the mines. The price was determined by the Socialists, but with some regard for the stock exchange quotation for stock in the mining companies.

"Must Clear Your Story!"

In the mine office H. E. Morgan, regional director for the National Coal Board, which operates the mines for the government, verified the visitor's permit which the American newspapermen held.

"You understand, though," he said, standing with feet wide apart and shaking his finger at the writer, "you understand, and I'm telling you now, that anything you publish about your tour of this mine must be cleared with the National Coal Board."

Newspaper instinct told the visitor that that was the time to walk out with a story that the National Coal Board had lowered the iron curtain on Easington Colliery. What was it trying to hide?

"You understand," Morgan explained, "I am carrying out orders. This mine is all right. I will say that if you just write in generalities, I think you will be safe and there will be no government criticism of us."

So on these terms the newspaperman donned coveralls, rubber boots and a helmet and fell in behind the obliging guide, T. H. Ripley, whose job is to instruct apprentices in how to mine coal.

Down 1,150 feet we went to the bottom of the shaft by electric elevator, then seaward afoot in the tunnels where the mine trains, with their tubs, holding 1,000 pounds each, are operated by cable. The mine still has a few ponies, which are well cared for but are not being replaced.

"Bureaucracy, They Call It"

Throughout the mine the air was pure and sweet. Even back in old diggings it was good. The miners looked to be in good physical condition, muscular and ruddy. The machinery used to drill holes in the rock for blasting a new tunnel was in good condition and seemed to be efficiently operated.

Coming out on the surface the locker room and showers would have been a credit to the average American country club. Men were leaving the mine scrubbed clean and in clean clothes.

Although in some places the coal was being taken from 30-inch seams in the rock, the mine was producing about 2,800 tons a day.

The newspaperman's questing for something that the Coal Board could wish to hide yielded nothing. Talks with the miners revealed no fear or worry about safety of the mine. The fair conclusion was that it was about like a good mine in the United States.

The only mystery was why the Coal Board should demand the right to censor a story about a mine of which it had every visible reason to be proud. Bureaucracy, they call it.

THEY WOULD READ YOUR AD TOO, IF IT APPEARED HERE

At time of sickness, will you call your family doctor . . . or a stranger?

Under Socialized Medicine, you may not have your choice.

Suppose your family physician is not in the system—or his list is full. You will be assigned to an unknown man in a pill line—as a number, not a patient!

If you object, you must pay double for the type of medical service you want—once for the compulsory tax, and again for the fee for private, proper medical care.

Our nation's health is at an all-time high under the present system. Let's keep it that way.

Write Congress you are opposed to government controlled medicine. Your future depends on what Congress does. Eternal vigilance is the price of freedom. Act now!

Ford Truck Economy
The talk of the highways!

Truck owners who watch costs are learning that Ford is America's No. 1 Economy Truck! To begin with, Ford Trucks are priced with the lowest. They save, too, on gas, on oil, on repairs, on long-lasting dependability. Ford Truck economy of operation is one big reason why smart truck owners are switching to Ford. Ford Truck sales gains—the biggest in the industry—are evidence of this trend.

Around the Town

With the Editor

I've heard of some complaints about items and club reports not being published in the past couple of weeks.

In particular there were three items which did not appear in the local news last week simply because I didn't see them. They were written on the back of another item of local interest and I just didn't turn the paper over. Most of the copy I get and everything I write is on one side of the paper to avoid what happened last week. I'm sorry if anyone was offended by the omission—it was unintentional.

Some weeks ago I received a letter about the publishing of a club report which I had condensed due to lack of space. The write-up was rather lengthy and I didn't think anyone would be offended if I left out the particulars about the table-setting and the details of the meal so that the report could be put in the paper the same week it was received at the News Office.

But I was wrong. I was very definitely informed that the club would much rather the item appeared in its entirety than have it condensed. With that experience in mind I DIDN'T condense a club report last week and saved it for thiis week. —I was wrong again.

Now, before someone says, "Hmpfh, so our items are too long." I'll say, no, they're NOT too long. It's juct that sometimes there just - isn't - the - right - amount - of - space.

Another comment has been made - "Why doesn't he put in an extra sheet?" I've explained to a few people that I think it's a sloppy looking paper that appears with an extra half sheet or full sheet printed on just one side to make room for just a litle more copy. The only time the News appeared with a blank page (since I've been here) was two years ago next August when Lew Walter went on vacation, I was "green" at running the linotype (I'm still "green," but I was greener then), the linotype jammed and I didn't know how to unjam it.

Sometime I'd like to have an "open house" at the News Office and show everyone just what goes into their weekly edition of the St. Joe News.

Local News

Mrs. Olen Waltz, Rep.

Sam Keesler passed away at 4 a.m. Thursday, June 29, after having suffered a stroke Tuesday afternoon.

E. Ross Adair addressed the St. Joe Lions Club Monday evening at Chaney's Restaurant in Spencerville. News officers were installed during the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kagey had as guests last week Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Adams and three children, who are missionaries in Paraguay, South America. Mrs. Adams will be remembered as the former Anna Mae Level who made her home with Walter Coburn, former pastor of the Coburn Corners Church of Christ and attended Spencerville school.

Tommy Braden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Braden of St. Joe, was admitted to the Sanders Hospital in Auburn Sunday morning for medical treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Leinonen and two children of Detroit and Mr. Tucker of Hicksville called on Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gee Sunday.

Mrs. Marie Preuss and two children of Saginaw, Mich., Mrs. Darrow and daughter and Mrs. Cora Darrow of Auburn called on Mrs. Foster Gee last week.

Mrs. Nan Lysher, who has been cared for in the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Kees, of southeast of Garrett since Thanksgiving, spent Sunday with her son, Edgar, in their home near St. Joe. Mrs. Kees accompanied her and Mrs. Anna Koch was a dinner guest. Afternoon callers were Mrs. Rose Gehrig and her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lovett, and sons, Ray Allen and David, and daughter, Diana, all of Cedarville, and Roy Koch of St. Joe. Needless to say Mrs. Lysher enjoyed getting out of doors, taking a nice ride and spending a day in her own home

Dean Kees of Garrett was a caller at St. Joe Sunday afternoon and happened to meet his old school mates, Devere Woodcox and Jimmie Monroe. The boys had not seen each other for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Squires and son, Danny, of Dayton, O., spent the week-end the guests of Mrs. Squires' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Storer.

Walter-Trenary

On Sunday afternoon, June 25, at 2:30 p.m. Miss Audrie Marie Trenary became the bride of Joseph E. Walter in the Mount Pleasant E. U. B. Church near Butler.

Miss Trenary is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Trenary of R.R. 3, Butler, and the late C. Brooks Trenary. Mr. Walter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Walter of St. Joe.

A 20-minute musicale was presented by George Sherwood, uncle of the groom, on the organ. His selections were "Traumerei," "Always" and "Saviour Like a Shepherd Lead Us" which was played during the ceremony. Arlo King, uncle of the groom, sang "Because," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The Rev. Albert Swenson read the double ring ceremony before an altar flanked with palms, gladioli and seven-branch candelabra. Mixed bouquets of roses were used to decorate the church also.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Forest Trenary, chose a gown of white marquisette. The fitted bodice, which featured a lace collar and an insertion of lace to the waist line, was closed with tiny covered buttons and the long sleeves came to points over her hands. The full skirt featured lace insertions and a padded hip-line. Her veil, the traditional family veil, was edged with chantilly lace and fastened to a crown of seed pearls. Her rhinestone bracelet was a gift of the groom. She carried an orchid surrounded with white candytuft.

Mrs. Lorin Cook, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor in a pink taffeta and net gown. Her rhinestone necklace was her gift from the bride. She carried a bouquet of blue carnations and white candytuft.

Robert Walter served his brother as best man. Guests were seated by Lorin Cook, brother-in-law of the bride and John Mason, brother-in-law of the groom.

For the wedding Mrs. W. E. Walter and Mrs. Mary Trenary chose grey dresses and black accessories. Their corsages were of pink carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home. Serving the guests were Mrs. Chester Matherly, the Misses Opal, Ruth, Alice and Mary Lou Trenary, sisters of the bride, Mrs. Forest Trenary, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. William Hines and Miss Sue Walter, sisters of the groom, and Mrs. D. R. Kosht.

For traveling the new Mrs. Walter wore a blue satin dress with white accessories and an orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter are employed in clerking at the St. Joe Grocery.

PARSONAGE TO BE DEDICATED SUNDAY, JULY 9

The public is cordially invited to attend the dedication of the newly erected parsonage on the Newville circuit at the Newville Ev. United Brethren Church on Sunday, July 9.

The services will start with Sunday School at 9:30 a.m. followed by worship services and sermon by Conference Supt. B. F. Smith at 11:00 a.m. There will be a basket dinner at noon in the basement. At 2:00 p.m. will be the dedication service.

DEKALB COUNTY IS AWARDED GOLD PANEL FOR FIRST TIME

According to an announcement Monday made by the County Extension Office in Auburn, DeKalb County received a gold panel for the first time this year in 4-H club work.

This Prairie Farmer Radio Station WLS award is given by the Chicago station to the counties in the state having 30 percent of the 10-to-20-year-olds enrolled in 4-H club work and 60 percent of this number members of a standard club.

The 4-H enrollment in DeKalb County in 1949 was 864 with 616 being members of standard clubs. The standard 4-H club is one which has: 85 percent completion, 75 percent attendance at club meetings, at least six club meetings, complete record book, all work requirements done, representation in the county judging contest and at least one public demonstration.

The DeKalb County 4-H clubs won their first award of merit in 1946. This was a bronze panel. In 1947 they were awarded a silver panel and a silver panel in 1948.

Smith-Monroe

Nancy M. Monroe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Monroe of St. Joe, and Donald L. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Smith of Route 3, Auburn, were united in mariage at 3 p.m. Sunday in the St. Mark's Lutheran Church in St. Joe.

The Rev. W. W. Brewer of Fort Wayne, a former Auburn minister, officiated at the beautiful double ring ceremony. Mrs. Arthur Culbertson of St. Joe played "Always," "Indian Love Call" and "One Alone" before the ceremony and "Wonderful One," "Together" and traditional bridal marches.

John Smith of near Auburn sang "I Love You Truly," "Because," "I Love You" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white tafetta that featured a yoke of illusion and was buttoned down the back. She wore a finger-tip veil of illusion and a crown of seed pearls. The bride carried a white Bible with a bouquet of white roses.

The matron-of-honor was Mrs. William Monroe of Fort Wayne, the sister-in-law of the bride. Mrs. Monroe and the bridesmaid, Miss Isabel Baker, of St. Joe were in similar gowns of floor length and pink crepe and carried bouquets of blue carnations and blue ribbon.

William Monroe of Fort Wayne, brother of the bride, served as best man. Ushers were James Monroe of Schenectady, N.Y., brother of the bride, and Blake Smith of near Auburn, brother of the groom. They also lighted the candles on the altar which was bedecked with large baskets of white gladioli and ferns. The pews were marked with white satin bows.

The mother of the bride, Mrs. Monroe, chose a navy sheer dress with a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Smith, mother of the groom, chose a navy and white crepe dress with a corsage of pink carnations.

The bride is a graduate of St. Joe high school and is employed in the office of the Warner Automotive Parts Division in Auburn. The groom is a graduate of Auburn high school and spent 18 months in the U. S. army. He is also employed at the Warner Automotive Parts Division.

A reception in the new home of the newlyweds at 715 West Seventh street in Auburn was held for 100 guests. The table was covered with lace cloth and was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake and crystal candlesticks with white tapers.

Serving guests were Mrs. James Monroe of Schenectady, N.Y.; Miss Lenora Drake of St. Joe; Mrs. Orville Funk of St. Joe; Miss Marjorie Bleeks of route 1, Auburn; Miss Effie Smith of route 3, Auburn; Miss Dorothy Walters of near St. Joe; Mrs. William Staman of St. Joe and Mrs. Stanley Monroe of Wabash, Ind.

CONCORD TWP. HOME EC

The Concord Township Home Ec Club held its June meeting at the home of Mrs. Ella Meyers in St. Joe on Friday, June 16. Tables were arranged on the spacious porch at which the ladies were seated.

Mrs. Meyers and her committee, Gertrude Borthwick, Emma Trenary, Mary Trenary and Mary Krise, welcomed the ladies with an original song set to the tune of "Clementine." Mrs. Laura McClellán assisted in singing this song and also assisted the committee throughout the serving of the three-course "brunch."

Tangerine cocktail was followed by bacon and scrambled eggs, escalloped potatoes, homemade hot rolls with butter and jell and coffee. Home made cookies and strawberries completed the brunch.

The regular afternoon meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Doris Yeiser. The song of the month, "Faith of Our Fathers," was led by the chorister, Mrs. Mary Krise who also gave the history of the song. Devotions were in charge of Mrs. Katie Storer. Secretary's report was read by the assistant secretary, Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick. Roll call was responded to by twenty-six members and seven guests, the response being "The Place Where I Was Married."

Guests included the county officers, pres., Mrs. Mildred Grogg, vice-pres., Mrs. Ruth Teutsh, sec.-treas., Mildred Bard, Mrs. Velma Husselman, county garden leader, Miss Mary Lenore Moore and Mrs. Virginia Moore. The club was especially happy to have Miss Moore present for this meeting as it was the first time she has been able to attend one of the breakfasts. All the officers and leaders gave short talks. Mrs. Ruth White was also a guest. The entertainment committee then took charge, Mrs. Harriett Johnson gave an amusing reading entitled "The Jiners" in which a wife was seeking a divorce from her husband because he had "jined" such a multitude of organizations she could no longer live with him. Mrs. Pluma Hamilton gave several short poems and conducted a quiz. A playlet, "Tillie and Millie in New York," was given by Mrs. Bernice Sechler and Mrs. Alta Hablawetz. Both were dressed in the latest style of the gay nineties and were the last word in sophistication. All these numbers were much enjoyed by the club ladies.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Mary Trenary. Club adjourned after a most enjoyable day to meet in July at the Legion Hall at which time Concord Township will entertain Troy Township.

Mr. Clarence Widdifield and son, Duane, of Indianapolis were Saturday callers in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kimes. Mrs. Rosa Widdifield, who has spent the past several weeks in the home of her sister, accompanied her son to Indianapolis for a visit.

Mrs. Minnie Kimes and daughter, Rose Ann and Donna Mae, visited a few days last week in the Harvey Kimes home.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kimes and family entertained to Sunday dinner the following guests; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kimes and children, Donald, Marcia Ann and Carol Lee; Mrs. Minnie Kimes; Rose Ann and Donna Mae Kimes; Mr. Ralph Green, Mrs. Herbert Allen of Ft. Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kimes and Mrs. Rosa Widdifield.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hurt and two sons of Columbia City were Sunday afternoon callers in the Harvey Kimes home.

E. W. Beaber Passes Away

Edward Willis Beaber, 83, a resident of the St. Joe community nearly all his life, died shortly before 7 p.m. Monday in the Williams Convalescent home in Butler.

He died from complications which resulted when he was burned severely by scalding water last October at his home east of St. Joe.

The body was removed to the Johnson Funeral Home in Butler and remained there until final rites at 2 p.m. Thursday, June 29. Joseph Shenault, pastor of the Newville Church of Christ, will officiate at the services with burial in Alton Cemetery south of Butler.

Mr. Beaber, who had resided alone at his home near St. Joe, suffered second and third degree burns in the accident last October. The family reported that he apparently had dropped a tea kettle of boiling water in the kitchen.

He was taken after the accident to the Community Hospital in Hicksville where he remained until he was removed in February to the convalescent home.

The elderly farmer was born Feb. 14, 1867, in Noble County, but lived most of his life in the St. Joe community.

His wife, Amelia, preceded him in death 10 years ago. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Iva Clouse of Cumberland, Wis., and Mrs. Ila Davis of Fremont; a brother, Perry Beaber of Garrett; seven grandchildren, 20 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

He was a charter member of the Odd Fellows Lodge of St. Joe and a later member of the Auburn I.O.O.F. when the St. Joe order was moved to Auburn.

Three Injured In Accident

Carl Raymond Hoover, 22, of Spencerville was booked on a charge of reckless driving early Sunday morning when he lost control of his car on a curve on South Main street in Auburn and the vehicle plowed headlong into the Pennsylvania R.R. freight depot.

Hoover and two passengers in the car, Harley Graham and Kenneth Akey, both of Spencerville, were slightly injured in the collision, Auburn Police Officers J. W. Rittenhouse and Perry Lilly reported.

None of the injured required hospitaliation. Hoover received cuts above both eyes, abrasions on both knees and shock. Graham suffered a sprained ankle and Akey an abrasion on his right knee. They were treated by an Auburn physician.

Police said the accident occurred at 2:45 a.m. Sunday on the curve at the intersection of Ensley avenue and South Main street. They reported that Hoover, driving south in a 1949 Ford, failed to negotiate the curve and the machine smashed into the depot. The car was a total loss. Damage to the freight depot was estimated at over $50.

Hoover was ordered to appear Wednesday evening in the DeKalb city court for arraignment before City Judge Harold D. Stump.

SOCIAL FRIDAY, JULY 7

The Concord Methodist Church will have a social on Friday, July 7 starting at 6 p.m. Chicken sandwiches, weiner sandwiches, homemade ice cream and cake, pie, coffee and soft drinks will be served.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The regular midsummer meeting of the Ladies Literary Club was held Wednesday, June 21, at the home of Mrs. Glen Cole. Breakfast was served in the yard at 10 o'clock to twenty members and three guests, Mrs. Harriet Johnston, Mrs. O. K. Shull and Mrs. Lester Baker. Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Shull are Honorary Members of the club.

The menu was tomato juice, bread and butter, bacon and eggs, strawberries, donuts and coffee. Mrs. Cole was assisted by Mrs. Cora Curie and Mrs. Carl Carpenter.

After breakfast the club program for the coming year was read. Mrs. Maurice Kline assumed the presidency at this meeting.

The first meeting of the club year will be at the home of Mrs. Kline September 6.

Black and White

Lesson for July 2, 1950

A GROCER in Minneapolis received a letter from a former customer who had left the city owing a large grocery bill. "I have been converted in a revival here," the letter said, "and I want to make everything right in my life that has been wrong." Enclosed there was a certified check for the old bill. The grocer wired back: "Who was the evangelist who converted you? We need him in Minneapolis."

Dr. Foreman

Conversion is God's operation on the heart. No one can actually see the heart, but if the operation is successful, the symptoms of disease will disappear and the symptoms of health can be seen by any one. The patient is a new man.

Jacob Black

PERHAPS the most notable case of conversion in the Bible, aside from the Apostle Paul, is the man named Jacob. His life is a study in black and white; up to a certain point hardly anything good could be said of him, but after that point he can hardly be accused of anything bad.

All his younger days he was principally noted for giving trouble to other people and "doing them out of" something he wanted for himself. First he tricked his older brother into selling him the family birthright, for the ridiculous price of a bowl of soup (pottage).

You would not think any one would sell his birthright; but Jacob caught Esau when he was dog-hungry . . . Then we see him outsmarting his brother again by birthright; Jacob was by that time a shameless liar and thief. It became so hot for him at home that he had to leave town.

We have a glimpse of him on his journey, dreaming about a ladder to heaven. Evidently his conscience did not trouble him. Indeed, he proceeds to bargain even with God; if God will prosper him, he says, he will see that God gets ten per cent. God did indeed prosper him; but he grew no better for it.

The rest of his life, for the next twenty years, is one piece of trickery after another, he and his uncle Laban taking turns trying to outsmart each other, with Jacob usually coming out ahead.

Jacob White

THINGS came to a climax on the night when Jacob, fearing death at Esau's hands, arranged his family to go ahead of him, keeping himself in the safest place in the rear . . . and there at last he came face to face with God.

The story of his all-night struggle at the brook Jabbok is a strange one; but one thing is certain. After that night even his name was changed, for the man himself was a new man.

He is patient in trouble, no longer resentful. He is not only a good man himself, he does his best to help others. He conducts what can only be called a family revival; he persuades one and all to give up the idols they had been worshipping and turn to the one true God. He offers sacrifices, like his fathers before him.

He goes down into Egypt at last, a humble man, no longer the conceited young crook he had been when he went to Padan-Aram. He depends now on God and not on himself.

The God of Jacob

A FAMILIAR Psalm carries this refrain: "The God of Jacob is our refuge." Why the God of Jacob, not Abraham nor Isaac? Well, if it were only the God of Abraham, most of us might as well give up. For Abraham was a great genius, a man such as appears scarcely once in a century. Or if he were the God of Isaac only, we would be led to think of him as caring especially for the weak-minded, the lame and the lazy. But Jacob—just a plain man full of meanness? Yes; the same God who changed him can change the meanest of us.

The real test of religion is not what support it can give to noble souls, or what comfort it gives to the weak. The real test of religion is: Can God turn black into white? Can God take an ordinary, conceited, slippery customer and make a good man of him? The God of Jacob can do this; and he is the God most of us need.

SOFTBALL NEWS

The softball games scheduled for last Sunday at the local diamond had to be postponed. Marcel Pugsley wasn't able to get his boys together—some have gone on vacation making it difficult to get a team together.

The News lost again in league competition Tuesday night to Schaab's Kids, 15-2. St. Joe's only runs scored on a mighty line-drive home run blast by Bob Walter with one man on base.

Spencerville lost their first game in league competition also on Tuesday to Rieke's, 8 to 7.

St. Joe's next league game will be played Friday, July 7, against Wakefield's of Waterloo at 7:15 p.m.

The remaining games scheduled for the Auburn softball league are as follows:

(1st game—7:15, 2nd game—8:30)

June 29—Wakefield's vs. Warner's; Schaab's Kids vs. Universal.

July 6—Rieke's vs. Ball Brass; DeMolay vs. Auburn Legion.

July 7—St. Joe News vs. Wakefield's; Rieke's vs. Warner's.

July 11—Schaab's Kids vs. DeMolay; Wakefield's vs. Ball Brass.

July 13—St. Joe News vs. Rieke's; Warner's vs. Universal Tool.

July 18—Auburn Legion vs. Ball Brass; DeMolay vs. Wakefield's

July 20—DeMolay vs. St. Joe News; Schaab's Kids vs. Auburn Legion

July 25—Rieke's vs. Universal; Schaab's Kids vs. Ball Brass.

July 27—St. Joe News vs. Warner's;Schaab's Kids vs. Rieke's.

Aug. 1—Wakefield's vs. Rieke's; Universal vs. Ball Brass.

MRS. EDWARD MISER DIES

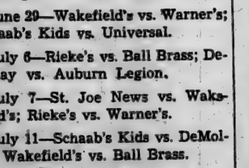
Mrs. Edward N. Miser, 64, died last Thursday after having suffered a cerebral hemorrhage. She had been ill for quite some time.

Funeral services were held at the Garrett Methodist Church Sunday afternoon with Rev. Robert J. Yunker officiating. Burial was in Waterloo Cemetery.

Mrs. Miser, who resided in Garrett, was a member of a pioneer DeKalb County family. Her maiden name was Mae Showers and her paternal grandparents were Robert and Rebecca Lung Showers. Her grandfather received a government grant in 1842 for the land on which the town of Altona was later built. Mrs. Miser was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Showers and she was born in Auburn April 26, 1886. She and Mr. Miser were married by Rev. J. D. Brosy in Auburn April 1, 1904. They moved to Garrett in 1931.

Surviving besides Mr. Miser are four children, Charles T. Miser of Garrett, Frank Miser of Fort Wayne, Wesley H. Miser of Albion and Mrs. James M. Kennedy of Garrett; seven grandchildren and two brothers, Scott Showers of Toledo, O., and Van Showers of Auburn.

FISH OF INDIANA



LARGE MOUTH BASS

Huro Salmoides (Lacepede)

DESCRIPTION: A very large mouth, the maxillary of which extends beyond the posterior border of the eye; high arched spinous dorsal almost semi-circular in shape. Scales on cheek almost as large as those on body. These are best characters to use in distinguishing this bass from the Small Mouth and the Spotted Kentucky Bass. Large Mouth Bass weighing 9 lbs. have been taken in Indiana waters.

HABITAT: In a fish of the weedy, muddy lakes and ponds. In rivers, found in quiet, weedy spots such as bayous and overflow ponds. It hides, waits its prey beside logs or among water plants.

STOCKING: State stocking has been and still is heavy throughout state; is being carried on in lakes, gravel pits, farm ponds and quarries.

SPAWNING—PROPAGATION: Nests in quiet situations in from one to six feet of water. Hard to locate and less prominent than nests of other two types. Often built in vegetation with bottom free of debris. Principal spawning May and early June, depending on weather might be later or earlier.

FOOD: Small fish, insects and crayfish.

SEASON: June 16 to April 30. Both dates inclusive. Keepers—Ten inches. LEGAL BAG LIMIT—SIX.

EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a.m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

WHILE the bouquets are being passed out during this 14th annual celebration of June Dairy Month, let's look at the great contributions made to the industry by good old American mechanical ingenuity.

Bossy's own very efficient milk producing equipment is as old as civilization. Mechanization, electricity, science and modern assembly-line techniques, however, have put her product on more tables and found more uses for it than our grandmothers ever would have imagined.

The day of the family cow is gone, replaced by daily delivery of quarts of milk, neat packages of cheese and butter and containers of ice cream. And this product is immeasurably cleaner, more nourishing and more readily available than it was in grandmother's time.

Today, science takes a hand even before the cow is born with selective breeding of high producing animals. There are new high standards for feeding and care of the animals, and when they move into the milk barn, machinery takes over. Milking machines do the job that years ago took dozens of farm hands and lots of time. The milk is transported in 10-gallon metal cans by truck to the dairy or processing plant.

In the dairy the milk that is to be bottled is weighed by machine. Samples are tested by scientific devices in the dairy laboratory. Meanwhile, the empty cans are fed into a big washing and sterilizing machine. The raw milk is poured into a storage tank, filtered, perhaps homogenized and finally pasteurized.

The end product and its packages, gleaming bottles which have been washed and sterilized, finally meet in a complex bottling machine, which measures out the exact amount to each bottle, caps it with paper or metal and deposits the bottles in a case for delivery to your table.

CONSERVATION CLUB

The Friday evening, July 7, meeting of the St. Joe Valley Conservation Club (Inc.), to be held at the school house in St. Joe, promises to be one of the finest.

The entertainment committee has secured Mr. Milt Wysong, District Representative of the Department of Conservation (Educational Branch) as speaker.

Mr. Wysong has spent an entire life time in conservation work, and will be well prepared to answer any question that may arise.

All members are requested to be present. Those that are not members are urged to come and secure their membership cards at the meeting.

WINNERS 4-H CLUB

The Winners 4-H Club entertained the Concord 4-H club Thursday, June 15, at the home of Donna, William and Franklin Johnson.

The meeting was called to order by the president who called on Mary Wilder to lead group singing. The pledges were lead by William Johnson. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved. The safety report was given by Jerry Leonard. Health report was given by Franklin Johnson. Bobby Wilder then sang a song after which Mary Wilder and Betty Witt gave their demonstration on cooling eggs in an egg cooler. They will give this demonstration in Purdue next week.

The July meeting will be in charge of the assistant officers. The recreation leaders then took charge while the parents held a discussion concerning a trip to the state fair for all the members.

After several games a weiner roast was enjoyed by fifteen Concord township members and twenty Winners Club members and many parents.

Dagwood, alias Karl Hart, was satisfied with his sandwich including everything but deviled eggs, so everyone was happy.

HINTS ON HEALTH

by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

TAKE A VACATION

EVERYONE needs a vacation because, unconsciously or not, everybody gets tired of doing the same thing. Even if a person "loves" his job, it is wise to remember that sameness can produce staleness.

A vacation need not be expensive. Getting away from the job and carrying on different activities is a form of recreation that puts new zest and vitality into a person. Children, for example, grow tired of school life and, like adults, need a break in every-day routine.

If camping is your idea of a vacation, be sure the drinking water is pure, and guard against insect and snake bites.

In making an automobile trip, avoid carelessness and haste which might turn pleasure into tragedy.

Outdoor sports, such as golf and tennis, should be fun, but should not be carried to excess. Aching muscles, fatigue and even a heart attack could result and send you to bed for weeks. Too much sun can make you sick. Water sports, swimming, boating and fishing are fine, but know how to swim and resuscitate persons rescued from drowning.

Plan your vacation judiciously so that when you return to work you will not feel it necessary to "catch up" on sleep or rest. The true purpose of a vacation is to give you new energy to tackle your work-a-day chores.

Baked Eggs in Toast Cups

Company variation of an American favorite, bacon and eggs, are these baked eggs in scalloped toast rings. Rashers of bacon, hot coffee, and extra enriched toast with preserves complete the menu.

Best way to wish your family a sunny good morning is with a good breakfast. Favorite foods include golden toast and scrambled eggs. For variation, try baked eggs in toast cups. You'll find the cups attractive and an easy way to serve a crowd or provide a special family breakfast.

They're this easy: drop an egg into each bread cup, then bake in muffin pans. The number of eggs desired are baked all at one time. Slide pans out of the oven and lift cups onto a warm platter for service. While the eggs bake, fry the bacon and make the coffee.

Bread rounds may be cut and buttered the night before and wrapped in wax paper, so that in the morning only a second is needed for breaking the eggs into the cups, adding milk, and putting them into the oven.

You'll want extra toast to serve with the egg cups and bacon. Temptingly browned toast is an easy way to see that your family gets a good portion of the B-vitamins and iron they need daily. Six one ounce slices of bread per day provide about ¼ of the daily minimum requirement for iron, even more of the thiamine and niacin needed for pep and all-around good health.

BAKED EGGS IN TOAST CUPS

12 slices enriched bread
Butter or margarine
6 eggs
6 tablespoons milk

With a scalloped cookie cutter cut rounds of bread from bread slices. Use a smaller cutter to remove center portion from 6 of the slices. Brush each slice with melted butter or margarine. Place plain rounds of bread in bottoms of muffin cups and top with a ring of bread. Break egg in center of each ring and add 1 tablespoon milk to each. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Serve with broiled bacon. Makes 6 servings.

Labor Betrays Labor In Socialistic Britain

One in a series of eye-witness reports
BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

LONDON, England—A man's right to work at the kind of work he likes to do, and at the best pay he can command for his skill and diligence, is regarded as fundamental in free countries. It is one of the rights for which men struggled for many years and for which they paid a high price.

NOLAND

But it is one of the first rights that is trampled on when the Socialist climbs to the throne as a political boss and begins to put his dreams into effect.

In Britain a good deal is said about denying farmers and all workers in essential industries the right to move about the country in search of a better market for their labor. It is true that a farmer or farm laborer can not lawfully leave the farm for work in other lines without the consent of the government. It is also true that other workers can not move about at will. They must have a government permit to go to another place in search of work or to take a job that has been promised to them and that will pay better money.

Unions "Go Along"

This nailing the worker to his job is defended by the Labor Party's Socialist political leaders in Britain as necessary to make the best use of Britain's manpower. They say that is the common-sense way to make sure that there will not be a surplus of workers in one area and a shortage of the same kind of workers in another area.

So effective is this argument, at a time when Britain needs maximum production to supply home needs and regain some of its world markets, that the trade unions have to go along. The worker is somewhat won over to the scheme by repeated promises that it won't last long.

This lashing of workers to the stake is often referred to as showing that what the Socialist intellectual really has in mind when he says Socialism is making government slaves out of all workers. If this were true, workers in Britain and all other free countries would defy the law and suffer jailing rather than forfeit their rights as free men.

Unused Rights Wiped Out

The fact is that British workers say that they do not feel that they are tied down. They do not attempt to move around the country in search of better jobs because they can find jobs near home. The jobs are available because of high employment. The worker does not pause to notice that about 10 percent of this employment is on government payrolls and another 10 percent is on payrolls met directly out of the pockets of American taxpayers under Marshall aid. The workers know these facts; but, when jobs are plentiful, men as a rule do not ask where the pay comes from.

Thus are basic rights wiped out when there is little reason for exercising them. The Conservative Party members of the labor unions, which include about 34 percent of the membership according to Conservative polls, see the light. They see that they have been tricked into Socialist regimentation. They declare openly in their meetings that they have been betrayed by the intellectuals and their own gullible leaders into accepting government slavery as the inevitable lot of the common man under Sotialism.

FISH OF INDIANA

SMALL-MOUTH BASS
Micropterus Dolomieu (Lacepede)

DESCRIPTION: The spinous dorsal is very low, the edge of the free border almost straight. The maxillary does not extend beyond the eye and in most cases does not reach the posterior border of the eye. Dark blotches on the sides and back give it a barred or mottled appearance never forming a black lateral band as in Large Mouth or Kentucky Bass.

DISTRIBUTION: Mainly a stream fish but found in some gravel bottom lakes.

HABITAT: Good fast moving streams with large rocks or protruding slabs of stone. Prefer gravel bottom.

STOCKING: Division of Fish and Game has and will continue to stock this fish in all suitable waters in state.

SPAWNING—PROPAGATION: Males build nests in which females deposit eggs after which male guards until hatched and young are about one inch long. Spawning takes place in May or early June depending upon the weather and water temperature. Small-Mouth are reared in gravelly or hard bottomed ponds in state hatcheries.

FOOD: Small fish, crayfish, aquatic and land insects.

SEASON: June 16 to April 30 both dates inclusive. Keepers—10 inches. LEGAL BAG LIMIT—6 Bass in aggregate.

POWER PLANTS
take a long time to bloom

Like other kinds of plants, electric power plants don't spring up full-grown over night.

Sometimes, though, it probably seems as if they did. Take this community for instance. It has grown a lot in recent years . . . yet there has always been enough electricity here for everyone.

Each year homes, farms, and industries use more and more cheap, dependable electricity to do more and more jobs. This calls for more and more facilities for making power—and a major power plant takes three years or more to build. And yet, electricity to serve new needs has always been immediately on tap.

The answer is that power plants are like other plants in still another way: long before they even start to grow, there's a lot of groundwork to be done. The demand for the crop must be anticipated far in advance of the harvest.

Today we're working on the electricity you'll need three to five years from now. Between 1947 and '52 this company and its associates in the American Gas and Electric System are spending $325,000,000 for new plants and new facilities. When the current expansion program is completed in 1952, the System will have doubled its capacity in ten short years.

The spadework we're doing today is your assurance that along our lines there will continue to be power enough for all.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

Nine members of the American Legion Auxiliary of Walter Whitehurst Post 283 met on Tuesday, June 27. The members present included Mrs. Clayton A. Baker, Mrs. Dale Collins, Mrs. George Baker, Mrs. Robert Davis, Mrs. Harold Noragon, Mrs. Carlos Church, Mrs. Roy Reidenbach, Mrs. Bartel and Mrs. Frank Shull..

Mrs. Reidenbach gave a poppy report. The sales totaled $107.69. This amount is put aside in a special fund and spent only to help veterans and their families.

Mrs. Noragon gave a rehabilitation report. Jelly, plants, comic books and candy bars were taken to veterans and their families at the Irene Byron Sanatorium. Several boxes of candy bars were sent to the Marion Veterans Hospital for their birthday party.

The members voted to send the president and secretary to the state convention at French Lick August 28-30.

The nominating committee gave its report and the following officers were elected: president-Mrs. Harold Noragon; 1st vice president— Mrs. Clayton A. Baker; 2nd vice president —Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser; 3rd vice president—Mrs. Ralph Sechler; chaplain —Mrs. Frank Shull; sergeants-at-arms—Mrs. Ray Littlefield and Mrs. Simeon Nicholls; secretary—Mrs. Dale Collins; treasurer—Mrs. Robert Davis; historian—Mrs. Leon Kees; corresponding secretary—Mrs. Roy Reidenbach.

Instead of the losing committees entertaining the winning committees as planned, the officers are going to entertain the members July 18 at 6:30 at the Legion Home. Rose Baugher, district president, will install new officers at this meeting.

The next district meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary will be at Franke Park, Ft. Wayne, on July 13 at 10 a.m. There will be a potluck dinner.

POLIO PRECAUTIONS FOR YOUR CHILDREN THIS SUMMER

"Is there any way I can help my child avoid polio this ummer?"

To answer this question Mary Lenore Moore, home demonstration agent, quotes the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis: "Keep children with their own playmates and away from people they've not been with right along."

The Foundation says that some people can carry the virus without getting polio themselves, and so can pass it on to others.

"Keep yourself and your youngsters from getting over-tired from work, play or travel. If the virus is already in your system, extreme weariness may give it a chance to become more serious in its effect. Once you are infected with the virus there's no preventative measure that can be taken. But there's a chance that early and correct care may lessen its crippling effect," the Foundation points out.

Other health rules include:

"Keep from getting chilled. Don't bathe or swim too long in cold water. Take off wet clothes at once.

"See that children wash their hands carefully before eating, and keep food clean and covered.

"Watch for early signs of illness. Polio starts in different ways-with headache, sore throat, sore muscles, upset stomach or fever."

The Foundation warns that if polio is suspected, a doctor should be called at once. Quick action may lessen crippling.

God's Greatest

Lesson for July 9, 1950

A GREAT man cannot always be seen at close range. His contemporaries may not know what to make of him. Current celebrities outshine him, his enemies cry him down, circumstances hide his true greatness. You have to stand off from him, perhaps several centuries away, before you can see his true height. Great men are like tall mountains; within a few miles of them, the traveler cannot see them for the masses of smaller ridges and peaks that hide the distant view. Only far out on the plain can we see the great peak towering into the blue.

Dr. Foreman

Not Much Chance

MOSES was such a man. At many times in his life, if you had been there, you would have thought he had very little chance to live, much less to succeed. Suppose you had seen him in the first three months of his life? He was born under a death sentence; his parents were breaking the law of the land by keeping him alive at all.

Then later if you had seen him in his sea-going bassinet among the reeds in the river, you might have thought: Will the contraption float? Even if a princess finds the baby, won't she know what he is and send him straight off to be killed?

Or years later, when Moses was a sort of pampered stepson of the palace, what promise was in him? Pharaoh's court was full always of proud young fellows spoiling for a fight. Moses might have looked to you just like another useless aristocrat. And then when Moses was out in the wilds, tending another man's sheep, married to an ignorant back-country lass who never understood him in the least; would you have put much faith in that discouraged old ranch-hand?

God's Man

BUT don't judge a man by what his contemporaries say. We know now, we have known for centuries, that Moses was one of God's greatest and best.

Consider what the world owes to that one man. Of all his services, let us note three in particular. For one thing, we trace the Ten Commandments back to him. Not that he was the first to call stealing or adultry or greediness wicked; men have known as much since early times. But we do associate the Ten Commandments with Moses' name. He preached and taught that religion is ethical; that is, right living is tied in with and tied up to right religion.

Faith and life flow into and support each other. Some religions declare that if a man pleases God that is all that matters; he can ride his neighbors as he pleases. Other religions (or substitutes for religion) say that if a man treats other men right he can let God go. Not so Moses; not so the Jews nor the Christians!

Moses was also the man through whom God revealed some of the most important truths we know about God. Moses taught his people, and through them teaches us, of a spiritual God, not like anything "in heaven above or the earth beneath or in the waters under the earth." God has "no manner of form." God is pure spirit, without a body like men or like anything.

To this day men find that hard to take in; but it is an important truth for any one who wants to think truly about God and to find him.

Moses and Christ

ABOVE all, there would have been no Christianity if Moses had never lived, or if he had failed. If the children of Israel had done what they wanted to do, slink back to Egypt and slavery, the whole great history of the Old Testament would have been unwritten. Poets and prophets would have died unborn.

But he would have had to make a start somewhere else besides with the Hebrew people, and the whole history of religion would have been different. There would have been no New Testament without the Old Testament.

Even Jesus of Nazareth either would not have been at all, or would have been entirely different, if it had not been for the whole background of the Hebrew story, in which Moses played such a leading part. If the world owes a debt to Christianity (and what a debt!), it owes also a tribute to Moses.

EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

FAR more farm insurance policies are wrong than are right. Many of them, in fact, have errors so serious that a heavy loss due to fire, flood or storm could put the insured farmer out of business.

That startling bit of news comes to me from H. L. Tinley, who is the insurance supervisor of 1,400 midwestern farms managed by the Farmers National Company of Omaha, Nebr. He says that many farmers are lulled to sleep by the knowledge that they own an insurance policy on their farm property, and overlook the fact that these policies can become outdated. If, in the last few years you haven't compared the buildings on your farm with those listed in the policy, you may be due for a shock.

What are some of the errors that could be financially disastrous to a farmer? According to Tinley the most common are new buildings that the farmer forgot to insure, buildings that have been dismantled and not cancelled from the policy, and two or more fire policies on the same building which may cancel all policies. Also dangerous are policies not written in the name of the correct owner, neglecting to list such fire protection devices as lightning rods and fireproof roofing and, finally, inadequate insurance coverage.

Here's an example of how you could lose money on one of the above points. Suppose you tore down a barn on which you had been paying insurance, and used the lumber to construct a machine shed. You neglect to cancel out the barn, and to add the shed to the insurance policy. The shed burns. You can't collect on it, and you've been paying premiums on a building that no longer exists. Check with your insurance agent to avoid situations like this. He'll be happy to help you save money.

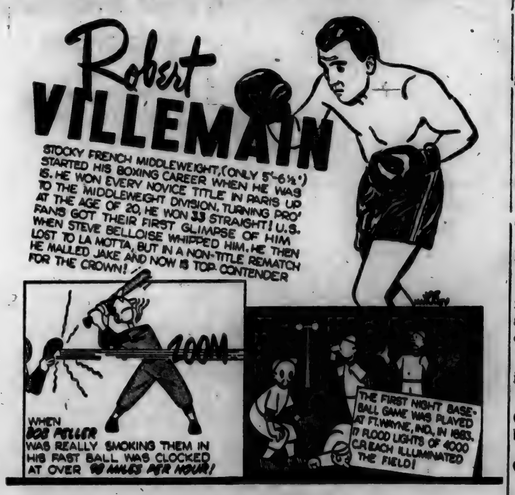
SPORTSCOPE By JOE MAHONEY



FISH OF INDIANA

ROCK BASS
(Other names: goggle eye, red eye.)

DESCRIPTION: Body rather deep and compressed; mouth large, oblique; lower jaw projecting; eyes very large; iris red in life; opercles notched behind but without a flap; dorsal fin much longer than anal with 11 spines and 10 soft rays; anal fin with 5 to 7 spines and 10 rays. Olive green, the sides brassy, mottled with dark green, each scale with a dark central spot, these forming narrow stripes. Length up to 12 inches and, in northern lakes, weight up to 2 pounds. Those from streams usually smaller.

DISTRIBUTION: Most streams of the state and lakes with gravel bottoms.

HABITAT: Usually found in the same spots as Small-Mouth Bass. Like to stay around old logs, drifts, or weed beds near rifles.

STOCKING: Rather limited in past because they are light spawning. Program stepped up this year.

SPAWNING: May and early June depending on weather and water temperature. Not a heavy spawning fish so many more parent fish are required. Likes gravel or hard bottom for spawning.

FOOD: Crustaceans, worms, snails, crayfish and small fish.

SEASON: Open year around as is Bluegill, by Discretionary Order. Keepers—5 inches. LEGAL BAG LIMIT—25 or 25 in combination with other pan fish.

Mrs. Morris Shafer and baby of Kendallville were taken home from the McCray Memorial Hospital on Sunday evening. The baby was born Friday, June 23, and weighed 5 lb. 10 oz. Her name is Linda Dianne. Mrs. Shafer will be remembered as the former Nelda Kees who was born and raised in St. Joe.

Ragen Kees of near Garrett is recovering nicely from a tonsilectomy performed at the Methodist Hospital in Ft. Wayne last Friday. He will continue to take treatments for a condition causing deafness.

X-ray pictures taken Thursday showed both bones just above the ankle were broken when a tractor wheel ran over the left foot of Ervin White of near St. Joe. He is a patient at the Sanders Hospital in Auburn.

Emmett Steininger of Waterloo, former publisher of the St. Joe News and for the past two years operator of a job printing shop in Waterloo, will move his shop to Auburn. He will open his Printcraft business at 704 North Union street where his brother, Dee Steininger, formerly operated a shop. Dee has moved to Grabill where he is now publisher of the Cedar Creek Courier, a semi-monthly publication.

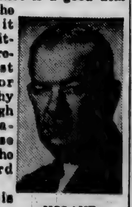
Mere Social "Security" Insecure, British Find

One in a series of eye-witness reports
BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

LONDON, England—The American investigator of life in Britain under Socialism is constantly asking why a people with the strength of character to create the British Empire gave in to the temptations of social security.

Certainly there is a good deal of truth in the answer that it was strong British character rebelling against low pay, poor food, unhealthy housing and high taxes for national defense that started the trend toward Socialism.



NOLAND

And there is little doubt that the depression of the thirties, with thousands of good men out of jobs and forced to live on government charity called the dole, incited distrust of the ruling classes for failing to find or create the markets that would have assured normal employment.

Wars Led to Suspicion

The intellectuals, with their ranting against manufacturers for promoting war to enrich themselves at the expense of the masses, certainly won many converts to the idea that even in a world ruled by force or threat of force, refusal to arm would not only bring universal peace but would enable the country to divert the cost of war to improving the lot of the average man. These intellectuals argued that world-wide Socialism was the way to peace and Britain would have to set the example.

Two extremely costly world wars only 25 years apart left the mass of Britons bereaved and poor and justifiably suspicious of the brand of statecraft practiced by the political leaders to whom they entrusted their fate.

There must be a better way than paying a heart-breaking and back-breaking price every few years in war, they kept saying.

British respect for fair play and British love of country denied converts to the leaders who waved the red flag and called for a bloody revolution. But the misery which these leaders assumed to correct by a dictatorship of the masses was real enough to win many people to the reforms which vote-seeking politicians promised by way of the ballot box for government's shouldering of many of the people's troubles.

Labor Sought Control

The labor unions grew strong both in numbers and in purpose. They developed leaders who were not content with eminence in the union movement but readily teamed up with the intellectuals to make a drive for political control of the country.

Britain came out of World War II desperately pushed for survival. Its overseas investment was spent for the tools of war. Vast sections of the empire broke away, taking with them fat markets for British manufactured goods. And Russia turned upon the British and Americans, who had saved her in the war, and lashed out for rule of the whole world.

Under all these pressures, British character turned to Socialism as being at least another way to try for peace and at least modest prosperity. It was a choice of desperation.

Learned "The Hard Way"

As the best of men are allowed their weak moments, Britain gave in to the song of the theorist and the labor leader who thought that, if he could only sit at the big desk in the front office, providence would somehow endow him with the will, character, experience and ability to run the business.

British character is now proving that it did not weaken. It merely experimented and guessed wrong. It learned the hard way that national security must be protected before there can be any other kind of security.

HINTS ON HEALTH
by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

APPENDICITIS

APPENDICITIS is now listed as one of the minor causes of death. The drop in death rate from acute appendicitis has been spectacular in the past 10 years. In 1939 there were 14,113 deaths from appendicitis in the United States, but last year the number had dropped to approximately 4,300, or two-thirds less. Further reductions in death rate from this ailment are predicted within the next few years.

Appendicitis itself is seldom fatal. Deaths almost always are caused by complications that need not have become serious if the person with the condition had done the right thing. The right thing, in such cases, is to call a physician for any abdominal pain that persists. The wrong thing is to take a cathartic under such circumstances.

Factors contributing to reduction of deaths from appendicitis include improved technique in operation and improved methods in treatment before and after the operation. Another factor is the use of sulfonamides and antibiotics. The public has become educated, too, to the necessity of seeking treatment early, before serious complications set in.

Ten years ago the United States had the highest death rate from appendicitis of any civilized country in the world, but today deaths from appendicitis are comparatively few.

Around the Town

With the Editor

A couple of weeks ago when I accompanied Walter Miller and Lois Griggs and their mothers to Pontiac, Mich.. we almost drove into the heart of Detroit before discovering that we were on the wrong road.

But it wasn't all my fault. I followed directions given to me by Derwood Ridgway — and I thought he was my friend. Oh, well, we weren't too much out of our way. just a couple or three miles. If Derwood tries to follow highway 25 to Pontiac in the future, he'd better take a lunch with him.

Speaking of traveling reminds me that every time the D. W. Yeisers go on a vacation trip, they come home with tall tales about freaks of nature they've seen or heard about. Last year it was a hill where their car coasted uphill from a standstill. This year it's a building somewhere in Wisconsin that has a particular board which allows a person on one end to see over the head of a person on the other end regardless of how tall either person is — — or something.

As I wrote this column, the thought occurred to me, "I like summer, — but—." These gol-danged oats bugs are driving me nuts. Anybody know how to keep 'em off?

Several local youngsters are taking advantage of the opportunity to win that bicycle the News will give away in a couple of weeks. Those selling subscriptions include Donald Baker, Johnel Haverstock, Delores Davis, Kate Shuff, Eddie Collins, Leah Coburn, Linda Shuff, Jerry Dilley, Peggy Braden, Tommy Hollabaugh, Judy Hughes and William Griggs.

Just a reminder to them—turn in your sales promptly so that the paper can be sent to the new subscribers right away. And don't pass up those who all ready subscribe to the paper. There are several from this community who are behind one, two and three years. They can pay up their back subscriptions for just one dollar a year.

Lions Club Treats 2nd Eye Case

The St. Joe Lions Club recently sent Lois Griggs of near St. Joe to the institute in Pontiac, Mich., which specializes in the correction of crossed eyes. This represents the second project completed by the club in its sight conservation activities.

The trip to Pontiac was made on Friday, June 30, with Ted Haberkorn driving. Miss Griggs was accompanied by her mother on the trip. Walter Miller of Newville, who went to Pontiac last November for correction, also went on the trip with his mother to receive a post-treatment check-up on his eyes.

The group left St. Joe at 5:15 a.m. and arrived at Pontiac at 9:45 a.m. The treatments for the two young people lasted until 2 p.m. and the trip home was completed by 6:30 p.m.

Descriptive booklets concerning the institute are available at the News Office.

CONCORD JUNIOR HOME EC

The July meeting of the Concord Junior Home Ec Club was held at the home of Mrs. Rose Means on July 3. The main event of the evening was a very thorough lesson on reupholstery of furniture given by the project leader, Mrs. Ellen Fetters. She is planning a special interest lesson later to be held in her home at which time she will reupholster a chair. Any members interested can meet there.

There was some discussion concerning a booth at the fair this fall and it was decided to start working on it so that by next meeting at Harriett Baker's a good start will have been made. Camp was discussed and everyone would like to go but . . . .

Nine members were able to go to Fairfield Township on June 30 as guests of that club and they told the others of the fine meeting.

Three memebrs and two guests attended the picnic at Auburn on June 20.

A special number was then "rendered." Twelve members responded to roll call—"Good eating places."

Katy Crow substituted as chorister and led the group in singing "God Bless America." Everyone enjoyed the "eats" afterwards and discussion was continued on fair plans around the table.

FIRST WHEAT IN

The first wheat came in to the local elevator on Tuesday from the farm of Virgil Smith.

It tested 12.4 percent moisture, 59 lb. per bushel and price, $1.98.

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

THERE are still a number of farmers — a surprisingly large number—who still use the old hand pump and a bucket to supply the water needs on their farms. An electrically-operated automatic water system can do the job better and cheaper and will eliminate a lot of back-breaking labor.

Let's take an ordinary family farm, as an example. A family of five persons, with three horses, five cows, three hogs and 300 chickens, will use about 150 gallons of water daily, or 54,750 gallons annually. The total amount of water consumed in a year will weigh over 228 tons, and if it has to be carried from the well in a 12-quart bucket—well, your muscles ache just thinking about it. And suppose the bucket was carried an average of 50 feet from the well to the barn or house? It adds up to a trip of 340 miles a year.

In almost any farm community in mid-America, 1,000 gallons of water can be delivered wherever it's needed for a few pennies. It's been proven, too, that farm families with automatic water systems will use three or four times as much water as they did when they had to pump it by hand. More water means better health and sanitation in the home, and increased production in the dairy barn, poultry house or garden.

A constant source of fresh water in drinking cups in the dairy barn helps the cows give more milk, and that same source enables the farmer to maintain high standards of sanitation in milk equipment and storage. Automatic fountains in the chicken house help the young birds grow faster and increases egg production. There's no fear of a long dry season spoiling the vegetable garden when water is readily available for irrigation.

Any way you look at it, an automatic water system is one of the best investments you can make for your farm and family!

SCRIPTURE: The Book of Ruth. DEVOTIONAL READING: Proverbs 31: 10-31.

Why Families?

Lesson for July 16, 1950

THE ENGLISH language has a word not found in the original languages of the Bible; it is not in Latin, German or French for that matter. It is the word "home." But homes were not invented in England or America; the ancient peoples of the world had homes even if they had no special word for them. The story of Ruth is a home-story, a family tale. It comes from the times of the Judges, which were very rugged times indeed.

Dr. Foreman

To read the Book of Judges you would think that everything was plots and wars and murder. There isn't a peaceful story in the book. And then comes the story of Ruth, to remind us that even in those terrible times there were happy people, people who minded their business and worked hard and stayed home and loved one another. The bright spots in today's vast seas of misery are just what they were in Ruth's time.

• • •

Working Together

"A HOME is a place to go when everything else has shut up" is not a true proverb. For if that is all it is, it is not a home. It is only a boarding house and not a very attractive one at that.

It is the people who live in it who make it. But just throwing people together within four walls, even if the people are closely related, will not make a home. When you read the story of Ruth you see one thing standing out: they are all working people.

To this day, there are fewer divorces in the country than in the cities, and one big reason for that is that country families have to work together, while city families often have little in common. In the country everybody turns to and does something about the house, everybody helps everybody else; while in the cities where so much is done by machines and houses are very small, there isn't much a family can do together. Still, it is worth while for any family to try to work out something that they can all do together.

Unity in Variety

IT is striking that in the Bible the warmest expression of devotion shown by one person to another, is expressed by one woman to her mother-in-law, by Ruth to Naomi. Ruth was of a different race and generation, and nation. Yet she takes Naomi's family for her own.

That illustrates another beautiful feature of living in a family. You learn to live with all kinds of people. Even in so small a group, no two are alike. And the thing that holds a family together almost better than anything else is not similar tastes in breakfast foods, or identical educations, or equality of age or temperament: it is common ideals. It is agreement about the important things in life.

What do you, for example, think is the greatest thing in the world? Do your family agree with you? If they do (or you with them) then you have a basis for a happy family life.

Unity in Worship

HIGH ideals, held by all in common, are almost the best family cement; but better and best is religion. When you read the story of Ruth you are struck not only by their high ideals but by their natural, heart-felt, everyday religious faith. It comes out in the remarks of Boaz. It was one of the things that no doubt had attracted Ruth to the family in the first place. The climax of her famous promise to her mother-in-law is "thy God shall be my God."

It is at best confusing, and at worst tragic, when families are divided in their religious faith. Some one has said that when the father belongs to one denomination and the wife to another, the children are likely to become Nothingarians.

The old family pew, happily not out of style in many places, is more than a quaint custom. It is a fine symbol of family life at its best. Where are the most of the broken homes? Among the families where father and mother send the children to Sunday school while they themselves lie around at home reading the paper, or among the families where all go to the house of God together? A home without real religion is a home without its surest foundation.

JUST ONE SPRAY EFFECTIVE FOR CHINCH BUGS, REPORT

Chinch bugs are on the march this year and so far tests have shown only one effective spray to combat the destructive insects, according to Dale Wicoff and Donald Martin, agriculture instructors at the Spencerville and St. Joe schools.

After inspecting crops in this area, they report that nicotine sulphate is the only spray insecticide that has been effective against the chinch bugs, and they urge farmers in this area to use that particular spray.

However, they warn that one spraying will not necessarily stop the insects as they move from crop to crop.

For further information farmers can contact either Mr. Wicoff or Mr. Martin.

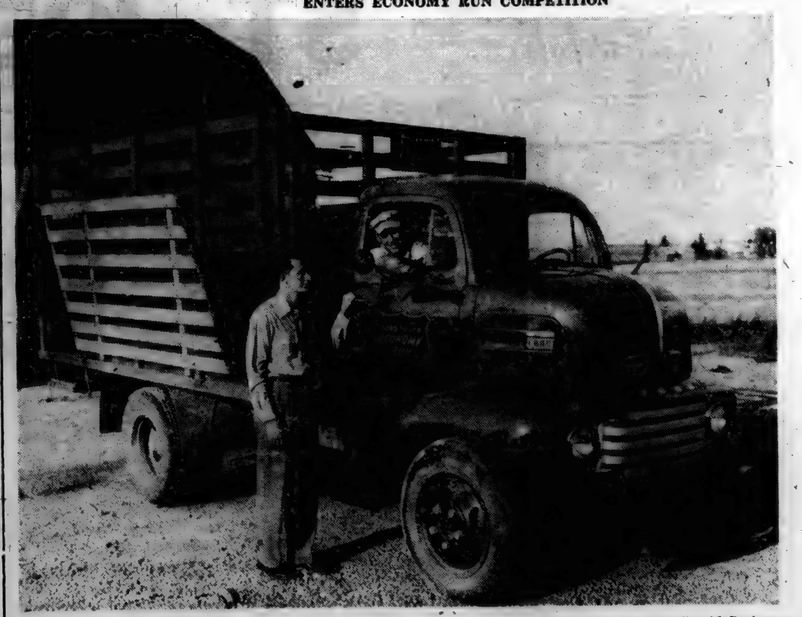
ENTERS ECONOMY RUN COMPETITION



This week the Ford Motor Company and the Ford Dealer of America are launching the nationwide Ford Truck Economy Run, a comprehensive truck operating study that will cover a six-months period ending December 31, 1950, according to Henry Schwartz of Schwartz Auto Company of Grabill.

The Ford Economy Run, Schwartz stated, will include thousands of Ford truck owners all over America who will keep complete day-to-day records of their actual truck operations, including every mile travelled, every load hauled, every gallon of gas and oil consumed and total repairs and mainttanance.

Harold Springer, R1, Grabill, Ind., will be Grabill's entrant in the Ford Truck Economy Run Schwartz announced.. Springer's truck, a Ford F-5 COE Stock model, can be identified by the oragne and black shields which are mounted on all trucks throughout the nation that are participating in the run.

Springer was selected because he has operated trucks for many years and because of his experience and familiarity with trucking problems.

"I'm pleased to be a part of this big truck economy study, which will give many facts and figures important to truck owners," said Springer. "Many farmers use trucks, and, of course, any study that might show how they can be used more economically should be of great interest to farmers everywhere."

Every Ford truck model, from 95-horsepower pickups to 145-horsepower big jobs, and every truck-using vocation will be represented in the Ford Truck Economy Run in sufficient numbers, Schwartz declared, so that results are expected to demonstrate not only the economy of Ford Truck operation, but to establish a realistic 'yardstick" of truck operating economy for all truck-using industries as well.

News Wins First League Game

The St. Joe News softball team won its first game in Auburn league competition last Friday evening. The score was 14 to 10 against Wakefield's of Waterloo.

The game was sloppily played with base runners advancing at will on slow fielding and dropped fly balls. There were nine errors.

Jim Kinsey started the game for St. Joe, but was off form, walking three men in the first inning. Wayne Surfus replaced him in the second and finished the game.

St. Joe had its batting eye in form getting seventeen hits. Walt Stewart, playing his first game for St. Joe, collected four for five. Bob Walter and Pete Akey each had three for five.

Everyone knows electricity is about the cheapest thing a family buys. It looks even more like a bargain when you consider that mountains are moved to bring it to you . . . mountains of equipment, materials, supplies, moved from many sources to wherever they're needed to keep electricity coming constantly your way.

This company and the others in the American Gas and Electric System are spending nearly $130 each minute, night and day, for new plants and facilities alone—an investment of $340,000,000 during the 2,628,000 minutes in the five years between 1947 and '51!

But this spending for new construction accounts for only a portion of the mountains of things we buy. For day-to-day operating items we spend millions more. Last year Indiana & Michigan Electric Company paid $5,853,000 for coal, bought hundreds of miles of wire, forests of poles, gas and tires for 463 company vehicles, and large quantities of many other things.

And all this is money spent for tangible goods. Indiana & Michigan's annual operating payroll of $5,908,000 and taxes close to $6,252,000 are both outlays that contribute importantly to the communities we serve.

Lots of people benefit from this spending, but our customers most of all. At an average of less than 17 cents a day for all household uses, electricity is a bargain indeed.

FISH OF INDIANA

BLUEGILL

DESCRIPTION: Member of the sunfish family. Adult with body very deep and compressed; young more slender; head and mouth small, maxillary barely reaching eye; dorsal spines longer than in most other sunfish; flap of opercle in adult short, broad, black, the upper and lower edges narrowly pale; anal fin with 10 rays; pectorals pointed; color greenish-olive on back, paler on sides; dorsal with a black blotch on base of hind rays; old adults often dusky with belly coppery red. Length up to 10 inches; weight up to one pound.
DISTRIBUTION: Occurs throughout Indiana but is more common in the Lake region. Found in most farm ponds.
HABITAT: Prefer the deeper and clearer lakes and are not adverse to an abundance of aquatic vegetation; travel and feed in schools.
STOCKING: The Division of Fish and Game has stocked this species heavily in the past but some curtailment is in force at present.
SPAWNING—PROPAGATION: Few bluegills spawn before the last of April. Most of the nesting takes place during late May and June and in late seasons well into July. Nests are likely to be found on sandy shoals or in thick vegetation. Due to its pond loving habits, the Bluegill is a particularly easy fish to propagate.
FOOD: Small crustaceans, aquatic insects and vegetation.
SEASON: At present a year around open season. This is set by Discretionary Order of the Director of the Indiana Department of Conservation. Keepers —5 inches. LEGAL BAG LIMIT —25.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Saturday was a busy day at the local elevator. Cliff Billow said that 100 loads of wheat were taken in for a total of 7,741 bushels. The elevator was open from 7 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. That's a good day's work - taking in a sample to test, dumping the load, moving in a new load and repeating the process 99 times in one day.

I stood around a while to watch the proceedings and managed to get in the way. Dick Crow and Sam Miller came in at about the same time and we chewed the fat until the heat got us. Dick suggested that we flip coins and "odd man buys." We did. —Thanks, Sam.

The only time I win anything is when it's for a nickel bottle of pop.

I forgot to mention before that the Spencerville Fire Department has a new whistle on the fire house. Maurie Hollabaugh told me about it a few weeks ago. I guess it's a loud one. He said that if St. Joe is awakened by a fire whistle and it isn't ours, it's Spencerville's.

A few St. Joe residents have had trouble with rusty water in the pipes in their homes and have hastily blamed the town's water system for it. I had some brown water come from an outside faucet at my home Saturday, and it took fifteen or twenty minutes for it to run clear. There's nothing wrong with our water system—no need to put the blame there. The mains have to be opened periodically at the fire plugs to drain the rusty water, just as I dained the pipes at the house—pipes which hadn't been used for some time. Rusty water was to be expected. Ft. Wayne had the same trouble once or twice when I lived there so St. Joe isn't alone. If anyone does have trouble and the rust doesn't clear up in a short time, tell the town board.

Rev. W. H. Baker stopped at the house Monday noon and relayed the information that his son, Dan, caught a 28-inch northern pike below the dam at Spencerville Friday. It weighed about 8 pounds. He caught it just before the rehearsal for his sister's wedding, so things were held up a while.

The wife, the kids and I and the Haverstock and McElroy families have gone on a couple of picnics and of course the McElroy twin baby boys are with us. The "stinkers," Mike and Davey, always make a fuss over babies—they do when Esther's sisters, Ruth Schafenacker and Lucille Hall of Ft. Wayne, bring their baby girls here to visit. Just for the fun of it Esther asked Mike the other day if he wouldn't like a little sister.

"No, I want twin brothers."

"WHAT!"

"Well, maybe one girl."

CURIE REUNION

The twentieth annual reunion of the Catherine-Christian Curie family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Moore at Payne, O., July 16.

Everyone enjoyed a bountiful basket dinner at the noon hour.

A short business meeting was conducted by the president. This year's officers were re-elected for next year, William Moore—president, and Joan Curie — secretary - treasurer. Next year the group is invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Peck of Anderson.

Nancy and Marjorie Cook led the group in several contests. Time was spent is recalling memorable incidents of the group.

In the afternoon the hostess served ice-cold lemonade. A large decorated cake with the words "Curies 1950" written on top was also enjoyed.

Those attending included Mrs. Amanda Klopfenstein, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Koch, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Koch, Mrs. and Mrs. Stanley Koch, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beams, Mrs. Cora Curie, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Jump, Mr. and Mrs. Garold Cook and family, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Brown and son, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Jarrett and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Fredericks and family, Mr. and Mrs. William Moore and family and Mr. Henry Moore.

Group To Fight Phone Rate Increase

Because of an anticipated increase in operating expenses in the next two years, the Indiana Associated Telephone Corp., whose home office is in Lafayette, has filed a request to increase telephone rates.

The company which operates 66 exchanges in Indiana, including St. Joe, Butler, Angola, Fremont, Hamilton, Orland and Pleasant Lake, says it will need an additional million dollars in revenue next year, which is an increase of approximately 20 percent over the 1949 figure of $4,575,146.

The proposed rate increase for St. Joe is from 33 to 73 percent. At the present time a one-party business phone rents at $3.75 per month, while the proposed rate has been set at $6.50, an increase of slightly over 73 percent. The present one-party residence rate is $2.75 per month. The proposed rate is $4.00, an increase of 45 percent.

The reason for the proposed increase, as explained by C. F. Parrett, district manager, and William Dawson, district plant supervisor, is that expenses are mounting annually because of increased service, improvements, replacements, higher taxes and higher wages for employees.

In 1949 the company paid only 5 percent interest on common stock and at the present rate of increased expenses, by 1952 there will be no dividends for the common stockholders, according to Mr. Parrett.

Because of the greatly increased demand for telephone service, which was 100 percent during the period 1940-1949, and which is still mounting, more capital is needed to purchase new equipment and build new lines. Mr. Parrett said the concern could not attract new investors unless they pay at least 5 percent dividends.

The hearing for the proposed new rates has been scheduled for August 7 at Indianapolis. However, a group of Butler citizens including the Butler Town Board and the board of directors of the Butler Chamber of Commerce, has asked that the hearing be held in Butler instead of Indianapolis so that local subscribers can testify regarding inadequate service. If the hearing cannot be scheduled for Butler, an effort will be made to get as many people as possible from this community to go to Indianapolis to testify.

The following table shows the present and proposed rates and the percentage increase for St. Joe:

Ritenour-Baker

Miss Phyllis Ann Baker, daughter of Pastor and Mrs. W. H. Baker of Spencerville, became the bride of Norman Ritenour, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ritenour of Spencerville, on Sunday, July 16, at 2 o'clock in the St. Peter's Lutheran Church at Spencerville.

The bride's father officiated and her brother, Paul, gave her in marriage. The ceremony was preceded by a musicale presented by Miss Jo Bowser of St. Joe, pianist, and Miss Phyllis Chaney, vocalist, of Spencerville.

The bride wore a gown of white skinner satin with a nylon yoke and a band forming an off-the-shoulder effect. The fitted sleeves came to points over her hands and the full skirt fell from a dropped waist line and ended in a long train.

The fingertip veil of net was caught up with orange blossoms and a tiara of orange blossoms held her veil. She carried an arrangement of pink and white rose buds.

Miss Eloise Fasig of Wooster, O., attended as maid-of-honor. She wore a gown of blue taffeta with cap sleeves and an off-the-shoulder neck-line. Butterfly bustles trimmed the full skirts of the gowns of the attendants. Miss Shirley Ritenour, sister of the groom, and Miss Jacquelyn Yoder and Miss Evelyn Mower of Wooster, O., were the attendants. Their dresses were identically styled in orchid pink and yellow. They wore white horse-hair braid picture hats.

The maid-of-honor carried pink carnations in a colonial bouquet. The others carried blue and yellow carnation bouquets, styled to match. The little flower girl, Linda Lee Baker of Aliquippa, Pa., niece of the bride, wore pale blue dotted Swiss. The ring-bearer was Robert William DeGraff of Chicago, cousin of the bride.

Charles Haupt of Spencerville attended the groom as best man. The ushers were Daniel Baker of Iberia, O., Fred Snyder and Russell Egos of Ft. Wayne.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Baker chose a green and black sheer dress with black accessories. Mrs. Ritenour wore a blue dotted sheer dress with a lace yoke. She wore white accessories. Both corsages were of red roses.

A reception for 200 guests was held immediately following the ceremony in the church parlors. Those serving were Mrs. Daniel Baker of Iberia, O., Misses Pat Fasig and Ann Norton of Wooster, O., Miss Maxene Hoover and Miss Pat Pratt of Spencerville.

For her going-away outfit the bride chose a yellow gabardine suit with a large yellow linen hat and black accessories. Upon their return from a trip into Canada, the young couple will be at home at Rt. 1, Spencerville.

Time to Shift the Spotlight

No Telephone Rate Hike, Please

Just a year ago last Friday, July 14, the News published an open letter to the Indiana Associated Telephone Corp. concerning the poor service from the old telephone equipment in use in St. Joe. The letter pointed out that the cost of maintaining a telephone was relatively high.

The old equipment is still in use, but the telephone company has filed a request with the Indiana Public Service Commission to increase telephone rental rates. The proposed rate increases would raise the rental of a one-party business phone in St. Joe from $3.75 to $6.50 per month. The present one-party residence rate is $2.75; the proposed rate is $4.00. The new raises would bring an additional million dollars in revenue for the company (rates would be raised elsewhere also), representing a 20 percent increase over the 1949 figure. More money is needed, the company says, because of increased service, improvements, replacements, higher taxes and higher wages for employees.

Improvements? Where?

Replacements? Where?

Higher wages for employees? Where?

They can't be seen in St. Joe. And until they are, there isn't any reason for St. Joe residents and business firms to pay the higher rates.

Union Members Fight Socialists' Labor Rule

One in a series of eye-witness reports
BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, England—What about the British labor union member who is loyal to his union but does not believe in Socialism?

Since Socialism is the program of the Labor party, and the Labor party is led by labor union leaders working with Fabian intellectuals, can't it be taken for granted that practically all union members are loyal to the Labor party and all that it stands for?

NOLAND

These questions are inevitably asked by an American investigator who wants to find out whether the British people are happy under Socialism and whether they recommend it to Americans as a satisfactory system of government.

The place to find the answers is in labor union meetings. At a meeting in Newcastle to which newspapermen were freely admitted, anti-Socialist labor union members frankly planned to get out as many votes against the Labor party as they could.

Money Used Against Will

In order to stop Socialism they had no choice, if they wanted to make their votes effective, but to work for and vote for the success of the Conservative party. But even though these unionists were outspoken in their opposition to the Labor government, many of them were seeing their money used to promote the success of the Labor party's campaign.

It happens this way:

Under a law enacted by the Labor party government, a labor union can vote a contribution to the Labor party. The only way the Conservative members of the union can keep from financing the opposition is to sign a statement that they don't want their money used to pay the expenses of the Labor party. That is called "contracting out." The union member who files such a statement is thus branded on the union's books as an enemy of the Labor party. This puts him on the spot. He can expect trouble. So can his family. Things may not go well for him where he works.

When the Conservative party is in power, it changes the law to what is known as "contracting in." Under this plan, a labor union member's dues may not be used to swell a gift of money to the Labor party—or any other party—unless he signs an order assigning the money to the union for political purposes. Since he may fail to sign for a number of reasons, such as needing the money that would be assessed, or plain forgetfulness, he can not be branded by his own signature as being opposed to the Labor party. He may stand on his right to object to his union's making political contributions.

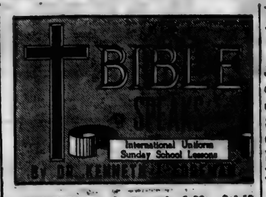
Many Oppose Labor Gov't.

Thus it is not unusual for a Labor union member to see his money go to the Labor party rather than to take a stand against the party by contracting out, yet be an active worker for the Conservative party—even, in one case in this Newcastle area, a candidate for office on the Conservative ticket.

According to polls taken by the Conservative party, about 34 per-cent of the 9,000,000 members of British Labor unions are opposed to Socialism and would vote Conservative to stop the Socialist trend.

These people believe that Socialism is organized weakness. When it rules, it weakens the country. They believe that they will do better under regulated freedom of opportunity.

They are able to fight against odds for this belief only because Britain still upholds freedom of the press, free speech, freedom of assembly and fair elections.



SCRIPTURE: I Samuel 1:26; 3:1-10, 19-21; 7:3-6, 15-16; 8-10; 12:1-5; 15:3-13. DEVOTIONAL READING: Proverbs 11: 1-14.

Many-Gifted Man

Lesson for July 23, 1950

IF A MAN can do one thing well, he can usually find his place in the world. Life being as short as it is, and the possibility of misfits being what it is, it may also be fair to say that many a man who does one thing well could have done something else better, if he had had the chance. In Grey's "Elegy," you remember the line, "Some mute inglorious Milton here may rest."

Dr. Foreman

That is, in a country church-yard may rest the bones of some hired man who, if he had had another kind of start, might have been a world-famous scholar and poet like John Milton.

Triple-Threat Men

WHAT in football is called a "triple-threat man" is to be found off the gridiron, sometimes, in real life. Once in a great while there arises a man who not only "could have done" more than one thing well, but who because of special circumstances and opportunities actually does many things well.

Such persons are rare, and far above the average. Ordinary men take such a long time becoming experts in one line that they simply don't have time in their lives to be expert at other things too. But there are geniuses with many sides, or perhaps men gifted with many talents plus an extraordinary capacity for hard work.

In our times there is Albert Schweitzer, outstanding not only as a scholar but as a musician, doctor and missionary. The President of Harvard at the present time is a noted chemist as well as a distinguished executive. Robert E. Lee was a briliant soldier who also, as an educator, left his mark on his native state to this day. Leibnitz was a diplomat and philosopher; S.B.F. Morse not only invented the telegraph but was a painter of unusual ability; the man who thought up the idea of savings banks was a minister of the Gospel; King David was a poet, musician, general and monarch.

Samuel the Versatile

SAMUEL, Judge of Israel, was another such man. "Jack of all trades but master of none" does not describe him, for he was master of whatever he did. He has gone down in history as a prophet—what in our times is called a preacher; but this was by no means all. He served his generation in other ways as well.

He was the chief executive of the people, king without the title. Though possessed of dictatorial powers, when during a wave of unpopularity he resigned, and dared his critics to produce one single case of dishonesty or graft, none was brought against him.

He was a circuit judge, going from one city to another dispensing justice. He acted as a priest, indeed as the high priest of his people. We know of one occasion when he led his people in battle, and he was as successful as if war had always been his business. He was a kingmaker, for God entrusted to him twice the delicate mission of selecting Israel's king.

Times and the Man

TWO thoughts strike one who reads the story of Samuel. One is the way his great and many-sided powers were used for public service. Put into modern terms, he could have made a fortune if he had "stuck to private practice" and used his talents for himself. But at no time and in no way did Samuel work for Samuel. He worked for God and his country, and he died a poor but honored man.

One of the greatest needs of the nation today is men of Samuel's calibre, triple-threat men.

We have plenty of small-calibre bureaucrats, and we have plenty of large-calibre men who are quite selfish. How few unselfish large-calibre men there are! The other thought is that the times and the man go together. A man's greatness comes in large part from his opportunities.

John Milton helped make England—but England also helped make him. Samuel helped make Israel, but at some other stage in history, he might have lived and died a country priest.

Let no man think himself self-made; not even a great man. Without the God who endows him with his gifts, without the times that call forth the gifts, even the most gifted shrink to little or nothing.

Baughman-Likes

The marriage of Miss Juanita June Likes to Estel Baughman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Baughman of Newville, took place at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, July 2, in the Church of Christ at Newville. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ethel Likes, also of Newville.

The Rev. William DeLaughter, brother-in-law of the groom, officiated at the single-ring ceremony before a background of large baskets of red and pink roses mixed with snow balls and sweet williams.

A musicale was presented by Miss Jean Perkins, pianist, and Mrs. Lora Hart, soloist, including "On Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly."

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Lamont Likes, chose a gown of white bridal satin with a nylon net yolk and an off-the-shoulder effect of satin, a fitted bodice which buttoned down the front with small satin covered buttons and long sleeves forming points over hed hands, with the full skirt forming a long train. Her finger-tip length veil of nylon tulle was attached to a ruffled head piece. She carried an arm bouquet of pink and white gladioli tied with satin ribbon. Her only jewelry was a two-strand pearl necklace, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Kathryn Wetoskey of New Haven, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore a gown of white organdy over nile green satin, styled with a high neck line and cap sleeves. Her veil was of nile green held in place by a halo of green flowers. She carried an arm bouquet of peach and white gladioli and wore a rhinestone necklace, a gift of the bride.

Carl Wetoskey of New Haven served as best man.

Ushers were LeRoy and Robert Baughman, brothers of the groom.

The bride's mother chose a dress of navy and white chiffon with white accessories. Mrs. Baughman wore a dress of pink and blue flowered silk. Both wore corsages of white gardenias.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church basement which was decorated in pink and white with a three tiered wedding cake centering the bride's table.

Those helping serve were Mrs. Floyd Roberts, Mrs. Daisy Roberts, Miss Barbara Likes, sister of the bride, and the Misses Elsie and Rozella Baughman, sisters of the groom.

The couple will reside in St. Joe with the bride's grandmother for a short time.

Party Shortcake !

Truly a party pie is this sweet biscuit shortcake cut into wedges, then heaped high with raspberries and glorified with whipped cream cheese piping.

For gala vacation parties during the summer, solve dessert problems with a deluxe shortcake. Fluffy shortcakes made with enriched flour please both eye and palate, and score on good nutrition, too.

Who could resist taking their B-vitamins and iron in the raspberry party shortcake pictured? Allow about five minutes to mix the simple drop biscuit batter which needs only to be spread in a greased nine-inch layer cake pan. The batter looks lumpy as it goes into the hot oven, but it comes out golden brown, fluffy and even-textured in 20 to 25 minutes.

You may want to split the big biscuit in half and fill as well as top it with fresh raspberries. To decorate, whip cream cheese fluffy with a little milk and pile into pastry bag. Pipe around each wedge.

Once raspberry shortcake was strictly a summertime treat, but now its refreshing flavor provides a lift all the year around, for frozen or canned raspberries make a delectable topping, too.

RASPBERRY SHORTCAKE

2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
6 tablespoons shortening
⅔ to 1 cup milk
Sweetened raspberries
Whipped cream

Sift together flour, salt, baking powder and sugar. Cut or rub in shortening. Add milk to make a thick batter, stirring only until flour is well moistened. Spread in ungreased 9-inch layer cake pan. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Cut in pie-shaped wedges. Heap with sweetened raspberries. Garnish with whipped cream. Makes 1 9-inch shortcake.

Hattie Fairfield Passes Away

Hattie Hollabaugh Fairfield was born on July 8, 1872, to William L. and Mary Case Hollabaugh. She was the oldest of eight children. She passed away at her home in Spencerville on July 16, 1950, following an illness of almost four years. Ot this time she was confined to her bed for three years with a complication of diseases.

On December 30, 1897, she was united in marriage to William H. Fairfield. To this union were born three children, two of whom passed away in infancy. One daughter, Anna Helena, survives.

For many years Mrs. Fairfield was a faithful member of the Lutheran Church in Spencerville, having joined by letter following her marriage. In fact Mrs. Fairfield, as a child, attended the dedication of this church.

In her earlier days she was a very active worker. She was president of the Christian Endeavor, a teacher of the teen age boys' class and later the teacher of the Martha class. She was well-versed in the Bible and toward the end of her days enjoyed having the Bible read to her.

In that period of time known as the gay nineties, Mrs. Fairfield was an excellent seamstress and worked at this art for a period of twelve years. Many a bride has proudly worn the results of her toil. In later years she had to lay aside all such work.

Surviving Mrs. Fairfield are the following brothers and sisters: Bertha Baker of Mishawaka; Ernest Hollabaugh of Logansport; Eva Pflaumer of Spencerville; Esther Hollabaugh of Richmond; Sylvia Ginther of Spencerville and Stanley Hollabaugh of St. Joe.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my thanks to all those have shown their love and sympathy by cards, kind words and flowers and in many other ways at the death of my mother.

POLIO PRECAUTIONS

RECOMMENDED BY THE NATIONAL FOUNDATION FOR INFANTILE PARALYSIS

WHEN POLIO IS AROUND, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis recommends these simple precautions: Keep children with their own friends and away from people they have not been with right along. Don't become exhausted through work or hard play. Don't stay too long in cold water or sit around in wet clothes. And always wash hands before eating. Watch for feverishness, sore throat, headache, upset stomach or sore muscles. They may—or may not—mean polio. Call your doctor and then, if help is needed contact the National Foundation Chapter in your area.

Fall Pasture Fertilization Adds Grazing Days, Cuts Feed Costs and Boosts Profits

Top-dressing pastures with a complete fertilizer this fall means extra grazing days next spring.

TOP-DRESSING your pastures this fall with a complete fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphate and potash will give your beef and dairy cattle extra grazing days next spring, cut down your feed bill, boost meat and milk output and reduce production costs, reports the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

The fertilizer can be added any time this fall before freezing.

The committee cites these advantages of using a complete fertilizer:

1—The nitrogen in the fertilizer gives the legume-grass crop needed nourishment for fast early growth in spring before soil nitrogen itself is available and before the legume nodule bacteria begin to fix nitrogen in the soil.

2—A firm foundation of phosphate and potash is essential for higher crop yields. Nitrogen needs the support of these nutrients to do its best work; phosphate and potash cannot function without nitrogen.

When the legume-grass crop provides earlier spring grazing, you need fewer days of barn feeding. This means a saving in the feed bill.

Spreading fertilizer in the fall spreads the work too. Farmers have more time for such work in fall than in spring, and the turf is more solid.

Plant food added in fall has a chance to get down where the roots are, through freezing and thawing periods during winter. Nutrients are then available for the legume roots when spring growth starts.

You don't have to work the fertilizer into the soil. Grass roots close to the surface take up the soluble plant food.

Farmers planning fall pasture improvement work can get advice from their county agents or state agronomists on the kind and amount of fertilizer to use. Tests show that applications of 300 to 600 pounds per acre produce profitable results.

Socialists Pick British Child's Life Job at 11

One in a series of eye-witness reports
BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

CARDIFF, Wales—Can school children be lined up at the age of 11 and separated into two groups, one to go no further than through grammar school, the other to be headed for the professions and leadership in business and public affairs?

NOLAND

The British say that this is not only possible, but that it is desirable. The American visitor can only think of the effect on the children that he knows at home and shudder. His faith in a social and economic system which thrives on an open road to the White House for every boy with the will, character, ability and ambition to fight for it simply denies the American visitor the capacity to look at this 11-year-old culling out with an open mind.

But that's what they do in Britain. They run tests on kids when they are 11, and they say to Bill: "Bill, you go this way through grade school and you are done with your schooling. You are to learn a trade or drive a truck or spend your life as a docker down on the waterfront." And they say to John: "John, you are to go this way, on to higher education for the law or medicine or engineering or a career in the civil service."

Mere Tools Of The State

And that is the way they go. That's what happens in a country where the citizen is not a free individual but merely a tool of the state—a nail to be driven, a tire to be blown up, a brick to be laid, a government project.

Defenders of the system say that, at the age of 11, a child has developed its dominant traits to the point where a skilled examiner can tell whether he will be happier working with his hands than with his mind.

The Germans say that if a boy is told at about the age of 11 that he is fitted to become a mechanic he will accept his lot with pleasure, will be satisfied to take training to be a good mechanic and will become a better mechanic at an earlier age than if he had to find out by disappointing experiences in school that books and theory are not for him.

For Equal Pay For All Work

Britain's acceptance of this device is not entirely Socialistic, but the Socialists have adopted it—hoping it will avoid the misdirection of much human energy and ability.

Under Socialism, all work is the same, all is equally important to the welfare of all the people, and all should command the same pay. So the inducement of achievement in the more exacting demands of the professions and management, and the rewards of higher pay in this field, are eliminated. The man who assembles the car is just as important as the engineer who designed it or the doctor who uses it to make his calls on the sick.

The American tendency is to judge and respect a man according to what he has done with his natural endowment of ability.

Fall At 30, Succeed At 40

But the American has seen too many 30-year-old failures turn into 40-year-old successes to believe that any one is smart enough to lay out the future of a boy or girl at the age of 11. He even goes so far as to distrust the theory of education which assumes to say with much assurance that it can forecast adult performance on childhood promise.

The volume of support which the system commands is bound to impress the layman. The honesty of certain advocates of the plan earns the respect of fair-minded people. But the American sides with the American child under the American system.

Final Rites For Nancy Martin

Funeral services for Nancy Arvesta Martin, 75, were held at the Lutheran church at St. Joe at 2 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. C. C. Collins, pastor of the Auburn Methodist Church, of which she was a member, officiated at the services and was assisted by the Rev. W. H. Baker, pastor of the Lutheran church at St. Joe.

The St. Joe widow died in the Lutheran Hospital at Ft. Wayne at 12:08 p.m. Sunday. She was a victim of cancer. Mrs. Martin had been bedfast in her home at St. Joe for nearly four weeks before being taken to the hospital.

She had been suffering from the cancer about three months before entering the Fort Wayne hospital. Mrs. Martin was under treatment at the hospital 28 days before her death.

Mrs. Martin was born in Independence, Ind., on May 6, 1875, and was married on March 12, 1893, to Vincent Albert Martin. Mr. Martin passed away in 1921.

The couple moved to Arkansas in 1901 and made their home there before taking up residence in DeKalb County about 42 years ago.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Freda Weichart of Ft. Wayne; four sons, Cecil Martin of Wellston, Mich., Gerald Martin of Huntington, Ind., Gordon Martin of Lebanon, Ind., and Woodrow Martin of Auburn; a brother, H. T. Smith of Independence, Ind.; two sisters, Miss Alice Smith and Mrs. Faye Arvidson, both of West Lafayette, Ind.; eleven grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Burial was in the K. of P. Cemetery in St. Joe.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We have taken the agency for International Harvester silent refrigerators and home freezers. After considerable consideration we decided on the International as the most practical and durable line. We especially wish to call attention to their new line of freezers and the 7 cu. ft. in particular. We have one in operation in our store priced at $229.95—just about the price of a good cow. Yes, we believe that we'd even trade one for a good cow, just to place one quickly.

ST. JOE GROCERY

The same drying equipment can often be used for corn, small grains, and hay. Shown is one such double-duty dryer that's earning big dividends for its owner.

Whether you sell your grain or use it yourself, you'll be dollars ahead with an electric grain dryer. It's low-cost insurance against excessive spoilage of grain. It's a big help in keeping profits up when prices level off.

Now is the time to install a dryer if you want to realize fullest benefits next spring. First cost for a dryer is low, installation simple. Call on our rural representatives for free information and advice.

Proper drying cuts spoilage from:
- heating
- souring
- sprouting
- molding
- insects
- rodents

He's reaching for trouble

This farmer (and thousands more like him) may lose a finger, a hand, an arm—or even his life, as a result of carelessness like this. The minutes saved by unclogging moving machinery won't pay the doctor or hospital bills if he gets caught. Won't replace that finger, hand or arm, either! Remember: Play it safe. Stop the machine before you tinker, and the life you save may be your own.

Carelessness causes most falls to farmers. Don't be a fall guy in '50. Fix steps, stairs, ladders and floors before they fix you. Remember, falls can be fatal.

Too many drivers think this sign means "slow down and take a quick look." That's one reason why there are too many motor vehicle accidents. Stop, look, and live.

Be Careful—the life you save may be your own!

Around the Town

With the Editor

Last week the melting pot on my casting box went on the blink—the heating element burned out. The caster is used for making the cuts such as the picture news on the front page and some tire and appliance ads, etc. I had to go to Grabill and use Dee Steinger's caster and will have to do so until mine is repaired or replaced.

When I got to Dee's shop Wednesday—he recently moved his printing shop from Auburn—he, his father and Robert Norr were engaged in moving the big flat-bed press from a corner of the shop to a better location in the center, a distance of about twenty-five feet. I thought I could lend a helping hand to square things for the use of the caster. So, before I started my work, we moved the press. They had it up on several lengths of pipe used as rollers and were in the process of shoving—shoving approximately 5 tons of printing press. After I got there it took an hour and a half in addition to the time they spent before I arrived. And because I am not used to a gas-heated caster, it took me another two and a half hours to cast six cuts for last week's paper. Wonder why the paper is late?

Incidently, if your interested in what it costs to operate a newspaper, new electric casters are priced at around $450. —gulp.

The fire department made a run Friday noon for what someone called in as "three houses on fire." It turned out that the railroaders were burning brush along the right-of-way and some rubbish caught fire at the rear of the houses at Concord. The fire was extinguished by the time we got there.

Charley Koch of RR, Garrett, stopped in last week and visited a few minutes. He remarked that he has been receiving the paper for many years. Mort Olds was proprietor of the office when Charley started subscribing. The subscription price then was twenty-five cents a year, he said. I think he was a little wrong there. I looked up the old copies of the News back to 1887 and the subscription for a year was seventy-five cents. A three-month's subscription was twenty-five cents.

It's interesting to read those old issues. Here's an item from the issue of Friday, June 3, 1887, in the Concord locals:

"Charley Koch escorted his best girl to church to St. Joe last Sunday evening."

Legion Auxiliary Installs Officers

Twenty-four members and three guests met at the Legion Home on Tuesday, July 18, at 6:30. The guests were Jean Perkins, Mrs. Baugher, district president, and Mrs. McGinn, district secretary.

A lovely dinner was served by Mrs. Clayton A. Baker, Mrs. Dale Collins, Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser and Mrs. Robert Davis.

Jean Perkins gave an excellent report on Girls' State. She thanked the Auxiliary for sending her and said that she wished every girl in the U. S. could go. She was especially impressed by a speech by Mr. George Craig, national commander of the American Legion. One point of his speech dealt with the Greek elections in which he helped. A larger percentage of the Greeks voted than Americans in their elections. Successful democracy depends on ALL American people. Jean had instruction and actual experience in government. She even used a voting machine in one election.

Mrs. Baugher, district president, installed the new officers. She pinned a sweet pea corsage on each new officer in the ceremony and presented the retiring president, Mrs. Clayton A. Baker, with a past president's pin and the new president, Mrs. Harold Noragon, with the Auxiliary gavel.

This has been a successful year for the Auxiliary of Walter Whitehurst Post 283. It is a superior unit as judged by requirements of the district merit system. Mrs. Clayton A. Baker has the honor of being appointed to the office of Merit Chairman of the district.

Conservation Club To Have Practice Shoot

Because of much enthusiasm for the new conservation grounds located one-quarter mile west of Keller's Garage, it has been decided to hold a practice shoot on Sunday, July 30, at 1 o'clock. All those interested are invited to attend whether members or not.

Shooters will find here one of the most ideal locations in northeastern Indiana for this type of entertainment.

Much work has been done but the grounds are not complete. When they are, club members, their friends and the community will be proud of this project which has taken so much planning and hard work by the committee and volunteers.

It is hoped that in the near future a grand opening of these grounds can be held, at which time enterainment will be furnished for the entire family. At this time the grounds will be complete in every detail for pleasure, comfort and safety.

Ammunition will be available at the grounds.

ODE TO THE OAT BUG

How anything so infinitesimal,
Should bother and make you so dis'mal
As the little oat bugs
Those "get your goat" bugs -
Yet you say they are making life miser'able.

Perhaps you would rather they'd bite you,
Or come out in the open and fight you,
But they crawl and they creep-
Wake you up from your sleep-
And in various ways they incite you.

They caper, they walk and they ramble,
You tell 'em to "scram," they don't scramble,
You pull off their head
And leave them for dead-
But whether they are is a gamble.

You've resorted to - well, almost swearing,
A lot those "danged" oat bugs are caring,
They scamper the while,
As you swear, they just smile,
As parking space on you they're sharing.

What to do? Well, since you have got 'em,
And your eyesight's so good you can spot 'em,
Get a nice heavy brick,
About two inches thick-
When they light on you, presto, just SWAT 'em.

Gertrude Borthwick

Top-Dressing Alfalfa After First Cutting Adds Life to Stand

TOP-DRESSING alfalfa after the first cutting with phosphate and potash fertilizer will prolong the life of the alfalfa stand, promote heavier growth the rest of the season and help the legume do a better soil-building job, reports the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

Less time will be needed for the plants to push out new growth. Roots will have a better chance to store up reserves of high energy starches and sugars.

Well fed legumes can make fuller use of soil moisture and of the carbon, oxygen and other nutrients taken from the air. The tap roots of alfalfa and sweet clover can probe deeper into the soil. The phosphate and potash they carry will be distributed from the surface on down to the moist soil zone below.

When these legumes are turned under they rot quickly to form humus, because they are packed with nutrients needed by soil bacteria to break down organic matter. As this organic matter decomposes, it improves soil structure and releases plant nutrients to feed crops that follow.

Second crop alfalfa should be allowed to establish a strong new top growth before pasturing or cutting for hay. Agronomists recommend a no pasturing policy after early September. This will enable the alfalfa plants to pack their roots with plant food reserves to carry them safely through the winter and spur good growth the following spring.

Great Man's Faith

Lesson for July 30, 1950

NO MAN is too busy to serve God. He may think he is, but the excuse will not stand. There are too many busy men who do serve God. One of the most famous men in history is a shining example. If ever a King was "too busy" to attend to religion, David would have been the man. His kingdom was a new one, cemented together from tribes that had been at one another's throats not so long before. He was surrounded by enemies who kept him at war most of the time. He was commander-in-chief of the army, chief justice of such courts as there were, chief executive in civic affairs; and furthermore, the times were not "normal" but turbulent in the extreme. Still he had time for religion. He led in that as in everything else.

Dr. Foreman

Public Religion

THE first thing he did as king was to conquer the "unconquerable" city of Jerusalem, which had been in enemy hands for hundreds of years. And the next thing he did was to bring the Ark to Jerusalem and settle it there, making Jerusalem not only the civil but the religious capital of the nation.

In an almost spectacular way the king made himself sponsor for the organized religion of his people. For centuries before David, the Ark and all the formal worship that went with it had been stuck off in minor towns, inaccessible and unpopular, in fact disregarded by most of the people, as the book of Judges shows.

Now David, by bringing the Ark to Jerusalem and selecting for it a site on the city's highest hill, made sure that in his realm religion would never be an obscure thing. Sometimes we hear people say, "I believe in Christianity but not in the church." That is like saying "I believe in justice but not in the courts." "I believe in love but not in marriage." "I believe in education but not in schools."

David knew that if organized, public religion has to hide in holes and corners, it will not only lose respect, but people will soon forget all about it. The Ark was not an idol; neither is the Church. But if the Ark then, and the Church now, do anything else for religion, at least they keep it out where people can't help knowing about it.

Private Religion

DAVID knew, as some of his successors did not, that public worship is not the whole of religion. His personal relationships were controlled by his religious faith.

Take the case of Mephibosheth (chap. 9) for instance. If David had followed the usual pattern, he would have had poor Mephibosheth beheaded before breakfast. For this young man was the one remaining grandson (so far as we knew then) of David's bitter enemy, King Saul.

In those days you always went on the principle that if a man was your enemy, so were all his relatives. It was generally true, too; and under the customs of those days Mephibosheth might have been expected to plan revenge, sooner or later, for his grandfather's and father's deaths.

David did not let him sink into obscurity but gave him what we would call a pension, a princely one too, treating him as if he were one of his own family.

The Inner Life

WELL, religion has its outside but it also has its inside. Public worship and loving your neighbors are not the root of religion but its fruit. The roots of it are deep within the soul. And David had that true faith which comes from within.

He was humble, not proud, as Psalm 24 shows. Great king though he was, he knew there is only one King of Glory. He was confident, as every leader must be; but his confidence was based not on himself but on his God. (II Sam. 22, which is re-written as Psalm 18.)

And when David sinned, as he shamefully did, he did not make excuses for himself or sink with easy satisfaction into his worst self. If to be a saint is to be without sin, then David was no saint (and you are one?). But if being a saint means that in spite of sin one comes to have the cleansing kind of experience that Psalm 51 records, then David was a man after God's own heart.

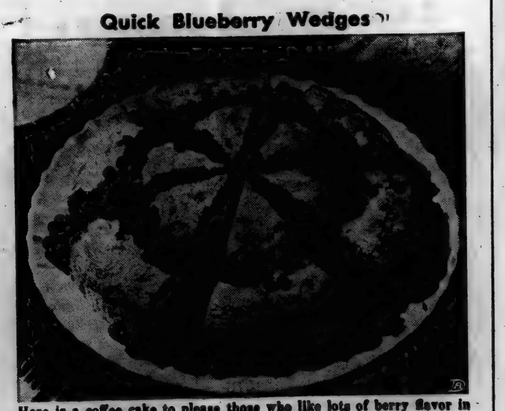
Quick Blueberry Wedges



Here is a coffee cake to please those who like lots of berry flavor in their breads. Fresh blueberries are generously distributed in, atop, and between wedges of this quick coffee cake.

Blueberries are most often found in a pie, but there are many happy combinations of this tart berry with vitamin-enriched flour. For instance, there is the unusual blueberry coffee cake pictured, a berry cake that no man can resist, or woman either!

Because the batter is combined by the quick muffin method, blueberry wedges are a pleasure for the home cook to make. She can be pleased, too, with the good nutrition this enriched sweet bread provides.

Blueberry coffee cake can bring its good taste and B-vitamins and iron to almost any breakfast menu, but here is just one: chilled melon, scrambled eggs or French omelet, quick blueberry coffee cake, coffee or milk.

Occasionally include blueberry wedges and other sweet breads at luncheon, for they are enjoyable with salads and many luncheon dishes. Salad plates might include grated carrot and pineapple salad, cherry gelatin mold, deviled eggs and a fluff of cream cheese, sprinkled with chopped walnuts. The perfect complement for such a meal is warm blueberry coffee cake served with butter or margarine and glasses of iced tea or coffee.

QUICK BLUEBERRY COFFEE CAKE

1½ cups sifted enriched flour
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
½ to ⅔ cup milk
3 tablespoons melted shortening
2 cups blueberries
¼ cup sugar
Additional blueberries

Sift together flour, ½ cup sugar, baking powder and salt. Beat egg. Add milk and shortening. Stir into flour mixture, mixing until batter is smooth. Stir in 1¼ cups blueberries. Pour into greased 9-inch layer pan. Arrange remaining ¾ cup blueberries over batter in a circle. Sprinkle ¼ cup sugar over coffee cake. Bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) 25 minutes. When coffee cake is baked, cut in wedges, pull apart, retaining the circular shape and garnish with additional berries. Makes 1 9-inch coffee cake.

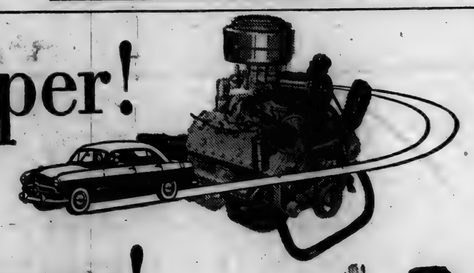
What a stepper!

Just hint to the gas pedal and she steps out like no other low-priced car. And that's true whether you're driving a Ford V-8 or "Six". But this high-stepper is a low spender when it comes to costs. You can own a V-8, for example, for hundreds less than most "Sixes"—and a Ford "Six" for even less.



What a stopper!

This '50 Ford actually helps you apply the brakes. They're 35% easier-acting King-Size Brakes that use car momentum to help you stop. Like Ford's extra-rugged "Lifeguard" Body, they give you the kind of protection you'd expect only of costliest cars. And for added safety and comfort, you ride low and level in the "Mid Ship" section of the car, between the wheels—not over them. You're cradled in comfort on "Hydra-Coil" front springs and "Para-Flex" rear springs that give a road-hugging smoothness truly amazing.

What a looker!

Yes, again in '50, Ford received the Fashion Academy Gold Medal as "Fashion Car of the Year." And Fords stay good looking because their baked-on finish is "made to live outdoors." That means high resale value which, together with Ford's low running costs, puts Ford farther out front as America's savingest car.

And what a saver— all the way!

SPENCER TWP. HOME EC.

The June meeting of the Spencer Township Home Economics Club was held at the home of Mrs. Maxine Kelley with Mrs. Mildred Jordan and Mrs. Berniece Jones as hostesses.

The meeting was called to order by the president. Devotions were led by Mrs. Elizabeth Akey. The history of the song of the month, "Faith of Our Fathers," was read. The song was led by Mrs. Valda Brown. Roll call, "A luxury I crave that isn't necessary," was answered by twenty-five members. Seven children were present.

Mrs. Flossie Rediger and Mrs. Marie Ward gave the lesson on upholstering furniture, a very interesting topic.

The business of the club was discussed. The club then adjourned to meet in July at the Spencerville school house with the 4-H club as guests.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

The club met on July 12 at the Spencerville school house at 1:30 p.m. The meeting was called to order by Lola Moore. Devotions were in charge of Fara Lee Baidinger. The song, "America," was sung led by Valda Brown. Roll call was answered by fourteen members and nine guests. There were four children present.

During the business meeting it was decided to send baby clothing to a needy family in Holland.

Contests were conducted by Berniece Wilder and Bessie Witt. Refreshments were then served.

The club will meet in August with Fairfield Township club members as guests. Lois Fisher and Marian Furnish will be hostesses.

HAPPY HUSTLERS CLASS

The Happy Hustlers Class of the St. Joe Church of Christ met Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Borthwick. The meeting was called to order by the class president, Mrs. Borthwick. The class song, "Anywhere With Jesus," was sung. Mr. Foust, minister of the church, accompanied the singing on his accordion. Mrs. Foust had charge of the devotionals. Roll call was responded to by fifteen members with scripture quotations.

Mrs. Everett Dowden was elected teacher for the remainder of the year. Mrs. Myrtle Pugsley gave the "State of the Class," a resume of the activities of the class for the month of June. Mr. Foust then entertained the group with several numbers on his accordion including "God's Tomorrow," "Whispering Hope" and "He Hideth My Soul," after which all joined with him in singing several songs.

Refreshments of cream banana pie, chicken sandwiches and tea were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Pugsley and Mrs. Storer.

Class adjourned to meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Hurni on August 10.

Farm

by EVERETT MITCHELL
Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

This week is National Farm Safety Week!

NATIONAL Farm Safety Week was first conceived in 1944 by the National Safety Council, so Farm Safety Week, which we mark July 24 to 30, is relatively new. Its purpose is to make farm people safety-conscious the year-round, and to reduce the needless toll of deaths and injuries from accidents on the farm.

Perhaps you have wondered about these special "weeks" for which we Americans seem to have a particular affinity. There's lots of publicity and plenty of good missionary work done during the week, but what happens the following week? In other words, how much good is accomplished in the long run?

You ask, is National Farm Safety Week accomplishing its purpose? Maynard Coe, farm director of the National Safety Council, points out that in several states—Kansas, Ohio and Wisconsin, for example—where adequate accident reporting plans have been set up, there is a definite downward trend in the number of accidents since the first observance of National Safety Week six years ago.

Today there are permanent, year-round farm safety committees operating in 22 states, while the remaining states have set up temporary committees to promote the week's program. These groups of farmers, safety specialists, educators and businessmen are making a definite contribution to safety on the farm.

What was the grim total that these safety conscious citizens are trying to keep down in 1950? In 1949 there were more than 17,000 accidental deaths among farm people and 1,650,000 injuries. Autos took 6,500 lives, home accidents, 5,000 and farm work deaths were 4,300 — a farm work death rate more than twice as high as workers in non-agricultural industries!

Let's be safety-conscious this week — and all year-round!

FISH OF INDIANA

BLACK CRAPPIE
(Calico Bass)

DESCRIPTION: Although this fish is very similar to the White Crappie, a comparison of the following outstanding characters with those of the same species should enable one to distinguish one from the other without any difficulty. The Black Crappie normally has seven dorsal spines, occasionally eight, but rarely six. The dark markings on the body are not arranged to form dark vertical bands, but have an irregular mottled appearance suggesting printed calico. Body is much deeper in comparison to its length than is the White Crappie. The mottling is much sharper and presents a very dark appearance.

DISTRIBUTION: Found mostly in northern Indiana in deeper and colder lakes.

HABITAT: Is common only in lakes and the more sluggish streams. Prefers cold deep water, a fairly clean bottom and considerable amount of vegetation.

FOOD: Aquatic insects, worms and other fish.

STOCKING: Mostly new impoundments.

SPAWNING — PROPAGATION: Very similar to other sunfish. Simple to propagate in small hatchery ponds.

SEASON: At present a year round open season. This set by the Director of the Indiana Department of Conservation by Discretionary Order. Keepers, five inches.

BAG LIMIT: Twenty-five or twenty-five in aggregate with other pan fish.

Typical Family Fights Socialism In Britain

One in a series of eye-witness reports
BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

GUILDFORD, Surrey, England —"The Right Road for Britain" is the title of a picture seen all over Britain. It is the picture of a man and woman and two children trudging up a hill. The going is not easy, but they are cheerful. Arm in arm, dressed in the workaday clothing of the British middle class, they are upward bound into the brighter sunlight.

The picture is on magazine covers, billboards, railroad station posters.

It was made by a photographer, Gaylord Bird, who applied his widely recognized genius with amazing success to getting into one picture of a British family all the story of wartime blood, sweat and tears and its postwar efforts to defend British will and character against promises of security at the rainbow's end held out by the Socialists.

The family consists of the father and mother, Reginald and Ruby Marshall, and their two children, Margaret, 13, who attends a convent school conducted by the Sisters of Mary, and Geoffrey, 8, who attends what would be called in the United States an elementary public school.

"Can't All Be Leaners"

The Marshalls received their American visitor with typical English cordiality. Mrs. Marshall soon had tea at hand and everything was cosy.

Reg learned the carpenter trade and works at it as a small contractor. He served six years in the British Army. Ruby is bright and charming. At her husband's urging, she brought out some of her water color paintings, which reveal a warm affection for the beauties of the English countryside.

The Marshalls live in a snug house which they contrived to build on their own with the advantage of Reg's building industry connections.

The Marshalls are anti-Socialist. "We can't all be leaners," said Reg.

"The State Is My Shepherd"

"It's the government nosing into everything a housewife and mother tries to do," said Ruby. "Calories, ration points, allotments instead of food. Government frowns on the fun of managing a new frock when the mood calls for it. Margaret misses so much that I enjoyed as a girl with my mother, like a rush to the kitchen to whip up a pudding for Pop to welcome him home from work."

The children, of course, do not miss what they never had. That is one of the tragedies of the Socialised state. The child must be shaped to say and believe: "The state is my shepherd; I shall not want."

But the Marshalls live according to the rule of free people the world over. Security is not in the state, but in work and faith and self-reliance. Government is not a sitter on a pole called the state. It is society elevated on the age-proved tripod; the home, the church, the school.

The Marshalls belong to the Conservative party. They see in it the only instrument for restoring the free enterprise system under which Reg hopes to get more business and make more money for the health, security and future of the family.

Did Election Work In Rain

Following the election of February 23, they wrote of the campaign: "What a ding-dong battle! We elected our candidate from Guildford with a majority of 9,450. We were out canvassing in the wet weather all the three weeks previous to election day."

So it is not merely the picture of a family trudging arm-in-arm up a hill that commands the thoughtful attention of people all over Britain, but also the spirit shining in their eyes and eloquent in every line of their figures. The Marshalls symbolize what at least half the British people believe to be the right road for Britain—the high road from Socialism back to freedom.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

FUNCTION OF BLOOD

BLOOD comprises about one-twentieth of the body weight. Through the vast network of vessels, blood circulates to all sections of the body, carrying oxygen, water and food to the body cells.

Blood helps the cells to breathe by bringing them oxygen from the lungs and by taking carbon dioxide from the cells back to the lungs where it is expelled. It carries food from the intestines to the cells, takes waste products to places where they are removed from the body; it supplies water to the cell tissues, and distributes heat produced by working muscles and internal organs. Through its own chemical and cellular composition, blood acts as a bodyguard against infections.

Acting as a pump, the heart sends the blood through approximately 70,000 miles of blood vessels in the human body. Not all the blood is circulated at one time. Some of it is stored in various reservoirs, the two most important of which are the spleen and the liver.

Red blood cells, formed in red bone marrow, pick up the oxygen. The hemoglobin or red coloring matter gives this ability to the blood. White cells, made in the bone marrow and certain glands, act as scavengers, destroying germs or bacteria in the body. The coagulation or clotting ability of the blood is provided by another constituent called a platelet.

The eating of good, wholesome food is necessary to build nourishing blood. This starts the assembly line of body mechanics which involves the digestive system and other organs that make up the factory to create normal blood.

HAY OPERATIONS MOST DANGEROUS

Avoidable accidents have repeatedly marked haying operations in Indiana.

F. R. Willsey, farm safety specialist at Purdue University, says that the most common of these accidents have been falls from the hay loft or hay racks. Heat prostrations rank second as casualities reported at this time of the year. Willsey explains that the fairly sudden change from a cool spring to hot weather might increase the usual number of prostrations.

The National Safety Council recommends that special precautions be taken to prevent falls from hay racks and hay stacks. Farmers should make sure that loft floors are in good repair and hay chutes guarded to avoid falls. Special care should be taken in making starts and stops while loading, especially on rough ground. Farmers are warned never to dismount from tractors or mowers while they are in operation.

To assure safety and avoid loss of time, equipment should be checked before haying starts. Operators should be on the lookout for defective hitches, ropes, pulleys, lifts, hay racks and ladders. They should also check mowing equipment to see that safety guards are in place.

For outside work, a pitch fork should be carried over the shoulder and it should be stuck securely in the ground when not in use. "Don't lay it down; never throw it; hang it up or store when the job is finished," Willsey warns.

Farmers are urged to make certain that hay is well cured before it is stored in hay mows and to check it regularly for heating. Damp hay will heat and start a fire!

How do you raise a revolutionist?

The same way you were brought up.

You and your ancestors are just about the greatest revolutionists of all time. When most of the world's people were being pushed around by all-powerful governments, Americans revolted . . . and won freedom from government force and tyranny.

Our Bill of Rights declared that men and women are more important than their governments. A revolutionary idea—and Americans have kept it alive for nearly 200 years!

Today, that great idea is in danger. The old idea of all-powerful government has made a comeback. And when government gains power, its people lose precious rights and freedoms.

Even in America, we've been giving more and more power to our federal government. Now you hear people saying, "Let the government take over certain industries and services—the doctors, the railroads, the electric companies."

Most of those people don't want an all-powerful government any more than you do. But when an ambitious big government gets control of more and more things, it becomes socialistic almost automatically. In a socialistic U. S. A., the American Revolution would be dead. There would be no freedoms for you—or your children.

We hope you'll talk this over with your family and friends and fellow-workers. It's the greatest danger America is facing today.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Well, the kids are all done with their bell-ringing and door-rapping in the subscription contest the News sponsored.

At first there were about a dozen youngsters who came in and registered. But the final number narrowed down to six as some got a late start and gave up while a few decided to turn their sales over to other contestants in an effort to pool their resources and gain a higher total. But the pooling didn't change the final results. Johnel Haverstock had a total of 5,675 points, including 22 new subscriptions and 23 renewals. Eddie Collins gained 3,225 points on 12 new subscriptions and 16 renewals. Donald Baker was third with 1,800 points on 6 new subscriptions and 17 renewals. The other entrants who finished were William Griggs with 1,200 points, Leah Coburn with 450 and Judy Hughes with 150.

I put a card with the winners' names in the News Office window Thursday and gave the total points. It showed that Donald had 1,725 points. Later in the day Elizabeth Milliman asked me where her paper was—she hadn't received any after subscribing a week before. I checked the cards and found that Donald had marked her card "R" for renewal by mistake. So he almost lost 75 points; but it still didn't change the final standing.

The St. Joe Valley Conservation Club is making big strides in its efforts to provide recreation grounds for the whole family just west of town. I went out there Sunday when there was a practice shoot in session and was impressed by the progress made. The club has installed a fine trap and is planning on placing several picnic tables in the grove and also swings, etc. for the younger generation.

Several men were taking their turns at shattering the clay pigeons including Ralph "Dead-Eye" Johnson, Jim "Dead-Eye" Coburn and ole "Dead-Eye" Doc DeMuth from Hicksville. Dan Bell tried out Doc's gun for a round and got one hit. Somebody hollered jokingly, "Hey, Doc, you might as well sell that gun-you'll never be able to hit anything with it any more!" I think Howey said it. I left the first name blank because I don't know what it is and couldn't find out from the 'leventy-seven people I asked. Oh well, you'll know who I mean if you go to the next shoot. He's the one wearing a cap who, whenever he misses a shot, takes the gun by the barrel and throws it on the ground — almost.

Everett Collins, Leslie Meek, Tom Brunson, Harold Yeiser, Mose Yeiser, Merl Guilford, Elmer McKay, Jerry Haver, Paul Fetters and some others I can't remember and don't know were also busting the pigeons or trying.

I don't see how they can miss so many shots. It seems such a simple matter to hit those clay pigeons when you're scattering shot through the air with a shot-gun.

In fact, it looked so simple I didn't even try it.

Petition Being Circulated

Two copies of a petition protesting the proposed telephone rate increases are being circulated by Maurice Kline and Ted Haberkorn.

The hearing on the proposed increases is scheduled for next Monday, August 7. A few individuals have indicated that they will go to Indianapolis in person to protest, and it is believed that the petition, signed only by telephone service subscribers, will give added impetus to the protest.

A group of Butler citizens are protesting and more information concerning plans for the trip should be available at the News Office or from Mr. Kline on Friday or Saturday of this week.

Telephone users who feel that the raises in rates are unjustified are asked to cooperate by either going to Indianapolis on Monday, August 7, or signing the petition at the News Office or the one which Mr. Kline has, whichever is convenient.

Jr. Conservation Club Holds Fish Tourney

The St. Joe Valley Conservation Club (Junior Division) including boys from Spencerville and St. Joe went to the Dilts' Grove on Lester Anthony's farm and had a fishing tournament along the St. Joe River Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m. Twenty-three boys were present ranging in age from 7 years to 16 years. All went fishing and had a good time. Thirty-five fish were caught from 3 to 11 inches in length. Donny Baker caught the most fish and also the largest fish. He received two prizes, two candy bars as each prize.

Billy Haverstock was the smallest boy there and he caught the smallest fish, a sunfish 3 inches long.

All fish caught were measured and a record kept. A one-legged sack race was won by Donny Baker and a two-legged sack race won by Eddie Collins and Albert McMaken. A rope pulling contest was won first by one team and then by the other. So each boy received a candy bar.

Refreshments of ice cream, cookies and pop were served.

The boys had lots of fun and want another party soon. When asked what they wanted the reply was "A frog and turtle race!"

The committee at the outing for the Junior Conservation Club was Paul Fetters, substituting for Von Tharp, Walter Reinhart and Howard McMaken.

Elmer McKay, president of the Conservation Club, was present to help entertain the boys.

SUMMER LAWN CARE-SUGGESTIONS GIVEN

"A little sprinkling just to cool things off," may be a disastrous practice for the lawn that is becoming dry.

R. B. Hull, extension horticulturist at Purdue University, said that light sprinkling encourages shallow root systems and helps crabgrass more than it does the permanent grasses. Many of the grasses of this area go through a dormant period in midsummer. If they are forced into active growth, the plants may be injured. If grass is watered it should be soaked at intervals when signs of drouth appear.

How often a lawn should be mowed, and how close, are debated problems. Prof. Hull says that mowing does more for the lawn than just keeping it neat. Frequent mowing with a sharp, properly adjusted mower encourages new shoots from the crowns of the plants.

The height of the mower depends upon the main species of grass in the lawn. Such grasses as bent grass, stand close mowing if well fertilized, but fescues and bluegrasses should be mowed at one and one-half inches or higher. Too close mowing leaves the grass with too little leaf surface to support the roots. This practice also exposes crowns to burning sun and drying wind.

Another question is in regard to raking. Prof. Hull said that grass should be raked after rolling in the spring and only to remove the accumulated winter rubbish, not after the season is advanced.

Theories also vary regarding use of power lawn mowers. Although these undoubtedly lessen the mowing time and energy involved, the best of them, however, do not necessarily do a better job than a hand mower.

A lot depends upon the person who is guiding the machine. The smoothest looking turf is the result of mowing in straight sweeps so that the cutting blades go over the part pressed down by the wheel on the previous trip. Rubber tired mowers lessen the possibility of ruts. Lawns which look the best are usually mown in reverse directions each time from north to south then from east to west the next time.

Urge To Do Fine Job Outweighs Socialism

One in a series of eye-witness reports

BY STEPHEN C. NOLAND

LIVERPOOL, England—The girls were driving their sewing machines so fast the eye caught the plunging needles as a blur. But the girls were driving the machines; the machines weren't driving the girls.

NOLAND

All the other workers in this great plant were bearing down. There was never a wasted motion, never a slacking off to vary the pace. All over the plant the raw material flowed straight through the production lines to the inspectors, packers and transport to carry it away to market.

In the midst of all Britain's temptation to slow down and take it easy, cuddled up in the lap of a Socialistic government promising life security for all, these people were making a thrilling game of high and quality production.

The scene was the Speke works, near Liverpool, of the Dunlop Rubber Corporation, Inc. Dunlop had taken over a great airplane plant, where during hostilities Grummans were made.

Set "Target" With Management

Some tires were being made in part of the plant, but its main job was split three ways—golf balls, tennis balls, rubber footwear.

The girls on the machines were sewing the canvas tops of tennis shoes, binding the slits for the tongues and around the tops, stitching the tongues in, finishing the uppers. But they were driving themselves in a fine burst of excited enthusiasm.

The American visitor wanted to know what was going on.

"They're on their target," explained the guide.

Then it came out. In this plant the employes, acting through committees of their own choice, meet with management and set a production goal for the week. This goal is called the target. The wage is paid on the target. But the target wage is not the week's pay. The target is where the bonus pay starts.

"Management-Worker Teamwork"

In this case, the workers made their target a little after noon on Friday. From then on through the day they were showing management how much more they could produce than they had promised, and management was paying them a bonus for their triumph.

The wage of every worker was posted on a blackboard for all to see. Collective bargaining was in the background. But management-worker teamwork was scoring the touchdowns.

T. A. McCarthy, assistant works manager, said that 90 percent of the people in the plant were without previous factory experience when hired—girls eager to earn their way, merchant sailors looking for a chance to settle down, younger people ambitious to get a job and make good.

An Ex-Hoosier

McCarthy once worked a year for the Bucyrus-Erie Company at Evansville, Indiana. In discussing Dunlop production methods, he did not even mention the sins of management in getting together to keep the least efficient plant in operation. Nor did he mention labor's demand for fixed pay regardless of how much the worker produces.

The appeal of the Dunlop system is to the inborn desire of nearly every healthy and spirited person to do a good job—to make a good day of his abilities and a good evening of quiet satisfaction in his achievement.

All the efforts of Socialist dreamers to mow men down to one level with tax laws and to set on the assumption that profits are robbery will not always stand up, in a free country, against people reared in a tradition of competitive work and pay.

SCRIPTURE: I Kings 17-19; 21.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 27.

God Give Us Men!

Lesson for August 6, 1950

THERE ARE WAYS of saying "No" without using that short and ugly word. A writer in the Christian Century has pointed out three of these. One is to say, "This is not the time . . ." Another is to say, "I agree with you in principle, but . . ." and the third is to say, "I am with you—but don't quote me!" What we need nowadays is men who are willing to stand up and be quoted, quoted for good and against evil. All men are "against sin" in general; it takes a braver man to be against it in particular.

Dr. Foreman

In a large town in Kentucky recently the grand jury indicted the whole police force. In the course of the jury's report they said they had heard a good deal of testimony about rotten places and practices in and around town, but most of those who had come before the grand jury had said, in effect, "Don't quote me." It is hard to make any indictment stick if people who know damaging facts are not willing to come out in broad daylight and testify. So abuses go on and on, all because every one is too shy to point an accusing finger.

Man of Courage

WE NEED more men like the prophet Elijah. God providentially removed from him all the usual temptations to keep his mouth shut. He had no investments to protect—all he had he wore on his back, and that was not much. No family depended on him. He did not represent any institution. He could speak his mind—he could speak God's mind—without worrying about the effect it might have on investors, or his family, or some institution. Of course Elijah had Elijah to look after; but for himself he was not afraid in the least. Lone figure though he was, he stood out against lies and exploitation in varied forms. He stood out against popular opinion, and that is not easy for any normal man.

So many thousand votes or voices must be right we think. But Elijah did not think so. He knew that "one man with God is a majority." He stood out against official opposition; this was more dangerous still. The crowd's favor or dislike comes and goes, the crowd soon forgets; but a tyrant like Ahab (and still more like Jezebel) neither forgives nor forgets a man who has stood up to contradict and condemn him.

Then Elijah stood out against the most difficult enemy of all; organized religious leadership, that is, the false prophets. Even in the Christian era that organized church has sometimes taken the wrong side of some important questions and persecuted men who were on the side of right. But church tyranny is at least as bad as any other kind, and it takes a brave man to face it.

In Our Time

THANK GOD for all the Elijahs! Every generation has seen a few, and we have them in our time. They have not all had the spectacular success of the original prophet of Carmel, but they are here all the same.

In public life one thinks of those senators—and your state is fortunate if it has even one who stands up for persons against profits, for the advantage of all against benefits for a few, true representatives of the people as against invested privilege.

In church life we need more men like that pastor down in Alabama who was recently "fired" because he would not take his stewards' advice and use more "tact" in his sermons against sin in general and drinking in particular. It takes courage to do such things. And Elijahs are needed in the business and professional worlds, not only in the pulpit.

Is Liquor a Sacred Cow?

THE LIQUOR traffic alone, to name but one public evil, is doing our fellow-citizens a vast amount of damage. What other business makes necessary wards in hospitals to cure its customers?

But how few men will stand up and be quoted for the facts! Newspapers will editorialize against gambling when they won't against liquor; gambling doesn't advertise but liquor does. Count the big newspapers or magazines which for the benefit of their readers are willing to go without the income which liquor advertising produces.

Soil Building Job Should Be Put On Year-Round Basis

THERE is no "closed season" for applying soil building amounts of commercial fertilizer on the heavier soils, reports the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, in citing recent research by Dr. W. A. Albrecht, chairman of the soils department of the University of Missouri, and A. W. Klemme, extension soils specialist.

Soil building amounts of plant food can be added any time machinery can be driven over the fields, according to these soils research men. The fertilizer application need not be timed with crop planting. It can be put on well in advance, whenever the ground is firm and labor is available.

The research men report that on most clay or silt loam soils of Missouri, the clay fraction of the soil has a high capacity for holding fertilizer. Thus very little of any plant food materials will leach down through the soil. This is particularly true if there is some growing crop which will catch the plant nutrients applied in more soluble form.

However, fertilizer in the row is still needed by crops to give them the quick start and sturdy growth needed for top yields.

Soil tests indicate good results from putting mineral nutrients on the soil during the regular operations of preparing the seedbed for the next crop, the agronomists report.

FISH OF INDIANA

LONG-EARED SUNFISH

DESCRIPTION: Body short and deep, profile steep; mouth small, maxillary reaching middle of the eye; flap of opercle in adults very long, with or without a pale margin. Color is brilliant blue and orange, the former predominating above, the orange in spots on the sides, the blue in wavy streaks.

DISTRIBUTION: Appears in the deeper pools of most streams and brooks throughout the state. Not found in too many lakes.

HABITAT: The Long-eared Sunfish is essentially a stream fish and likes cool, quiet pools with overhanging willows.

FOOD: Aquatic insects and their larvae seem to form the bulk of their diet. Of course worms are acceptable.

STOCKING: No stocking program is carried on with this specie. Has done quite well in maintaining its status with other species.

SPAWNING AND PROPAGATION: Spawning habits about the same as other sunfish; do spawn in much shallower areas.

No closed season or bag limit on this species.

by EVERETTE MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

THERE'S only one time in the life of an egg that it should be hot—when it's in a frying pan! Heat, in the hen house or while the egg is in storage, will quickly break down the quality of the white of the egg and will flatten the yolk.

Excess heat also causes spots on the yolk which will show up under candling. A few days of extreme summer heat will lower the quality of unprotected eggs to a point lower than that reached in over four months of storage at a 30 degree temperature. Even mild temperatures of from 50 to 60 degrees will protect egg quality for only a few days.

There are several things poultrymen recommend to beat the damaging effect of summer heat on egg quality. Most important is to gather the eggs frequently and remove the animal heat as soon as possible. If a wire basket is used, the eggs can be stored overnight in a cool cellar. If they are gathered in a tight container, they should be placed on trays and allowed to cool before packing.

Market those eggs frequently, at least twice a week if you can. Remove all males from the flock after the breeding season.

Experiments conducted in Kansas show that heat probably affects egg size, and that the texture of the shell deteriorates during hot spells. This may be due to the bird not eating enough shell-forming material to meet its needs.

It will help to keep your birds as comfortable as possible during the summer. Provide cross ventilation in the pens and during really hot weather some poultrymen have wet the ceiling and walls of the hen house to keep the birds cool.

Coffee Treats for Television Fans

When your favorite television programs are over, good coffee should always be on tap for family and friends to serve with something "special" as a fitting finale to a perfect evening. Any one of the coffee-flavored desserts featured will be just right for late evening refreshments. Easy to prepare and impressive for any occasion are these desserts that combine modern cooking with old-fashioned goodness.

You can serve one or many with fresh, flavorful coffee in a flash. Just measure one teaspoon of soluble coffee (more or less rounded according to strength desired) in a cup, and add freshly boiling water and stir. To make six cups of good coffee, just pour one quart of boiling water on 6 teaspoons of soluble coffee and stir to assure a brew of even strength.

Coffee and Cream Cake is a delicious accompaniment for coffee-flavored ice cream, made simply and quickly by blending 1 tablespoon of soluble coffee with one package of ice cream mix. This is a neat trick that wins compliments every time. For an extra special evening, surprise your guests with Marshmallow Supreme, a simple dessert with a sophisticated flavor of fresh coffee.

COFFEE AND CREAM CAKE

Make your favorite plain cake mix recipe and then use:

COFFEE CREAM FILLING

6 tablespoons sugar, 3 tablespoons flour, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons soluble coffee, 1 cup scalded milk, 1 egg yolk, 1 teaspoon butter

Combine first 4 ingredients in a small pan. Stir in milk. Cook until thickened. Place over hot water, cook about 15 minutes. Beat egg yolk slightly, add a little of the hot mixture and return to pan. Cook 2 minutes. Add butter, cool thoroughly.

COFFEE ICING

1 tablespoon butter, 1 egg yolk, 2 teaspoons soluble coffee, 1 tablespoon milk, 1¼ cups sifted confectioners' sugar

Mix butter and egg yolk. Add sifted confectioners' sugar which has been mixed with soluble coffee. Gradually add milk, beating all the while, until a smooth, creamy consistency is reached. If necessary, add more milk so icing will spread easily.

Put layers together with Cream Filling and frost top of cake with Icing.

MARSHMALLOW SUPREME

½ lb. marshmallows, ½ cup sherry, 1 envelope unflavored gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, ½ cup sugar, 1½ cups undiluted evaporated milk, 2 teaspoons soluble coffee, ½ cup hot water, 1 tablespoon sliced, toasted almonds

Cut marshmallows in quarters and let them stand overnight in sherry. In top of a double-boiler, dissolve gelatin in cold water. Cook for 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Dissolve soluble coffee in hot water. Add to the milk mixture. Fold in marshmallows. Pour into one quart mold rinsed with cold water and chill. Unmold, garnish with whipped cream, cherries and almonds.

Yield: 6-8 servings.

News Loses, Wins; Universal Drops Pair

The News softball team played two games last week, one a play-off of a rained-out game of two weeks ago.

On Thursday night Warner Automotive defeated the News by the score of 11-6. The locals came back strong in the final innings, but were too far behind as a result of a five-run first inning by the Warner nine.

The News bounced back Friday night to upset the DeMolay softballers 10 to 5 in a nine-inning overtime tilt.

The locals played their best game of the season as they tightened in the clinches and held DeMolay scoreless in the final three innings. DeMolay had scored a run in the sixth to wipe out a 5-4 News lead.

Jim Kinsey hurled the full nine innings and had the situation fairly well in hand except for ten walks he issued. He was touched for only five hits while his teammates garnered twelve.

A five-run ninth inning was featured by doubles by Frank Sechler and Don McElroy, each driving in two runs. Sechler collected three of the News' twelve hits and was running the bases like a jack-rabbit. Kinsey, McElroy and Ted Haberkorn each got two safe blows.

Jack Hughes did a creditable job playing the full game at shortstop in place of the absent Gene Baker.

The next game scheduled for the local team is on Thursday, August 10, when they face Wakefield's in a tournament game at Auburn. The game will start at 8:30 p.m.

Universal Tool was defeated by the Auburn Legion last week, 12-4. They also lost to Ball Brass on Tuesday of this week by the score of 17 to 1.

Class Reunion Held Sunday

The School Reunion of the classes of 1903 and 1904 was held at the home of Lela Northrup in St. Joe Sunday.

As the noon hour approached old friends came in with smiling faces and well-filled baskets. As usual the day was spent reminiscing. Several were unable to attend and they were missed by the gathering.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Lee Tustison of Defiance, Mr. and Mrs. Charley Bishop and Mrs. Lora Leighty of Auburn Mrs. Nettie Baker of Ft. Wayne, Mrs. Maude Woodcox and daughter, Lucille, and husband of Columbus, O., Mr. and Mrs. Otto Ginther, Mrs. Inez Hadsell, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Woodcox, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cole of St. Joe, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ulm of Butler and the hostess.

The day came to a close much too soon. Late in the afternoon all returned home looking forward to next year when the classes will meet with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bishop at the Dr. Hathaway cottage at Russell's Point on Hamilton Lake.

Many Attend Practice Shoot

The practice shoot held at the Conservation Club grounds last Sunday proved a success, many visitors attending as well as local talent.

Shooting started promptly at one o'clock with the club's board of directors forming the first squad.

Improved shooting was displayed by all as they progressed. This should prove to be an interesting season as there are some father-and-son rivalries. In addition the old-timers are trying to prove some of those stories they tell.

Several encouraging comments were heard from those who have been shooting all over the country for years to the effect that the local club has one of the finest traps in operation.

Members are urged to attend the regular monthly meeting on Friday, August 4, at the K. of P. Hall. Movies will be shown.

HINTS ON HEALTH by the INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

NIGHT DRIVING

NEARLY 34,000 persons died last year from injuries received in motor vehicle accidents. Of this number, about 50 per cent were pedestrians. Three out of every five fatal motor car accidents occur at night, due to marked reduction in visibility.

In cities night accidents are responsible for two-thirds of the traffic fatalities, while in rural areas slightly more than half of these accidents occur at night. For this reason the National Safety Council advises motor vehicle drivers to "Slow Down at Sun Down."

Some pedestrians take unnecessary risk by crossing streets between intersections or walking against traffic lights. The National Safety Council reports that almost half the pedestrian deaths occur between 6 o'clock in the evening and midnight. The huge death toll should make every pedestrian safety conscious when he or she crosses a street or highway.

Five main causes of night accidents are: (1) reduced visibility, (2) fatigue, (3) variance between "safe" speeds at night and in the daytime, (4) drinking drivers and (5) failure of pedestrians to realize that they can see approaching cars far quicker than drivers can see them.

Indiana has no speed limit except in posted areas. "Reasonable and prudent speed" is the law's requirement on unmarked stretches of highway. The 1951 legislature will be asked to establish speed limits of 60 miles for daylight driving and 50 miles per hour for night driving.

When you drive, keep these two slogans in mind: "Slow Down at Sun Down" and "The Life You Save May Be Your Own."

GLAUCOMA

FROM 50 to 75 per cent of all blindness is preventable, according to the National Society for Prevention of Blindness. For instance, one out of every seven has become blind as the result of an eye injury, and most of these accidents could have been prevented. Others have become blind due to eye disease, of which many cases could have been corrected if treated in time.

The most prevalent eye disease is glaucoma, 800,000 cases of which have not yet come to the attention of the eye specialists. This is a serious matter because early diagnosis and treatment are essential in saving the sight of a person with the disease.

Vision which is lost in chronic glaucoma is lost forever, but when treatment is given in the early stages, it is often possible to save what vision remains. Glaucoma usually appears after middle age. It may follow an eye injury or inflammation, but often there is no apparent cause for it.

Glaucoma is caused by an increase of fluid under tension within the eyeball, with a tendency of the pupil to become fixed in full dilation. Unless checked, this pressure will eventually destroy the retina and the optic nerve, resulting in blindness. Medication or surgery may be used in treating glaucoma.

Any abnormality in vision should be checked with the eye physician.

Adding Plant Food to Fall Seeded Wheat Gives More Bushels at Less Cost Per Acre

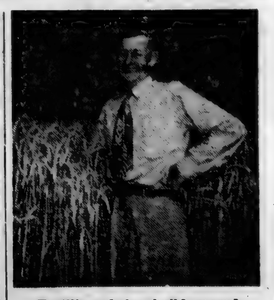
NOW is the time to begin to plan for fertilizing your fall seeded wheat.

Adding the plant food will give you extra profits through more bushels of grain per acre at a lower cost per bushel. It will increase yields of alfalfa, sweet clover and grasses following wheat in the rotation, reports the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

Many Midwestern farmers are getting from 40 to 50 bushels of wheat per acre by using good soil management methods, applying plenty of mixed fertilizer and growing the new, stiffer-strawed, heavier producing varieties of wheat.

Typical of what can be accomplished when all these factors team together, were the results obtained by Harold Pirtle, last year's wheat growing champion of southwestern Indiana. Pirtle produced 57½ bushels of wheat per acre. Then after combining the grain, he got a lush stand of alfalfa and sweet clover.

Pirtle had his soil tested the preceding fall to find out its plant food needs. At seeding time he added 400 pounds per acre of a mixed fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphate and potash. Early the following spring he top-dressed the wheat with extra nitrogen. The nitrogen gave the wheat new life and gave the legume seeding plenty of "get up and go."



Fertilizer helps build record wheat crop.

He points out that the plant food plus the soil's good tilth and organic matter supply gave it the power to produce a record-breaking wheat crop and a prime stand of legumes. The 11-acre contest field on which the championship wheat was grown had been in alfalfa two years, corn one year and soybeans the next.

In growing his record wheat crop, Pirtle used Vigo, a stiff-strawed, heavy-yielding variety developed by Purdue University plant breeders.

Bob Hope To Appear At Fair

With Bob Hope and his incomparable show as the feature attraction for the first four days of the 1950 Indiana State Fair, the spacious Coliseum will be one of the busiest places on the grounds during this year's big Hoosier agricultural exposition.

According to Earl Bailey of Lowell, Ind., the director in charge of the huge arena erected 11 years ago at a cost of $1,200,000, it will be in use almost constantly from the time the gates swing open on the morning of August 31 until the last of $314,369 in prize money is awarded on the night of September 8.

A heavy layer of dirt already has been placed on top of the cement floor and this will be covered completely by tanbark in preparation for the judging of livestock. Then Mr. Bailey's crew of workmen will construct the two stages necessary for the entertainment productions planned in the arena and give the building a thorough cleaning.

Bob Hope and his talented supporting cast will give their four performances from a stage to be erected at the west end of the Coliseum. It will be located at approximately the same spot as the revolving stage which has been used in the Sonja Henie ice shows. The Bob Hope show is scheduled on the first three nights of the fair at 7:30 o'clock (CST) and on Sunday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock.

Immediately after the last performance the stage will be removed and the other stage will be assembled in the very center of the arena for Tex Beneke and his orchestra, which will provide the music for the $50,000 horse show every night at 7 o'clock for the remainder of the fair.

These two shows, however, form only a part of the Coliseum program. On every day except Sunday the arena will be used during the daytime hours for judging of cattle and horses. On Sunday at 9:30 a.m. the Indianapolis Ministerial Association will conduct a Sunday School Hour.

Other events on the Coliseum program include the 4-H State Dress Revue on Saturday, September 2, the sale of beef calves on Friday, September 8, and a free horse show every day at noon beginning Monday, September 4.

CORPORAL SCHENDEL COMMENDED

Corporal Harry W. Schendel of St. Joe recently received a letter of commendation from the commanding Officer of "A" Battery 176th Armored Field Artillery Battalion of the Pennsylvania National Guard.

Corporal Schendel was commended for his sincere efforts in assisting that unit during its two-week summer training period at Indiantown Gap, Pennsylvania.

Corporal Schendel is presently assigned to Headquarters Battery, 675th Airborne Field Artillery Battalion of the 11th Airborne Division at Fort Campbell Ky. He is the chief computer of the battalion's fire direction center. Schendel has completed six years' service in the army. He joined the troopers of the 11th Airborne in October 1948 while the division was on occupation duty in Japan.

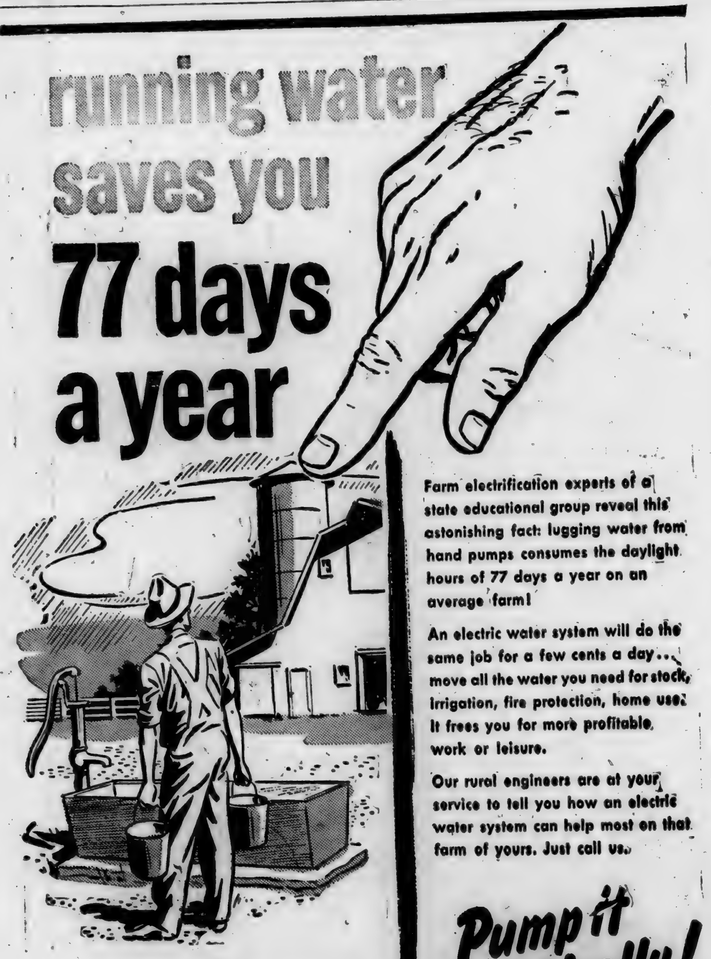
running water saves you 77 days a year



Farm electrification experts of a state educational group reveal this astonishing fact: lugging water from hand pumps consumes the daylight hours of 77 days a year on an average farm!

An electric water system will do the same job for a few cents a day... move all the water you need for stock, irrigation, fire protection, home use. It frees you for more profitable work or leisure.

Our rural engineers are at your service to tell you how an electric water system can help most on that farm of yours. Just call us.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Paul Fetters came in to the shop Wednesday afternoon to help me get the lead out—get the lead out off the caster so Elmer McKay could replace the element I told you about a couple of weeks ago. While he was here he mentioned a nice bit of good-neighborliness shown by several men of the community in behalf of Mr. Ervin White. When wheat harvest time came last month, Ned Shull, Clifton Draggoo and Royce Gibford brought combines and were assisted by Curt Watt, Carl Perkins, Curt Northrup, Bob Walters, Dewey White and Paul.

Then last Sunday Von Tharp combined Mr. White's oats.

Speaking of that caster reminds me—I think Dick Crow thinks I don't think farmers make any outlay of cash for their equipment and upkeep. He invited me out to his place and he'd show me what HE has to put up with (no, not you, Mrs. Crow). He also mentioned the cost of a new set of tires for his tractor. All I've got to say is I can only perform one operation with the caster—how many can he perform with his tractor? —Wanna fight?

I called Mr. H. C. Springer at Butler last week. He's the attorney who is handling Butler's protest to the proposed telephone rate raise. I told him about the petition St. Joe phone users signed. Several people also were ready to go to Indianapolis for the hearing Monday. But Mr. Springer informed me that the petition and a million people wouldn't help any for the hearing. However, if St. Joe wanted to protest on some specific complaint, they could do so at any time.

He evidently put in a good word for us at the hearing because the Auburn Star carried the headline "Butler and St. Joe Lead Fight Against Phone Hike."

An attempt is being made to hold separate hearings at each community, to judge the advisability of higher rates on the merits of the service and equipment in each locality. If they hold a hearing in St. Joe and investigate around here, the rates will go DOWN!

Ann Harris and Douglas Seeman found a ring at the gravel pit on Monday afternoon. It's at the News Office. Who's is it?

Civilian Defense Deputy Directors Named

The DeKalb County civilian defense group moved nearer complete organization Saturday with the announcement of appointment of deputy directors for the county and selection of deputy community directors in the various cities and towns.

John W. McIntyre, of Auburn, county civil defense director, said the appointments were made at a meeting of the county advisory council and the community directors held in the city hall in Auburn.

The city of Garrett has not organized its community group, Mr. McIntyre reported, but the oppointment of K. P. Sithen as community director by Mayor Fred L. Feick of that city is expected to speed the organization there. The Waterloo community director, Chester Grate, also reported that he does not have his community organization complete.

The county deputy directors appointed by Mr. McIntyre and the advisory council include: Medical, Dr. Perry Reynolds of Garrett; Evacuation, Jesse Oberlin of Butler; public information, Joe Harter of Auburn; protection, John Nugen of Auburn; communications, R. Wayne Smith of Auburn; public works, Ray Zimmerman of near Spencerville and ground observation, R. D. White. The appointments of Mr. White, Mr. Zimmerman and Dr. Reynolds have not been confirmed.

Derwood Ridgway, director of defense in St Joe, has announced his appointments of community directors as follows: evacuation, Don Keller; public information, Ted Haberkorn; protection, Roy Reidenbach and public works, W. L. Hurni. The town has no deputy medical director or communications deputy.

Spencerville, which also has no medical deputy, listed the following appointments by the director. Harold Krafft; evacuation, Glen Brendel, public information, Everett Paschen; protection, M. H. Hollabaugh; communications, Maurice Miller, and public works, Auber Butler.

For Butler the community director, George T. Fuller, reported his appointments of deputies as medical, Dr. C. B. Hathaway; evacuation, Wilbur Johnson; public information, R. B. Powers; protection, Bruce Blair; communications, Robert Jones, and public works, Frank Korsmeyer.

For Corunna the appointments by director Merton DeWitt are evacuation, Archie McDonald; public information, Jay Zonker; protection, Willis Matson; communications, Raymond Oster, and public works, Howard Bard. The town has no medical deputy.

H. L. Mason, director of defense in Auburn, announced his appointments as medical, Dr. H. M. Covell; evacuation, Dan Kreamelmeyer; public information, Joe Harter; protection, C. H. West and Gilbert Potter; communications, W. A. Storey, and public works, John Fraser.

DEMONSTRATIONS GIVEN BY SPENCER TWP 4-H CLUB

Twenty-four members of the Winners 4-H Club of Spencer Township, DeKalb County, held their local demonstrations at the home of their 4-H leader, Robert Witt, of Spencerville on Aug. 3 before an audience of 32 guests, parents and friends. This was an all-day meeting. Demonstrations were judged A, B or C. The judges were as follows: Paul Post, Sr. of near Auburn; Wade Libey, Ashley vocational instructor; Cecil Fitch, Corunna, artificial inseminator and Albert Berg, Butler vocational instructor.

Eric Holm of Lafayette, State 4-H leader, gave instructions to demonstrators and after the presentation of the demonstrations gave constructive information. Throughout the day Mr. Holm took photos of demonstrators and their demonstrations, also of the local 4-H Parent Advisory Council and of Dagwood Bumstead in person with his special made-to-order sandwich.

At noon a delicious lunch was served to all. Weiners were furnished by W. E. Walter of the St. Joe Grocery, W. E. Weninger of the Spencerville Elevator and James Reed, Spencerville Standard Oil Co. Pop was served by Cecil Fitch, representing the DeKalb County Artificial Breeders Assn. Ice cream was served by D. N. Mawhorter, representing the Fort Wayne Co-op Milk Co. Salads, deserts, bread and coffee were served by the parents of 4-H members. After lunch the 4-H group played a softball game with their dads and the fathers won the game.

The following demonstrations were given:

Beef demonstration — Showing the beef calf, John Witt.

Pig demonstrations—Washing pig for exhibit, Frank Johnson; marking pigs, Bill Wilder; trimming and polishing pigs' feet for exhibit, Alvin Jones and Jerry Leonard and showing pig in ring, Mary Wilder.

Potato demonstrations—Spraying and dusting vines, Franklin Dwyer and selecting potatoes for the fair exhibit, Kathleen Anthony.

Lamb demonstrations—Equipment and its uses to take to the county fair to fit my lamb for exhibit, Donna Johnson; carding and brushing lamb for exhibit, Mary Jones; trimming lamb for exhibit, Eddie Jones and Bob Wilder; showing lamb at the exhibit, Tahoma Jean Laughman.

Corn demonstrations — Selecting 10 ears of exhibit corn, Jack Hart and selecting 10 ears of exhibit corn, John Shull.

Garden demonstrations — Preparing vegetables for exhibit, Donna Lou Cook; selecting vegetables for exhibit, Betty Witt, and arranging vegetables for exhibit, Tom Hart.

Poultry demonstrations — Selecting pullet and rooster for fair exhibits, William Goldsmith, and selecting laying hens for exhibit, Jim Knop.

Dairy demonstrations—Equipment you will need to fit your dairy calf for the show, Junior Witt; cleaning, oiling and brushing dairy calf, Bonnie Witt; grooming horns and clipping the dairy calf, William Johnson, and showing the dairy calf, Dale Jones.

Mr. Fitch and Mr. Post gave the dairy members pointers on clipping the dairy calf—the wrong and right way. They also showed the proper and improper way to show a calf. Pictures of the judges and Mr. Holm were taken and the meeting closed.

Paul Detwiler, assistant DeKalb County agent, was also present.

CONCORD JR. HOME EC CLUB

The Concord Jr. Home Ec Club met with Harriet Baker Monday night. Regular business was taken care of and several special leaders were heard from. Committees were appointed to complete plans for a booth at the fair. Then Marcia Sible and Harriet Baker gave an interesting talk on the things they saw and heard at Purdue last week when they attended the Agricultural Conference. Marcia told about the new programs being made up by the County Council and some of the new and interesting topics to be expected next year.

Response to roll call was "Vacation Plans." The September meeting will pe with Margaret Drerup on Tuesday night, September 5.

Tomato Festival At Butler, August 16-19

One of the outstanding attractions of the Tomato Fesival which will be held in Butler August 16 to 19 inclusive will be an old-fashioned balloon ascention and parachute drop.

Another attraction which will draw large crowds is the industrial tent which will be located on West Oak street. The tent will be 350 feet long, providing for 700 feet of displays.

Merchandise and cash amounting to over $300, donated by the business firms of Butler, will be awarded at free drawings during the four evenings of the Tomato Festival.

A booth will be established in the industrial tent where those attending the festival will register. A free ticket for the drawing will be given to each individual registering.

Approximately fifteen drawings will be held each evening from the band stand averaging about $5 in merchandise or cash each. Only one prize will be awarded to a person during the week, so there is no object in registering more than once. In all there will be some 60 prizes awarded.

He Loved Teaching

Lesson for August 13, 1950

WHAT WOULD you do if you had a million dollars? Several thousand school teachers were asked that question a few years ago. Seventy-five per cent of them gave the same answer: "I'd resign." They weren't real teachers, they were only hired help. The other twenty - five per cent were the real teachers. A great university teacher, Palmer of Harvard, wrote that he had the perfect job. Believe it or not, he said, "Harvard actually pays me for doing what—if I could afford it—I would gladly pay Harvard to let me do."

Dr. Foreman

No Finished Product

THE REAL thing about teaching is that you are dealing with people, young people, growing people. In every other line of business, whatever you turn out begins to depreciate almost as soon as it leaves the factory.

It doesn't take long for butter to get rancid, or bread stale. A cold-storage egg is a feeble imitation of a fresh one. A car that has changed hands once, even if it has run less than 1,000 miles, is already a "used" car on its way to the junk-pile.

But the products of the teacher's classroom are by no means "finished" products when they leave it, even if it is a finishing school. If the teacher's work has been done well, the product will go on improving for years, instead of running down.

Three Aims

PROFESSOR EZRA, of Babylon and Jerusalem, was one of history's most famous teachers. We note (Ezra 7:10) the same three aims in Ezra's life that you would expect to find in all good teachers.

First of all, he "prepared his heart" to do what he did. The "heart" is the Bible expression for character, for life as a whole. No one can be a truly good teacher who has a bad character.

Now Ezra prepared his heart to do three things. The first was to "seek the law of the Lord." What a teacher teaches may be as important as who his pupils are; and Ezra's "subject" was the law which God had given his people—part of what we now call the Old Testament. Nowadays this is called research, but a simple word for it is just study. A lazy teacher is a poor one. A good teacher will spend more time studying than any of the pupils do—and will learn more, too. In fact, the best way to learn anything, including the Bible, is to try to teach it for a while.

Second, Ezra prepared his heart to do the law. The old sneer, "He who can, does; he who cannot, teaches," is true of poor teachers, not of the good ones. Particularly not true of Bible teachers. The aim of Bible teaching, from Moses' time till now, is always practical. "Truth is in order to goodness." as the Presbyterians say. One who has not tried out the Bible ideals in daily living will never do for a Bible teacher.

And third, Ezra set out to "teach in Israel." Your research scholar may or may not make a good teacher. The good teacher is not bored by teaching as some researchers are. He loves it. He is happiest at it.

Take Yourself, for Example

NOW LET US see how this comes out in your own home Sunday school. If yours is like most Sunday schools, the main trouble with it is that they can't find enough good teachers, enough people who really want to know about God's word themselves, who live and love to help others know it.

The Rev. H. M. Lewis of Texas has said in his essay, The Dividends of Teaching:

"When you begin to teach you will realize that at last you have found a purpose for your religion . . . Teaching gives a motive, the highest motive, for all acts of religion and for all pursuit of knowledge—'For their sakes.' Every Christian has the missionary obligation and is by virtue of his profession of faith, a missionary,—'Go, teach all nations.' Make your particular nation young America and your special opportunity systematic work in the Church school. Once you believe that you must be a teacher because you are a Christian . . . you will have heard your life's call."

Six Specifications For a GOOD NEWSPAPER

What should a reader expect from his newspaper?

What, exactly, is the job that a newspaper is supposed to do?

The six basic functions of any newspaper are well described in a book called "How to Read a Newspaper" written by Edgar Dale of Ohio State University. Not all newsmen would phrase and arrange them in just this way, but most would go along with the outline. They are:

1. To report the news accurately, interestingly and adequately—straight information about what is going on in the world, the nation and the community, presented fully and readably.

2. To interpret the news—explanations of what complex news events mean, new scientific discoveries, for instance, or highly technical developments like Britain's devaluation of the pound.

3. To comment and editorialize upon the news—the views and beliefs of the paper's editors or syndicated columnists; opinions urged upon the reader.

4. To help the community in carrying out its business transactions—the advertisements, classified and display.

5. To help solve business, recreation, family and other problems—the movie and theater reviews, health columns, financial notes, household hints, and so on.

6. To entertain, amuse and give enjoyment—the comics, photo displays, puzzles and bridge columns, sports news, and many types of feature items without real "news value."

HAY FEVER

AUGUST 15 is a date remembered by many Hoosiers without having to mark their calendar. It is a day feared by one out of every 10 persons in Indiana. In ancient Rome it was "Beware the Ides of March fifteenth," but in our state it is "Beware the ragweed of August fifteenth." On this date most persons susceptible to the pollen of ragweed will be afflicted with hay fever and will suffer with it until the first frost. Most of them develop characteristic symptoms of hay fever exactly on this day.

Ragweed is an ugly plant and insects are not attracted to it. Unlike the rose and such alluring blooms that attract insects to carry their pollen about, ragweed must depend upon the winds that blow. And with success, for ragweed pollen is carried by the air for hundreds of miles. Ragweed grows all over Indiana, making it difficult for people allergic to its pollen to get away from it unless they go into northern Minnesota, Wisconsin or Michigan.

Immunization to ragweed pollen gives some relief in about 90 per cent of cases. Even so, there are five hay fever sufferers out of a hundred for whom the only relief is to leave the area where the weed grows.

Asthma is another manifestation of sensitivity to ragweed pollen.

By EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:45-6:55 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

THE midsummer combination of heat and work in the fields makes the farmer a number one prospect for heat stroke, sunstroke or other forms of heat illness.

There's a difference between the two most common maladies. Sunstroke is a result of prolonged exposure to the hot sun; while heatstroke is due to excessive heat, either with or without being out in the sun. But the effects are the same and either can be fatal. The symptoms are hot and dry skin, face red and flushed, breathing hard and pupils enlarged. In severe strokes, the victim becomes unconscious.

The best way to avoid being stricken is to avoid excessive exposure to the sun. Keep the head covered while working in the sun. Slow down, even at the cost of not getting all the chores done.

If heatstroke or sunstroke does strike a member of the family, it's best to be prepared to give immediate first aid. Here's what the National Safety Council recommends:

Move the victim to a cool, shady spot, remove outer clothing and lay victim on back with head and shoulders slightly raised.

Apply ice or cold wet cloths to the head, cool the body gradually by bathing or dampening the clothing. Rub limbs toward the heart.

After several moments of treatment, stop and observe the patient. If his skin becomes hot again, resume the same treatment.

If the victim is conscious, give him cool—but not iced—drinks. Never give stimulants.

Get the patient to a doctor as soon as possible.

Let's not fall victim to midsummer heat!

Indiana Fertilizer Consumption Shows Big 10-Year Gain

INDIANA farmers used approximately 741,372 tons of fertilizer in growing their crops last year, according to a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, based on statistics compiled by the National Fertilizer Association.

Fertilizer consumption in Indiana was more than three and a half times as great in 1949 as it was 10 years ago. In 1939, about 201,644 tons of fertilizer were used on Indiana farms. Important in encouraging this trend has been the work of the state agricultural college.

For the entire United States the 1949 fertilizer consumption totaled 16,579,000 tons. This was the highest in history and exceeded the 1948 record by 623,000 tons. More than twice as much plant food was used in the United States last year as in 1939, when the total consumption was 7,707,000 tons.

The steadily increasing use of fertilizer on the nation's farms in the past 10 years is attributed to these factors: (1) Fertilizer has proved profitable in boosting crop yields per acre, cutting production costs and increasing net income. (2) Plant food gives a high return for every dollar invested. (3) Fertilizer is a "good buy" for farmers. Prices of fertilizer have remained very reasonable compared with prices of other commodities purchased by farmers and with prices received by farmers for their products.

STATE FAIR ENTRY DEADLINE AUGUST 16

All persons planning to compete for any of the many awards offered at the 1950 Indiana State Fair, August 31 through September 8, must submit their entries prior to next Wednesday, August 16. No entries post-marked after that date will be accepted, according to an announcement by Carl Tynor, secretary-manager of the fair.

With Indiana continuing to rank as one of the nation's outstanding states in the breeding of draft horses, premiums amounting to $8,758 will be offered in this department at the 1950 Indiana State Fair opening August 31.

Perry Johnson of Atlanta, Ind., director of the department, announced the draft horse premuims and designated two Hoosiers as his assistants. They are John Craft of LaPorte and Ivan Fuller of Oxford.

The four judges will be William Hoewischer of Sidney, O., for 4-H colts; Walter Hoewischer of Urbana, O., for Gold Medal colts; Earl Allen of Greencastle for the Belgian classes and Clifford Eller of Arcadia, Ind., for Percheron classes.

Indiana's importance in the breeding of draft horses was emphasized earlied this year when buyers from 10 states and Canada attended the spring sale of the Indiana Breeders' Association at prices which were termed "very satisfactory" by C. O. House of Arcadia, president of the organization.

"This year's show at the Indiana State Fair also should be a big success," Mr. House said, "because it is scheduled immediately after the American Belgian Championships at Columbus, O. The best draft horses from Ohio, Illinois and Michigan will compete with our Indiana entries for the top awards."

The 4-H and Gold Medal classes will be judged September 4, the Percherons on September 5 and 6, and the Belgians on September 6 and 7. Entries for all classes will be accepted until August 16.

FISH OF INDIANA

PUMPKINSEED—COMMON SUNFISH

DESCRIPTION: Pumpkinseeds are very gaudy fishes. Brilliant colors; deep body with the back elevated; profile of head steep, scarcely forming an angle above the eye; flap of opercle broad, short, bluntly rounded, its lower edge bright orange or scarlet; the eye is large, the maxillary reaching the front of the eye.

DISTRIBUTION: Abundant in all the streams and most of the lakes of the northern part of the state; confined to smaller streams and farm ponds in southern part of state.

HABITAT: Like the bluegill it prefers the heavy areas of vegetation and in the streams it is found around clumps of water willows or near piles of driftwood.

FOOD: Small aquatic animals insects and their larvae. Snails, worms and plants form the bulk of their food.

STOCKING: No stocking program at present as natural propagation seems to be sufficient.

SPAWNING AND PROPAGATION: Spawning is about the same time and under conditions similiar to those of the bluegill. Can be produced in small ponds with good success.

No closed season or bag limit on this species.

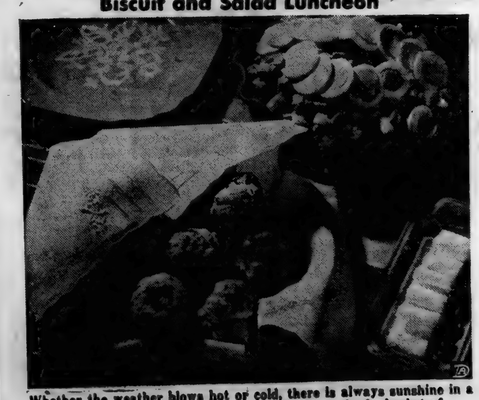
Biscuit and Salad Luncheon



Whether the weather blows hot or cold, there is always sunshine in a pleasant meal. The sunshine in this luncheon is the basket of crisp, hot biscuits served with chilled chicken salad.

Perhaps you've already discovered that flaky biscuits make as perfect a bread with chicken salad as they do with roasted or stewed chicken. Biscuits have a way with other salads, too. In less than ten minutes one can stir up a batch of drop biscuits that are full of good nourishment in every bite and that add a bit of Southern charm to the bread basket.

With a salad main dish, most hungry folks will eat three drop biscuits, or more. This means they will get an extra-generous portion of B-vitamins, iron, protein and food energy needed in summer as well as in winter. Because of their food value as well as their good taste, enriched breads of all kinds belong in practically every meal.

If you like, drop the biscuit batter into muffin cups rather than on a baking sheet. This makes shapely little biscuits. However they are baked, serve the biscuits hot with butter or margarine. Other spreads, such as honey, fruit jams, jellies or peanut butter are good, too. Sweet spreads are a good way to include extra calories in the diet for slimsters and growing children.

DROP BISCUITS

2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
2 to 4 tablespoons shortening

Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Cut or rub in shortening. Add milk to make a thick batter, stirring only until flour is well moistened. Drop by spoonfuls on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 8 to 10 minutes. Makes about 18 biscuits.

Conservation Club Practice Shoot

Trap-shoot enthusiasts will get another chance to sharpen up their eye this Sunday, August 16, when the St. Joe Valley Conservation Club holds a practice shoot at the club grounds just west of town.

It is planned to have shoots twice a month. Official dates will be announced later.

You frequently hear talk of the private power industry, meaning people like us. But the word "private" gives a rather wrong idea. It suggests a few individual owners—and all of them undoubtedly rich.

Actually Indiana & Michigan Electric Company is built on the savings of the people of the whole United States. To begin with, we have 30,458 direct owners—or stockholders—and they come from all walks of life.

Our indirect owners make a group that's even larger. They're the people who have insurance policies and saving accounts—and that probably includes you. These investments, in their way, can make you a part owner of Indiana & Michigan just as certainly as if you owned Indiana & Michigan stock.

When banks and insurance companies accept your money, they must invest it wisely. Because Indiana & Michigan has a long record of efficient management and operation, its securities are safe and sound, sought after by the bank and insurance people to whom you entrust your savings.

So whatever concerns this business-managed, tax-paying electric company affects millions of insurance policy holders and bank depositors, large and small. Since you're among them, you can see that whatever affects a "private" utility is very much private business of your own.

Fair Plans Near Completion

Plans are moving forward rapidly for the Sept. 12 opening of the 1950 edition of the DeKalb County free fall fair in Auburn, County Agent Ernest J. Lesiuk reported Wednesday.

The big five-day event will open Tuesday on the 12th and continue through Saturday, Sept. 16.

The new president of the free fall fair association, Lewis E. Freeman of near Auburn, predicts that the 1950 edition will be the best ever offered fair-goers of the county.

Mr. Lesiuk said the superintendents of the various departments are busy increasing their divisions and making plans to present a more uniform exhibit.

The county agent predicted that the swine, sheep, cattle and horse departments would enroll a record number of exhibits.

The plans for the 4-H exhibits, which are handled by the county extension office, are nearly complete. Premium ribbons have been ordered.

The 4-H club exhibits will be the biggest in the history of the fair. Over 200 head of hogs will be exhibited in the 4-H swine tent. These swine exhibits will include gilts, barrows and sow and litter classes.

The various livestock breed associations are awarding ribbons to 4-H club members this year in an effort to stimulate interest in their respective breeds.

FISH AND GAME CONVICTIONS NUMBER 631

During the fiscal year which began July 1, 1949, and ended June 30 of this year, Conservation Officers in the ninety-two counties of the state arrested 644 persons for the violation of various hunting and fishing laws. Of that number 631 were convicted; charges against three were dismissed; five were acquitted and five cases still are pending.

In all, fines and costs assessed in the conviction of the 631 violators amounted to $17,890.90. The Fish and Game Division of the Indiana Department of Conservation gets $5 for each conviction and in this fiscal year received $3,155, which applied to the tremendous operational costs of the division is but a "drop in the bucket." The balance of the fines and costs assessed is divided among courts, prosecutors and the county school set-up.

Lake County led the list of violators with forty-nine arrests with Johnson County running a close second with a total of forty-four. Next in line was Posey County with thirty-four.

Switzerland, Jasper, Jefferson, Huntington, Owen, Fountain, Franklin, Fulton, Henry and Clay counties each had one arrest.

Low men on the totem pole were Cass, Crawford, Scott, Sullivan, Vigo, Warren and Benton counties with perfect records of no arrests.

News Wins, Forfeits

The St. Joe News softballers came from behnd Saturday night after losing a 6-2 lead to defeat Wakefield's of Waterloo, 12-9. This was the first game for the locals in the Auburn league playoffs and gave them the opportunity to meet the Auburn Legion on Thursday, August 17.

Wayne Surfus was not his usual effective self and issued eleven walks to opposing batsmen. His mates had given him a 6-2 lead in the first two innings as Harold Yeiser and Pete Akey hit homers.

Wakefield's came back in the fifth to score six runs after Lew Walter dropped a pop foul and Jack Hughes let a grounder get through him. Several walks were issued in the inning to make up the six scores.

St. Joe pulled the game out of the fire in the last inning, scoring five times.

Big guns in the locals' attack were Akey, Walter and Yeiser with three hits apiece.

St. Joe had eleven hits while Wakefield's collected but five.

On Wednesday night the locals forfeited a game in the DeKalb County Tourney at Garret when only seven players were on hand at play'ng time. This drops them out of further competition in the tournament.

Mrs. Olen Waltz and her father,

TO OPPOSE TEMPORARY BOOST FOR ASSOCIATED PHONE CO.

Assistant Public Counselor Lloyd Wampler of the Indiana Public Service commission said this week his office would oppose a temporary rate increase for the Indiana Associated Telephone Corp. at a hearing Friday.

"We will oppose it on the basis that the utility has made no showing that it is being operated as economically as possible," Wampler said.

Wampler, whose department represents the public in utility hearings before the PSC, said he would take no part in another matter to be argued before the commission at the same time — whether increases, if granted, be based on a system-wide schedule or an individual exchange schedule. He said this was a matter for cities and the utility to decide.

The company, asking more than $1,000,000 annual rate increase, sought an interim grant that would allow it to charge higher prices now pending a fianl determination of the issue.

A hearing was held two days last week and recessed to August 18.

Mr. Walter Newman of Willard, O., called on friends and Mr. Newman's brother, Charles R. Newman, at Garrett Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. George Meyers spent Thursday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Mehl at Groverhill, Ind.

BUTLER YOUTHS INJURED IN SPENCERVILLE ACCIDENT

Two Butler youths were injured, neither of them seriously, about 11 p.m. Friday night when the driver lost control of the car he was driving and the vehicle upset in a bean field just east of the Spencerville town limits.

The driver of the car, Charles Clayton Oberlin, 17, and the owner, 17-year-old Gene Casebeer suffered minor shock, cuts and bruises. Sheriff Frank Carpenter and State Trooper Howard Chrisman of Auburn said two girls riding with the youths escaped injury. They were not identified by police.

The youths were treated in the office of Dr. Kreischer and released.

The officers said Oberlin, traveling west, failed to make the curve at the covered bridge a scant 100 feet from the town limits. The car rolled over at least twice and came to a halt several yards off the highway in the bean field.

Damage to the automobile, a 1950 Chevrolet, was estimated at $1,000.

AUBURN QUARTET IN A NATIONAL CONTEST

The "After-Glo Four," Auburn Moose lodge-sponsored quartet will participate in the finals of a nation-wide Moose quartet contest at the lodge's national convention in Chicago on Monday, August 21.

The local group, made up of King Oberlin of near Butler, bass; Max Rufner of Waterloo, baritone; Ray Turner of Auburn, lead; and Wayne Thomas, also of Auburn, tenor, recently won the Indiana State Moose quartet singing contest.

At Chicago, the singers will compete with quartets from 12 other Moose lodges in the U.S., representing the 13 top quartets which are sponsored by the organization in this country.

A Great Preacher?

Lesson for August 20, 1950

JESUS SAID of him that there had never been a greater man, than John, the Baptist. Certainly there has never been a greater preacher, to this day. He had none of the aids a modern preacher has. He had no song leader, no music of any kind; no church organization, no building, not even a tent. He was not even in a village but in a bandit-infested wilderness. There was little "dramatic" about him or his methods.

Dr. Foreman

Yet he started a tremendous revival, and he won higher praise from Jesus than any other human being received from him.

Candor

CONSIDER SOME of the qualities of this famous man. One was candor, that is, he was not afraid to speak his mind. His opinions were not always popular; his verdicts were not always those of the masses. But he spoke his mind all the same.

He called his bearers "generation of vipers,"—snakes' babies, in modern words. He freely admitted he was no Messiah. When on a later occasion he had his doubts about Jesus, he did not conceal them, but told Jesus straight from the shoulder that he questioned him. And Jesus honored his honesty.

Candor is a rare article. Those few persons in public life who are willing to speak their minds may make some enemies but they make more admirers. The odd thing is that people cover up their minds for fear they will be unpopular; whereas you will generally find that the candid person does not lack for friends.

Courage

THAT BRINGS up another quality outstanding in this extraordinary man: his courage. He could stand up to the most prominent citizens and tell them they were sinners, and name their sins.

It doesn't take much courage to say you are a sinner, or to say that any one is. Aren't we all? It takes more nerve to speak out in plain language, as John did to the Pharisees and Herod for example. When he called on men to repent, he meant a specific repentance, not repentance-in-general.

In a southern state there was a prison chaplain at the penitentiary. One of the prisoners had been convicted of stealing funds from the state bank. But he never had admitted his guilt, in court or afterwards. He was stand-offish with the chaplain, though before his conviction he used to be a church officer and a praying man, the chaplain could hardly get next to him.

Finally one day he agreed to pray. As he and the chaplain knelt down together, the prisoner began: "Lord, thou knowest that we are all miserable sinners . . ." The chaplain stopped him. Leaning over he said to the prisoner: "What are you in here for?" The man was still a moment. Then in a quite different tone of voice he began again: "O God, forgive me for stealing from the State Bank." It was the first time he had ever admitted his guilt. But it took courage on the chaplain's part as well as his own.

Common Sense

ANOTHER QUALITY of John which deserves notice is his simple common-sense. Listen to what he tells the men who come with this question: What must we do? John's common-sense mind knew that repentance, just by itself, is not enough. Repentance is turning from something bad to something good, from wrong to right.

Let the man with two shirts share with the man who has none, he said. Let him who has food do likewise. Let the tax-collector be honest. Let the soldier stop grumbling; even in an "occupied country" a soldier must not be unjust or cruel.

Pointing to Christ

WHAT MAKES John best remembered is that he preached Christ. He is known as the forerunner; he was the man who said of Jesus. "He must increase but I must decrease." The preacher who calls attention to himself is an egotist, a show-off; the preacher who draws men's eyes and hearts to Jesus Christ may himself be small, but his work will be great.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Last week I went fishing.

I never saw such lousy luck. The fruits of my efforts were a couple of three-inch bluegills. I guess fish are getting educated. One evening at about eight o'clock when they were working around at the surface, I held a baited hook just under water and watched as they came up to it. I learned that fish don't bite any more. They come up to the hook from the side and suck the bait off the hook.

What this country needs isn't a good five-cent cigar—it's something to replace the fish hook.

Oh well, the scenery was nice—at the beach.

Ira Moore stopped in Monday morning. He and the family visited here since a week ago Tuesday and left this Tuesday for their home in Arizona. They sold their house in St. Joe to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moore and cleared up the transaction while here. Ira said he is very pleased with his new home out west and is feeling fine, living in the dryer climate. He left an invitation to friends in St. Joe to look them up if folks from here take a trip in the vicinity of Phoenix. He clocked the mileage, from there to here at 1997 miles.

What's this about "Spider" Webb of Spencerville trying to make like a submarine with an outboard motor boat and getting his new shoes wet in the process?

If there's anything that gripes me it's going to a ball game in Chicago as I did last week with the little woman and her sister and husband, Ruth and Bob Schafenacker of Fort Wayne, to have a seat next to a Chicago "fan" who pans every player on the home team when they make an error or don't come through with a hit every time team mates are on base. This character next to me last Thursday sounded like a native of Brooklyn. When Hank Sauer came up the first time, my friend said, "Ah, that bum!"

Sauer struck out.

"See, what'd I tell you."

Big Hank went on to hit two homers and three doubles before the day was over.

When Roy Smalley came up to bat— "Well, well, here's Mr. Potential."

When Twig Terwilliger missed second base on a force play—"Send him back!"

When Bill Serena made a bad play— "Ha! Willie the Whip!"

!?$@$.;*?(@&!!

If you see Don Burley, ask him what success he had when he put a 100-watt light bulb in the socket of a Delco outfit while on his fishing trip with Roy Koch.

Maybe you noticed that the St. Joe News softball team forfeited two games in the last weeks of the season.

Why? Well, I'll tell you—I think it's a lack of spirit, not just ball playing spirit, but community spirit that makes a fellow proud to say that he's on the home town team, whether it's independent or otherwise. There seems to be an attitude among some—I didn't say ALL, I said SOME—of the younger athletes around here that they are granting a favor by playing on a team. How that feeling got started I don't know. But it certainly ISN'T the right attitude. Whenever you or I or ANYONE is asked to play on a team or participate in some activity, we are PRIVILEGED to be asked to do so and OBLIGATED to do our part to make the activity a success.

In this particular instance the "ac-

SECHLER REUNION

The 60th annual reunion of the Sechler Family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wade on Sunday, August 13.

The forenoon was spent in visiting and at noon a bountious pot-luck dinner was served. There were sixty relatives and one guest present.

After dinner a short business session was held at which time Nancy Smith gave the secretary and treasurer report and held roll call.

Officers for the coming year were elected with Bill Sible, president, Ralph Sechler, vice-president, and Marcia Sible, secretary and treasurer. The next reunion will be held at the Cheesetown Park. After the business session Berniece Sechler led the family in group singing. Mrs. Frank Baltz played the piano.

A rising vote of thanks was given the host and hostess for a lovely day.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schafenacker of Ft. Wayne attended the Chicago Cubs-Boston Braves double-header last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and sons were guests last week of Mr. Haberkorn's parents at Lake James.

On Saturday, August 19, Margie Haberkorn became the bride of Phillip Appleman of Kendallville at the Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church at Ft. Wayne. Mr. Ted Haberkorn, brother of the bride, served as usher and Mike and Dave Haberkorn were ring bearers. At a reception held at the Chatterbox in the Van Orman Hotel after the ceremony, Mrs. Esther Haberkorn assisted in serving the guests.

Mr. Appleman is studying at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor and the new Mrs. Haberkorn has accepted a teaching position also at Ann Arbor.

Funeral services for Mrs. Marguerite M. Mann of near St. Joe were conducted on Friday, August 18, in the Coburntown Church of Christ with the Rev. Darris Hamilton, pastor of the church, officiating. Burial was in Alton Cemetery. Mrs. Mann, 42, died Monday, August 14, in a Boston, Mass., hospital following a 26-year fight to overcome a heart ailment.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Bowman were last week guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Chapman in Big Rapids, Mich.

Wicoff's Teaching Contract Cancelled

The teaching contract of Dale C. Wicoff, 32, convicted recently of participation in the $350,000 swindle of the Farmers and Merchants State Bank at Spencerville, has been cancelled, Vinton Miller, Spencer township trustee, announced Wednesday.

Wicoff, who is appealing the 18 months sentence imposed upon him in federal court in Fort Wayne, was vocational agriculture instructor in the Spencer township schools and for the veterans' agricultural training program in the township.

Wicoff signed a one-year contract over two months ago. He has taught in the Spencer township schools for the past eleven years.

The Spencer township trustee reported that he has not secured a replacement for the position vacated by Wicoff. According to Carl F. Stallman, superintendent of the DeKalb county schools, the vocational agriculture teaching position in the Concord township schools is also open.

Reports from Spencerville stated that petitions have been circulated in the community asking that Wicoff be retained as instructor in the Spencerville schools..

Polio Threat Eases

The poliomyelitis situation in the Butler community apparently leveled off Tuesday after the second outbreak Monday, Dr. E. E. Rogers of Auburn, DeKalb health commissioner, stated in a report released Tuesday afternoon which revealed no new cases reported within the last 24 hours.

One of Monday's four victims of the disease, 26-year-old Arlow Francis Deever of Rt. 2, Butler, remains in a serious condition. He is confined in an iron lung at the St. Joseph's Hospital in Ft. Wayne.

He is suffering from spinal bulbar poliomyelitis.

Howard Steckley, 30, of Butler, who was admitted to St. Joseph's late Monday afternoon in a critical condition, is improving, according to attendants at the isolation ward in the hospital.

His brother, the Rev. Allen Lee Steckley, 26, died Saturday afternoon of bulbar poliomyelitis. He died in an Indianapolis hospital. Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon in the Johnson funeral home in Butler. The brothers are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Steckley of near Butler.

According to Dr. Rogers, the other six DeKalb victims of polio are improving satisfactorily. Charlotte Wilson, 22, of Butler; Ida Everetts, 12, of Butler and Bobbie Lee Jennings, 4, of near Butler, are recovering at Ft. Wayne hospitals. Brian Krontz, 10, of Butler, Clara Mae Bard, also 10, of Butler, and Merle Stayer, 30, of Waterloo are improving under care in their homes.

The ninth victim of polio in the county, 13-year-old Charles Ray Haverstock, of Butler, died August 23 in a Ft. Wayne hospital.

Bank Fraud Defendants Begin Terms

Five defendants, convicted and sentenced for complicity in the $350,000 swindle of the Farmers and Merchants State Bank at Spencerville, went to prison last week.

The sixth defendant, Dale Wicoff, 32-year-old Spencerville school teacher sentenced to 18 months in prison, remains free under $5,000 bond pending an appeal of his sentence to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago.

The five men who went to prison a week ago were Clyde G. Rectenwall, 66, former cashier of the bank who was sentenced to serve five years; R. C. Chaney, Jr., 27, Fort Wayne and Harlan used car dealer, seven years; Andrew J. Miller, 42, Lee Hatchery owner, three years; Lesil O. Bardsley, 36, Harlan trucker, three years and Ray C. Hoover, 48, Spencerville grocer, three years.

Wicoff was the only defendant in the case to file notice of appeal. He appeared in federal court at Hammond and was admitted to bail by Federal Judge Luther M. Swygert. He now has 40 days to secure a transcript of the proceedings at his trial.

In a statement preceding the sentencing of the six defendants, U. S. District Atorney Gilmore S. Haysie of Ft. Wayne disclosed that "there were other individuals with overdrafts" who were never indicted.

The statement by the district attorney answered a question paramount in the minds of many interested persons, although the government had reported months ago that the six defendants were responsible for less than $250,000 of the $350,000 shortage uncovered at the bank.

In his statement Haynie said that "in justice to the community (Spencerville), I would like to say that there were other individuals with overdrafts. The cases were carefully screened by the FBI and FIDC and rather than assuming the risk of injuring an innocent party who may have had a slight overdraft, we set an arbitrary figure. That figure was $5,000 and covered a long period of time.

"Some innocent parties," he continued, "might have been drawn into the indictment and share the same responsibilities as those who were indicted."

Spencerville

Rep. Mrs. Ray Hoover

Mr. and Mrs. James Reed of Middlepoint, O., and Mr. and Mrs. Max Moore and son, also of Middlepoint, were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Mary Stemen and son, Fred. They called on Mr. Homer Stemen at the Veterans' Hospital at Ft. Wayne in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hollopeter were Sunday dinner guests in the Henry Bartell home near Woodburn. It was Mr. Bartell's 56th birthday.

Mr. Dolphy Kimes of Ann Arbor, Mich., was a recent dinner guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kimes.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haupt of Spencerville are the parents of a daughter born Monday evening in the Dr. Bonnell M. Souder hospital in Auburn.

Mrs. Earl Mortoff and son, Paul, of Garrett were Thursday afternoon callers in the Harvey Kimes home.

Mrs. Francena Lake, Mrs. Larena Charpie and son, Hubert, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rhoads attended the 37th annual Rhoads Reunion held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Sible near Ft. Wayne recently.

Clarence Rediger, 51, of Spencerville was the driver of one of the cars in a headon collision Sunday in Allen county in which four persons were injured. He suffered a broken right kneecap and cuts on the hands while his wife, Flossie, 50, suffered cuts on the face and hands and a fractured leg. Two grandchildren of the Redigers were not injured. The accident occurred as Mrs. Jean Hines, also living at Spencerville, driver of the other car, lost control of her vehicle as it approached a narrow bridge and when her husband, Donald, attempted to help her right the car, it swerved across the road and crashed headon into the Rediger car. Charges of operating a car without a license were filed against Mrs. Hines.

Mrs. Ella Emrick of Huntertown spent Sunday with her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rhoads.

Miss Jackie Syders and Miss Alberta Gardner returned to their home in Cincinnati after visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rhoads.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jaffre spent the week-end at Hamilton Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Garrison of Sturgis, Mich., were Saturday callers at the George Beams home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hollabaugh and Mr. and Mrs. George Beams attended the Ft. Wayne Daisies girls' baseball game and the Allen County mounted police demonstration on men's night.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kelly and daughter, Janet, and Mrs. Lola Moore are spending a week's vacation at the lake.

Students Register Sept. 1

Principal C. O. Duker of the Concord Township Schools announced this week that the 1950-'51 school year will open on Friday, September 1, 1950, with registration at the local school house from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a. m.

Most of the textbooks needed for the school year are on hand and students are advised to purchase their books in the afternoon of the same day.

A child may register for school only if he or she reaches the age of six by October 10, 1950.

AROUND THE TOWN

tivity" is the News softball team.

The team was completely outfitted in new uniforms this year. That in itself is an expense which I'd bet NO ONE ELSE in St. Joe would be willing to stand. Besides there were other expenses for bats, balls. etc. Why did I do it? Sure, because I like sports and I like to play ball. But there's another reason—because I want St. Joe to be active—so it doesn't remain the "quiet little town in the southeastern part of the county" as it is sometimes referred to.

Now, when I took the initiative in sponsoring a team this year, I expected the fifteen players to give their best not only in efforts in play but also in efforts to BE AT EVERY GAME. Sure, there are times when you just CAN'T get there or get there on time. That's O.K. But there were an awful lot of "emergencies" that must have come up in the last half of the season.

—No, there weren't many emergencies. There just wasn't any PRIDE on the player's part—pride in BEING on the St. Joe ball team.

Another factor which I think influenced two or three in not showing up for games was the fact that they didn't realize that I could only put NINE out of fifteen players on the field. Somebody had to sit on the bench. And when I put that particular nine on the field, I was trying to WIN A BALL GAME.

I never managed a team before and I know there are others who could have done a lot better job—if they would take the job. I asked one individual to manage the team, but he replied, "No, Ted, I wouldn't do it because I know what you're running up against and I'm afraid I couldn't take it."

That was a nice compliment, wasn't it, boys?

Can you imagine what those half dozen or so on the team who DID have the spirit and put forth their every effort were up against—when they waited in vain at Garrett for two more players to show up so that St. Joe could play in the county tourney? THE COUNTY TOURNEY—and only seven players. Spirit? Obligation? Pride?

If you're wondering about the second forfeit, I forfeited the game three days ahead of time—because I was disgusted.

—And if you want to get mercenary, it was five bucks that I kissed goodbye as an entry fee for that county tourney. Yes, it cost me five smackers to play a 5 inning exhibition game to fill in the gap when we were supposed to be participating in an official tourney game. It was twenty smackers I kissed goodbye to get in the Auburn league—it was eight bucks per each for fifteen new uniforms—it was sixty some bucks for gloves, mask and bases—it was fifty-four odd smackers for baseballs.

You think that I'm prejudiced because it was MY team—that I am expecting too much?

If I am, I am expecting too much for our community to LIVE!

OLD STUFF

You've seen news items gleaned from ten, twenty, even fifty years ago.

Well, here's something different—here are some items from one WEEK ago (since there wasn't any paper published last week).

AUBURN QUARTET FAILS TO PLACE IN NATIONAL CONTEST

The "After-Glo Four" quartet, which is sponsored by the Auburn Moose lodge and represented the state of Indiana at the national Moose quartet contests at Chicago last week, developed a case of stage-fright and finished out of the first five places in the competition.

The quartet contests were a part of the national Moose convention in Chicago which started a week ago. A number of Auburn Moose members accompanied the quartet to Chicago and attended lodge meetings.

According to Auburn members who were at the competition, the quartet had the championship practically won after their first song, but got off to a bad start in their second melody and that spelled doom for the singers.

NUISANCE CLUB

At a meeting of the Nuisance Club last Thursday, August 24, nine members were present. The club also had a visitor present, Pat Stull, from Ft. Wayne.

The meeting was in the form of a picnic held at Anthony's Grove with refreshments followed by games. The meeting ended at nine-thirty.

The club wishes to thank everyone who contributed to its recent bake sale.

"Sunday On The Farm" Headliners

Well known to radio listeners in this part of the country are Roy Battles and Ann Ryan, above, popular stars of radio station WLW, who are headlining a new program, "Sunday On The Farm." The program is broadcast from the station's "Everybody's Farm" from 1:30 to 2 p.m., EST, each Sunday. It is sponsored by New Idea Division, Avco Manufacturing Corporation, producer of farm equipment and machinery, which has its headquarters and main plant in Coldwater, Ohio. Battles, WLW farm director, is master of ceremonies and Miss Ryan is featured vocalist. They are seen here in the midst of a broadcast of the program on the lawn of "Everybody's Farm," near Mason, Ohio. The show also has a guest of special interest to farmers each week and features other WLW stars.

NEWVILLE TWP. HOME EC

The Newville club met August 9 at the school house for its regular meeting with Dorothy Meek, Lucille Nelson, Gladys Miller asd Della Hart as hostesses. The club was called to order by the president, Cynthia Sipe.

Following a song and the creed, devotions were conducted by Daisy Roberts followed by a hymn. Roll call, "The Funniest Place To Hide Money," was answered by 35 members and guests including a large number of members from the Jackson township club who were guests for the meeting.

After the roll call and the secretary's report, the president welcomed members of the visiting club and the regular business was conducted.

The club sponsored a trip to the lake with refreshments of ice cream and cake for the 4-H clubs of Newville township on Tuesday, Aug. 15.

The club trip to Chicago was announced and final plans made. Mrs. Elsie Meek told of a fund being raised for the Stauffer boy of Hicksville and the club voted to give $10.

Other routine matters were taken up after which entertainment consisting of contests, a playlet and readings was given and enjoyed by all.

The next meeting will be on September 6.

Seed Cleaning And Treating Dates Given

According to the county agricultural agent, Ernest J. Lesiuk, a schedule for cleaning and treating seed in each township has again been worked out. Farmers are urged to clean and treat their seed wheat this fall as it greatly improves the chances of a better crop at harvest time.

There will be two cleaners operating on the schedule this year - H. J. Dickison and Son of Butler township and Ewald Schmidt of Wilmington township. Mr. Schmidt will operate the cleaner formerly owned by Ivan Rosenberry of Wilmington township.

The two operators and the county agricultural agent worked out a schedule which includes all townships in the county. Individuals wishing cleaning done should contact their committeeman listed below giving the amount of grain they wish cleaned and treated. It is very important that farmers have additional help and plenty of clean sacks ready when the cleaner arrives. One man will be with each machine so farmers will be expected to furnish two to help operate the machine efficiently.

The dates for Concord, Spencer and Newville townships are as follows-

September 6,7 - Concord township; cleaner - Schmidt; committeeman - William LaRowe, St. Joe.

September 8,9 - Spencer and Newville townships; cleaner - Schmidt; committeeman - Fred Ulm, St. Joe.

Man of Power

Lesson for September 3, 1950

"I KNEW him when—" can be a deadly weapon. It has knocked down many a good man. Some one is being considered for a job, and he is just about to be accepted, when somebody sounds off with "I knew him when—"

Dr. Foreman

"I knew him when he was a boy and he was a neighborhood nuisance. I knew him when he used to live here, and his family were no-account. I knew him when he was in school and he never had high grades. I knew him before he amounted to anything, so he can't amount to anything now.

A Case Against Peter

IT IS A GOOD thing the Christian church never took that attitude about the Apostles, and a very good thing they didn't take that line with Peter. It is true that he did not come out of the top drawer. It is quite true that when he was young he was no prize specimen. In fact, it would not be hard to make almost as strong a case against him as against Judas, if you take Simon Peter at his low point.

"Shall we keep Peter on our list?" Suppose you had been one of the other apostles and had been asked that question the night after the crucifixion. If you had not had a rather generous heart, you could easily have turned in an unfavorable report.

"Well," you might have said, "he has some good points. He is sometimes on the alert, never fails for something to say. But he doesn't always come through in a pinch. I understand the Lord took him up to the top of the mountain when he was transfigured, and what did that man do but go to sleep? Any of us would have given our right eye to have been there. But we never did get much of a story out of poor old Simon Peter. He was asleep most of the time.

"And do you remember that dinner when Mary poured all that ointment over Jesus' head? It was a beautiful thing for her to do, I mean her motive was beautiful. But Peter complained about it.

"Then there was the night—only last night, but it seems a year away—when Jesus took Simon Peter and those two others into the garden with him. All the Master wanted was company. But old Peter was asleep again in no time.

"But that's not the worst. Last night at the supper table Peter bragged about how brave he was—got out a couple of swords in fact—and he swore that even if every one else denied the Master, he wouldn't. But just before cock-crow he showed himself up for a liar and a coward. Some girls, just a girl, mind you, somebody out of the kitchen, said she knew he was a friend of Jesus. And this Peter starts swearing in the ugliest kind of language that he never knew Jesus, his very best friend.

"Well, Judas hanged himself, and Peter might as well . . . . I don't see how he can possibly hold his head up again after last night."

Man of Power

NEVERTHELESS, Peter became a hero, a man of power. Look at his story in Acts 2-5. A recognized leader of the Christians, defying the very men of whom he had once been so afraid; honest, rock-ribbed, standing up for the Master when it meant risking his life to do so.

Even if you could not believe the miracle-stories which are told about him in Acts, you would have to admit that it is not every man who has miracle-stories told about him.

It is no weakling who has the reputation of being able to raise men from the dead and to kill liars with a glance of the eye.

Transforming Secret

WHAT WAS the secret of Peter's transformation from the half-braggart, half-coward he used to be, to the stalwart fearless man of power he became? The answer is in those stories in our Scripture readings from Matthew and John.

The first tells of Jesus' faith in Simon Peter. The second tells of that again, and also of Peter's response to Jesus' faith in him. It is the secret of any Christian's success in being all that God knows he can be.

1925 CLASS REUNION

The Class of 1925 of the local high school met August 20 for their first reunion in more than twenty years.

The meeting was held at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Harcourt (Buddy) Miser at Skinner Lake near Albion.

A basket dinner was enjoyed at the noon hour and the remainder of the day was spent in swimming, fishing, pitching horseshoes and just plain visiting.

This class was one of the smallest to graduate from the St. Joe high school (it was called then) since the early days. There were only seven members.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Wiechart and son of Fort Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ziegler and daughter of Elkhart, Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Shafer and family of north of St. Joe, Miss Verba Haner and Mr. Jess Radabaugh of Waterloo and the host and hostess and son. The ladies named were, respectively, Freda Martin, Bessie Layman and Evalyn Knight. Mrs. Miser was Ima Bray and was at one time a teacher in the school.

Lloyd Curie of Toledo and Paul Hadsell of Tecumseh, Mich., were the two members of the class not able to attend. Mr. Roy Maxwell of St. Joe, who was class sponsor throughout its high school career, was also absent although he sent a beautiful bouquet of his prize gladioli which everyone enjoyed.

Another gathering is planned for June of 1951 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Shafer.

You could be in this picture!

A scream of brakes, a deafening crash and it was all over. They carried away the crumpled body of the farmer who was driving this tractor. He was driving without lights—despite the poor visibility. See that your tractor has lights that are in good condition. Use them at dawn and dusk when danger is greatest. Don't be penny-wise and safety foolish. Be careful—the life you save may be your own!

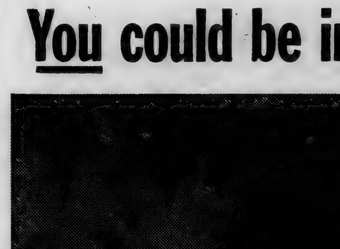

Reaching for trouble. This farmer is showing how he lost part of an arm unclogging his ensilage cutter. Turn off farm machinery before you try to fix it, and accidents like this won't happen to you.

Falls can kill! Broken steps, weak railings, shaky ladders and rotted floors cause a high percentage of accidents to farm residents. Safety check your home and farm buildings today—prevent an accident tomorrow!

How to take the Work out of Housework

Wash the beater and bowl of your electric mixer immediately after use. Lukewarm water is best. Never bang the beater against the bowl to detach particles. Always dry thoroughly. Wipe off motor. Cover when not in use.

(Mixers are handy. You can run yours an hour for a cent's worth of electricity.)

Didn't finish your ironing today? Don't worry. You can keep sprinkled clothes from mildew by wrapping in wax paper, and placing in your refrigerator. They'll keep sweet and fresh for several days.

(Your refrigerator will work all week end for a nickel's worth of electricity.)

What's more welcome than a cooling fan these hot summer days? Be sure the blades on your fan are clean, and the wire and plug are in good order. Fans get thirsty in summer, too. When was yours oiled last?

(For only one cent, an ordinary sized fan will keep you cool more than 4 full hours.)

Before washing dishes that have held raw eggs, rinse in cold water. Hot water cooks the eggs on the dish, makes washing harder. Lucky you, if you have an electric washer. Simply put your dishes in and forget them!

(An electric dishwasher will wash and dry 6 loads of dishes for a penny! Less breakage, too!)

SOFTBALL SEASON FADES OUT

The softball season drew to a close for the local teams last week. The News team was walloped 24-2 by the Auburn Legion on August 17, and a scheduled game for Tuesday, August 22, was forfeited to Warner's.

The Universal Tool team of Spencerville defeated Schaab's in the county tourney, 4-3, on Monday of last week. Schaab's protested that Universal used ineligible players and the protest was allowed. The game was to have been replayed, but Universal refused to accept the protest board's decision and withdrew from the tourney.

CONSERVATION CLUB

The St. Joe Valley Conservation Club, Inc., has announced the following schedule for shooting at its grounds.

The second Sunday of each month will be known as practice shooting, the fourth Sunday of each month as advertised shooting. Thus the second and fourth Sunday of each month are shooting days.

Members and their friends are invited to visit these grounds which are becoming very popular and are being improved continually.

There will be a meeting of the club on Friday, September 1, at 8 p.m. at the K. of P. hall.

Defense Group Organized

The organization of the DeKalb County Civilian Defense group has been completed, John W. McIntyre of Auburn reported following announcement of the appointment of the deputy community directors in Waterloo and Garrett.

The DeKalb county board of commissioners included a $500 fund for operating expenses for the county civilian defense organization in the proposed 1951 county budget.

The commissioners included the request in the board's proposed budget for next year. The action was taken after Mr. McIntyre appeared before the commissioners at the regular August meeting in the court house in Auburn and requested funds for the organization.

Previously, all expenses had been paid by the individuals instrumental in organizing the defense group and officers of the organizatian.

Farm — EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday, 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

THE rural real estate market is still fairly active, despite the fact that prospective buyers are growing more particular and selective than in the past few years, according to the Department of Agriculture.

Folks who want to buy a farm today are more cautious and are looking for good bargains in better land — land that will return them a good profit in the long run. This group of prospective buyers represent the business side of farming and they're interested in making a living from the soil.

There's another large group of folks who buy rural property, and their primary considerations are convenience and comfort in country living, with the quality of the soil for farming only a secondary consideration.

This group has resulted in a continuing strong demand for small farms suitable for rural homes and part-time farming, mostly in the northeast and southeast sections of the country. The condition of improvements and the location of such rural property determines the sale price more than the farming qualities of the land.

Good roads to a market or to a job in a larger city, telephone and electric service, good school and church facilities, good neighbors and low tax rates are the items that will bring these part-time farmers into the country. This trend toward the country is especially noticable around large cities, such as Chicago, whose suburbs have shown a greater rate of growth since 1940 than has the city itself.

The USDA real estate report also noted that generally, farmers who are well established are staying where they are. Only 17 per cent of the real estate dealers surveyed said they had more farms to sell this year than last, while 37 per cent reported fewer listings.

PLANS MADE FOR 4-H CLUB AUCTION IN DEKALB COUNTY

The DeKalb County 4-H livestock auction committee and interested co-operators met August 21 in the court house in Auburn to reorganize the auction for 1950, according to an announcement made by the county agricultural agent, Ernest J. Lesiuk.

New officers were installed as follows: Lenard Fisher of Concord township, chairman; Wilbur Beree of Newville township, vice-chairman; Robert Witt of Spencer township, treasurer; and Lloyd Mason of Richland township, assistant treasurer.

Weighing committe—George Dilley, chairman; L. K. Mason, William Klock and Carl Carpenter.

Ring committee — Max Riggins, chairman; John Brand, Howard Renner, Arthur Friend, John Scranage, Carl Carpenter, Robert Witt and Wilbur Beree.

The auction committee will meet again in the near future to complete plans for this year's event.

An Attractive

buy is the Wayne Warstler home in St. Joe. This home has been recently remodeled into a 3-bedroom home with a beautiful, spacious living room with new carpeting of excellent taste. City water. Built-in cupboards in kitchen. Breakfast nook. Septic tank and toilet stool. All this for only $3,950. Small down payment and easy terms to right person. Better buy now before prices go higher.

Net horsepower . . . the power you use, the power delivered at the clutch . . . is the true measuring stick of a truck's ability to haul payloads. And for net horsepower, Chevrolet heavy-duty trucks with Loadmaster engine have no equal among the five most popular standard equipped makes in their weight class—13,000 to 16,000 lbs. G.V.W.) Chevrolet heavy-duty trucks load them all! Compare the facts! Check the serial plates of all other popular makes for proof. And remember—it's the power at the clutch that counts! Come in and let us tell you the full story of Chevrolet's truck leadership.

CONCORD TWP. HOME EC

The Concord Township Home Economics Club met Friday afternoon, August 18, at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Shull for its regular meeting. The opening song was "America." The club creed was read followed by prayer song. Mrs. Iva Yeiser gave a short talk on "Health," and some interesting facts concerning the Irene Byron hospital.

Mrs. Cora Curie read a very interesting article, "Is Your Doctor A Quack? And How To Know."

The president, Mrs. Doris Yeiser, gave some pointers on preserving vegetables, which she received from the lesson given at Purdue. The club voted to join the roadside council. Twenty members responded to roll call with canning hints. One guest was present, Miss Carolyn Means.

Mrs. Katie Storer and Mrs. Myrtle Pugsley entertained the club with contests. The door prize was given to Mrs. Cora Curie. The hostess with her committee, Mrs. Inez Hadsell and Mrs. Victoria Means, served lunch of fruit salad, cup cakes and coffee.

The September meeting place will be decided later and the date has been changed to September 22.

HOW IS THE TIME TO BUY THE BEST!
GOODYEAR
are the best!

In times like these, far-sighted people naturally buy the best. And when it comes to tires, they buy the best tires. That's why more car owners today are turning to Goodyear tires. That's why we're having a hard time keeping Goodyear tires in stock — despite the fact that Goodyear makes more tires than any other manufacturer in the world. Even if we are temporarily out of your tire size, it will pay you to place your order now for earliest possible delivery.

Trade new miles for old

90% of all tire trouble occurs in the last 10% of tire life. Why take chances with worn, smooth tires? We'll trade new Goodyear miles for the remaining unsafe mileage in your present tires. Get out of the "danger zone" — go Goodyear. And for safer driving, get LifeGuard Safety Tubes.

Remember, if we don't have your tire size today, it will pay you to wait for new Goodyears — the best!

Come in ... let's talk tires, tubes, terms

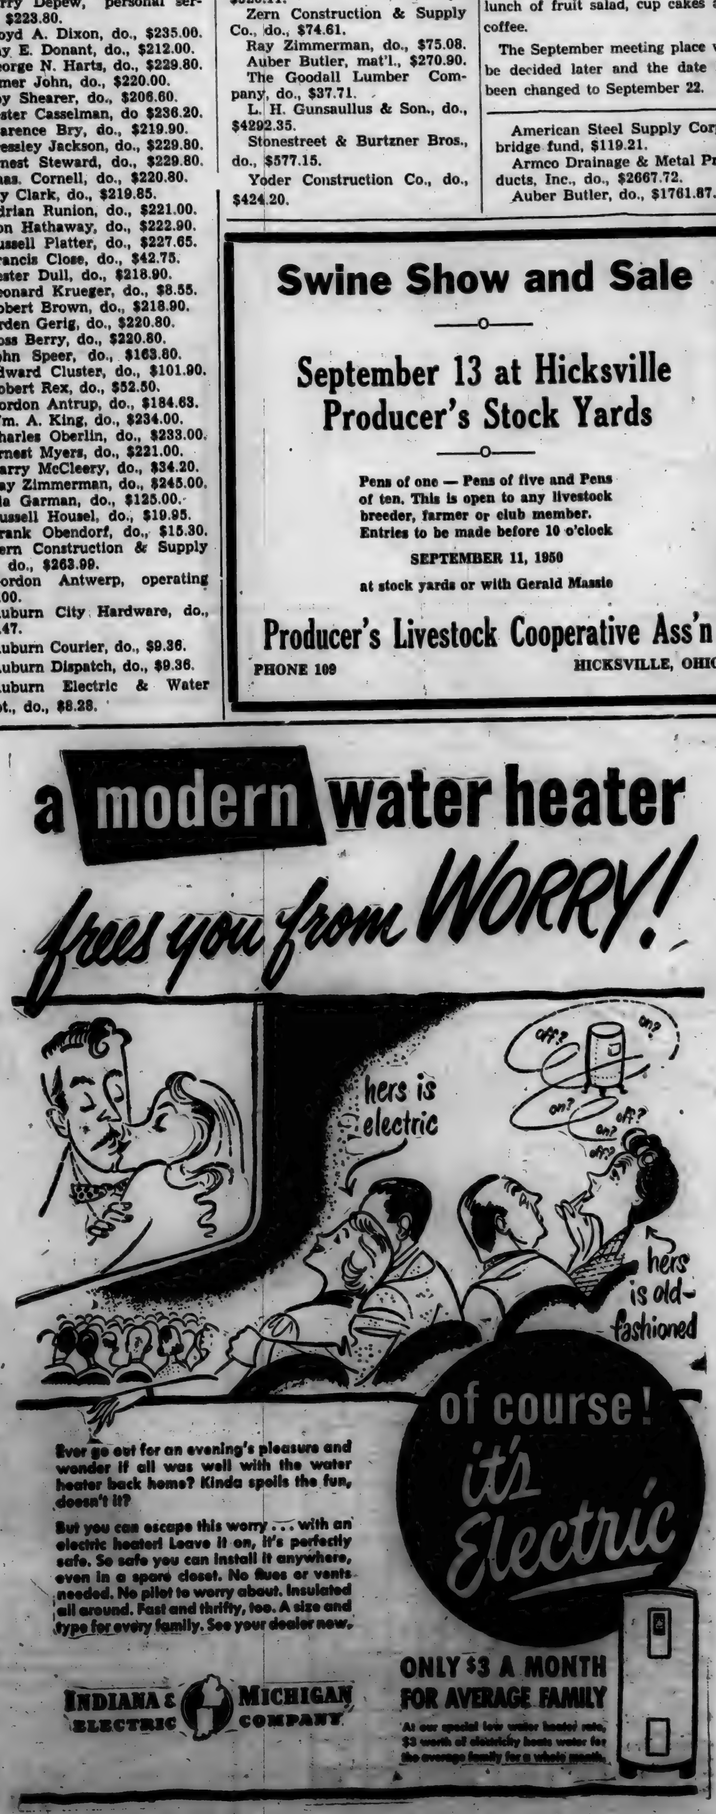
a modern water heater frees you from WORRY!



Ever go out for an evening's pleasure and wonder if all was well with the water heater back home? Kinda spoils the fun, doesn't it?

But you can escape this worry ... with an electric heater! Leave it on, it's perfectly safe. So safe you can install it anywhere, even in a spare closet. No flues or vents needed. No pilot to worry about. Insulated all around. Fast and thrifty, too. A size and type for every family. See your dealer now.

INDIANA & MICHIGAN ELECTRIC COMPANY

ONLY $3 A MONTH FOR AVERAGE FAMILY

At our special low water heater rate, $3 worth of electricity heats water for the average family for a whole month.

Around the Town

With the Editor

Twice last week I thought my senses were going bad (no remarks, please). The first instance occurred when I paid my telephone and light bills at Marjorie Ramsey's telephone office. I was concentrating on separating the bills on the counter and when I looked up, all I could see was headlines and columns of newspaper clippings. No, my mind hadn't snapped — it was just the "newsprint blouse" Beverley Ridgway was wearing.

Then a couple of days later I turned on the radio at the shop after returning from lunch. It was ball game time and I stopped short when Bud Campbell, who assists Bert Wilson on Cub broadcasts from Chicago, came over the air waves with, "Bryant is taking his warm-up throws with Hartnett."

It turned out that he was recreating that game of Sepember, 1938, when good old "Gabby" Hartnett hit a home run in the last of the ninth inning in virtual darkness and won the game from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Do these line-ups bring back any not-so-old memories for you? They did for me.

CUBS	PIRATES
Hack 3b	L. Waner lf
Herman 2b	P. Waner cf
Demaree cf	Rizzo rf
Cavaretta lf	Vaughn ss
Reynolds rf	Suhr 1b
Hartnett c	Young 2b
Colliris 1b	Handley 3b
Jurges ss	Todd c
Bryant p	Klinger p

There certainly is a noticeable difference in baseball strategy in twelve years. The Cubs used five pitchers that day even though the Pirates scored but six runs. Nowadays it's not unusual for ONE pitcher to give up six runs.

You've seen bubblegum in the shape of little balls with a coating of candy on the outside. Mike and Dave call it "ball gum." Well, on Wednesday noon I gave Mike two ball gums, one for himself and one for Davey. At the lunch table Mike said, "Dave, I've got a surprise for you. It's in my pocket. Guess what it is — — — — say 'ball gum'."

"Ball gum!"

"YEAH!"

Style Show On Sept. 29

The American Legion Auxiliary of Walter Whitehurst Post 283, St. Joe, Indiana, is sponsoring a benefit style show on Friday, September 29, 1950, at the St. Joe gym at 8 p.m. Tickets are 75 cents. Styles will be shown by Schaab's of Auburn.

Twenty beautiful door prizes will be awarded.

Ladies may play cards, bridge, canasta, bunco or other table games. Refreshments will be served.

Tickets may be obtained from auxiliary members including Gretchen Noragon, Harriett Baker, Ruth Collins, April Davis, Doris Yeiser and Elizabeth Shull.

LEO AUXILIARY NOTES

Mrs. Robert Tharp and Mrs. Vernon Halter, president and secretary, respectively, of the Leo Auxiliary Unit 409, recently attended the Indiana Department Convention at French Lick.

Honors received by the Leo Unit include first on Pan American Doll, entered by Suellen Gerig, Unit Junior; first on Ecuadorean Diary by Mrs. Harold Kryder. The doll and diary will be entered in National competition at the Convention at Los Angeles in October.

The Unit Publicity Scrapbook Chairman, Mrs. Paul Casey, received a new official emblem scrapbook as honorable mention award. The Unit was also cited as 100 percent under the Merit Award, and received National Honor for reaching membership quota.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Rev. W. H. Baker has announced that there will be no church services in the Lutheran churches on Sunday, September 10, 1950.

Local News

Mrs. Glen Cole, Rep.

Mrs Robert Walters and baby daughter were dismissed from the Sanders hospital Sunday and returned to their home at St. Joe. The baby was born September 1.

Mr. and Mrs. George Edwards and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elliot of Adrian, Mich., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Pugsley. Mrs. Edwards is a sister of Mrs. Pugsley.

Mrs. Bess Klopfenstein and grandchildren, Carol and Alan, spent the week-end with Elizabeth Hart. They and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Klopfenstein and Paul Sellers of Ft. Wayne were Labor Day dinner guests. Mrs. Andrew Ward was an evening caller.

Miss Syble Slatton of Warrior, Alabama is staying with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Walter of near St. Joe. Mrs. Walter has been unable to do her housework for the past month.

Miss Coyne Lemmon of West Lafayette was a visitor in the Simeon Nicholls Dick Wasson and Harvey Hull homes last week. Wednesday afternoon she, with Maxine Wasson and Harvey Hull, called in the Calvin Hull home in Sherwood, Ohio.

Harriett Baker and Ruth Collins attended the American Legion Auxiliary State Convention at French Lick, Ind. Harriett was awarded a personal award by Gretchen Warfel, Department Rehabilitation Chairman. This award was given to Harriett because of her outstanding personal contact in rehabilitation.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Bowman were Wednesday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bartholomew in Waterloo.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Haberkorn and sons were Labor Day guests of Mrs. Haberkorn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hauke of Ft. Wayne.

David Heyman, 16, of Rt. 1, St. Joe, who was accidently shot in the legs while hunting with a companion last Wednesday, was released Friday afternoon from the Dr. Bonnell M. Souder hospital in Auburn. The youth was shot by a .22 caliber rifle. The bullett entered his left leg and traveled on through and entered his right leg. The bullett was removed by sugery late Wednesday. Heyman's companion accidentally discharged the gun while trying to eject a jammed cartridge, according to reports given the attending physician.

Funeral services for Mrs. Olive DeLong were held Friday afternoon. Mrs. DeLong, a resident of Richland township for many years, died last week at the Williams Convalescent Home in Butler. The 73-year-old woman suffered her third and fatal stroke of paralysis Tuesday night. Survivors include four daughters, Mrs. Lavon Carper, Mrs. Ilah Surfus, Mrs. Gladys Beck and Mrs. Margaret Carper, all of Auburn; four sons, David DeLong of Garrett, Claude DeLong of Kendallville, Harold DeLong of St. Joe and Kenneth DeLong of Auburn; two brothers, Eugene Treesh of Kendallville and Earl Treesh of Toledo; two sisters, Mrs. Nellie Weihmuller of South Milford and Miss Vera Treesh of Toledo; 31 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. Burial was in Fairfield Center cemetery.

Dood-to-door solicitors in Butler collected more than $1000 for the campaign to spray the town. The original goal was set at $500. Ralph Cox of Montpelier, O., who contracted to spray Butler with insecticides, has completed the job. The money left over will be set aside for spraying in Butler next spring.

REQUEST FOR PHONE RATE BOOST TEMPORARILY DENIED

Indiana's second largest telephone utility this week was denied temporarily permission to raise rates.

The state public service commission ruled that the Indiana Associated Telephone corporation must make no change in its rates until its petition for a permanent increase has been decided.

The commission set Oct. 9 to resume the hearing started in August on the firm's request to hike rates at a cost to patrons of 19 exchanges of some $1,325,000 a year. The commission said the hearing would continue until completed.

2nd County Polio Victm

Poliomyelitis took its second victim in the Butler community last week with the death of Arlow F. Dever, 26-year-old marine veteran and father of two sons, on Thursday.

And two other Butler youths, Paul Tom and Robert Obendorf, were admitted to the St. Joseph's hospital at Ft. Wayne Thursday morning. Obendorf's ailment was diagnosed as a mild case of polio. Tom was listed as a "suspected" case. Physicians also stated there are other "suspected" cases in the Butler community.

Five-year-old Steven Roy Dietrich of Waterloo is seriously ill with polio in the St. Joseph's hospital, Dr. E. E. Rogers of Auburn, DeKalb county health commissioner, reported Saturday.

The youngster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dietrich, was placed in an oxygen tent Satruday morning, according to his Waterloo physician. He became ill August 25 and his condition became serious Friday after it was confirmed that he is suffering from polio.

The case was the second in the Waterloo community. Merle Stayer, 30, has recovered from a mild case of poliomyelitois, his attending physician reported.

Dr. Rogers reported Tuesday that 11-year-old Shirley Croy of Auburn has poliomyelitis.

It is the first case reported in that city in 1950.

Shirley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marley Croy, is a patient in the polio ward at the St. Joseph's hospital at Ft. Wayne.

Dr. Rogers said the child has paralysis but there has been no indication of respiratory paralysis. Her condition is reported as satisfactory.

Blauser-Chaney

Miss Phyllis Chaney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Chaney, Sr., of Spencerville, became the bride of Gerald Blauser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Blauser, Harlan, at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Spencerville. The Rev. Howard Baker, assisted by the groom's uncle, the Rev. William Koehnlein, Monroeville, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Before the ceremony Mrs. Glenn Woods presented an organ musicale accompanied by Miss Michilou Mettert, vocalist. Forming a background for the rite were palms and beauty vases filled with mums.

The bride's gown of ivory brocaded satin featured a deep square neckline outlined by a bias fold of matching material and the sleeves were capped. The long molded bodice was attached to a full skirt which ended in a cathedral train. Her full-length veil of imported Swiss illusion was caught to a headpiece of satin entwined with lilies of the valley. She wore elbow length mitts of matching material and carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid. Her rhinestone and ruby necklace and earring set was a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Virginia Horn, Spencerville, served as the maid of honor while bridesmaids were the Mesdames Homer McMaken, Lewis Wilder and Charles Stopher. Their gowns were of deep gold, pink, yellow gold and green, respectively. They wore elbow-length mitts with matching bonnets and carried bouquets of chrysanthemums. Their pearl necklaces were gifts of the bride. Miss Judy Chaney, niece of the bride, and Dennis McMaken, nephew of the bride, acted as flower girl and ringbearer, respectively.

Both mothers wore dark green crepe dresses with corsages of gold colored chrysanthemums.

Three-hundred guests were received at the home of the bride's parents after the wedding rite. Servers were the Mesdames Bernard McNabb, Dearborn, Mich.; Robert Koehnlein and Martin Walter and the Misses Marian Chaney, Patricia Pratt, Midge Hollabaugh, Margaret Chaney and Maxine Hoover, all of Spencerville; Arden Slough, Frances Hersh and Mildred Julian, Harlan.

For going away the bride changed to a navy blue gabardine suit with Dubonnet accessories. After a short wedding trip the couple will reside near Spencerville.

Rep. Mrs. Ray Hoover

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kimes entertained at their home Sunday in honor of Mr. Kimes' birthday the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Bob Kimes and children, Donald, Marcia Ann and Carol Lee, Mrs. Minnie Kimes and daughteres, Rose Ann and Donna Mae, and Mr. Russ Armstrong of Ft. Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. John Jakubic of Cleveland; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kimes and sons, Lynn and Lanny, Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Steiner and Miss Sara Gerig of near Leo; and Mrs. Rosa Widdifield.

Dr. Cleveland Shutt of St. Louis, Mo., was a Sunday evening caller in the Harvey Kimes home.

John Gorrell of Spencerville underwent major surgery Saturday evening at the Sanders hospital in Auburn.

John W. Cook of Spencerville was released Saturday from the Dr. Bonnell M. Souder hospital in Auburn where he was admitted for treatment of a fractured leg.

The August meeting of the Loyal Women's Sunday School class of the Lutheran Church met Wednesday evening, August 30, at the home of Mrs. Addie Miller. Twelve members and one guest, Mrs. Roger Stebing, were present. Mrs. Maude Beams and Mrs. Jessie Sommers had charge of the devotionals and program, which consisted of a reading by Mrs. Sommer entitled "God's Garden of Flowers" and two contests which afforded much amusement. A prize was won by Mrs. Alma Hart. A carry in dinner was served. Mrs. Zona Able will be hostess for the September meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Killian and family of Woodburn called on Mrs. Ray Hoover Labor Day.

Rev. and Mrs. Darwin Salisbury and family have moved to Michigan where he will be pastor of a church closer to home.

Mrs. Marguerite Hoffman received word of the death of her mother-in-law at Perrysburg, O., last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hoover of Fort Wayne were Sunday visitors in the home of Mrs. Ray Hoover.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Miller were Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Perry of Kalamazoo, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Prestege of Battle Creek, Mrs. Fred Strible of Los Angeles, Mr. Newton Perry of Hicksville, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Miller of Ft. Wayne and Mrs. Florence Silberg of Spencerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Miller spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. John Hartwick at Schneider, Ind. Miss Judy returned home with them after spending a month with her aunt.

Election Candidates Certified

Friday September 1 was the final day to certify candidates for the Nov. 7 general election and County Clerk Ralph Bruce has announced the following slates of the parties.

The republican ticket is full. Candidates were certified several weeks ago by County Chairman Gene Browand of Auburn and the G.O.P. central committee to fill vacancies on the township tickets. A full county slate was nominated at the May primary.

The democrats of DeKalb county filled their county ticket with the exception of a nominee for prosecuting atorney and some of the township offices. The democratic candidates were certified by Chairman Robert Riddle of Auburn and the central committee.

Prohibition party officials, who reported following their convention on July 10 that they would present a ticket to voters this fall, have announced their candidates.

Following are the candidates certified by the prohibition party.

For congressman, Fourth dictrict —Lewis Black of Ligonier.

For state representative, DeKalb county—Fred Knott of Auburn.

For county auditor—Virginia Arnold of Auburn.

For county treasurer—Jesse E. Ober of Rt. 1, Garrett.

For county assessor—Benjamin S. Miller of Rt. 1, Waterloo.

For county councilman at large —Clarence Fretz of Auburn, Wilbur Brand of Rt. 2, Waterloo, and the Rev. P. A. Hubartt of Waterloo.

For county councilman, first district—Hubert Steininger of Butler.

For county councilman, second district—Joseph Ober of near Ashley.

For councilman, third district —Paul J. McDonald of Corunna.

For councilman, fourth district —Leon Barnhart of Auburn.

The trustees and advisory board members nominated by the prohibition party include:

Donald Brand for trustee of Fairfield twp.; John W. Brandon for trustee of Union; Paul E. Bowman for trustee of Grant; Emmett O. Steininger for advisory board of Grant; Leroy C. Brand for trustee of Keyser; Homer R. Dorrell and Willie Gray Woodcox for advisory board of Keyser; Walter L. Lung for trustee for Butler twp.; John S. Flora for advisory board member for Butler twp.; Christian M. Funk for trustee of Smithfield and John Reinoehl and Samuel C. Perkins for advisory board for Smithfield twp.

The democrats nominated before the deadline included:

For councilman at large—Wayne Benninghoff of Newville twp.

For councilman, second district—Frank M. Adler of Waterloo.

For councilman, first district—Clifford Janke of Butler.

Advisory board members certified by the democrats included: Wilmington twp., Leroy Campbell, George Koeppe and Fred Oiler; Keyser twp., Albert Trovinger; Concord twp., Ralph Keeler, Royce Gibford and Donald Washler; Franklin twp., Ora Kaiser, Marion Newcomer and John Platt; Fairfield twp., Orlo Deetz, Cecil Stomm and Ralph Weirich; Smithfield twp., John Hoffelder and Ralph Pfefferkorn; Union twp., Lester Boger, John D. Smith and Paul E. Post and for Spencer twp., George R. Doll and Ewing Vendrely.

Other candidates certified by the democrats were Stanley Means for Concord township trustee and Mrs. Vay Groscop of Auburn for assessor of Union township.

Candidiates certified earlier by the democrats were A. J. Witt and Lloyd K. Mason for Richland twp. advisory board.

The candidates certified previously by the republicans were:

Charles R. McIntosh of Waterloo for justice of the peace of Grant twp., John W. Cobler for trustee of Jackson twp.; Mrs. Geraldine Smith for justice of the peace of Keyser twp.; A. J. Custer, Samuel Cook and J. H. Zimmerman for advisory board for Keyser twp.; Paul H. Ankney and Lewis W. Bonbrake for Smithfield advisory board and Del Mortorff for justice of the peace of Union township.

FISH OF INDIANA

GREEN SUNFISH

DESCRIPTION: The rather large mouth, with the upper jaw or maxillary extending to the middle of the eye; low dorsal fin; black spot on the dorsal and anal fin at base of hind margin, and three spiny anal rays separate this sunfish from all the rest. The Warmouth Bass has a much larger mouth and lacks the blue-green color. The other sunfishes have smaller mouths, scarcely reaching to the forepart of the eye.

DISTRIBUTION: Found throughout the state in almost all streams and some lakes.

HABITAT: Truly a creek sunfish liking sluggish pools and stagnant waters with mucky, weedy bottoms.

FOOD: Insects, worms, crayfish and small fish.

STOCKING: It is not advisable to stock the Green Sunfish along with other species because of its quick growth and habit of feeding on the young of other species.

SPAWNING AND PROPAGATION: Nests are found from April to July usually in hard clay or sandy silt. No propagation program at hatcheries.

No closed season or bag limit on this species.

Champion Wheat Crop, Thick Legume Stand Come From Good Soil Care Plus Plant Food

GOOD soil management practices including the use of commercial fertilizer, paid off for Charles Doades, who farms near Washington in Davies county, Ind., when he was named 1950 champion of the 10-Acre Wheat Improvement Contest in Southwestern Indiana.

Doades harvested a 45 bushel per acre yield of Vigo wheat from the 10 acres he entered in the contest. At combining time, the field's legume stand was about 12 inches high. Doades plans to plow it for corn next spring.

This year's championship field was seeded last October, at the rate of two bushels per acre. At seeding time, Doades added 650 pounds per acre of 3-12-12 fertilizer. Late in February he topdressed the field with 30 pounds of nitrogen per acre. The wheat followed soybeans in 1949 and corn in 1948.

Doades is a firm believer in legumes as a soil builder, according to Prof. Howard Lathrope, Purdue University agronomist. He seeded a mixture of seven pounds of sweet clover and five pounds of red clover on the field early in March.

Charles Doades, Left, and Son Robert, Examine Prize-Winning Vigo Wheat.

More than 400 Southwestern Indiana wheat growers competed in the wheat improvement contest this year. Fields were scored on appearance, soil management, culture and yields. County agents and specialists from Purdue University cooperated in the contest.

YOUTH ESCAPES INJURY

Deputy Sheriff George A. Milks reported Tuesday that 16-year-old Howard J. McMaken of St. Joe narrowly escaped injury Tuesday morning when he swerved his automobile to avoid colliding with a farm tractor and crashed on a country highway two miles north and one mile west of St. Joe.

The deputy said McMaken, traveling at a high rate of speed, swerved when he thought a farm tractor was being driven into the path of his car from a farm driveway.

His car skidded into the ditch, ran over two tree stumps and swerved back onto the highway 408 feet from the point where it entered the ditch. The vehicle, a 1950 Studebaker, did not upset. Damage to the machine was estimated at over $150.

The deputy sheriff said the farmer stopped the tractor just short of the highway when he saw the automobile approaching. The accident occurred about 9:15 a.m.

GOOD HEALTH

Answer to Question No. 1:

1. Not only are more children born but many more now live long enough to go to school. The death rate among pre-school children has declined from 20 deaths per 1,000 in 1900 to 1 per 1,000 today. With so many childhood diseases conquered, pediatricians report they spend most of their time supervising the health of well children and thus preventing illness.

Answer to Question No. 2:

2. The American Hospital Association says it costs an average of $14.33 a day for a general hospital to take care of a patient but the hospital receives $2.59 a day less than that from patients. Patients are being cured faster, which reduces the bill, and millions now take advantage of voluntary insurance plans such as Blue Cross and others to prepay hospital bills on an insurance basis.

Answer to Question No. 3:

3. It's that division of medicine which has to do with old age and its diseases. Because we now live much longer, more and more doctors are studying the problems of health in old age.

Yes Sir!

Quitter Makes Good

Lesson for September 10, 1950

UNLESS THAT boarding house in Antioch was different from other boarding houses, you could hardly have a private quarrel in it. There would be some inquisitive people who would notice when voices were raised, and who could not resist the temptation to listen.

Dr. Foreman

One of the quarrelers was none other than the famous Apostle Paul, and the other was his best friend Barnabas. At least, Paul and Barnabas had been good friends up to that day.

After that day's argument we do not know that they ever saw each other again. Paul never mentioned the incident, but the story got around, and Luke put it into his book of Acts.

Young Man Seeks Position

THE ARGUMENT was all about a young man named John Mark. Young people do not always realize how often they are discussed by their elders, or how much those discussions affect their lives. A young man applies for a job (which he would rather call a "position") and he either gets the job or he does not. But he never sees the files. He never hears the conversations about himself. He never knows just what remark got him the job—or cost him the job, as the case may be. So John Mark may never have known just what Paul and Barnabas said about him.

The facts were plain. John Mark was a native of Jerusalem, son of a woman at least well-off enough to have a large house of her own. He was some relative of Barnabas, perhaps a nephew. (Tradition says he was the young man in embarrasing circumstances described in Mark 14:51-52.) When Paul and Barnabas set off on their first missionary journey together, this John Mark went with them as a general assistant.

All went well at first. But when the party landed on the hot steamy shore of Pamphylia, and when the missionary expedition was about to take off over the high lonesome ranges through bandit country, John Mark left the party and took the first boat back to home and mother.

Two Bosses

WE HAVE no idea why he went. Maybe he had good reasons, maybe not. Anyway, we do know that he quit. And that was all Paul wanted to know. A new missionary party was being made up, and Barnabas wanted to take his young relative along again. But Paul could not see it.

Why take a man who had already fallen down on one job? Why take an assistant that could not be depended upon? The argument between Mark's two bosses boiled down to this: Paul judged their assistant on past performance. It was all he had to go by. Barnabas judged Mark by his love for him and his belief in him. The quarrel was sharp, and the two old friends could not agree. Finally the incredible happened: Paul and Barnabas parted company, and each went his separate way from that time forward.

What happened to Barnabas we do not know. But we do know that Barnabas was right about John Mark. Years later we read in more than one letter from Paul that Mark was a real help to him. We find that another great leader, Simon Peter, called Mark his "son." These leaders of the Christian church, though they might differ on some things, agreed about Mark, that he was a man to rely on.

What This Goes to Show

ALL THIS GOES to show several things. For one, it is clear that even an Apostle may be wrong. No man can be an infallible judge of another man. And another thing: You can't judge a man on his record alone. There may be more in the man than the record shows.

On the other hand, people do judge others by their records. The dubious young man does not always have a relative who will give him the benefit of the doubt.

If your record is bad, you must realize that there are numbers of people, even good people, who will judge you by that alone.

Fair Parade Awards Raised

Ralph Wible of Auburn, parade chairman of the DeKalb free fall fair which opens in Auburn Tuesday, Sept. 12, reported Tuesday that prizes for floats and decorated cars entered in the "grand finale" parade have been doubled.

The "grand finale," the annual climactic event of the five-day fair, will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 16.

According to Mr. Wible, the first prize in the float contest will be $100. Previously the fair board had set the prize at $50.

The parade chairman said the first prize for the best decorated car has been upped from $25 to $50. The increase in the prize for second in the decorated car events was jumped from $15 to $25 and third from $10 to $15.

Second prize in the float contest was increased from $25 to $50 and third from $10 to $25.

The increase in the prize list was made after fair officials reported that float and decorated car entries for the "grand finale" were not reaching expectations.

Prizes will also be awarded for the best comedy acts in the final parade. First prize ranges from $10 to $15; second from $5 to $10, and third from $3 to $5.

Mr. Wible said the attractive prizes offered for the floats and decorated cars are expected to lure a record number of entries into the "grand finale."

In conjunction with the contests for floats decorated cars and comedy acts, a marching band contest will be held with the parade.

Harold Long of Waterloo, parade band chairman, reported that more than 20 bands from the Indiana-Michigan-Ohio area have been invited to compete in the conntest.

David Hughes and Nilo Hovey of the Jordan Conservatory of Music at Indianapolis will serve as judges.

Seventeen trophies, now on display in the show windows at the Gerig Furniture company in Auburn, will be awarded.

TAIL LIGHT SHOULD BE RED ON TRACTORS

The single, farm tractor tail light if not covered with transparent red constitutes a grave traffic hazard, warns Mrs. Paul Flinn, director of farm and home safety for the Indiana Farm Bureau, Inc.

Pointing out that this single light appears to the nighttime motorist to be a single automobile headlight, she makes some suggesions for eliminating the danger which it presents. A red fire-proof cloth covering may be placed over the light at night if the tractor must be taken on the highway. For night time farm work the light without the cover allows the operator to see work being done by his equipment.

Mrs. Flinn urges farmers to stay off the highways at night with hay balers, corn pickers and such implements unless they are properly lighted with a reflector. These measures are necessary not only for the motorist's safety but also for that of the farmer.

Issuing a timely warning about the use of the corn picker, Mrs. Flinn reminds Indiana farmers that accidents do not always happen to the "other fellow." In an effort to save time during the corn harvest, many farmers do not disengage the power take-off of the corn picker before attempting to remove stalks or husks and resulting accidents cost many times the few minutes saved.

Special Treat: Homemade Bread

Delight to all who enjoy good food is the appearance of freshly baked homemade bread, with butter or margarine and preserves to spread on it.

Though busy homemakers like to depend on the baker for their daily supply of enriched bread, there is nothing quite like the wonderful aroma of homemade bread baking in the kitchen and family enjoyment of this special treat.

Thick slices of fresh home baked bread may be cut for snacks, to be spread with butter or margarine and topped with a bit of brown sugar or jelly; thinner slices for sandwiches to go into the lunchbox, others to be dipped in egg-and-milk and fried a golden brown for breakfast French toast.

However you like it, enriched bread from home kitchen or bakery fits well into any normal diet and provides excellent nourishment. In the well-planned reducing diet, too, enriched bread is included at each meal for its food energy, proteins, and B-vitamins.

If you like a deep-browned loaf of bread, brush melted butter or margarine over the top of the loaf after it has been shaped and placed in bread pan to rise. Bake in moderately hot oven for lightness and even grain.

ENRICHED BREAD

1 package yeast, compressed or dry
¼ cup lukewarm water
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon shortening
6 cups sifted enriched flour (about)

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm, (80 to 85° F.) When cooled, add 2 cups flour, stirring well. Add softened yeast. Add enough more flour to make a moderately stiff dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until smooth and satiny (5 to 8 minutes). Shape into ball and place in lightly greased bowl. Grease surface of dough lightly. Cover and let rise in warm place (80 to 85° F.) until doubled (about 1½ hours). Punch down. Let rise again until doubled (about 45 minutes). If preferred, shape dough into loaves after first rising. Divide dough into 2 equal portions. Shape each portion into smooth ball. Let rest 10 minutes. Shape into loaves. Place in greased bread pans. Let rise until doubled (about 1 hour). Bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) 50 minutes.

SEMINAR FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS TO BE HELD THIS FALL

The Higley Press, interdenominational publishers of Sunday School literature for the past thirty-five years, announces a five-day session of instruction for Sunday School teachers and prospective teachers, to be held at Butler, Indiana, beginning Monday, October 2, and closing Friday, October 6.

In order to accomodate persons who are employed during the day, the school will be in session each evening from 6:30 to 9:30.

The school is intended for Sunday School teachers, prospective teachers and officers. Pastors are welcome and will find profit in the sessions, even though they are planned specifically for teachers. Day school teachers are challenged to prepare for specific service in the field of Christian education.

The purpose of the school includes a three-fold goal: (1) To lead to a true appreciation of the Bible as the Book of Life; (2) To lead to a new love for and a better understanding of pupils; (3) To lead to a vision for effective community-wide Sunday School work.

The subjects to be taught are:

1. The Bible. The study will center in the Gospel by John. The purpose will be to demonstrate for the ordinary reader how he may discover the essential teaching of a Bible book.

2. The pupil. This will be a study of the different pupil age levels.

3. The Field. The study of this period will deal with the general question of "Reaching the Unreached." Ministers of the area are being invited to present papers tackling the problem, and giving the basis for class discussion.

Instructors in the seminar will be Loyal R. Ringenberg and Miriam M. Jeffers, both editors of Sunday School literature at the Higley Press. Mr. Ringenberg was formerly a public school teacher, later an instructor of Bible at the Fort Wayne Bible Institute, and for two years he was engaged in pastoral work. Mrs. Jeffers is an ordained minister and has served several pastoral charges. For seventeen years she and her husband were associates with the American Sunday School Union.

Classes may be taken for credit or they may merely be audited. Credit students will do specified assignments. A certificate of credit equivalent to a college semester hour may be earned.

The classes will be held at the Butler High School where ideal facilities for school work are assured.

More information may be obtained by writing the Sunday School Teachers' Seminar, c-o The Higley Press, Butler, Indiana.

Hints On Health

INDIANA STATE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

DEATH ON HIGHWAYS

THE fight to save mankind from untimely death is not confined to disease alone. Accidents, for example, took a toll of 91,000 lives in the United States last year. Motor vehicle accidents led the list, 33,000 dying from this cause.

With the increase of motor vehicles, traffic safety becomes a growing problem. We have in the United States today one motor car for every three persons. In Indiana in 1949, 1,488,398 motor vehicles were registered. The number of vehicles on Indiana highways has increased 10 per cent each year since the war.

Traffic safety executives are placing greater emphasis on the person behind the wheel, and urging a more thorough screening of drivers. Two million persons are licensed to drive in our state. Only 10 per cent who apply for a driver's permit are turned down. Driving licenses of approximately 20,000 Hoosier drivers are revoked annually.

While practically all states give tests of driving skill, a physical examination and re-examination at least every five years may become necessary, for the manner in which a person responds in a tight situation is more important ofttimes than his rate of speed.

The greatest difference between the tests of accident repeaters and accident-free drivers is found in their skill in passing other cars. Accident repeaters frequently neglect to signal a turn or sound the horn before passing.

Drunken driving cannot be overlooked as a factor in highway deaths. Indiana state police in 1949 arrested 2,878 tipsy drivers, an all-time high.

Hogs Build Higher Profits at Lower Cost On Well Fertilized Legume-Grass Pasture

High-Protein Pasture Produces Healthier, Heavier Pigs.

HOGS will build higher profits for you if you give them plenty of fresh, clean legume pasture, reports M. L. Mosher, Illinois College of Agriculture farm management specialist. This practice cuts down grain consumption and also reduces death losses from disease.

Mosher bases his statement on an analysis of income records of 200 Illinois hog farmers over a 10-year period.

The 60 most profitable farms in the group used about one-fourth more pasture and one-fourth more hay than the 60 farms with the smallest profits.

Farms with the most pasture needed 45 less pounds of grain to produce 100 pounds of pork. That was a saving of more than 10 per cent in grain. The amount of supplement was the same on farms with plenty or little pasture.

Mosher reports that on farms with the most pasture, death losses after weaning were 18 per cent smaller, too.

Alfalfa was the most common hog pasture. Other high-protein pastures were red alsike clover, Ladino clover and rye for early spring and late fall.

Getting and maintaining high yielding stands of pasture depends on giving the legumes plenty of nutrients. Agronomists recommend adding phosphate and potash fertilizer to new legume-grass seedings. Top-dressing older established stands with phosphate and potash in the fall will help keep the growth thick and vigorous. Fall-applied fertilizer helps the legumes weather the winter in better condition. Moreover, the plant food is right there ready to be used by the roots when spring growth starts.

Town and Farm

by EVERETT MITCHELL

Farm Commentator, heard Monday through Saturday 6:15-6:45 a. m. on WMAQ, Chicago, 670 on your dial.

City folks don't have a monopoly on automobile accidents. The trend is towards an increasing number of fatal accidents in rural areas, with the highest percentage of these occurring on country roads rather than on heavily-traveled major highways.

Our good friends in Iowa this week are closing a two-week statewide "Drive Right" campaign. It is sponsored by the Iowa Safety Congress, to point up that death stalks country roads more often than it does city streets and broad superhighways. Why is this so?

There is less policing and supervision of drivers on country roads; fewer warning signs; narrow roadways and bridges; poor lighting—mostly none at all—and poor road surfaces. Loose gravel or dirt which make it hard to stop a fast-moving vehicle. Speed, which is the major cause of accidents anywhere, has become even a greater killer on the country road.

Country driving hazards require some special safety tips. Most drivers never pull out on a major highway without first stopping, but the same driver will heedlessly dart out onto a narrow side-road from an even more narrow and concealed lane. Remember always to bring your vehicle to a complete stop!

Tractors and other farm machines are special problems on country roads. It is required by law that such vehicles have at least one white headlight and one red light at the rear. These must be visible from 500 feet—which means reflectors are not satisfactory.

One out of every 15 tractor highway accidents results in death, while one out of 111 car crashes results in a fatality. So the driver of a tractor is in a dangerous spot. Don't make it any worse by ignoring simple rules of highway safety!
